CHARGE CIO PERILS NAVY PLAN

U. S. FLAYS REDS FOR CONDUCT IN ROW OVER SHIP

Says Soviet Refused to Co-operate.

Alexander C. Kirk, American charge d'affaires in Berlin.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—The United States of America made new charges tonight that soviet Russia "withheld adequate coöperation" in the dispute over the captured American freighter City of Flint.

In a statement reviewing the capture of the vessel by a German raider and her subsequent entry into the Russian port of Murmansk, the state department contended it was the soviet government's "clear duty" to turn the craft over to her American crew.

The American statement was issued as the City of Flint finally appeared to have put out to sea after a day of contradictory reports which seemed about to make it a phantom ship. Tass, official soviet news agency, reported tonight that the vessel had sailed from Murmansk after repairing her engines.

Conflicting Reports in Berlin.

The Tass message did not say whether the freighter was in command of a German prize crew or whether the American officers and crew of 41 men were aboard.

Earlier in the day German officials had told the American embassy in Berlin that the ship still was in Murmansk. Then later they reversed themselves by reiterating a previous declaration that the vessel had left Murmansk and was headed for some German port.

A report from Copenhagen that the vessel had passed Danish waters was considered a pure falsification because it is impossible for her to have sailed that distance. Bergen, Norway, reported the Flint passed the islands off there. A British dispatch said she had passed into Scandinavian waters.

Charge Nazis Changed Story.

The state department, which maintains the entry into Murmansk was illegal, said the Germans apparently had changed their story as to why it was necessary to take the craft to that port. First, the statement said, it was alleged that the German prize crew lacked needed charts.

"Later this ground seems to have been abandoned and a new ground for theory relating to defective machinery was set up."

The statement caustically declared that "each person can decide for himself" how much light is shed on the incident "by the action of the soviet government in withholding adequate coöperation with the American government with respect to assembling and disclosing to the American embassy in Moscow the essential facts pertaining to the landing, the whereabouts and welfare of the American crew."

More Diplomatic Action.

The new charges steered close to open accusations of soviet bad faith and laid the groundwork for additional diplomatic action. They reënforced the "indignant" protests made yesterday in Moscow by Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt.

The statement made by the German ministry of marine to Alexander C. Kirk, American chargé d'affaires in Berlin, that the City of Flint was still at Murmansk instead of on the high seas under a German prize crew was in sharp conflict with word that previously had been circulated both in Berlin and Moscow.

State Department Report.

"The City of Flint was captured by a German cruiser at an estimated distance of some 1,250 miles from New York, with a mixed cargo destined for British ports. The date of capture is understood to have been Oct. 9.

"The City of Flint was taken into the harbor of Tromsoe on Oct. 21, with a German crew and flying the German flag. After remaining two hours to take water, it was ordered by the Norwegian government to depart, which it did.

"The City of Flint was taken into the harbor of Murmansk on the eve-

RIOTING CZECHS BATTLE NAZIS; REPORT 4 SLAIN

Many Wounded and Thousands Jailed.

PRAGUE, Bohemia, Oct. 29, Sunday (AP).—Four persons were reported to have been killed and an undetermined number of Czechs and Germans wounded last night in violent clashes resulting from demonstrations in observance of the 21st anniversary of the former Czecho-Slovak republic. The republic died last March when Fuehrer Hitler set up a protectorate over the provinces of Bohemia and Moravia.

Shots were heard in various parts of Prague. The demonstrations increased in violence until midnight, when the crowds began to disperse gradually. As the disorders subsided, Nazi police began to relax some of the security measures to enforce their ban on public observance of the national holiday. Streets blocked off yesterday were reopened, but heavily armed police continued to patrol the main thorofares. A cordon of police surrounded the center of the city, isolating that section.

Thousands Reported Jailed.

Altho German police and Nazi Hitler troops had clashed with patriotic Czechs during the day, first reports of shooting came last night. The wounded were said to have been taken to two hospitals.

Authoritative figures were lacking on the number of persons arrested during the day, but unconfirmed reports said the total ran into the thousands.

With the heart of Prague sealed by the police, the demonstrations shifted to the more outlying squares and streets.

German authorities and Czech state police, including many mounted officers, coöperated in the attempt to control the crowds.

The majority of the demonstrators wore national colors and the earlier clashes took place on main and side streets leading to Wenceslas square in the heart of the city.

Reds Cheer Stalin.

Three clashes occurred at Wenceslas square, which was an especial mecca for the Czechs from early morning, because a statue of the city's patron saint, Wenceslas, is located there. It had been roped off early in the morning as part of the ban on public demonstrations.

A group of youths, wearing so-called Masaryk caps [named after Thomas G. Masaryk, co-founder of the republic] to indicate their sympathies, attempted to enter the blocked off square at about noon, but were driven back.

As the incident developed, communists began shouting "Long live Stalin." Their shouts soon were drowned out by cries of "Long live the republic."

In midafternoon crowds again broke thru the police cordon. Before Hotel Sroubek, located on Wenceslas square, German Brown Shirts attempted to rip off patriotic insignia worn by the demonstrators.

Czechs Fight Back.

The Czechs fought back and the German police were reinforced by Czech state police. One Czech policeman was among those arrested.

A third fight developed late in the afternoon and more arrests were made by German authorities assisted by policing patrols of the national Aryan Front and by mounted police.

In the square at suburban Weinbergen Czechs called out "We want liberty" and "Long live the Czecho-Slovakian republic, away with the Germans."

Quiet observances of the day were held in other cities of the Bohemia-Moravian protectorate despite the German ban.

ALABAMA SPOTS ILLICIT HUNTERS WITH GLASS EYE

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 28 (AP).—Alabama game wardens long have been stumped on how to keep illicit night hunters from killing deer after blinding them with spotlights. Glass eyes have come to the rescue and wardens say they will be used in this fashion: [A] Glass reflectors resembling animal eyes are planted in areas where illegal hunting is carried on. [B] Hunter glimpses "eye," shines light on it, bangs away. [C] At the sound of gun a concealed warden pulls string causing "eye" to disappear. [D] Warden arrests hunter as latter approaches his "kill."

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 28 (AP).—As the shadow of soviet Russia deepened over the capitals of southeastern Europe, King Carol of Rumania met in secret conference today with his foreign minister and his envoys to Turkey, Bulgaria, Greece, and Jugo-Slavia.

Fears that Russia may be supporting Bulgaria's campaign to regain Dobruja from Rumania were said to have prompted Carol to call his ministers back to Bucharest for urgent talks. Dobruja is a fertile agricultural area of 4,000 square miles to which Rumania's rights were confirmed by the treaty of Neuilly in 1919.

There was intensive diplomatic activity thruout the Balkans. Diplomats saw hurried conferences as last minute moves before the special session of the supreme soviet [parliament] next Tuesday, when Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov was expected to clarify Russia's objectives in southeastern Europe.

Leaders Confer on Frontier.

Premier Constantine Argetoianu of Rumania and Premier Dragisha Tsvetkovitch of Jugo-Slavia conferred for four hours in the village of Vrsac, on the Jugo-Slav-Rumanian border.

Diplomats in Belgrade said that Jugo-Slavia had agreed to warn Bulgaria that flirtation with Russia might result in disastrous consequences for the whole Balkan area.

At Sofia, the Italian minister was closeted for several hours with the Bulgarian premier, George Kiosseivanoff. He was reported to have expressed the fascist government's advice against allowing Bulgaria to come under exclusive soviet influence.

Greece, allied with Turkey, watched all moves with interest and some concern, mindful of Bulgaria's territorial claims on Grecian soil.

There were reports in Balkan capitals that a pro-Russian movement continued to grow in Bulgaria, which is historically close to the Russian people by language and sentiment.

Another cause of nervousness in the Balkans was a Russian notice that navigators of foreign ships were forbidden to enter Russian Black sea ports without special authorization and a Russian pilot because of newly laid mine fields.

Diplomatic quarters said the gradual improvement of relations between Italy and Turkey, the latter allied with France and Britain, continued. It was announced in Istanbul that Italy had lifted the long standing ban against Turkish ships calling at the island of Rhodes.

Jail 44 Pro-Nazis.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 29 [Sunday] (AP).—Rumanian authorities early today announced the arrest of 44 former members of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard on a charge of plotting to assassinate Gen. Gabriel Marinescu, minister of public order. The arrests were made at Ploesti, in the heart of the Rumanian oil fields. Marinescu has been accused by members of the outlawed Iron Guard with responsibility for the execution of several hundred members of the organization since the assassination of Premier Armand Calinescu on Sept. 21.

Soviet Russia has expressed the hope that Rumania would reach an understanding with Bulgaria over the latter's claims on Dobruja, informed sources said last night.

These sources said the soviet message was given to Sukru Saracoglu during his recent visit to Moscow and was transmitted by him to Vasile Stoica, Rumanian ambassador to Ankara, who brought it to Bucharest.

HELEN WILLS MOODY BECOMES BRIDE OF RICH POLO PLAYER

Las Vegas, Nev., Oct. 28 (AP).—Helen Wills Moody, former world singles tennis champion, and Aidan Roark, wealthy polo player, were married here today. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Albert C. Melton of the Immanuel Community church.

It is the second marriage for both. Mrs. Roark was divorced from Frederick H. Moody Jr., a broker, in Carson City, Nev., in 1937, after eight years of married life. Roark's first wife was the former Mrs. Esther Foss Moore, daughter of former Governor Foss of Massachusetts. They were married three years.

Roark, who also is a film writer, was injured in the American-British polo series last June and is reported planning to retire from the game. His brother, Pat, was killed in a polo accident nearly a year ago. The newlyweds will live in Rolling Hills, near Los Angeles, Cal.

Chicago Opera Begins Golden Jubilee Year

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Fifty years of grand opera in Chicago was celebrated last night at the opening of the opera season. That is not a long stretch of time, perhaps, in older places, but it is a long one in a city that was but a collection of rude cabins a little more than a hundred years ago. On Dec. 10, 1889, Chicago heard its first grand opera in the Auditorium theater. Last night opera was heard in the Civic Opera house, to which the company moved in 1929.

Chicago has not had a full season of opera every year since the Auditorium was dedicated, but there have been few years when there was not an opera company of some sort contributing to the cultural development of the city. The year 1889 did not actually mark the start of opera in Chicago, for as early as 1850 there was an operatic performance. It was a brief one, however, for the theater in which it was being given burned to the ground an hour after the singing started.

Company Formed in 1910.

From then until Patti sang in "Romeo and Juliet" in the Auditorium in 1889 there were many operatic performances but no set season. Chicago did not have its own company until 1910, when prominent citizens formed the Chicago Grand Opera company.

The first season this chronicler covered was the one that opened on Nov. 18, 1919. It was a brilliant opening, one that deserved the adjective gala, for it was the first one after the finish of the world war. "The gowns of the women reflected the after the war spirit in their vivid coloring and gorgeous trimming," we wrote. From then until the depression each opening night was more beautiful, more thrilling to behold. Then the brilliance dimmed and the air of opulence and extravagance vanished. Even the faces changed. When the opera reopened after being out of existence for several years it was hard to find a familiar face.

Slowly a new era has dawned. To one who does not remember the pre-

Kidnaped in Plane and Slain

Runaway Pilot Tells of Fatal Battle in Air

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28 [Special].—One of the most spectacular crimes of the 20th century—and what is believed to be the first airplane kidnap murder on record—was exposed and solved here tonight thru the confession of a young flying fanatic.

Ernest Pletch after arrest. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The slayer is Ernest Pletch, 29 years old, of Frankfort, Ind., whose hankering after adventure in the air inspired him to abduct a pretty Illinois girl in a stolen plane last summer, and finally, according to police, led him to commit murder.

The victim of his newest crime was Carl Bivens, 38, a flying instructor of Brookfield, Mo. Pletch will be charged with murder in Missouri.

Spirits His Victim Away.

Pletch spirited Bivens away yesterday in a stolen plane, then shot him twice while in midair, landed, tossed out the body on a farm field near Cherry Box, Mo., and flew away. Pletch was seized in Clear Creek, Ind., four miles from Bloomington, today after he had made a forced landing in a pasture, following an all day search.

After questioning tonight by Don F. Stiver, head of the Indiana state police, Pletch recited a bizarre story of his crime. He killed Bivens after a fist fight on the ship 500 feet above the ground, he said.

"Bivens was hard up for money," related Pletch, "and so we agreed to steal the plane, which he had borrowed. But he got cold feet and wanted to go back. We got into a fist fight. I managed to get my gun. I shot Bivens twice in the head. Then I grabbed the controls just as the plane was heading for some trees, and leveled it off to a landing. I took Bivens' body out and left it in a field."

Bivens Is Shot Twice.

Pletch met Bivens at the Brookfield air field Thursday and tried to hire the latter's plane. The two went up, and Pletch soon showed the flying instructor that he knew how to handle a ship. Bivens permitted him to fly solo. Yesterday Pletch returned to the airport. After a while he and Bivens took off in a small Cub ship. They did not return.

Search was started. Then, yesterday afternoon, Bivens' body was found near Cherry Box. A handkerchief and a glove had been stuffed into his mouth. He had been shot twice from behind.

Almost at the hour Bivens' body was discovered young Pletch was captured in Clear Creek. He had been trailed easily, first thru a stolen car which he had abandoned near the Brookfield air field, and next by keeping a watch for airplanes near Frankfort, Ind., where his parents are farmers. This afternoon Pletch flew low over their house, then zoomed away. Not long afterward he landed in a pasture. Then he proceeded to Clear Creek.

At First Denies Killing.

Police found him in the general store there, eating a sandwich. He carried a loaded pistol in his pocket, but made no effort to resist arrest.

Pletch was asked as to the whereabouts of Bivens, last seen with him. He replied Bivens had landed at

STRIKERS HOLD UP PARTS FOR NEW AIRPLANES

Report to Be Placed Before House.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—A report to the house naval affairs committee by Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison disclosed today that the navy department's national defense program has been "seriously jeopardized" by C. I. O. strikes.

Charles Edison.

Members of the committee were surprised by the revelation that C. I. O. strikers had defied the navy department by refusing to permit naval inspectors to pass thru picket lines to pick up patterns and parts considered essential to the manufacture of airplane engines at the naval aircraft factory in Philadelphia.

The secretary made the report in response to a resolution introduced in the house Oct. 12 by Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], which asked information concerning reports that the navy's defense program had been hampered by a C. I. O. strike against the Bohn Aluminum and Brass corporation of Detroit, Mich.

Representative Hoffman said he would call the attention of the house to this situation next Monday.

Charges C. I. O. Scoffs at Pleas.

"The report speaks for itself," commented Hoffman. "It shows that the C. I. O. is hamstringing the navy. It has scoffed at the pleas of the navy department to obtain plans and property of the United States of America which were held by pickets of union local 208 of the United Automobile Workers of the C. I. O. Neither the navy department nor the President has done anything about this. The President himself is responsible for this situation which he made possible by his coddling of John L. Lewis."

Acting Secretary Edison's report stated that the navy department had a contract with the Bohn corporation for the manufacture of special bearings for aircraft engines. The corporation also was engaged in the manufacture of special bearings and castings for airplane engines in process of manufacture at the naval aircraft factory, navy yard, Philadelphia.

Union Sends Three Men.

"On Sept. 28, 1939," Acting Secretary Edison asserted in his report, "the navy resident inspector of naval material at Detroit informed the regional director of the U. A. W.-C. I. O. of the seriousness of the delay in the delivery of the material due on contracts, also the urgent need of the shipment of patterns.

"The inspector requested that he [the C. I. O. director] instruct his representative in charge of the picket line at the corporation's plant No. 2 to allow a representative to pass thru the picket line to pick up government owned patterns and ship them on a government bill of lading.

"The regional director of the C. I. O. sent three representatives of union local 208 to discuss the removal of the patterns with the inspector of naval material. The union representatives were given full access to the files of the navy contracts.

Strike Settled Oct. 8.

"At the end of the discussion, the union representatives stated that as the strike situation stood at the present time, their answer was emphatically 'No,' and that they would not let patterns or inspected castings be removed. No further action was taken by the navy department to remove the patterns and castings. The navy department kept in touch with the strike situation at the Bohn plants thru its field representatives and thru the department of labor, but took no steps looking toward the settlement of the strike."

The strike was settled Oct. 8 after a duration of 41 days. During this period, the delivery of all parts for the manufacture of airplane engines was delayed, Secretary Edison reported.

Agents Quiz Naval Employés.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 28 [Special].—Agents of the federal bureau of investigation indicated tonight that a rigid inquiry regarding all civilian employés of navy yards and other shore stations was being made. The investigation is a result of the arrest of a workman at the torpedo station in Newport on a charge of putting emery dust into the gyromechanism of a torpedo. It is a gyromechanism that keeps a torpedo on a straight course.

The arrest of this workman, Joseph Demers Jr., 45 years old, was kept secret for one week while agents assigned by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau, investigated. The torpedo station, located in Narragansett bay, is said to be the largest manufactory of torpedos in the western hemisphere, and 3,700 men now are employed there.

Demers was arraigned before a federal commissioner last Saturday and was released under $5,000 bail for hearing next Monday.

NAVY TO BOLSTER PATROL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—The navy acted today to strengthen the Atlantic coast neutrality patrol with more ships and men.

Officers were assigned to 12 long idle world war destroyers, nine at Philadelphia and three at San Diego, Cal., which officials said may put to sea to reinforce 40 similar destroyers ordered recommissioned last month when President Roosevelt proclaimed a limited national emergency.

Fifty-seven reserve officers were ordered to active duty aboard large vessels of the fleet to release line officers for service with the neutrality patrol. Other reservists similarly will be added up to maximum of 200, deemed sufficient to meet emergency requirements until next March.

Among the naval reserve officers ordered on active duty were the following from Illinois: Lieuts. Dwight M. Williams of Chicago and D. R. Waughan of Highland Park and Ensigns John P. Awymond and Andreas R. Czerwonky of Chicago, Bruno G. Varnagaris of Maywood, Henry L. Waliszewski, Julian A. Schroeder, and Bernard C. West of Evanston, and George N. Stembridge Jr. of Park Ridge.

A reserve fleet of 110 destroyers is available for patrol or other emergency duty, in addition to Atlantic squadron ships, planes, and blimps already maintaining the 300 mile safety belt agreed upon at the recent Panama conference of American republics.

U. S. COURT BALKS PLEA IN REMOVAL OF CEMETERIES

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 28 (AP).—Federal Judge Fred L. Wham today declined to remand to the State Circuit court a suit seeking to enjoin the federal government from moving graves from the site to be flooded by Crab Orchard lake. It was set forth in the petition that the federal court was without jurisdiction in the case because less than $3,000 was involved.

Judge Wham ruled, however, that an injunction would interfere with government operations on the project. "The amount in controversy cannot properly be held to be limited to the mere pecuniary interest of the plaintiffs in the graves and cemeteries in question," he added.

Circuit Judge Lloyd Bradley of Carbondale had issued a temporary injunction against the government in the suit, filed by relatives of persons buried in the project area. Federal attorneys blocked the injunction by transferring the case to federal court. No date for a hearing was set by Judge Wham.

REPORTS BRITISH GUNS SANK OWN VESSEL IN PACIFIC

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 28. (AP)—The first report of a wartime loss to British shipping in the Pacific was published today by the Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

It quoted a letter from William William saying he was aboard the coastal ship Dolphin when it was sunk by British guns as she entered Lyttelton harbor, South Island, New Zealand.

The Dolphin was said to have been entering the harbor in daylight when a fort gun was fired to warn the ship to identify herself. The ship did not answer; a second warning shot apparently ricocheted and struck the ship, sinking it in two minutes.

The letter added that the explosion blew a leg from Capt. Brassel, who was washed into the wheelhouse as the ship sank.

FOE OF BRITISH INCOME TAX TO LIVE IN TRAILER

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Labor member of parliament and foe of Britain's "ferocious income tax," received authority today to move out of his palatial home and live in a trailer.

When the wartime income tax was announced, Col. Wedgwood threatened to give up his house. He said "the ferocious income tax will make us all retrench," and applied for permission to live in a trailer at Barlaston, near his constituency.

Many others are meeting the high cost of living and the threat of air raids in a similar manner. The theory is that trailers are cheaper and that it is hard to hit a moving object with an aerial bomb.

Mexico Will Give $6,000 to Aid Hurricane Victims

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28 (AP).—The chamber of deputies announced today it would donate 30,000 pesos [$6,000] to aid residents in the states of Nayarit and Jalisco, where hundreds were reported homeless after a hurricane struck two days ago.

LUDLOW VOICES PLEA TO RETAIN ARMS EMBARGO

Believes Repeal Would Get Nation Into War.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 [Special].—Representative Louis Ludlow [D., Ind.] issued a statement in support of his contention that the United States should retain the embargo as a means of keeping this country out of the European war.

"In this country of ours," the congressman said, "we have two ideologies in respect to war. Those ideologies have come to the point where they are clashing violently and where America must choose between them.

"If we adopt as our permanent policy one ideology, sometimes contemptuously referred to as 'isolation,' but which is not isolation at all, we may safely count on remaining at peace with the world. If we adopt as our policy the other ideology, the interventionist ideology, it will simply be a question of time when it will drag us into war.

Cites Geographical Position.

"I have said that isolation is a misnomer. The isolation ideology does not suggest that America should isolate itself from the world. It merely suggests that we should isolate ourselves from the wars that are eternally brewing in Europe and in other foreign trouble areas of the globe. This we are fortunately able to do because of our geographical position.

"A nation is no more to blame for isolating itself from war than an individual is for isolating himself from a fight when a fight is not necessary.

"The founder of the ideology which kept us out of war for over a century and that will continue to keep us out of war for all time if we adhere to it, was George Washington. Thomas Jefferson was one of the most ardent supporters and defenders of this philosophy.

Points to History's Lessons.

"When Washington and Jefferson were living, conditions in the old world were not far different from today. A madman was loose in Europe, even more ruthless than Hitler. His name was Napoleon. Under his sway ancient boundaries crumbled.

"Did Washington and Jefferson advocate American intervention to suppress Napoleon? Not at all. The bug of internationalism had never bitten them. Unlike our modern internationalists they had a very firm conviction that Europe's affairs were none of our business.

"Napoleon was more brutal than Hitler but Jefferson did not believe that we should try to wipe out the sins of Napoleon with the blood of American boys. It was the firm and settled conviction of Jefferson and all of the other founding fathers that we should keep out of the whole European mess. And that, I believe, is good sense today.

"The clash between the Washington-Jefferson ideology, which holds that America's supreme destiny lies in keeping out of foreign quarrels, and the modern internationalist ideology, which teaches that it is America's duty to help police the world, went thru a climacteric period during consideration of neutrality legislation at the last session of congress.

"Followers of Washington and Jefferson won that important round of the battle, when the amendment was adopted placing an embargo on shipments of munitions to belligerents.

Propose Aid for Empires.

"The Bloom so-called neutrality bill, now under debate in the senate, runs counter to the general wish of our people that America should keep out of war. It is an example of the interventionist ideology. It is based on the theory that it is to the best interest of the United States to line up on the side of certain great powers and against certain other great powers. It would plunge America into power politics up to the hilt.

"No candid champion of the bill ever claimed that it is a neutrality bill. Its proponents frankly admit that it is a bill in the interest of England and France and its effect would be to make America an ally of the British empire and France in any future war in which they choose to engage, because it would establish the United States as the arsenal and storehouse of supplies and credits for those countries that control the seas.

"From the standpoint of creating a war risk what could be worse for America? With a superlatively profitable war trade once established, the American interests that are the beneficiaries would pull with the strength of a million hawsers to bring America into the war on the side of their commercial allies to protect that trade. We can never keep out of war if we have an enormous stake in the game.

"I have no patience with those who have been reiterating that 'if another European war breaks out we cannot keep out of it.' Why not? Of course we can, and if I understand the temper of the American people we will keep out unless some ill-advised action drags us in.

"Holland, Denmark, and the Scandinavian countries kept out of the last war, and they were right under the big guns. Should it be so very difficult for a nation to keep out that is 3,000 miles from the scene of conflict, with a great ocean in between?

Opposes American Arsenal.

"Here are some figures that ought to forever doom such an unneutral proposal. In the 150 years the United States has been functioning as an independent sovereignty England has been engaged in 54 wars lasting 102 years, or 68 per cent of the time. During the 150 years France has been engaged in 53 wars lasting 99 years.

"Is it possible that we intend to ally ourselves with these fighting nations by making America the arsenal, storehouse and source of supplies for them in all of their future wars? And if we do so, how long do you think we will be able to keep out of war? Yet that is exactly what is proposed.

"I have the greatest respect for President Roosevelt. With many fine things he has done to improve our domestic conditions I am in full accord, but I find it difficult to agree with his views expressed in an interview July 4 last summarized in the Washington Times-Herald as follows:

"'The policy of the administration is to try to prevent war in any part of the world, and is the first policy of the administration, the President declared.'

Sending Armies Next Step.

"Britain and France, commanding the seas, would be in a position to draw on the vast resources of America to wage their wars if the Bloom bill passes. If that bill is enacted, and the embargo amendment is repealed, we may look forward to the next step, the placing of our armies at the disposal of Britain and France, for that is what it will amout to in the end, anyway.

"There is never a time when there are not wars in some parts of the world. Wars have been going on since the dawn of creation and the Almighty has not stopped them. Imagine officials at Washington trying to prevent war in any part of the world, and then imagine if you can the commitments we would have to make and the vast expenditure of blood and treasure it would be necessary to pour out in order to make such a policy effective.

"A vote to repeal the embargo would be half a vote for war. I have pledged my sacred honor that I will not vote to send our boys into a bloody war overseas and I will not cast half a vote to send them in. Repealing the embargo would put us in the war immediately in the rôle of a noncombatant ally of one set of fighting powers and our rôle would be likely to change at any minute to that of a combatant."

GANDHI INSISTS INDIA GET INDEPENDENCE IN DOMINION STATUS

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 28 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, leader of India's congress [Nationalist] party, questioned today whether dominion status for India "has any meaning unless it is synonymous with independence."

Gandhi posed his question while expressing appreciation of the "conciliatory tone" of the statement made in the British house of commons on Thursday by Sir Samuel Hoare, lord privy seal, in defense of the government's India policy.

[Sir Samuel said India had advanced far along the road to dominion status, but declared it could not be granted until the Indians had settled their minorities problems.]

Gandhi added that India's coöperation in the war is "not so barren as Hoare believes."

"It is still effective and will continue so, if the congress party remains nonviolent," he said.

REVOLT ENDED AT BOLIVIA'S WAR COLLEGE

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Oct. 28 [U. P.].—An uprising in the Bolivian Military college came to an end tonight when barricaded students reached an agreement with the government.

The uprising was begun yesterday in protest against the deportation from Bolivia on Thursday of Bernardino Bilbao Rioja, commander-in-chief of the army, a presidential candidate and a brother of Col. Sinforiano Bilbao Rioja, commander of the college.

Under the terms of the agreement, Bernardino Bilbao will be permitted to return to Bolivia as an ordinary citizen. The government also agreed not to punish the cadets.

UNUSUAL GERMAN TROOP ACTIVITY DENIED BY SWISS

Paris and London reports of concentration of 12 German divisions in this area led some observers to wonder whether they might indicate the British and French themselves were planning some action on the Rhine frontier north of Switzerland and chose this means of finding out what the Swiss thought was the German strength in that area.

COMMONS TO AIR PERIL TO LIBERTY IN WAR DECREES

Liberal Party Fears Laws May Be Abused.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—England's Liberal parliamentary party will call attention in the house of commons on Tuesday to what is alleged to be inroads on personal liberty threatened by orders in council amending defense regulations. Amendment by orders in council means that defense regulations are changed without authorization by parliament.

The regulations first were issued at the beginning of the war and have been amended from time to time. The Liberals say that in the rush of emergency legislation during the first days of the war the danger to liberty inherent in many of these regulations was overlooked and that the publication of regulations in a new pamphlet, together with some of the amendments, has brought the dangers to light.

Object to Curfew Powers.

They object to regulation No. 37 which empowers the home secretary to establish curfew in any area for any length of time, forbidding every one to be out of doors at a specified period except with written permission.

Regulation 18A empowers the secretary of state to restrict the movement of any person if he thinks it necessary to prevent actions in a manner prejudicial to public safety.

It is not these powers themselves apparently that trouble the Liberals, but the possibility of their abuse.

Under regulation 18B, the secretary of state may prohibit a person from possessing specified articles. He may also impose restrictions on his employment or business or restrict his association with other persons "in respect to his activities in relation to the dissemination of news or propagation of opinions." Under any order made under this regulation, the secretary of state can detain a person as long as he pleases.

See Danger to Workers.

The Liberals also will call attention to regulation 39A to curb efforts to cause disaffection. This regulation, they say, is full of danger. It provides for prosecution of any one endeavoring to disaffect the personnel of government services. Legal experts say that under this regulation any one who urged dockyard workers or munitions workers in a national factory to demand higher wages or strike could be prosecuted.

Criticism of the war or opposition to it also would fall within the prohibitions of this regulation.

"No person shall, first, endeavor, whether orally or otherwise, to influence public opinion whether in the United Kingdom or elsewhere in a manner prejudicial to defense of the realm or efficient prosecution of the war, or, second, to do any act or have any article in his possession with the view of making or facilitating the making of any such endeavor," the regulation says.

CZECH SOLDIERS IN FRANCE OBSERVE DAY OF REPUBLIC'S BIRTH

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Somewhere in France in a camp where they are training to serve with the empires on the western front, soldiers of the Czecho-Slovak army today observed the 21st anniversary of the former Czech republic.

"We are here not to celebrate, but to remember," said Gen. Inger, their commander. "We must remember that our country temporarily is weakened and overcome and our friends and families impoverished. They who are looking westward for aid also are looking forward like ourselves to the day when the chains will be broken. For this we are going to prepare to fight."

Stefan Osusky, former Chicago lawyer and now a Czech leader in Paris, received a delegation from the Czech colony and paid tribute to the hospitality of France.

ARMS BILL FACES UNCERTAIN FATE IN LOWER HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct 28 [Special]. —The Roosevelt administration's proposal to sell arms and munitions to nations at war, indorsed by a 2 to 1 vote in the senate yesterday, faces an uncertain fate in the house during the coming week.

It is estimated that approximately 75 members have not made up their minds regarding the President's demand that the arms embargo be repealed in order that the United States may aid Great Britain and France by the sale of war materials. The remaining 355 members [the house now has but 430 members, due to five deaths] are believed to be split rather evenly on the issue.

Both sides are putting pressure upon the uncertain group to win a majority. Debate in the house may sway some of these doubtful ones. Others may be influenced by the national reaction as shown in letters and telegrams.

New Dealers Claim Majority.

The test is expected to come before next Saturday night. Administration forces continue to insist that they have a margin of from 25 to 30 votes for repeal of the embargo, but it is noticeable that House Whip Pat Boland of Pennsylvania, whose polls usually are considered accurate, has refrained from making any predictions.

Because the house passed a neutrality act at the last session, the procedure to be followed in considering the bill will be complicated technically. The fact that the senate version is entirely different from the house bill does not alter the parliamentary situation. The bill theoretically is the same bill even tho its title and number [house joint resolution 306] are about all that remains of the measure approved by the house last June by a vote of 200 to 188. The embargo on arms, now stricken out by the senate, was approved at that time by a vote of 214 to 173.

To Be Brought Up Tuesday.

Speaker William B. Bankhead of Alabama today announced that the house leadership plans to bring up the bill as revised by the senate on Tuesday. It will come under a rule to send it to conference with the senate. The speaker said he will recognize some one opposed to repeal of the embargo for the purpose of moving to instruct the conferees to insist on rejection of the senate's scrapping of the embargo.

This motion will allow the house to take a separate vote on the embargo provisions. Should the motion prevail, it would have the effect of house rejection of the senate action. Bankhead said he is confident, however, that the motion will be defeated. He also expressed confidence of a majority to sustain other major features of the senate measure.

Majority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas and Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts discussed the question of how much time should be allowed to debate.

Two or Three Days' Debate.

Altho no agreement was reached, it is considered probable that two or three days will be permitted for a general discussion.

Under this program the bill would be sent to conference with the senate late Wednesday or Thursday. If the house accepts the senate bill, the conference will be brief. If, however, the house conferees should be instructed by a house majority to insist upon retention of the arms embargo, a protracted conference would result.

There was no disposition on the part of administration leaders to deprive the house of separate votes on any section of the measure.

Bankhead said he hoped the house will adjourn after action on the neutrality measure, but noted that Minority Leader Martin has announced that he will oppose adjournment.

Bombers Stored to Await Embargo Repeal

BRITAIN BLUSHES AS PRESS HAILS U. S. SENATE VOTE

Foreign Office Denies It Led Cheering.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The foreign office was embarrassed today by the British press which hailed the vote in the American senate repealing the arms embargo as tho it were the final word for sending thousands of planes over here to fight against Germany.

Officials explained carefully to correspondents of American newspapers that the London newspapers were commenting solely on their own authority and that official quarters had made no statement whatsoever. Any comment is considered premature, and even when and if the house of representatives passes the repeal bill it is considered doubtful that any jubilation will be allowed to slip out of the foreign office.

Early Passage Seen.

The newspapers here generally expressed the belief that the measure would go thru the house within the next week. Much is made in the more popular newspapers of a plan for the purchase in America of 5,570 planes.

"Passage by the American senate of the bill to repeal the arms embargo," says the Sunday Times, "was the most important event of last week."

The Observer confidently predicted "by next Friday there can be no doubt that the bill will become law. America's policy is directed by America's interests. Her main achievement is that she refuses to be intimidated by the Nazis into foregoing business with one side, merely because the other side cannot do business with her. Her neutrality is free."

France Cheers Vote.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Passage of the repeal of the arms embargo by the American senate was hailed tonight with the greatest satisfaction in France as being possibly of capital importance to the outcome of the war. There is every expectation here that the house of representatives will follow the lead of the senate and pass the repeal measure without much delay.

Five More Arrive

New York, Oct. 28 [Special.]—Five more Lockheed reconnaissance bombers, part of a fleet ordered by Great Britain before the war began, were flown to Floyd Bennett field in Brooklyn today for disassembling and crating to await repeal of the embargo act and shipment overseas.

Four similar bombers—military version of the twin-engined Lockheed 14—previously had been flown to Floyd Bennett from the west coast plant, where they were manufactured. These four were put into storage on a Staten Island pier today.

The five planes that arrived today were piloted here from Atlanta, Ga., after a transcontinental trip. Two of the pilots, James Mattern and Paul Mantz, are well known in aviation circles.

It is understood that more than 50 more planes of this type have still to be delivered before this order is completed.

WARNS AMERICA AGAINST BATTLE OF PROPAGANDA

A warning that both sides of the present European combat will invade America for a battle of words was given yesterday by Attorney Adlai E. Stevenson at a Chicago Bar association luncheon.

"Propaganda can be as important as petroleum," Attorney Stevenson said. "In the current war we won't hear the rattle of machine guns, but a battle for the mastery of our public opinion, a battle more constant and no less bitter, will be waged by the combatants on our soil."

ROOSEVELT SON SEES RADIO FREE SPEECH BATTLE

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 28 (AP).—Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, discussing what he called a "great battle" developing in the radio industry over a recent code ruling of the National Association of Broadcasters, said in a broadcast tonight that in America "today, more than ever, outspoken free speech should be encouraged."

Roosevelt, operator of a Texas radio network, mentioned the N. A. B. ruling which forbids purchase of radio time for discussing "controversial issues," except under certain conditions.

"Many broadcast station owners are up in arms over its provisions and claim that it is a flagrant example of censorship that throttles free speech and is the opening wedge for the government to step in and take over this job," Roosevelt said.

"When that occurs, broadcasting will become nothing but a propaganda tool. The Texas state network has expressed its disagreement with the code and has stated any one can buy time on its facilities to discuss any controversial issue."

Roosevelt said the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Royal Oak, Mich., priest, was "welcome" to purchase time on the Texas network.

Two Escaped Inmates of Manteno Hospital Caught

Two escaped inmates of the Manteno state hospital were seized by Chicago police yesterday. They were Mrs. Gertrude Putman, 37 years old, of 835 East 63d place, and William Balthrop, colored. Mrs. Putman was found in the Woodlawn hospital, where she had been sent as a patient. She was turned over to police and sent to the psychopathic hospital. She entered Manteno May 29 and disappeared a short time ago. Balthrop was found at 63d street and Wabash avenue. He escaped in August. He also was transferred to the psychopathic hospital.

Sees Civilians Killed; His Funds Taken by Nazis.

New York, Oct. 28 [Special].—Edward Monkiewicz, 23 years old, of Mishawaka, Ind., arrived today from Poland with an account of a terrifying 150 mile journey in which he lost $1,700 he had obtained by selling his father's farm in Poland.

Monkiewicz was a passenger on the President Harrison, which was one of two American vessels to reach this port today. The other was the freighter Quaker City.

Monkiewicz went to Poland last summer to find a buyer for 80 acres of land near the East Prussian border owned by his father, who is a packing house laborer in Mishawaka. His father had agreed, Edward said, to let him have some of the money to continue his education if he sold the place. The young man is a Mishawaka High school graduate.

Attack by Nazi Planes.

Edward sold the place for 10,000 Polish zlotys, then worth about 17 cents each. With the zlotys and $50 American money in his pocket he went to Turon, arriving just as 25 German planes atacked. After hiding for three days he and about 100 other civilians started toward Warsaw on foot. A train caught up with them the following day and they boarded it.

Suddenly a flock of German bombers appeared overhead and for miles dropped their death all about the train. Monkiewicz jumped from the train and ran into a wood near by, with machine gun bullets whizzing around him.

After spending the night in the wood with another youth he found hiding there, they set out the next day on foot for Warsaw. They encountered several Polish soldiers riding in a wagon and climbed in.

Companions Shot Down.

Half a mile down the road Monkiewicz heard the rumble of tanks and again fled into the wood. Too late his companions in the wagon attempted to follow him and were shot down.

After dodging tanks, seeing scores of civilians killed by machine gunners in the air, the youth came to a farmhouse. He knocked and the door was opened by a German soldier. He was searched, his Polish money was taken, and he was released after being held four hours.

When he reached Warsaw the city was in flames, and after living for 15 days on black bread, soup, and apples he was evacuated with other foreigners to Berlin and eventually boarded the President Harrison at Genoa.

Crew of Sunken British Ship Lands at Gibraltar

ALGECIRAS, Spain, Oct. 28 (AP).—The master of the British freighter Tafna and 30 members of his crew landed at Gibraltar today. The Tafna was sunk 80 miles west of Gibraltar on Oct. 24. Whether she struck a mine or was torpedoed was not disclosed.

NAZI PLANE SHOT DOWN IN BATTLE OVER SCOTLAND

Crowds See Dog Fight Near Edinburgh.

LONDON, Oct. 28 [U. P.]—British fighting planes forced down a German reconnaissance plane in a spectacular air battle over Scotland today and drove off another craft flying low toward the big Scapa Flow naval base in the Orkney Islands.

Two members of the crew of the German plane brought down by aerial acrobatics and machine-gun fire near East Dalkeith were killed. One was wounded and the pilot, uninjured, was taken prisoner.

The whole countryside got a view of the struggle between the German craft and the royal air force pursuit planes which went up after it and finally drove it down at the village of Humbie.

Firing Heard in Other Areas.

In other sections of southern Scotland there was also aerial activity. A number of German planes apparently attempted reconnaissance flights, which were taken as a hint that a big-scale attack was being prepared for an early date.

There were reports of antiaircraft fire from several points along the coast and others reported hearing machine gun fire and seeing shells burst. A thick haze, however, made the results difficult to determine.

The air ministry announced that royal air force planes last night had safely made reconnaissance flights over southern Germany.

Eye-witnesses of the fighting in the East Dalkeith section said that the German plane first came in toward southeast Scotland, flying high. When it failed to draw antiaircraft fire it turned eastward and disappeared.

Bullets Fall in Street.

Later there was an air raid alarm in the same sector and machine gun bullets fell in the main street of one town.

In the village of Humbie, the Scottish country folk saw the British fighters finally corner the German plane. About 100 villagers were gathered on a hill, where they could see the British planes circling and diving as they sought to prevent the German plane from escaping out toward the sea.

"The German plane was brought down about two miles away," one eye-witness said. "It came down on a hillside but even then—after he struck a stone wall—the pilot would not give up. He tried to get his machine in the air again, running along the ground for about half a mile before being forced to halt."

EX-KAISER WILL NOT RETURN TO GERMANY, STATES DOORN AIDE

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Oct. 28.—Reports from Berlin that former Kaiser Wilhelm II. was going to Germany because of the alleged stopping of the transfer of his income into this country, were described today as ridiculous by his marshal at Doorn. There has been no recent change in Wilhelm's financial arrangements, it was added, and he does not intend to leave Doorn.

Air raid shelters have been built in the gardens at Doorn. The former kaiser is said to listen to German and British broadcasts and to follow the war operations by pegging flags on maps. He meets questions about the war with a shrug.

Germans Honor Pastors Dead "at Hands of Poles"

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—An obituary for seven German pastors, two lay pastors and all German nationals who "were murdered or lost their lives as a result of mistreatment" at the hands of the Poles in Posen, West Prussia, during the Polish campaign, will appear in the German press tomorrow. The notice is signed by Dr. Friedrich Werner, president of the Evangelical council, who declares that "in spite of persecution and dire necessity they remained true to their congregations and to the Christian faith unto death."

PARIS DULL, BUT FAITH IN VICTORY REMAINS BRIGHT

All Are Confident War on Nazis Will Be Won.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Almost two months of war have wrought striking changes in the aspect of Paris, but the way of life of those who live in it and especially their attitudes toward all basic human problems have been altered much less than you would expect.

By day the street scene presents picturesque contrasts. Shop windows crisscrossed with paper tape to keep the glass from shattering, sand bags piled up in front of monuments and public buildings, and air defense troops in their sloppy, faded uniforms give Paris a real wartime look.

Sometimes the effect is weird indeed. The Place de la Concorde, which sophisticated Frenchmen call the most beautiful public square in the world, looks like a surrealist impression of Timbuctoo, mainly owing to the hexagonal arrangement of the sand bag shield which protects the lower part of the obelisk in the center of the square.

Traffic Remains.

Traffic in the streets is almost as heavy as ever. Shops are open, sidewalk cafés are filled and except for the uniforms and the gas masks which many civilians still carry, there are few outward signs that the Parisians know they are at war.

Despite the intensive mobilization of man power, you still see plenty of men who look old enough or young enough to bear arms going about their normal occupations. Recent decisions to demobilize certain categories of reservists shortly will increase the number.

Travelers arriving from London at night are amazed at the amount of illumination tolerated in the French capital and in the last few days the partial blackout has been still further relaxed.

A Grim Contradiction.

Nonetheless, Paris after dark is a grim contradiction of that city of light which Paris used to be. There are no night clubs—not even clandestine ones so far as this correspondent knows — and consequently there is no night life. Restaurants, cafés, theaters, and movie houses may stay open until 11 o'clock, but not a minute later.

Except for certain fashionable restaurants which are more crowded than ever, the places of amusement are only moderately patronized. With only a few of them open and that only for a few hours you would expect them to be packed, but they are not.

You can sum it up in one sentence: War has made Paris a dull and rather gloomy city, but has not shaken its foundations. The same thing is true of Parisian life.

Usually one of the accompaniments of war is a breakdown of moral restraints in one part of the population and a noted increase in religious fervor in another part.

There are no clearcut signs of either of these reactions yet. Pious Parisians, chiefly women, go to church more often than in peacetime to pray for their menfolk at the front, but the total number of churchgoers does not seem to have increased strikingly.

Prostitution Increases.

Conversely, the increase in prostitution on the streets, tho noticeable, is not striking either and seems chiefly attributable to economic causes.

There also is a slight increase in the number of beggars. On the other hand, drunks, never very frequent in this sober land, seem to have disappeared completely from the streets.

One reaction which seems to be universal is complete confidence in ultimate victory. I have not yet encountered a single Frenchman who could even envisage the possibility of a German victory. What does worry many Frenchmen is the price of victory.

You hear very little glowing enthusiasm for the war and very little real hatred of the enemy. "Boche" and "Hun" are words which figure little in the 1939 wartime vocabulary here.

One Universal Reason.

On the other hand, I have not heard a single Frenchman or even a single French woman declare that it was a mistake to make war on Germany or that the war should be called off short of victory.

When it comes to figuring out how the war is going to make a more secure and stable Europe, opinions differ widely and all seem pretty vague. Some still believe in the league of nations, reinforced this time with an international police force. Others think Europe will never be safe for Frenchmen until Germany has been split up into a weak federation of small republics and all German territory on the left bank of the Rhine is annexed by France.

MADELEINE CARROLL.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 28 (AP).—Beauteous blonde Madeleine Carroll wasn't so beauteous today on reaching home from rancho Santa Anita. Neither were Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Tullio Carminati and Lynne Overman. They fell into nearby Lake Baldwin from an improvised river boat which sprang a leak and sank in 15 feet of water in filming an African picture. Director E. H. Griffith and other members of the company rescued the players in "native" canoes.

100,000 SOLDIERS FREED BY FRANCE, FACING BIG SMASH

Six Bodies from U-Boat Found in Sea.

PARIS, Oct. 28 (AP).—Despite indications of an imminent German offensive on the western front, the French government today published an order that is expected to release 100,000 men from war service.

The order frees from service all men of the 1910 class [born in 1890], all fathers of four or more children regardless of age, all men aged 43 or over who are fathers of three children, and all aged 45 or over who are fathers of two.

[Before the war it was estimated full mobilization would put 8 million French under arms and that only 1½ million would be needed to man the Maginot line. No figures have been issued since the war began. Increased mobility of divisions and rapid fire guns are said to be factors easing the need for men.]

The order followed an unofficial report that the French had sunk a German submarine, apparently in the North sea altho the location was not specified, on Thursday..

Find 6 Bodies from U-Boat.

Military sources said the report was strengthened by the finding of six bodies off the coast, proving, they said, that the U-boat "apparently had been literally torn apart by the explosion of a depth bomb."

The French general staff's communique tonight stated: "Encounters of scouting parties at different points of the front. At sea our patrol boats have picked up bodies of German officers and sailors belonging to a sunken submarine."

The bodies were those of five German sailors and an officer. Four of the bodies were picked up off Dunkerque by a fishing vessel and two others were washed ashore.

[A German high command communique indicated three submarines had been lost since the start of the war. The British, however, say the empires have sunk or damaged one-third of the Nazis' fleet of about 60 submarines.]

Nazis Increase Pressure.

German pressure on French lines by dawn today was estimated by French officers to have reached the intensity of that of two weeks ago. The pressure at that time preceded the German attack in force up the Moselle valley at the extreme northern end of the front.

[The German high command reported yesterday: "In the west somewhat livelier artillery activity between the Moselle [river] and the Palatinate forest was observable than on previous days. A local advance of smaller enemy forces in the border region of Warndt was repelled."]

SERVANT FOUND HANGED.

PLAN IMMIGRANT QUIZ IN REPORTED SHIP JUMPINGS

Fred J. Schlotfeldt, director of the bureau of immigration, said yesterday that he would investigate a report from the marine division of the customs office that from eight to a dozen Norwegian sailors on ships now docked in Chicago had jumped ship. It was reported the seamen did not wish to risk a return crossing in seas infested with mines and submarines. The ships concerned are the Taborfjell, moored at 103d street in the Calumet river, and the Gyda, at shipyards at 101st street in the Calumet river. Schlotfeldt said there was no violation of immigration laws unless the seamen remained more than 60 days.

GERMANS REPORT 115 FOREIGN SHIPS SUNK IN SEA WAR

Claim Only 3 Submarines Have Been Lost.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—The military high command today announced that the German navy has sunk, from the beginning of the war on Sept. 3 to Oct. 25, a total of 115 foreign merchantmen aggregating 475,000 tons. This figure, it was said, includes only those vessels whose sinking was confirmed either by the western powers or German warships. German submarines destroyed most of the ships. In addition, it was said, 78,500 tons of British warships were sunk and 125,000 tons damaged.

The statement said only three submarines have been lost. Usually reliable sources contradict this, alleging that German circles placed the number of submarines lost at five a week ago and that more have been lost since then. The Germans explained the discrepancy by asserting that two of the submarines which were believed lost had returned. The submarines lost included the U-27 and the U-39, the crews of which were captured by the British.

Two Raiders Wreak Havoc.

In the North and Baltic seas German light cruisers, destroyers, mine sweepers and other lighter craft were said to have played a part in sinking enemy ships and searching neutral shipping. In the Atlantic, two of Germany's pocket battleships were reported wreaking havoc on French and British sea trade.

The military commentator of the state controled radio in an analysis of the first eight weeks of the war assured his countrymen that "from a military standpoint we are completely satisfied with the naval and aerial warfare results. So far England is completely on the minus side of the balance sheet in this war."

The question of how the Germans are able to operate submarines in the South Atlantic and the Caribbean sea is being discussed in Berlin. At the beginning of the war the impression prevailed that a number of German submarines were in Spanish ports and started operations from there. But it is understood that Spain now is determined to remain neutral, particularly since Germany has entered into a friendship pact with soviet Russia.

Loophole Is Suggested.

Under international law, however, a submarine of a belligerent power may seek shelter in a neutral port for 24 hours. Submarines that may have started from Spain at the beginning of the war could reach the South Atlantic and return to their home ports by easy stages, stopping over at neutral ports in Spanish Morocco or Spain for 24 hours. International law provides that the same ship can call at a port of a neutral country only once in three months.

A German 500 ton submarine is equipped to stay at sea for five weeks under normal conditions. It has five tubes and carries fifteen torpedoes.

The number of submarines Germany has is kept a secret. Germany built a number of submarines for Russia before the war. Nazi political leaders hope to induce the Russians to lend them the German built submarines and those built by Russia after the German model.

Navy Opposes Plan.

The German navy declares emphatically it does not need the Russian submarines. Many German officers fear that the Russians, with their lack of talent for mechanics, failed to keep the submarines in perfect condition. Influential men in the German government, however, believe that if the Germans can quickly increase the number of submarines at their disposal it will be possible to defeat England by spring.

German engineers have left for Russia and their friends assert they went to inspect the Russian submarines. If the Nazi plan for closer Russian-German military coöperation is completed the Germans plan to overhaul the Russian U-boats and equip them with newer equipment. It is estimated that this overhauling and rebuilding would take about three months.

London Also Gives Figures.

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP).—The admiralty gave total British merchant shipping losses to noon today as 51 ships totaling 210,021 tons and neutral losses as 29 ships totaling 72,000 tons. These figures did not include the British aircraft carrier Courageous and Battleship Royal Oak, the loss of which the British admit. It also was stated that a few French merchantmen of undetermined tonnage had been lost.

Storms Toss Live Mines Up on Coast of Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 28 (AP).—Stormy weather during the last two days caused many mines to break loose from German and British mine fields and drift onto the Danish coast. Ten drifting mines were sighted today off the Island of Moen.

OLD LITH DREAM COMES TO LIFE; TROOPS IN VILNA

VILNA, Oct. 28 (AP).—Ancient Vilna [Wilno] today came back into the possession of its Lithuanian founders—the gift of soviet Russia, which took the 616 year old city from Poland.

Cheering crowds, with here and there old men and women weeping and kneeling in prayer, greeted the Lithuanian troops who marched down rain spattered streets to effect the occupation made possible by Lithuania's military concessions to Russia.

Lithuanian flags, horizontal bars of yellow, red and green, were waved lustily by the welcomers. Some of the flags were fashioned crudely from paper. Those who still had flowers—winter is setting in here—tossed them down on the marching troops.

Dream Come True.

Repossession of the old capital founded in 1323 has been the officially endorsed dream of the Lithuanians thru the centuries. A section of the Lithuanian constitution states specifically that Vilna is considered a part of the nation.

But for 120 years after 1795 the city was under Russian rule along with the rest of the country. For three years during the world war, from 1915 to 1918, the German army controled it.

Lithuania got it back for two years, along with its declaration of independence, when the Russian czarist régime crashed.

Poland Occupies City.

But on Oct. 9, 1920, the Poles occupied the city. They held it for 19 years until the present European war crushed the Polish armies in defeat. Then the Germans moved across Poland from the west and the Russians from the east, the latter taking Vilna, which they controled for the last month.

The soviet Russians handed the capital over to Lithuania in return for permission to establish Russian military bases in Lithuanian territory.

White Russians Elect Stalin.

MOSCOW, Oct. 28 (AP).—Tass, official Russian news agency, reported today that Dictator Josef Stalin was elected honorary chairman of the national assembly of White Russia, a governing body of the former Polish territory. The agency said a program indosed by the assembly included: [1] State power for the district; [2] incorporation into the U. S. S. R.; [3] confiscation of landed estates; [4] nationalization of banks and large industries.

The assembly of the former Polish area of western Ukraine, sitting at Lwow, unanimously adopted measures for the confiscation of the property of landowners, churches and former high Polish officials. It also adopted plans for the nationalization of the banks and major industries, as part of the program outlined yesterday, when the assembly set up the Western Ukraine and voted to join the soviet union.

Finns Draft Answer.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Finnish cabinet took the unusual step tonight of consulting chairmen of various party groups in the diet on what informed political circles expected would be Finland's answer to Russian demands.

The cabinet first met with members of the delegation to Moscow, headed by Dr. Juho Paasikivi.

ATTACKS WAGES AND HOURS ACT IN COURT PLEA

The constitutionality of the wages and hours law was attacked yesterday in a brief filed in behalf of Philip Cohen, president of Feature Frocks, Inc., of Steger, before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

Cohen was indicted on charges of failing to pay minimum wages of 25 cent an hour to his 100 employés and falsifying pay roll records by punching his employés' time cards while they were still at work.

The brief filed by Attorney Leslie E. Salter, charged that the law is a "bold and far reaching attempt to regulate and control the hours of labor in industry. It said the law violates the bill of rights, the constitution, and states' rights. Because Cohen's manufacturing activities are confined entirely to Illinois, Salter said his client was exempt from the act. The government was given 10 days to answer the brief.

DELUGE OF COMPLAINTS SHAKES UP GERMANY'S CLOTHES RATION PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—Starting Nov. 1 every German will be given a clothes rationing card covering needs of the year, if plans worked out by authorities are enforced.

A deluge of complaints against the system of rationing clothes and shoes has led authorities to adopt a ration card containing 150 coupons. A schedule prescribes how many of the coupons are needed for a purchase. A woman's winter coat requires between 40 and 60, depending on the quality, while a child's coat requires only 25. A man's collar can be purchased for one coupon.

Bitter complaints have been filed by mothers who were unable to get permission to buy clothing they considered vitally important.

THE FIVE WISHES

By CALEB

FEW practitioners of the pictorial art strike closer home to everyday issues, problems, themes and dreams, than the cartoonist. His, in the skeletonic simplicity of his medium, is the faculty of purveying ideas rather than depicting beauty . . . ideas instantly assimilable; sometimes of current content only; sometimes as charged with significance as the Decalogue.

Such, some years ago, was the veteran John T. McCutcheon's classic of The Five Wishes. A fairy of fortune offers to the quintet of eager youngsters gathered before her the granting of their greatest wishes . . . "Money!" cries the first; "Fame!" the second; "Pleasure!" the third; and "Luck!" exclaims the fourth. Behind him, fifth and last, is a lad who calls out, "Education!"

All are granted fulfillment of their hopes—and then comes the sequel. Years after, four disgruntled victims of their own misjudgment voice four of life's cruelest disappointments. "What's the use of all this money, when I hain't got no education, and can't get in a decent club in town?" wails the Man of Money. "What's the use of being the champion flagpole sitter . . . when I can only work in warm weather?" shrugs the Man of Fame. "Here I am . . . a burned-out wreck who counts for absolutely nothing in the community," groans the Man of Pleasure. As for the Man of Luck, his plaintive cry is: "Here I am, the luckiest poker-player in town—so lucky nobody will play with me any more."

Life offers daily the spectacle of just such fortune-blamers who, however—unlike the instances in the cartoon—owe their destinies to no random wishing or magic wand, but to their own deliberate personal decisions. For to even the fifth lad in our legend, who elected Education, the spirit's admonition was: "Here is something that cannot be conferred upon you. You must work for it, and the harder you work, the more valuable it will be to you. . . . Wealth, fame, pleasure and usefulness may be yours; and when once acquired, they cannot be taken from you."

Thanks to the foresight of progressive publishers, deficits in knowledge and training can still be reasonably well remedied by recourse—where schooling is beyond reach—to the many popular series of simplified texts now available in every branch of learning. Several such, for example, are featured in our book section; and, as one social authority has summed it all up: "Failure to keep head-and-shoulders above the 'educative deadline,' today, is no longer necessary or excusable for any able, literate, averagely ambitious adult."

U. S. FLAYS REDS FOR CONDUCT IN ROW OVER SHIP

ning of Oct. 23. On Oct. 25 the American chargé d'affaires cabled from Berlin that the foreign office at its press conference said that the City of Flint was captured by a German vessel and contraband was found on board, destined for England. The foreign office then added that it was found, however, that the ship was unseaworthy in that it did not have navigation charts adequate for bringing the ship into a German port.

"When the vessel entered the harbor of Murmansk, according to an announcement presumably from the soviet government thru the Tass news agency, 'the naval forces at the port of Murmansk have temporarily held the vessel and interned the German crew.'

German Crew Released.

"On Oct. 25 the American chargé d'affaires at Berlin cabled that the German foreign office, referring to the seizure of the City of Flint, said that 'the German authorities were communicating with the soviet authorities in the matter.'

"On the same day [Oct. 25] the Tass agency reported that 'the German crew of the cargo steamer City of Flint has been released from internment by the maritime authorities of Murmansk in view of the fact, as has been established, that the vessel was brought into port for repair of her machinery. The vessel is meanwhile remaining in Murmansk for verification of the exact composition of her cargo.'

"On Oct. 26 the American chargé d'affaires cabled from Berlin quoting a memorandum received that morning from the foreign office relative to the City of Flint and its crew, which among other things stated that 'a prize crew placed on board [the City of Flint] has brought the steamer to the harbor of Murmansk because of sea damage.' When transmitting the memorandum an official of the foreign office stated informally that the foreign office had no details as to the damage which necessitated taking the ship to Murmansk, but he maintained, in response to an inquiry, that the term 'damage' would cover the case of a ship lacking charts with which to navigate the waters thru which it had to proceed.

Stress of Weather.

"For some reason as yet unexplained, the German crew was interned in spite of the fact that according to the German authorities they were without charts and had put into Murmansk because they could not proceed to a German port without charts. Later they were released seemingly under a plea that their entry into Murmansk was required for necessary repairs to defective machinery.

"A prize crew may take a captured ship into a neutral port without internment only in case of stress of weather, want of fuel and provisions, or necessity of repairs. In all other cases the neutral is obligated to intern the prize crew and restore the vessel to her former crew.

"The conclusion from the foregoing facts and circumstances indicates that when the City of Flint entered the harbor at Murmansk any plea relating to the chart requirements, if advanced, must have been ignored, since the German crew was interned. A second and entirely different reason for entering Murmansk, namely, defective machinery which called for immediate repairs, was not advanced until later.

Quotes Foreign Office Statement.

"A subsequent cable from the American chargé d'affaires at Berlin, also dated Oct. 26, quoted a statement of the foreign office at its noon press conference to the effect that the fact that the Russians have freed the German crew indicates that the soviet authorities have confirmed the view of the prize crew that the City of Flint was unseaworthy and it was therefore permissible to take the ship into a neutral harbor.

"Testimony of the American crew as to the full facts pertaining to the taking of the City of Flint into Murmansk is not yet available. It seems manifest that, even if it is assumed that the German crew was proceeding legally prior to the entry of the City of Flint into the harbor of Murmansk, the known facts and circumstances support the contention of the American government that the German crew did not at the time of entry offer any reasonable or justifiable grounds such as are prescribed by international law for taking the vessel into this port, and that therefore it was the clear duty of the soviet government to turn the City of Flint over to the American crew. This has been the major contention of the American government.

"In view of the foregoing facts and circumstances, each person can judge for himself the question as to how much light is shed on this entire transaction by the action of the soviet government in withholding adequate coöperation with the American government with respect to assembling and disclosing to the American embassy in Moscow the essential facts pertaining to the landing, the whereabouts, and welfare of the American crew; by the fact that it was first alleged by the German authorities that the need for charts was the ground for bringing the vessel into port, and by the fact that later this ground seems to have been abandoned and a new ground or theory relating to defective machinery was set up."

Snow Cruiser Skids Into Creek

The giant car built to carry Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his fellow explorers over Antarctic ice lay across a stream near Lima, O., yesterday after a slide caused by its striking a bridge barrier.

JAPS DEMAND U. S. CUSTOMS INSPECTOR CURTSY TO SENTRY

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 28 (AP).—H. Stanley Wilson, uniformed American customs inspector at Hilo, Hawaii, reported today that Japanese officers would not let him board the Japanese training cruiser Yakumo because he refused to bow to a sentry before stepping aboard the ship. Wilson said Japanese officers demanded that he bow. The Japanese admiral's flagship Iwate received the customs officer without a hitch. J. Walter Doyle, customs inspector at Honolulu, said he would request an explanation from Binjiro Juio, acting Japanese consul general.

FLINT'S SKIPPER SAFE, GERMANY TELLS HIS WIFE

Melrose, Mass., Oct. 28 [U. P.]—Responding to her direct appeal, the foreign ministry at Berlin today assured Mrs. Joseph A. Gainard that her husband, master of the seized American freighter City of Flint, was safe and well, aboard that vessel.

The German government's assurances were relayed to Mrs. Gainard here by Dr. Herbert Scholz, German consul at Boston. Dr. Scholz said he had received official word from Berlin.

There was no mention of the Flint's present whereabouts or of what was to be the ultimate disposition of Capt. Gainard and his crew. On Wednesday night Mrs. Gainard simultaneously sent identical appeals to Berlin and Moscow for "personal assurances" of her husband's safety. She has not yet heard from the soviet government.

U. S. GUNBOAT DRAWS REBUKE BY MEXICANS

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28 (AP).—The presence of the United States gunboat Erie near the German freighter Havelland in Manzanillo harbor brought comment from the war department today that it was capable of patrolling Mexico's coasts.

One report stated the Erie followed the Havelland when the vessel left Costa Rica on Oct. 8. Other sources denied the German ship was being kept under surveillance. A Mexican senator was reported to be preparing to seek a formal report on whether the Erie had obtained permission to put into the port.

War office officials were quoted as saying the Mexican navy would not permit foreign ships to patrol Mexican coasts.

SNOW CRUISER HITS A BRIDGE; LANDS IN CREEK

Huge Vehicle Will Be Delayed a Week.

Lima, O., Oct. 28 [Special].—The giant $150,000 snow cruiser built for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's forthcoming antarctic expedition rammed a bridge today on its run from Chicago to Boston, slithered off the road and buried its ponderous nose in the mud of a western Ohio creek bed.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, at present in charge of the cruiser, announced that the huge vehicle will be raised from Pine Run creek tomorrow, but that repairs might require a week's time.

No Injuries Reported.

The cruiser weighs 35 tons and is 55 feet long and more than 15 feet wide. None of the crew of seven was injured, altho Dr. Poulter's wife was shaken up.

The machine drove its nose about seven feet below the surface of the water, with the rest of its length spanning the stream, the rear section resting on one bank.

It was the second accident to beball the cruiser since leaving Chicago. It figured in a minor collision with a truck a day or so ago at Columbia City, Ind.

Traffic in a Tangle.

Crowds of curious had lined eastern Indiana and western Ohio roads to see the mammoth machine. State highway policemen and deputy sheriffs immediately after the accident, however, threw a cordon around the cruiser and fought to unravel the traffic snarl that developed.

Earlier, as the cruiser lumbered thru Fort Wayne, Ind., it had its first encounter with snow.

REALTY DEALER IS FOUND DEAD OF AUTO FUMES

William G. Ruggles, 33 years old, Evanston real estate dealer, was found dead of automobile exhaust fumes yesterday in the garage behind his home at 951 Ridgeway avenue, Niles Center. A coroner's physician said he had been dead nearly ten hours.

Chief of Police Theodore Heinz of Niles Center said he could not determine whether Ruggles' death was accidental or suicide. The chief said he had been informed that Ruggles had been in financial difficulties.

Kenneth Ruggles, a brother, who found the body, said the real estate dealer was last seen at 3 p. m., when he left his Evanston office at 517 Davis street. His body was found on the floor of the garage. The ignition in the car was turned on and the gas tank was empty.

FLINT'S SEIZURE THE HIGH SPOT IN WAR'S 8TH WEEK

Maritime Conflict Goes On at a Grim Pace.

These are the highlights of the European war during its eighth week:

Saturday, Oct. 21.

War on the sea and in the air was renewed after a two day lull.

A German coast guard vessel struck German mines in the North sea and sank with a loss of 71 lives.

Britain announced that a British merchantman disabled a German submarine, which then was sunk by a British destroyer.

Three German planes were shot down and a fourth was forced down in a battle over the North sea when the Nazi aircraft attacked a British ship convoy.

British planes drove off German air raiders on the east coast of England.

Two planes of a German squadron of six were shot down when they attacked two British destroyers and a British seaplane in the North sea off Norway.

Sunday, Oct. 22.

A German plane was shot down in the ninth German raid on Britain within a week.

The French admitted their troops had withdrawn from all German territory on the western front except two small hills in the Warndt forest southwest of Saarbruecken.

Monday, Oct. 23.

Dispatches from Tromsoe, Norway, revealed that a German warship had captured the American freighter City of Flint and put a prize crew aboard her. Moscow reported the vessel had been taken to the Russian port city of Murmansk.

Britain announced the sinking of three German submarines.

Britain confirmed reports of the sinking of two of her ships, the Whitemantle and the Sea Venture.

Tuesday, Oct. 24.

Dispatches from Trondheim, Norway, disclosed that two German war vessels, the cruiser Emden and the pocket battleship Deutschland, had slipped through the British blockade and were loose as raiders on the high seas.

The sinking of four British ships, three of them near Gibraltar, and of the Greek steamer Konstantinos Hadjipateras were disclosed. These losses sent England's total during the war to 45 ships and the total for all nations to 90. Tonnage losses of all nations rose to 399,319 and the total of lives lost to 1,774.

Dispatches from Helsingfors said Russia had modified its demands upon Finland and put them in writing for the first time.

Wednesday, Oct. 25.

American Ambassador Steinhardt at Moscow reported to Washington that the American crew of the City of Flint was safe aboard the vessel. Moscow announced that the freighter had been released from internment at Murmansk.

In a press conference in San Francisco, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace contended that the European war made the retention of President Roosevelt in office advisable.

Soviet Russia notified Great Britain it would not recognize the validity of the British contraband regulations.

Thursday, Oct. 26.

The City of Flint was reported at sea, manned by a German crew and bound for a German port. The American crew was believed still aboard.

In his first encyclical, Pope Pius XII. blamed "the denial of God" for leading the world to war and pleaded for peace.

Friday, Oct. 27.

The United States senate, after four weeks of debate, passed the Roosevelt administration's so-called cash and carry bill abolishing the embargo on the sale of arms and munitions to belligerents.

Italy announced a $873,800,000 arms program and signed a commercial agreement with Great Britain.

HERMAN C. WILLITZ DIES.

Janesville, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—Funeral services were held today for Herman C. Willitz, 72 years old, a resident here for 40 years and former manager of the old Rock County Telephone company until its merger with the Wisconsin Telephone company in 1923. He died Thursday, leaving two sisters.

ARTILLERY HAS MANY JOBS AND GUNS TO DO ALL

Weapons Vary in Range, Trajectory, Mobility.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

Artillery is organized into categories according to its power, uses, and station in the general army organization. Variations in mobility, range, trajectory, and area of shell burst distinguish the different natures.

In offensive operations artillery clears the road for its own troops, destroys intervening strong points, disables enemy batteries, and paralyzes the indispensable wartime work in the enemy's rear, destroying railroad junctions, warehouses, and highways needed for the flow of war supplies.

Great Ammunition Burden.

It must be said, however, that artillery has the disadvantage of increasing the encumbrance of an army's operations by the mass of transport required to supply its heavy appetite for shells. In the world war, for example, the British reserve ammunition estimate for field pieces was calculated on the basis of an expenditure of seven rounds per day, but the actual expenditure often rose to 500 rounds or more.

The primary classification of ordnance is light field artillery, which is of the order of 75 mm. guns and 105 mm. howitzers. It is designed to support the infantry and bombard enemy trenches, and is part of the divisional organization. The operations of 1916-'17 were based on the fact that given sufficient artillery and ammunition, limited advances of 2,000 to 3,000 yards at a time could be practically guaranteed.

Counter Battery Missions.

Medium artillery consists of 105 mm. guns and howitzers of 150 and 155 mm. It is designed to fight its counterpart across no man's land, and its fire is also directed against enemy strong points and the enemy's rear. It is part of the corps organization. The number of guns per corps is from 36 to 48.

Guns of 155 mm. and over, and howitzers in excess of 155 mm. are heavy artillery and are part of the army organization, included in the artillery reserves of G. H. Q. Heavy artillery carries a knockout punch, strikes the strongest constructions, and operates against the enemy's deepest rear. It is trained on supply dumps, railroads, and communication lines.

Such monster guns are 12 to 16 inch and the French 240 and 400 mm. howitzers rank as super-heavy. They are either moved by rail or fired from fixed positions, and except in coast defense and in warfare on a stationary front have a utility in direct proportion to their lack of mobility.

World War Proportions.

At the end of the world war the proportional distribution among every 10 guns and howitzers was roughly six field, two medium, one and one-half heavy, and one-half super-heavy.

From combat experience, artillery officers naturally have distinct preferences for one piece of artillery as against another. Certainly no field piece in the last war was better known than the French 75 mm. gun, which was adopted by the United States army, but considered judgment is that it acquired a reputation out of all proportion to its merits.

A simple comparison of attributes will show why the 105 mm. howitzer is now preferred over the "75" gun. The 75 has a maximum range of 8,800 yards and a maximum effective range of 7,920 yards. Against this the 105 has a definite superiority; maximum range, 12,000 yards, and maximum effective range, 10,800 yards.

Equally important is the area of burst covered by the projectiles fired by these weapons, and here again the 105 is well ahead. Its projectile is effective within a radius of 90 yards from point of burst, and the 75 within a radius of but 30 yards.

As the size of any artillery shell is increased, the effect increases in a higher ratio. Much of the destructive effect of a 1,000 pound shell is due to its blast, not to the local destruction caused by the high explosive burst. The effect of the blast is to bring down roofs and walls within 50 yards from the point of burst.

A single hit from a 12 inch shell might destroy a bridge altogether, whereas ten hits from 6 inch shells, equal to the same weight of ammunition, would only cause easily repairable damage.

MUSSOLINI HAILS 17TH BIRTHDAY OF FASCIST RULE

Demands Right to Build and Go Forward.

ROME, Oct. 28 (AP).—Italy celebrated her outstanding national holiday today—the 17th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome—asking, in the words of Premier Mussolini, only the privilege of making progress.

Fascist leaders emphasized that Italy was working quietly while three major European powers were at war.

"Today, as during the harsh bloody eve of revolution, Fascism demands for itself only the single privilege of building and going forward always and in all circumstances with the people and for the people," said Il Duce, speaking from the balcony of his office to a throng in the Piazza Venezia.

Stresses Public Works.

"The anniversary of the ever more glorious Black Shirts revolution finds us as compact and strong as ever from the Alps to the Indian ocean," he declared.

Mussolini said Italy was armed heavily and ready for any eventuality, but stressed the public works and industrial program of the country.

Altho Edwin Ettel, chief of the Nazi party in Italy, paid a holiday call on Lieut. Gen. Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist party, the day passed without mention of Italy's military alliance with Germany.

In newspaper summaries of the last year's diplomacy, which gave rise to the pact, the Rome-Berlin axis was ignored.

Follows Independent Course.

Instead, Giovanni Ansaldo, close friend of Count Galeazzo Ciano, devoted two columns in the foreign minister's Leghorn newspaper, Il Telegrafo, to a declaration that Italy was following an independent foreign policy without permitting any "diplomacy to impose any decisions on her and without letting any foreign ideology suggest any intervention."

Eight thousand colonists who will settle in Libya, Italian North Africa, embarked from Venice, one a woman who gave birth to a boy on the train from her home village.

The day was devoted largely to dedications of public works and memorial ceremonies for dead Fascist heroes.

FARM BOY LEAPS ON HIS BICYCLE AND TRAPS NAZI PLANE AND PILOT

PARIS, Oct. 28 (AP).—Ritter Philippe, 17 years old, an Alsace farm boy, is the first civilian to receive France's Croix de Guerre, a military medal, in Europe's war. The boy was working in a field, state French dispatches, when a German pilot landed his warplane nearby, strode to him with drawn revolver and demanded, "Where am I?" "In France," the Philippe boy blurted.

Ignoring the revolver, the lad fled to his bicycle and rode off and notified a French patrol. The soldiers arrested the pilot and seized the plane.

Even though the prices on current importations have advanced over 25% we propose to maintain our low price policy as long as our present huge stock permits. Fortunately, our imports during the past year have been unusually heavy and this advantage we are happy to pass on to those who wisely decide to buy now before prices go any higher.

FORT SHERIDAN TROOPS WILL GO TO MANEUVERS

Ordered to Alabama for Winter Training.

Units of the 5th division stationed at Fort Sheridan will begin leaving tomorrow for Fort McClellan, Ala., it was announced yesterday by Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding officer of the 2d army and the 6th corps area.

The troops, which include the 2d infantry and portions of the headquarters and military police companies, as well as parts of the signal corps company, will join the rest of the division at Fort McClellan to take part in winter maneuvers provided under the recent "limited emergency" proclaimed by President Roosevelt.

Motor Units Leave Tomorrow.

Motorized units from Sheridan will leave tomorrow, as will motorized units from Fort Wayne, Mich. Remaining troops will leave by train Wednesday or Thursday. Eventually there will be 435 officers and 8,519 men of the 5th division at McClellan. The movement is part of the massing of 70,000 troops in the south for winter training. It is intended to weld the new army divisions into a mobile fighting force, according to Gen. Ford. The 5th division is in command of Brig. Gen. Campbell B. Hodges, who already is at Fort McClellan.

The movement will leave about 1,100 men still at Fort Sheridan. They include the 61st coast artillery and the 14th cavalry and 3d field artillery. Previous war department announcements have indicated that the number of men at Sheridan will be increased as new recruits are added to the regular army.

Plan Winter Field Training.

Gen. Ford also announced that units of the army in this area soon will begin a course of field training. It is the first time in years that funds have been made available for fall and winter training in this district.

"Units of the 14th cavalry and the 3d field artillery will move by truck and horse vans instead of the usual method of marching," Gen. Ford said. "This system is new to the Chicago area."

Gen. Ford also announced that 38 additional Thomason act reserve officers from the 6th corps area will be given extended active duty training for the period Dec. 1, 1939, to June 30, 1940. If the army budget allows 10 per cent of the Thomason act officers will be offered regular army commissions at the end of their tour of duty.

Announcement also was made that 1,300 reserve officers will be placed on extended duty thruout the country if and when funds are available.

CANADA NAMES ADMINISTRATOR TO PROVIDE FUEL

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 28 [Canadian Press].—J. McG. Stewart of Halifax, N. S., has been appointed coal administrator of the wartime prices and trades board.

He will have jurisdiction over maintaining the production of Canadian coal and other solid fuels and will supervise the purchases, shipment, distribution, and allocation of coal, coke, and other solid fuels, both domestic and imported. The coal administration also will be responsible for assuring adequate coal at reasonable prices.

Frank G. Neate, secretary of the dominion fuel board, has been lent to the prices and trade board as technical adviser to the coal administrator.

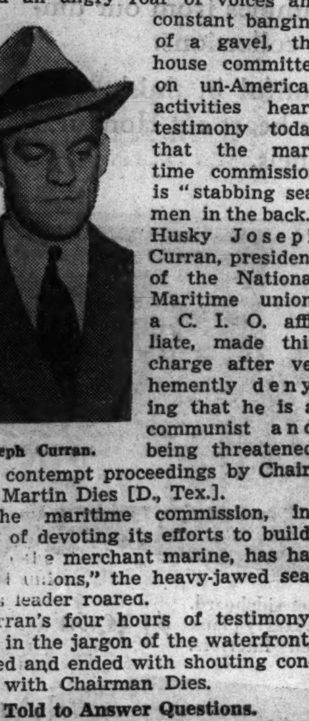
C. I. O. SEAMEN'S CHIEF PUTS DIES QUIZ IN UPROAR

Shouts 'Liar'; Threatened with Contempt Citation.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—Amid an angry roar of voices and constant banging of a gavel, the house committee on un-American activities heard testimony today that the maritime commission is "stabbing seamen in the back." Husky Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union, a C. I. O. affiliate, made this charge after vehemently denying that he is a communist and being threatened with contempt proceedings by Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.].



Joseph Curran.

"The maritime commission, instead of devoting its efforts to building up the merchant marine, has harassed unions," the heavy-jawed seaman's leader roared.

Curran's four hours of testimony, often in the jargon of the waterfront, started and ended with shouting contests with Chairman Dies.

Told to Answer Questions.

"You just want to talk," the Texas congressman shouted at the conclusion, as he banged his gavel to quiet Curran. "You want to do a little demonstrating here. I know your tactics."

At the start, Curran had attempted to read a prepared statement, but Dies insisted that he confine himself to answering questions.

"I'm an American," Curran boomed. "My Americanism is just as good as yours. Am I to be treated as an American?"

Then, in an aside that could be heard thruout the hearing room, Curran said: "What a circus!"

"You're going to answer these questions in a courteous way, or we're going to cite you for contempt," Dies shouted.

With that, Curran settled back and began a series of denials of questions from Rhea Whitley, committee counsel.

Denies Communist Ties.

Whitley wanted to know if Curran ever was or ever had been a member of the communist party. This charge was a "lie," Curran replied, and anybody who made it was "a liar."

In similar tone he denied that the National Maritime union, which he claims to have built into a militant union of 65,000 members in four years, is a "communist front" organization.

Then questioning turned to scores of individual leaders in the union, and other organizations. Curran was asked if he knew these persons were communists. "Naw," he replied continually, or "I didn't know."

Admits Help on Picket Line.

The water front leader admitted there might be communists in the union, but added there probably are a few "Nazis, bund members, and Ku Klux Klanners also."

At the same time, Curran freely acknowledged that communists often helped striking seamen on picket lines with contributions of food, money, and use of cars.

"When I'm on the picket line and my stomach needs a pork chop, I don't know whether it was paid for with a green or Red dollar," he explained.

The union chief told of fights between rival union groups armed with baseball bats, and designated numerous adversaries as "shipowner's stooges and labor spies."

"Did the communist party ever pay your salary or living expenses?" he was asked. "Naw," Curran replied, and then added. "I don't even get 'em now."

Curran told of working with Harry Bridges, west coast C.I.O. leader, and scores of other waterfront and maritime union leaders, but insisted he had no knowledge as to any communist party affiliations.

Lake Forest Bride

MRS. MAURICE FRANCIS HANSON.

BY JUDITH CASS.

In a simple but beautiful home ceremony yesterday afternoon Miss Margaret Ellen Hixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon of Lake Forest, became the bride of Maurice Francis Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Hanson of Chestnut Hill, Pa. The setting of arbor vitae and candelabra formed of Easter lilies was as distinctive as the gowns of the bride and her attendants. These dresses were made with tight bodices and small hoops.

The bride, a golden blonde, wore ivory satin and a hip length tulle veil fastened by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried white roses. The seven young women who preceded her to the improvised altar wore rose quartz velvet and tricornes of matching velvet, trimmed with plumes. They carried Queen Mary roses, which are yellow-rose in hue.

The Rev. Edward Mullaly read the service. Only the families and a few close friends were present. A larger reception followed at 5 p. m.

Mr. Hanson and his bride will live in Lake Forest following a wedding trip.

DIES TAKES ROW WITH ROOSEVELT TO NATION BY AIR

Refuses to Aid Whitewash of Reds in Office.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—In his controversy with President Roosevelt over publication of a list of federal office holders who are members of the American League for Peace and Democracy, Congressman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] chairman of the house committee on un-American activities, tonight delivered a radio address which he characterized as an appeal of his "case" to the people of America.

"I cannot and will not bow to the leadership of my own political party when my conscience tells me that the vital interests of America and the views of my party's leadership are in conflict," he said.

His reference apparently was to President Roosevelt's terming the committee's action in making public the names a "sordid procedure."

Renews Communist Charge.

Dies renewed at length his charges that the league is communistic. He said it is "simply the communist party traveling on one of its many false passports under the aliases of peace and democracy."

"In urging that we begin to consider the necessity for continuing this investigation," the chairman declared, "I wish to make it clear that great as is the necessity for continuation, I had rather see the committee expire on Jan. 3 than be a party to a cowardly whitewash.

"I think, therefore, that the time has come when the country should determine whether we shall be permitted to continue the investigation along fearless and nonpartisan lines, or be constantly embarrassed and thwarted by Washington officialdom.

Refuses to Back Down.

"In order to make the issue perfectly clear, I here and now declare that I will have no part in any other kind of investigation.

"To the people of America I refer my case. After all, this is your investigation and if you want it continued along honest, courageous and nonpartisan lines; if you want those in high positions as well as those in low positions exposed when they are guilty you have but to make known your views and wishes to your servants in Washington."

SETTLE STRIKE AGAINST CHAIN OF RESTAURANTS

A strike called by the Waiters' and Bartenders' unions eight months ago against a chain of restaurants operated by Gust Terzakes has been settled, it was announced yesterday. The agreement specified that Terzakes will rehire seven bartenders and the union will be free to try to organize other waiters and bartenders in his restaurants. Picketing has been discontinued.

Terzakes hired pickets to picket the union's pickets. He announced he was paying the union scale and was giving a share of the profits to his employés. A suit was filed to restrain the unions from having more than one picket at each restaurant. Ninety-seven employés joined in the suit.

A month ago Terzakes was slugged by three men as he left his Ranch restaurant at 123 East Oak street. The assailants said that they were union sympathizers. Terzakes' other restaurants are at 100 East Ohio street and 2138 Michigan avenue.

34 MINERS KILLED AS BLAST WRECKS SCOTCH COLLIERY

DUNFERMLINE, Scotland, Oct. 28 [U. P.].—Thirty-four men were killed, it was established today, in an explosion that wrecked the Valley Field colliery, seven miles from here, during a blackout last night.

Officials said that about 110 miners were underground when the disaster occurred. Many men died of burns and the rest were killed by the explosion's concussion. Sixteen bodies were recovered during the night.

PILOT AND GIRL FORCED DOWN IN GRANT PARK

Emergency Landing Halts Football Game.

A passenger's error was overcome by a pilot's skill yesterday and a forced landing in a Grant park football field was accomplished without harm to passenger, pilot, or their small monoplane.

The pilot was David H. Bishop, 35 years old, whose home field is the Harlem airport. His passenger was Miss Gale Scott, 22, of Beverly Hills, Cal. Miss Scott had hired Bishop's plane to take motion pictures of the Chicago lake front.

Bishop said the plane, a 50 horse power Piper Cub, had been up about 40 minutes and had cruised from the Edgewater Beach hotel along the beach. Suddenly the motor began to sputter.

Gridiron Crowd Scatters.

"I thought it was a clogged gas line," said Bishop, "so I kept pulling the choke. I saw that I couldn't keep the plane up, however, and decided to bring it down."

The spot which Bishop selected for a landing was occupied by football teams of St. Patrick's and St. Mel's High schools. Bishop glided over the field once, waving frantically, and the players and 300 spectators scattered. Then Bishop circled once more and landed the plane.

"I was frightened when we started down," said Miss Scott, "but I knew Mr. Bishop was an excellent pilot, so I hung on. We made a smooth landing, then bumped a couple of times."

Gas Line Shut Off.

Bishop inspected the plane and found that the gas line was shut off. Miss Scott, in rolling down the window in the rear cockpit to take pictures, apparently had struck the handle controlling the gas line and turned it off.

Park police permitted Bishop to take off after receiving telephoned permission from civil aeronautics officials here. Miss Scott was taken in a police squad car to the La Salle hotel, where she was staying. She is en route to New York.

Bishop, who lives at 4519 Adams street, had trouble of a different sort from a passenger in September. He flew Ernest G. Rogers of Fort Worth, Tex., to Indianapolis, Ind., and Rogers locked him in a hotel room and stole the plane. It was recovered and Rogers was arrested.

MAYOR ASKS PWA TO EXTEND TIME ON TRANSIT UNITY

Mayor Kelly yesterday asked the Public Works administration for a 90 day extension of the deadline set for completion of a unified transportation system ordinance.

The ordinance was to be completed by Wednesday under terms of the $18,000,000 grant made by the PWA for the Chicago subway.

The mayor's request was made in a letter to John M. Carmody, federal works agency administrator. The letter intimated that if the traction companies do not come to an agreement with the city over terms of the proposed ordinance the city may take steps to force an agreement.

Girl's Error Grounds Plane

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

As Pilot David Bishop flew over Navy pier yesterday afternoon, his passenger, Miss Gale Scott of Beverly Hills, Cal., felt an urge to use her camera. She reached for the window handle at her left, but grasped, instead, the gasoline valve, partly shutting off the flow to the engine. Finding something wrong—he didn't know what—Bishop landed in Grant park.

GALLOPING GOOD TIME IS HAD BY A JUG OF MERCURY

Joe McClusky, chief electrician in the Transportation building at 608 South Dearborn street, wrote another one for the book yesterday morning.

He and the elevator electrician, Leonard Scuffhan, had the job of gathering up what they could of 55 pounds of elusive mercury, originally destined for the Gas Consumers' association on the second floor. The unexpected occurred in the lobby on the third marble step.

Be it said for Joe and Leonard as first class roundup men, they enticed 47½ pounds of merrily rolling globules back into captivity.

"Whew," sighed Joe, hoisting himself up from his knees and mopping a dewy brow after an hour and a half of tricky maneuvering with a rubber syringe, brush, broom, dustpans, and basins. "Fish are a cinch, and greased pigs are pikers!"

It all began as a routine delivery. The mercury dealer started in with his half filled glass gallon jug. But that flight of marble steps to the second floor seemed higher than usual. He called a bootblack to give a hand.

The lad gingerly picked up the jug by the wire handle. He didn't know his mercury. There was a resounding crash and a silver river cascaded down the steps.

Scores of persons gathered and tried to help in the picking up game. Around and around they circled, with the will o' the wisp balls dancing out of range. The messenger boys and newsboys still are busily engaged in coating dimes and rings with the tiny specks that evaded Joe's brush and syringe by hiding in the crevices between tiles.

RUBBISH FIRE ROUTS 16.

Sixteen residents were forced to flee early yesterday when a rubbish fire started in the basement of a rooming house at 809 North La Salle street.

FLYER KIDNAPED IN AIRPLANE AND SHOT TO DEATH

Runaway Pilot Tells of Battle in Sky.

Springfield, Ill. At that time the Indiana officers did not know Bivens was dead. All that they had against Pletch was larceny of a plane. This he readily admitted. Not long afterward came the news of Bivens' murder and finally Pletch's confession.

Doubt Parts of Story.

Police said they doubted parts of Pletch's confession. The fact that Bivens was found gagged somewhat contradicted the fight story, they said. Moreover, advices from Brookfield described Bivens as a reputable flying teacher without financial troubles.

Pletch further related that after killing Bivens he decided to commit suicide in spectacular fashion. He planned to crash upon his parents' farm "in order that I might die in the air and yet close to my family." He lost courage near the Pletch farm, he intimated, and continued on several miles until he had to make a forced landing.

The authorities said they had a good case, covering two states—Missouri and Indiana—against Pletch. It was expected he would be extradited to the former state this week. The first clew to Pletch's identity was thru the stolen automobile—his sister's—in which were found a shotgun and pistol ammunition.

Uniform Is Blood Spattered.

The next information came from a farmer, Gilbert Spratt, who said a man answering Pletch's description landed last night at his farm near Nelsonville in northeastern Missouri, 75 miles east of Brookfield, and spent the night there.

The flyer, who was alone in the plane, identified himself as "Mr. Jackson" and said he was a physician. He carried a pistol and wore a uniform that was stained with blood.

"He explained the pistol by saying he needed it to protect large sums of money which he sometimes carried," Spratt related. "He said the blood came from his nose when he flew so high that it bled."

After staying all night at the Spratt farm, the flyer borrowed a pair of overalls, into which he changed, and took his blood spattered uniform away with him. It was found under a rock in a field.

While state police, federal agents and sheriff's deputies hunted him along the airways over Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana, Pletch flew over the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Pletch at Frankfort.

Deputies Search for Body.

Meanwhile sheriff's deputies were searching the northern Missouri area for some trace of Bivens, having learned by that time he was not in the plane with Pletch.

The search was concentrated in the vicinity of Cherry Box, about fifty miles east of Brookfield, where a rural electrification crew said a plane corresponding to the missing craft landed late yesterday to refuel.

Led by officers, a posse of six farmers familiar with the locale came upon the instructor's body about a mile from the refueling point. It was concealed in a clump of bushes along a fence row.

Pletch was scheduled to go on trial at Frankfort next week for stealing an airplane in which he ran away last summer with Goldie Gehrken, 17 years old, of Vernon, Ill., in an effort to induce her to marry him.

Flew Thru Two States.

For five days last July authorities hunted the couple and the plane while they made a flying trip thru Illinois and Missouri. Altho the girl declined to marry the flying Romeo, she did not leave him until he finally had to abandon her to escape arrest.

She was taken back to her home, where she since has married, and Pletch went to Mississippi, where he was captured several days later. He was returned to Frankfort, where he was released on bond on a charge of stealing the plane. He left there on Oct. 24 with his sister's car and had not been heard from until he appeared at Brookfield.

Pletch's home town friends were shocked at his newest adventure. The Gehrken incident—which earned him the nickname of the Flying Lochinvar thruout the nation—had been accepted as an evolution of his mania for flying. Recently he was a cashier at a carnival in Bowling Green, Mo.

KILLED IN FALL FROM LADDER.

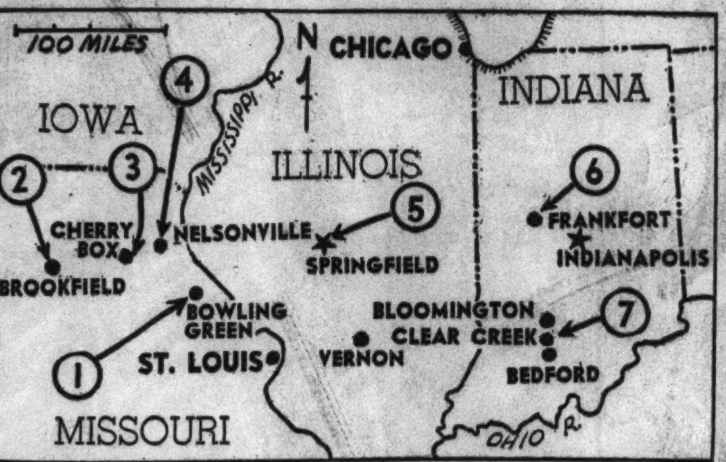
Carl Bivens (left), a flying instructor of Brookfield, Mo., went up in a plane with Ernest Pletch and was found slain near Cherry Box, Mo. The other picture shows Mrs. Bivens and her son, Russell, awaiting news of husband and father.



Pletch, employed as a carnival cashier at Bowling Green, Mo. (1), and Bivens went up at Brookfield, Mo. (2), Friday. Bivens' body was found at Cherry Box, Mo. (3), late yesterday. Pletch spent Friday night at the home of a farmer at Nelsonville, Mo. (4). After his arrest Pletch said he had let Bivens out of the plane at Springfield, Ill. (5). After flying over Frankfort, Ind. (6), yesterday afternoon and waving at his mother and sister, Pletch made a forced landing at Clear Creek, Ind. (7), and was arrested.

TELLS OF $3,000 LOVE IDYL AND WINS FREEDOM

When Michael Kay of 3149 Monroe street was arraigned in the Racine avenue court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct he told a story of a love that faded. He asserted that the complainant, Mrs. Pearl Brown, who operates a beauty shop at 445 North Kedzie avenue, had done him a $3,000 wrong.

"I have spent that much on her," said Michael, who is 38 years old. "I bought her a washing machine, an ironing board, a bathtub, and a lot of linoleum. It was all because I thought she was going to marry me."

Mrs. Brown accused Kay of puncturing her automobile tires and scratching her car's windows. She added that the amount of his gifts was exaggerated. But she admitted she had "made up" with Kay several times after their quarrels, and Judge Harold P. O'Connell acquitted him.

3 UTILITIES SEEK FORMAL DEMAND IN RACE WIRE QUIZ

Officials Meet Campbell on Annenberg Case.

William J. Campbell, United States district attorney, conferred yesterday with officials of three wire services mentioned in the grand jury indictment accusing M. L. Annenberg of conducting an illegal lottery thru his horse race information services. After the two and one-half hour private session, Campbell disclosed:

1. That the government is considering making a formal demand on the wire services to discontinue supplying the Annenberg interests with the necessary telephone and telegraph service, and;

2. That such a demand will not be necessary if certain proposals made by attorneys for Annenberg, Philadelphia newspaper publisher and New Deal critic, in regard to the indictment, are accepted by the government.

Ten Present at Conference.

Those attending the conference included Kenneth S. Burgess, general counsel of the Illinois Bell Telephone company; C. M. Bracelen, vice-president and general counsel for the American Telephone and Telegraph company; A. C. Cronkhite, general manager, and Owen West and John Neal Campbell, attorneys for the Western Union company, and J. Fred Reeve and Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for Annenberg. The government was represented by District Attorney Campbell and two special assistants, Samuel Klaus and Austin Hall.

"The government clearly stated its position in regard to the pending lottery indictment which will be pressed to trial," Campbell said. "Each company was asked to state its position in regard to its contracts with the defendants. [Ten others are named with Annenberg.] The companies took the position that as public utilities they are compelled to provide service whenever it is asked.

"The government asked what their position would be if the government made a demand that they abrogate their service. The various utilities asked that the demand be made first before they reveal their position."

Jury Action Possible.

Campbell was asked what he would do if the utilities refused to comply with the government's demand, should it be made. The only recourse, he said, would be to present the entire matter to the grand jury.

Campbell disclosed that tomorrow Annenberg and nineteen other defendants will be arraigned before Judge James H. Wilkerson in the Federal District court on all the ten indictments involving the lottery case as well as those dealing with alleged income tax delinquencies.

The government intends, the prosecutor said, to ask for an immediate trial on the conspiracy indictment naming Annenberg and twelve others on charges of evading income taxes amounting to nearly $6,000,000 in taxes, penalties, and interest.

SHOOTS FORMER SWEETHEART AND KILLS HIMSELF

Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—Harold E. Kaifer, 24 years old of Henry, Ill., tonight shot his former sweetheart, Miss Adrian Connell, 23, of Streator, and then fatally shot himself. He died several hours later in an Ottawa hospital.

Sheriff E. J. Welter of La Salle county said the two had kept company about two years until they quarreled two weeks ago. Kaifer's efforts to patch up their romance had failed.

Tonight he called for Miss Connell at her home and induced her to go for a car ride. They drove to within four miles of Ottawa on state route 23 where Kaifer stopped the car and shot the girl below the heart, the sheriff said. Then he shot himself in the head. Miss Connell was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. Kaifer was a Public Service company employé at Henry.

TAXES REDUCED BY COMMUNITY PROPERTY LAWS

California's Case Cited to Show Operation.

Legal Device Cuts Income Tax

Federal and state taxes paid by a California couple on an income of $7,500 under joint return or separate returns. The latter, permitted by the state law, results in a saving of $165.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28 [Special].—The millions of dollars Californians avoid paying in income taxes thru the operation of their state law governing community property is attracting an increasing amount of attention.

Under the community law a husband and wife may divide their total income for the purpose of making tax returns. By filing separate returns on their respective shares of the family income, the two totals sometimes fall into lower rate brackets than would have been the case with the undivided family income. Surtaxes thus often are avoided.

Nine states now have community property laws. They are Arizona, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Washington, and California. Oklahoma is the most recent state to adopt the code.

Estimate 193 Million Loss.

Two years ago, before Oklahoma joined the others, Roswell Magill, undersecretary of the treasury, estimated that the federal government was losing about 193 million dollars annually in the eight states then having community property laws.

The community property concept recognizes marriage as a partnership between husband and wife as to property acquired during marriage. It validates a joint interest of the wife in the family income on the theory that as a partner she helps to create it whether or not she is gainfully employed.

The law does not apply to a husband or wife's separate property such as that owned before marriage or acquired later thru gift or inheritance. This is not community income and must be wholly included in his or her separate report.

Older Than Income Tax.

Altho the advantages under the law comprise one of the lures held out to wealthy persons to reside here, California contends its community property law is not a tax evading device because the community property law is much older than the income tax law.

Californians also call attention to the fact that other states are not discriminated against in this connection because nothing prevents them from adopting community property laws and obtaining similar tax cuts.

From private statistics, a Los Angeles bank has estimated that Californians saved about $700,000 in federal income taxes in 1935. This does not include income taxes to the state, which were not in effect in that year, but which can be estimated on the basis of about one-fourth of the federal taxes, or $175,000. An extra saving also is effected annually in inheritance taxes.

Many File Separate Returns.

In 1935, a year in which returns generally were low everywhere, 19,052 married women filed separate federal tax returns in California on incomes averaging $6,127. The average tax on such returns, doubling them for the full family return, amounts to approximately $145.

If husbands and wives had filed joint returns as in other states, their average tax on that income would have been $217, indicating a saving of $72 under the separate return system. The saving of $72 multiplied by the 19,052 women shows a total of $1,371,744, but the bank roughly halved this in the belief the other half would have filed separate returns anyway for one reason or another.

Following is an example of how the community law may be invoked to lower returns in connection with income taxes, both state and federal.

Assume that a couple's entire income is earned solely by the husband, which does not alter its status as community income. The family's net income is $7,500 after all exemptions and deductions. A federal tax is computed at the rate of 4 per cent for the first $4,000 and 8 per cent on the balance. The state income tax is figured at 1 per cent on the first $5,000 and 2 per cent on the balance up to $10,000.

Comparisons Are Made.

On these figures the following comparison of joint and separate returns can be made:

WITHOUT COMMUNITY LAW.
[Joint returns.]

Net income subject to tax	$7,500
Federal tax of 4% on first $4,000	160
Federal tax of 8% on balance	280
Total federal tax	$ 440
State tax of 1% on first $5,000	$ 50
State tax of 2% on balance	50
Total state tax	$ 100
Total federal and state tax	$ 540

UNDER COMMUNITY LAW.
[Separate returns.]

Wife's taxable income	$3,750
Husband's taxable income	3,750
Wife's federal tax at 4%	150
Husband's federal tax at 4%	150
Total federal tax	$ 300
Wife's state tax at 1%	$37.50
Husband's state tax at 1%	37.50
Total state tax	$75.00
Total federal and state tax	$375.00
Net saving under community law	$165.00

Community laws in existence in the nine western and southern states depart from the traditional English common law background of marriage and ownership prevailing in the other 39 states.

Husband Sole Owner.

The English common law considered the family an integrated unit of which the husband was the head. The husband was considered the sole owner of all the family property and all the family income, no matter by whom earned. Thus a tax levied upon the family members' income would have been on the whole income.

The community property rule of married persons was an outgrowth of the Roman law as set forth in the Justinian code and modified in modern times by the Code Napoleon and the Spanish code, which followed each other at wide intervals over a period of 1,500 years. The ascendancy of these systems was largely due to the desire for a code of civil laws common to the whole realm and to curb the power of the military which insisted on the descent of property to the first born son.

California's inheritance was thru the Spanish code, a tradition that came to this region by way of Mexico and the Spanish southwest. When California was admitted to the Union, it was adopted by the legislators.

Surviving Spouse Gets Half.

In validating the joint interest of a wife in the family income, the community property law holds that upon the death of either husband or wife, half the community property belongs to the surviving spouse and only the remaining half is subject to the will of the decedent. In the absence of a will, the remaining half of the community property also goes to the surviving spouse.

The practice differs in this connection from laws in the majority of states where the rule of succession is a modification of the old English doctrine of "reasonable parts," which gave the wife and children equal shares in the property of a deceased and intestate husband and father. The California law gives no share of the matrimonial gains to children unless a will so specifies.

Under the community property law a widow may effect substantial savings in state and federal inheritance taxes. Since she is required to pay a tax on only half the property of her decedent husband, the taxable estate frequently falls below the minimum for inheritance tax collection, which is $25,000 in the state and $40,000 in the federal classification.

GOLF CHAMPION DIVORCED.

Mason City, Ia., Oct. 28 [Special].—Mrs. Frances Drake Repp, former Iowa women's state golf champion, was granted a divorce here this week from Stanley A. Repp on charges of cruelty and nonsupport. Mrs. Repp was granted custody of a minor daughter. The couple was married on Nov. 27, 1931.

URGE RENAMING BRIDGE IN HONOR OF FT. DEARBORN

Committee Will Present Plan to Council.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Renaming the Michigan avenue bridge "Fort Dearborn bridge" was advocated yesterday as part of a plan for establishing a permanent memorial to the tiny fort which gave birth to Chicago.

If the plan of the Fort Dearborn memorial committee is executed—and the plan will be presented to the city council this week—at least 200,000 Chicagoans a day will think of the fort. For these are the persons who daily cross the Michigan avenue bridge.

Plan New Flag Pole.

Before their eyes, as the 200,000 cross the memorial bridge, will rise another memorial: an 18 starred American flag flying south of the bridge, the same flag that flew over Fort Dearborn, the little garrison beside the river of the wild onion, when it was wiped out in 1812 by an Indian massacre.

The naming of the bridge and the placing of the flag on an ornamental pole 75 feet high, the height of the original Fort Dearborn flag pole, are the first two points in the program which the committee, headed by Harry A. Musham, retired army officer and architect, will lay before the council. The committee will ask Mayor Kelly to appoint a memorial commission, its own purpose being merely to call attention to the need of a suitable memorial to the fort and its heroic defenders.

Fort Founded in 1803.

The fort was founded in 1803, and built in that crotch of land where the Chicago river made a sharp curve southward, a point about 1,000 feet east of what is now the London Guaranty building. Not until 1834, a year after the birth of Chicago proper, was the present river channel dredged.

The area of the fort extended as far west as what is now State street and as far south as what is now Madison street, where its cemetery was situated. The stockade proper, however, which was 120 feet square, was nestled in that niche of ground where Wacker drive and Michigan avenue now converge. It is here, the committee feels, that a suitable memorial should be erected.

The flag pole, for instance, should be placed as nearly as is practicable to the spot where it stood 130 years ago. The committee suggests one of the traffic islands, whichever is closer to the center of the original parade ground.

Outlines in Pavement.

It also suggests that the outline of the original fort be marked in the pavement and sidewalks with broad bands of inlaid material, as the site of the Bastille is marked in Paris. Col. Musham believes the site can be located to within a few feet, if not inches.

Dr. Harold I. Meyer, vice president of the national Society of the War of 1812, and Dr. Stanley W. Clark, representing the Military Order of the World War, met with Musham yesterday. Other members of the committee are Henry S. Bottomley, Willard R. Matheny, E. N. Wentworth Jr. and Harold G. Spurling.

Pedestrian Is Shot from Taxicab, He Tells Police

Paul Parrillo, 25 years old, 3912 Lexington street, was shot in the left leg early today as he was walking in Madison street, near Sacramento boulevard. He went to the home of his brother, Dr. Orest J. Parrillo, 507 North Albany avenue, for medical aid. The physician notified police. Paul Parrillo said that the shot that hit him came from a cruising taxicab which did not stop. He is a mill worker, he told police who sent him to the Bridewell hospital.

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Dies of a Heart Attack in Automobile Crash

La Porte, Ind., Oct. 28 [Special].—Edwin W. Hayes, 72 years old, La Porte business man, died yesterday of heart attack after the car he was driving collided with one driven by Ralph Fritzen, 20 years old.

DRIVER IS KILLED AS CAR RUNS OFF ROAD, HITS TREE

Maurice Demann, 28 years old, of St. Charles, Kane county, was killed yesterday when his automobile ran off state highway 25 just outside Geneva and struck a tree. It was believed Demann fell asleep at the wheel.

Mrs. Margaret Fitzsimmons, 59, of 7921 Crandon avenue, was killed and her husband, Christopher, 60, a surface lines motorman, was injured early today when he drove their automobile against a C. & E. I. railroad viaduct pillar at 87th street and Stewart avenue. They were returning from a Halloween party.

Mrs. Maria Baldoni, 76 years old, 2923 Flournoy street, was killed when she was struck by an automobile in front of 723 South Sacramento boulevard. The driver was Glendon J. McArdle, 34, of 2334 South 50th avenue, Cicero, a railroad switchman.

Miss Geneva Knox, 49 years old, 4506 Indiana avenue, a Negro, died of a skull fracture incurred Friday when she was run down by an automobile at Michigan avenue and 45th street. The driver was Miss Eva White, 115 East 44th street, also colored.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 704 persons had been killed in traffic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 545 were killed in Chicago, where 18,245 were injured in the same period.

PROSECUTOR READY TO TAKE EVIDENCE ON MANTENO DEATHS

Persons having complaints concerning the management of the state hospital at Manteno or wish to present evidence having a bearing on the recent typhoid epidemic there, were advised yesterday by State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro of Kankakee county that he will be able to confer with them during the coming week. A case in court kept him busy all last week, he said.

The prosecutor said he had been interviewing witnesses at night during most of the week. Inasmuch as there is no grand jury in session, the witnesses are to be questioned in the prosecutor's office in the courthouse at Kankakee or at the state hospital north of Kankakee.

Gov. Horner directed that all official records be madea vailable to Shapiro. The prosecutor said he particularly wants the documents that showed numerous unheeded warnings that the water supply at the state institution was unsafe. He said he expected to question every physician employed at the hospital, as well as numerous other employés and former employés. The epidemic cost the lives of 52 persons.

FATHER AND TWO DAUGHTERS DIE IN KEROSENE BLAST

Racine, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—A father and his two small daughters perished early today when kerosene poured on a coal stove fire caused an explosion that turned their three room cottage into a mass of flames.

The victims were Nick Larsen, 32 years old, a laborer; Wandell, 3 years old, and Kathleen, 14 months.

A son, Ronald, 4 years old, and Nels Rysgaard, a friend of the family who was spending the night at the home, escaped in their underclothes.

Rysgaard said he and Larsen drank wine and stayed with the children while Mrs. Larsen went to a card party. After they had gone to bed the house became cold and Rysgaard poured kerosene into the coal stove.

CHICAGO OPERA BEGINS GOLDEN JUBILEE YEAR

Season's Opening Brings Back Past Splendor.

depression days, the picture the Civic Opera house presented last night must have been an enchanting one, one long to be remembered.

It was a gorgeous spectacle, similar to the one that those who attended "Romeo and Juliet" in 1889 must have seen. For today's fashions are much like those of that day. "The bustle was pronounced. Bodices followed the lines of the figure very closely," wrote a fashion expert of that time. "Décolletage was not extreme. White gloves were, of course, de rigeur, and precious stones, particularly diamonds, were worn in great numbers. The 'wasp waist' had assumed its most exaggerated and pernicious form. So great was the importance attached to sleeves that even in evening dress small puffs of ribbon were sometimes attached to the shoulders to give the fashionable effect."

Few Tiaras Back in 1910.

In 1910, when the Chicago Opera company opened, the reporter covering the social aspects wrote that there were not many jewels and not much ermine seen. Women were wearing too much hair—whether it was real or false she did not mention—to stand the weight of tiaras. But by 1919 tiaras, dog collars, necklaces, and jewels were flashing on every woman who owned such valuable baubles.

Tiaras and dog collars are seen no more, but every other sort of jeweled ornament was in evidence last night. And no well dressed woman this season has so much hair that she cannot put a flower, a jewel, or a feather in it. Every smart coiffure fitted the head and was sleek and trim. Lace mantillas have come into fashion again, and many pretty heads were covered by these flattering accessories as women fluttered in the wind swept entrance of the opera house.

The crowds that assemble to watch the opening night audience enter are larger each year, making an opera première somewhat like a movie preview in Hollywood. The onlookers, who silently stole away last night when the elegant ticket takers gathered up their stub receptacles and rose colored velvet ropes, add to the air of excitement, however, and help to make a gala occasion. The ticket takers, by the way, in their white lined opera capes and tall silk hats, are the most resplendent masculine beings in every première. There were more silk hats last night than I've ever seen in Chicago before at one time—and more sumptuous fur coats, too!

Carter Harrisons Present.

Among the early comers were two who were present on that far away night in 1889 when the Auditorium was opened, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison. They were a bride and groom then.

Two of the most admired women in the audience were singers, Helen Jepson and Marion Claire, both radiantly lovely. Miss Jepson, who will sing for the first time this year on Wednesday night in "La Traviata," was in gold crêpe, and Miss Claire was in white with a crimson coat with an ermine collar. Her husband, Henry Weber, conducted last night's performance.

Count and Countess Cardelli were dressed in the height of opera tradition. The youthful count, who has come from his home in Great Barrington, Mass., to lecture for the opera company, carried his collapsed opera hat, white kid gloves, and an ivory headed stick. His slender, brown-haired wife followed the covered up trend of this season in a rich satin gown of soft gold, ornamented with a jewel studded belt. She wore a necklace of pearls and carried a short coat of quilted cloth of silver.

She's a Chicago Resident.

The countess is the former Miss Jacqueline Stewart of New York. Her husband's mother was Ruth Lamson of Chicago before her marriage to the late Count Giovanni Cardelli. She lives in Chicago and prefers to be known as Mrs. Cardelli.

Miss Jane Allen, a debutante last year, wore a less sophisticated wrap but one that was unusual and charming on her. It was a cape of mulberry wool, edged with a narrow scarlet ruching. Her dress was of fragile gold threaded lace. David North, carrying a stick, was her proud escort.

Debutante Meredith Manning wore a youthful black velvet coat trimmed with a tiny buttoned collar of white ermine. Her gown was of frothy white net.

Mrs. Jason F. Whitney, whose husband is president of the opera company, wore ecru alencon lace threaded in gold, a rope of pearls and an ermine wrap.

The last box party to enter was that of the Charles B. Goodspeeds. Mrs. Goodspeed was gowned in black and red, the bodice of the latter and the full skirt of the former. She wore a three-quarter length ermine wrap. Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins, in the same party, was in pale silver brocade with tiny white bows in her dark hair. Her coat was of mink. Her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Logan, the third woman in the party, wore black net, full-skirted, and a stunning full length coat of black wool trimmed with sable.

One of the handsomest fur coats seen was that of Mrs. Charles H. Swift, a fitted, full length ermine one. Mrs. Walter R. Kirk wore a short silver fox jacket over a black gown, and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings wore a short sable jacket over a gold threaded white gown. Mrs. Jacob Baur was in black with a velvet and lace gown, a velvet coat, and an aigrette in her hair. Mrs. Edward A. Leight wore a diamond and gold rose on her forehead, and a young woman who entered at the same time wore an unusual hair ornament, a bunch of white glass grapes. Mrs. Leight's dress was of white and gold brocade, bouffant as to skirt and off the shoulders.

Mrs. Verna Ross Stiger was in plaited red taffeta and a short ermine dolman. A round bouquet of tiny red buds and a cluster of the same flowers nestling at the nape of her neck completed a picture of old fashioned charm.

Brilliant Crowd Sees Opera Opening

OLD RUSSIA LIVES AGAIN IN GREAT OPERA PAGEANT

'Boris Godunoff' Offered by Huge Cast.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Nearly a year of preliminary work bore fruit last night when the Chicago City Opera company presented Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff" at the Civic Opera house as the opening performance of a seven week season. The revival of this masterpiece of Russian opera, which had not been heard here for eight years, required the assembling and training of a huge cast, the refurbishing of long unused settings and costumes, and the relearning of elaborate stage routines.

All of this was accomplished in such a manner that the throngs of people who streamed down the aisles last night after taking a reluctant leave of the bright, gaily chattering lobby, found that an even better show awaited them inside.

Back to 16th Century.

They were transported immediately from 1939 America to a Russia of the late 16th century, and they were transported so plausibly that this world of royalty and chanting crowds and earthy peasants seemed as real as the world of motor cars and haughty jewel bearers they had just left.

"Boris Godunoff" is the opera based on the Pushkin play of the same name which tells the story of the usurper whose crime—the murder of the real heir to the throne of Russia—finds him out when a monk who pretends to be the rightful czar inflames the people against Boris and drives him to ruin and death.

So various are the persons and scenes of the drama that the Russia of 300 years ago comes to life before our eyes. Here are tremendous scenes of barbaric pageantry where the stage is crowded to bursting and where nobles and priests and townspeople dazzle the eye with color. Here, also, are glimpses into the life of the peasantry—a life of hardship and slavery lightened somewhat by a blustering, sturdy humor.

Music Gives Life to Pageant.

In last night's presentation the music, it is safe to say, made an even deeper impression than the pageantry. Indeed, the music entered into this pageantry and gave it a life and a beauty which it could never have possessed of itself. The strange modal melody of old Russia, sung by massed choruses, became the greatest single factor in the majesty of the performance.

But modest Moussorgsky, fanatically devoted to Russia and her people, saw to it that the scenes of pageantry in his opera did not overbalance the rest. Last night's audience, permitted glimpses of old time monastic life and of the blustery life of the workers, found that the music was as eloquent and as fitting here as it was in large scale scenes which had gone before. The composer, who carried in his veins the blood of both nobles and serfs, knew his Russia whole, and put its wholeness into this work which has become his monument.

More important, however, than the ability of this music to fit a time or a class is its power to plumb the depths of man. The various characters, with their differing problems and preoccupations, spoke thru the enormously expressive Moussorgsky music with an eloquence that brought before the audience the very reality of ambition, or remorse, or whatever other psychological state the drama happened to be concerned with at the moment.

Ezio Pinza, the versatile Italian bass, made in last night's performance his first Chicago appearance as Boris. His enactment of the difficult rôle, which for so many years was closely identified with the late Feodor Chaliapin, profited by the dignity of his bearing and the sureness of his musicianship.

The part of Marina went to Elen Longone, that of the pretender to Armand Tokatyan. Others in the long and impressive cast were Giuseppe Cavadore, Douglas Beattie, Virgilio Lazzari, Ada Paggi, Alexander Kulpak, and Mark Love. Henry Weber conducted, making on this occasion his first public appearance since his appointment as musical director of the company for the season of 1939.

This performance, like the entire season which is to follow it, was in a very real sense a commemoration of Paul Longone, former artistic director of the Chicago City Opera company, who died in France last August. It was he who planned and cast "Boris," he who laid out the whole 1939 schedule and engaged artists for all the principal parts. There was a reminder of him in last night's cast, for Eleanor La Mance, his widow, is now using Elen Longone as her professional name.

CHICAGO ALUMNI OF CASE SCHOOL PUSH FUND DRIVE

Chicago was one of 46 cities where alumni of the Case School of Applied Science of Cleveland, O., gathered yesterday for lunch and a nation-wide radio broadcast to promote a $400,000 endowment for new college buildings. Clarence J. Maloney, district manager of the Cutler Hammer Manufacturing company, was chairman of the meeting conducted here in the Sportsman club, 360 North Michigan avenue. Half the amount sought for the endowment has been pledged. The radio program, broadcast on the Mutual Broadcasting system, was a round table discussion by six industrialists and scientists.

QUESTION: SHOULD I GET A VACUUM TUBE OR CARBON TYPE HEARING AID FOR MY DEAFNESS?
ANSWER: Sonotone offers you both; recommends the audicle which will serve you best only after careful, comparative tests.

If you are hard of hearing and are trying to make an intelligent choice of a hearing aid, you are probably confused by the conflicting claims made today for different types of instruments.

Here are the facts: no one instrument no matter how efficient or reliable will serve all cases equally well. Some will hear better with a crystal, vacuum tube aid; others will hear better with a good carbon type aid properly fitted to their needs. Several factors determine the choice—chief of which is the nature of the hearing loss.

A COMPREHENSIVE SERVICE

Sonotone Hearing Service offers the most comprehensive line of vacuum tube and carbon audicles available. Our one objective is to provide you with the most efficient and satisfactory hearing possible. This we are in a position to do because of our testing equipment, our methods, our experience and our all-inclusive range of products. If the chart of your hearing reveals that you do not need a hearing aid or cannot be helped by one, we will tell you so frankly. If you do become a Sonotone user, our interest in your good hearing continues. The Sonotone guarantee, and Sonotone service policies, assure you of uninterrupted hearing satisfaction year after year. This office—one of 110 like it throughout the United States—is a permanent institution which, during the past years, has served an ever-growing clientele in this city and nearby communities.

FREE HEARING TEST AND FITTING

There is no charge or obligation for a consultation, audiometer test and fitting. We invite you to take advantage of this most interesting and helpful service. A letter or telephone call will arrange an appointment in your home, or visit our office.

SONOTONE LEADERSHIP

The Sonotone laboratories are the largest in the world devoted exclusively to hearing aid research and development.

Sonotone first received the Acceptance of the Council on Physical Therapy of the American Medical Association in 1935.

The Sonotone laboratories have pioneered in practically every major hearing aid advance of the past 10 years.

You can see the VALUE ...and you can see the PRICE

CLEAR and impressive to even the casual eye is the outstanding merit built into General Motors cars of 1940. They reflect the resourcefulness and authority of one of the leading technical groups in the world of today.

On every count—size, utility, styling and luxury of finish they are far superior to anything we have accomplished before.

They are definitely larger, abler, handsomer. Appointments are richer. Bodies are bigger. Seats are wider. There is more room for both passengers and luggage.

And you will certainly want to see and try the new mechanism destined to take the transmission out of the driving technique of the car of tomorrow—now available in one of the General Motors lines. Likewise, you are sure to be intrigued with a special and entirely new model—available in several lines—the ultra, in both styling and appointment.

GM
GENERAL MOTORS

Thus the new values established in General Motors cars for 1940 are plain to see—yet value is always relative. It necessarily involves not only the price you pay but what that price includes. And this is absolutely true irrespective of the car you may buy.

To enable you more completely to measure General Motors values, our dealers are making the details of pricing unmistakably plain.

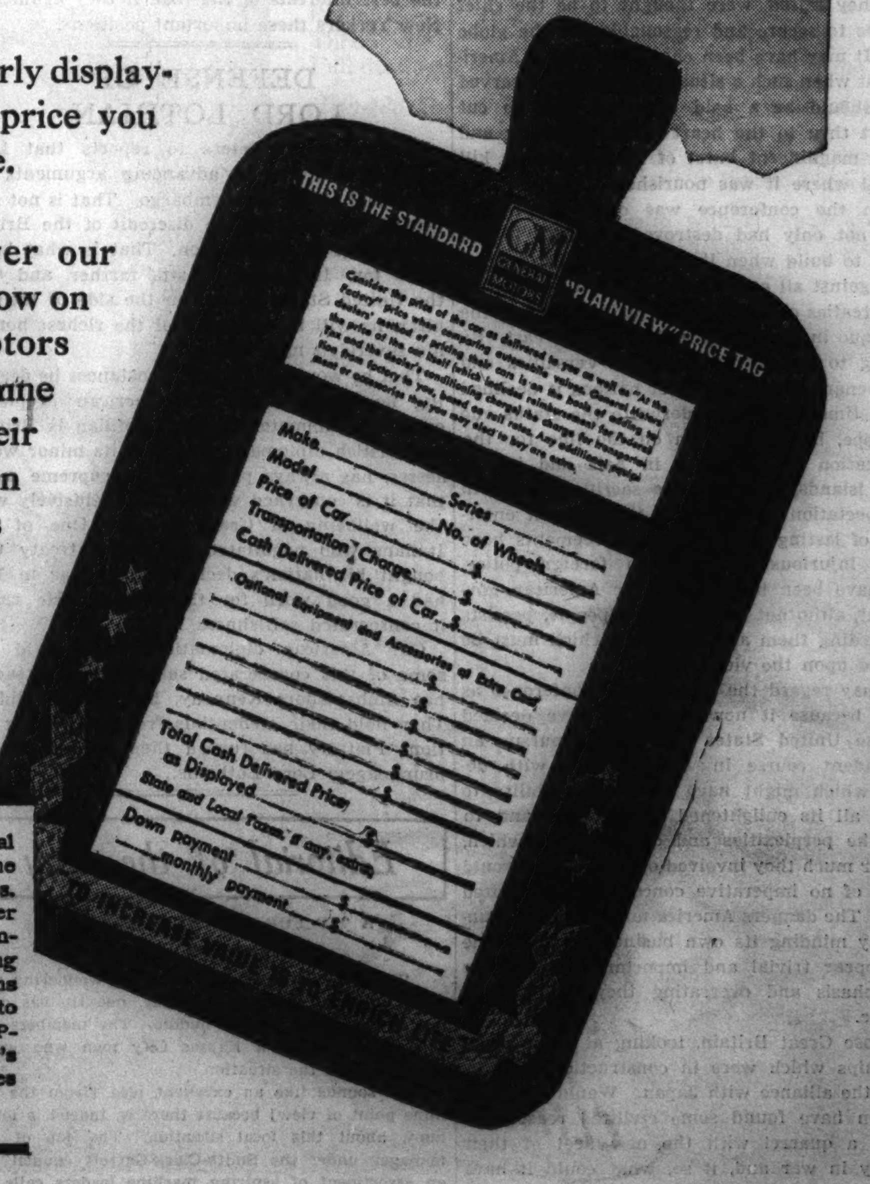
You know there is a difference between the advertised price of any car as delivered at the factory and the price you pay delivered in your own community.

So that you may know exactly of what this difference consists and how it may affect any General Motors value, our dealers are marking each car displayed on their showroom floors with a "plainview" price tag pictured here.

This tag shows the price the dealer charges for the car itself including reimbursement for Federal Tax and his conditioning charge. So much for a charge for transportation from the factory to you, based on rail rates. So much for the dealer's charge for any extra equipment or accessories that you may elect to buy. And there is nothing more. That is important.

And an itemized invoice clearly displaying every item in the total price you pay is provided for reference.

We invite you to look over our splendid new cars for 1940 now on exhibition by General Motors dealers everywhere. Examine their features. Check their quality, point by point. Then consider the price tag. Thus you appraise for yourself the value of these new General Motors cars of 1940.



THIS IS THE STANDARD "PLAINVIEW" PRICE TAG

GENERAL MOTORS

Consider the price of the car as delivered to you as well as "At the Factory" price when comparing automobile values. General Motors dealers' method of pricing their cars is on the basis of adding to the price of the car itself (which includes reimbursement for Federal Tax and the dealer's conditioning charge) the charge for transportation from factory to you, based on rail rates. Any additional equipment or accessories that you may elect to buy are extra.

This is the standard price tag used by General Motors dealers to show what makes up the prices of their new cars delivered to customers. "PRICE OF CAR" means the price the dealer charges you for the car itself including reimbursement for Federal Tax and his conditioning charge—"TRANSPORTATION CHARGE" means a charge for transportation from the factory to you, based on rail rates—"OPTIONAL EQUIPMENT AND ACCESSORIES" means the dealer's charge for any extra equipment or accessories that you may elect to buy.

OUR FATEFUL MISTAKE OF 1921.

Many of us remember the occasion when Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state, rose to address the conference on the limitation of armament, opening its sessions Nov. 12, 1921, in Washington, and caused even Arthur Balfour hurriedly to swallow a gasp of astonishment as he sat almost stunned for the moment by the magnitude of the American naval surrender to what was thought to be the pacification of the world. He was then and there being made the Earl Balfour as surely as if the scene had been that of another Trafalgar. The occasion is now recalled as one of the most decisive and fateful in the determination of American foreign policy.

Mr. Hughes for the American government proposed to sink a magnificent navy under construction, 6 battle cruisers and 7 battleships on the ways, and 2 battleships already launched—618,000 tons of power in modern design and armament. At that moment the United States, having emerged from the world war and having again cut loose from entanglements, was an independent power with few commitments anywhere.

There were alarms which had been overemphasized, probably for ulterior reasons. Japan was supposed to be menacing. Great Britain was supposed to be undecided whether it would renew the Japanese alliance. The European nations which had been helped by American loans and nations which had also been saved by American armed forces were substituting expressions of reproach for expressions of gratitude. Uncle Shylock was about to become an international figure, and altho Europe was exhausted by the war, in collapse economically, the United States was supposed to be gravely endangered.

There also was the natural feeling that the world had been thru an insane period, the causes of which were to be attributed to its folly in maintaining great military establishments and losing control of them. The burden of armaments and their provocativeness, the ambitions and fears they raised, were thought to be the chief menaces to secure and reasonable life the globe over. It may have been characteristically American that when such a situation was thus observed there should be a bold endeavor here to cut straight thru to the heart of the difficulty and by one magnificent burst of resolute action kill the evil where it was nourished.

When the conference was over the United States not only had destroyed the fleet it had started to build when it thought it must protect itself against all contingencies, but it had signed other treaties obligating it to maintenance of the status quo in the Pacific and in the far east. By refusing to accept the treaty of Versailles and the covenant of the league of nations it declined for the time being to underwrite the status quo in Europe, but it did sign on the line for the perpetuation of conditions in Asia and in the Pacific islands, making some sacrifices there in the expectation of stabilizing the hopes it entertained of lasting peace. These agreements have proved injurious in American foreign policy. They have been broken and the American government, altho not the American people, persists in regarding them as obligations which must be enforced upon the violator.

We may regard the Washington conference as fateful because it now seems to have decided that the United States was not to pursue an independent course in world affairs, with defenses which might have insured its ability to further all its enlightened self-interests and to avoid the perplexities and controversies which, however much they involved other nations, would remain of no imperative concern to the United States. The dangers America might have encountered by minding its own business at that time now appear trivial and important only in the overemphasis and overrating they obtained at the time.

Suppose Great Britain, looking at those great battleships which were in construction, had renewed the alliance with Japan. Would the British then have found some civilized reason for picking a quarrel with the new fleet of their late ally in war and, if so, what could it have been? Some British statesmen of the present have remarked that they wish that lost navy or its replacements were on the sea today. Japan was supposed to be truculent, but what it would have done cannot be perceived in retrospect. The Japanese government was angry because America had helped to block its progress in Shantung. But even in alliance with the British and with all of Europe turning sour on the American who had distributed his money so recklessly over the world for the defense or the reconstruction of a dozen peoples, Tokio probably would have seen the unwisdom of provoking a war with the United States.

We had our greatest opportunity to attain in the early '20s what some people now fervently desire to attain in the late '30s. We could have cut loose from commitments and obligations expressed or implied. It would not have been isolation, a word which has come to contain a meaningless reproach. It would have been self-sufficiency. It would have provided self-determination. The American position in international affairs would have given Americans by this time a sensible and confident detachment from problems and interests which are not their own. It would have made their voice authoritative in matters which did concern them. Gradually it would have relieved them of the idea that somehow they are dependent upon the fortunes of other peoples.

If we hadn't thought in 1921 that we could stabilize the world and promote universal and lasting peace by signing treaties outside the ordinary bounds of policy, by committing ourselves to the defense of vast territorial arrangements and by surrendering the power which would have made us unquestionably secure, we might not at this moment hear talk of our frontiers in Europe, of our duty to civilization, our dependence upon the success of some powers, and our peril in the rise of others.

This is hindsight. We may admit that in 1921 the vision of many Americans was obscured by the conditions which were magnified in importance because they seemed to be so close. These Americans were not able to look beyond the things immediately confronting them to the not very distant future when they would find that the ideas then creeping into their foreign policy would return to contradict all their intentions and present them with the very thing they were trying to avoid—the possibility of war in Europe.

Now we are building again. And many people do not believe and cannot comfort themselves with the thought that this new program for security is intended to make the United States independent of foreign entanglements.

JESSE JONES APPROVES.

As loan administrator and before that as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Jesse Jones has become acquainted with the distress of railroads as few men have. The railroad managers began going to see Mr. Jones in 1931 when financial difficulties first overtook them, and they have been laying their problems before him ever since. It was he who largely determined whether they could be helped by temporary loans or if they had to go through the wringer.

Those who are engaged in reorganizing railroads should give heed to the views of one who knows their problems as Mr. Jones does. On Tuesday Mr. Jones told John Fisher of the Washington office of THE TRIBUNE that he believes that railroad trustees of reorganized railroads should be selected from the vicinity in which the carriers operate and maintain their headquarters. He also indorsed the position for which THE TRIBUNE has long contended that railroad officers and directors should be selected from the areas in which the roads operate.

A large number of directors of the western railroads live in the east and have no contact with the business, except as they learn about it at their meetings held in New York. It is just a few months until the stockholders meet to elect directors for the new year. The managements should be working out plans to comply with the sound suggestions of the federal loan administrator.

Mr. Jones' views were specially sought with reference to the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, which is expected to be reorganized and to emerge from federal court control soon. This is a midwestern railroad. It doesn't run east at all. But easterners have had a lot to say about its management. New York banks are the trustees for every one of the line's securities issues.

Because it is a Chicago road, which has to get business here to make it successful, no opportunity should be lost to identify it with midwestern institutions. It will be a serious mistake if the Chicago financial houses do not displace the New York banks as registrars and transfer agents of the new C. & E. I. issues. The reorganization committees will not be working for the best interests of the road if they again give New Yorkers these important positions.

DEFENSE OF LORD LOTHIAN.

Senator Borah refers to reports that Lord Lothian is active in advancing arguments for the repeal of the arms embargo. That is not surprising, nor is it to the discredit of the British ambassador at Washington. That is what he is there for. If he can go still farther, and take the United States to war on the side of the empires, he will be deserving of the richest honors his sovereign may bestow.

That he would in such circumstances be deserving no thanks from the American people is completely immaterial. Lord Lothian is British, and British diplomacy, whatever its minor weaknesses, has always possessed the supreme merit that it is concerned wholly and exclusively with the wellbeing of Great Britain. One of the Italians who negotiated the secret treaty that bought his nation's declaration of war in 1915 had a good word for this quality. He called it consecrated selfishness.

Our American diplomatic service could use some of this consecrated selfishness. Instead it has Ambassadors Kennedy, Bullitt, and Biddle. They hold their credentials from the wrong nation. Flattery has turned them into a trio of brummagem Lord Lothians.

Editorial of the Day

A TIP FOR THE NEW MANAGER.

[Kansas City Times.]

While the folks around town are wondering who is to be their new city manager, one tip has come out of the latest council huddle. The members feel they should name a Kansas City man who would already know the situation.

That sounds like an excellent idea [from the machine point of view] because there is, indeed, a lot to know about this local situation. The job of city manager under the Smith-Clark-Garrett council and an assortment of aspiring machine leaders calls for keen insight and judgment.

A year ago it would have been easy enough because everything was handled directly between the city manager and T. J. Pendergast. Every one knew who got how many jobs. A note with the right signature was assurance of a good, efficient city employé. Contracts were simple because there was a right firm designated for everything and it was always ready to take care of making the prices. The city manager didn't have much to worry about except covering up the deficits.

But now it looks as if a city manager may have to be a machine statesman. He will have to remember that the machine has been only recently chased down the sawdust trail, but he is not to take the conversion too seriously. Just how seriously is one of those delicate decisions that calls for the experience of a local man who understands the situation.

To start with, the new city manager must be an outstanding business man. The council has said so. But he is not to be too squeamish about business practices when he gets the job. After all, "the boys" must live and they have just come thru a bad six months.

He must have a fine reputation, but not be too particular about keeping it. As a machine city manager he can soon learn that every one who objects is a disgruntled politician, a blue nosed reformer, or a polecat.

While he is talking like a crisp, businesslike, and high minded city manager he is expected to remember that he owes his job to the machine. It is a good idea for him to give spiritual support to the right of the common people to vote, but he must see to it that they don't get a chance.

So we see the selection of a city manager is a delicate job for the Smith-Clark-Garrett council, not to mention the delicacy of the task ahead of the lucky man.

PROF. JOHN DEWEY, 80, WRITES BOOK: 'FREEDOM AND CULTURE'

Last week Dr. John Dewey celebrated his 80th birthday by publishing a volume, "Freedom and Culture" [G. P. Putnam's Sons]. Of interest to students and readers thruout the world, the writings of John Dewey have a special appeal to Chicago, where for years before going to Columbia in New York he was professor of philosophy in the University of Chicago. He has always been regarded as a leader in radical thought.

Not so long ago Dewey led a "commission of inquiry" to Mexico City to probe into the reason for the soviets' banishment of Leon Trotsky, who in the days of Lenin was joint leader of the Russian revolution. Interesting details of the wanderings of Trotsky were developed and the commission made a finding that he had not been traitorous.

Now Dr. Dewey has turned his attention to the subject of freedom, which for so many years had been taken for granted as the property of modern man, and the just issued volume is the result. Scattered excerpts from his book throw interesting light on the trend of his thought on this now most vital question of life—freedom. Here are some of them:

"The view that love of freedom is so inherent in man that, if it only has a chance given it by abolition of oppressions exercised by church and state, it will produce and maintain free institutions is no longer adequate. The idea naturally arose when settlers in a new country felt that the distance they had put between themselves and the forces that oppressed them effectively symbolized everything that stood between them and permanent achievement of freedom. We are now forced to see that positive conditions, forming the prevailing state of culture, are required. Release from oppressions and repressions which previously existed marked a necessary transition, but transitions are but bridges to something different."

"The real source of the weakness that has developed later in the position of our democratic progenitors is not that they isolated the problem of freedom from the positive conditions that would nourish it, but that they did not—and in their time could not—carry their analysis far enough. The outstanding examples of this inability are their faith in the public press and in schooling. They certainly were not wrong in emphasizing the need of a free press and of common public schools to provide conditions favorable to democracy. But to them the enemy of freedom of the press was official governmental censorship and control; they did not foresee the nonpolitical causes that might restrict its freedom, nor the economic factors that would put a heavy premium on centralization. And they failed to see how education in literacy could become a weapon in the hands of an oppressive government, nor that the chief cause for promotion of elementary education in Europe would be increase of military power.

"The inefficacy of education in general, that is, apart from constant attention to all the elements of its constitution, is illustrated in Germany itself. Its schools were so efficient that the country had the lowest rate of illiteracy in the world; the scholarship and scientific researches of its universities were known throughout the civilized globe. In fact, it was not so many years ago that a distinguished American educator held them up as models to be followed in this country if the weaknesses of our higher institutions were to be remedied. Nevertheless, German lower schools furnished the intellectual fodder for totalitarian propaganda, and the higher schools were the centers of reaction against the German republic."

"The serious threat to our democracy is not the existence of foreign totalitarian states. It is the existence within our own personal attitudes and within our own institutions of conditions similar to those which have given a victory to external authority, discipline, uniformity, and dependence upon the leader in foreign countries. The battlefield is also accordingly here—within ourselves and our institutions."

"The inherent theoretical weakness of Marxism is that it supposed a generalization that was made at a particular date and place [and made even then only by bringing observed facts under a premise drawn from a metaphysical source] can obviate the need for continued resort to observation and to continual revision of generalizations in their office of working hypotheses. In the name of science a thoroly antiscientific procedure was formulated, in accord with which a generalization is made having the nature of ultimate 'truth,' and hence holding good at all times and places."

"For, while it was part of the original doctrine that personal hatred is outside the scope of the impersonal sweep of economic forces, it is doubtful if there is any case in history of odium theologicum that surpasses in intensity the venom displayed by convinced disciples of the orthodox Marxist creed toward dissenters, the venom being even greater against those who agree in some respects than toward professed representatives of capitalism. For the former are heretics, while the latter are simply believers in a faith that is natural to them. Like pagans, as distinct from heretics, they do not know any better. Verbal abuse in countries like the United States is the substitute for the physical power exerted where dictatorship exists, the mildest epithet being that of Fascist or friend of Fascism."

"Literary persons have been chiefly the ones in this country who have fallen for Marxist theory, since they are the ones who, having the least amount of scientific attitude, swallow most readily the notion that 'science' is a new kind of infallibility."

"We have advanced far enough to say that democracy is a way of life. We have yet to realize that it is a way of personal life and one which provides a moral standard for personal conduct."

"War under existing conditions compels nations, even those professedly the most democratic, to turn authoritarian and totalitarian as the world war of 1914-'18 resulted in Fascist totalitarianism in nondemocratic Italy and Germany and in bolshevist totalitarianism in nondemocratic Russia, and promoted political, economic, and intellectual reaction in this country. The necessity of transforming physical interdependence into moral—into human—interdependence is part of the democratic problem: and yet war is said even now to be the path of salvation for democratic countries!"

"The conflict as it concerns the democracy to which our history commits us is within our own institutions and attitudes. It can be won only by extending the application of democratic methods, methods of consultation, persuasion, negotiation, communication, coöperative intelligence, in the task of making our own politics, industry, education, our culture generally, a servant and an evolving manifestation of democratic ideas. Resort to military force is a first sure sign that we are giving up the struggle for the democratic way of life, and that the old world has conquered morally as well as geographically—succeeding in imposing upon us its ideals and methods."

How to Keep Well

A SLUGGISH THYROID AND THE BOWEL.

THERE is no limit to the marvels of nature. But have we the wit to discover them? When Jim Bridger, the famous western scout, first described the glories of the Yellowstone region, he was dubbed a second Baron Munchausen.

We have heard a great deal about the endocrine glands — those small bodies which produce such powerful chemicals. But some, I am sure, are still a bit skeptical. How can minute quantities bring about such extraordinary effects—out of all proportion of the amount involved?

As we know, the output of the thyroid is necessary for well-being. This material is vital—otherwise the intelligence drops and development is retarded markedly. Whenever too much is generated an equal degree of trouble appears. Metabolism may be speeded up to the point where the body will consume its own tissues. Growth is controled by another endocrine, and no function can proceed normally unless a half dozen or so of these tiny factories work unceasingly and together.

What bearing do the ductless glands have upon the alimentary tract? At the outset we may admit that the compounds supplied by these secreting organs affect the autonomic nervous system profoundly. It is probably thru the urge of their products that the digestive tube carries on its duties. It has long been known that when there is too great a harvest from the thyroid the digestive machinery may work at too high a speed. This is borne out by the fact that whenever small doses of this principle are fed [as an aid in combating constipation], some benefit is noted thru the enhanced activity of the vagus nerve. Recently it has been learned that when these nerves [vagus] are cut below the diaphragm, movements of the intestinal canal will be maintained if sufficient thyroid extract is administered. But the rate of response is far greater when the "wires" are intact.

As has been pointed out in earlier discussions, no member of the endocrine family operates as an individual. All seem to be related so closely that what disturbs one influences another. For example, whenever the machinery located in the neck is upset there is likely to be a change in the behavior of the pituitary, the adrenals, and certain other chemical manufacturing plants.

A recent study by Morrison and Feldman has demonstrated that with a greatly reduced secretion from the thyroid the intestinal tract will go along at its regular pace, the stomach emptying completely. In other words, other structures are able to take up the load and provide the compounds necessary to stimulate the nerves governing the muscles of the intestines. Furthermore, cases are cited wherein bowel sluggishness has been corrected promptly by increased activity of this apparatus or by giving the dried substance.

There is reasonable evidence, therefore, to indicate that this special structure has a good deal to do with the progress of food from the stomach to the duodenum and along the digestive canal. In fact, a normal thyroid is better than a carload of laxatives.

But, you ask, how will this help? Well, it may not at all unless you are subject to a stubborn type of constipation. There is reason to believe that the possession of a spastic bowel may indicate that the performance of this gland is not quite up to par. If sluggishness is suspected from this cause, a metabolic test may provide the evidence. Should the reading be 25 or more points below normal, the dried form, prepared from sheep, is a satisfactory aid.

Physicians, however, employ this powerful remedy with caution and no one should use any hormone unless a competent medical man is at hand to observe the effects.

POSSIBLE CAUSES ARE MANY.

H. G. writes: What is the cause of a sudden attack of dizziness and vomiting? Subsequent to these seizures the patient is unable to lift her head from the pillow for several days. Could the menopause be responsible?

REPLY.

Vertigo may accompany a disturbance of the fluid held by the tissues—particularly involving the semicircular canals [the balancing apparatus]. Many factors may be responsible, including high blood pressure or changes incident to the menopause. Removing extra water via a saline laxative may be helpful.

SEE YOUR DENTIST.

S. S. writes: About four weeks ago I fell and struck my chin, loosening four of my teeth. What can be done in a case like this?

REPLY.

You should consult your dentist. The teeth will regain much of their firmness if not subjected to pressure.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Oct. 29, 1914.

TOKIO.—The German cruiser Emden, previously reported sunk, torpedoed the Russian cruiser Jamtchug and a French destroyer in the Straits Settlements, according to reports reaching the British embassy here.

LONDON.—The Boer revolt was reported to be nearly suppressed by loyal British troops in the Union of South Africa following the rout of an army led by Gen. Christian Beyers.

LONDON. — The great battle in west Flanders has come to a temporary halt, after ten days of continuous fighting.

BERLIN.—Retreat of German and Austrian troops in Poland before fresh Russian reënforcements was admitted by the high command. The Russian czar's army was numbered at 8,000,000 men.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia.—Four of the conspirators in the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary were sentenced to hang. The actual assassin, Gavrio Prinzip, was let off with 20 years' imprisonment.

CHICAGO. — Mayor Harrison received an appeal for funds for a Paris hospital from the American Chamber of Commerce in that city. Much of $3,000,000 in English gold was being spent in Chicago for allied war supplies.

WOMAN, LOVELY WOMAN!

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Hitler isn't all that ails this messy world. There's women. The way they smear their nether lips is something seen not even at the zoo. And when they think no one's watching they lick both index fingers simultaneously and with them proceed to wet down their eyebrows and sponge powder off their eyelashes. In the middle of a poker game they'll drag out the inevitable repair kit, plunge becrimsoned talons into its depth to snatch forth rouge and lipstick and before the gaze of all proceed to daub on a new paint job; then clink-clank back into the tool kit go the instruments and click-snap shut goes the bag until time for the next overhaul.

No less nauseating is the self-aware damsel with a dead-pan face, hip-swishing along the street, toying with a lighted cigaret with the studied sang-froid of a grande dame hoisting a lorgnette.

How can men stand women? But then, the answer's obvious. Because they have to. FED UP.

COMICS THAT ARE NOT COMIC.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—It is about time a complaint was registered regarding our "funny papers" or "comics." Isn't the general public laboring under a misapprehension that in all the funny paper sections thruout the country, three-fourths of the so-called comics are about crime and tragedy. Your paper is the one exception, altho Dick Tracy isn't very funny with his exploits in gangdom. The average American family, however, usually gets two papers a day—morning and evening—and the evening paper is usually the crime carrier. Today we have a movie censor board to protect the morals and ideals of children. Why not a censor board for the comics? Make them really funny or change their name and give them a proper title, "gruesome goings-on for girls and boys."

RESPONSIBILITY OF CLEANERS.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Is there some means of making cleaners and dyers come to time? It seems to me all the rest of us have to give an account when we make mistakes.

I wear good clothes and take good care of them. The other day I got my skirt back with the two sides about two inches longer than the front and back. I paid plenty for that skirt and it was made nice. I paid a good cleaning price too—50 cents.

It seems that that ought to be "plenty." Still, when I complained about it, I was told "nothing can be done about it. The skirt is made wrong."

That skirt was made just the same as about 70,000 others you see American girls wearing today.

What I'm getting at is this: Don't they operate under insurance or, anything of that sort? Are they permitted by law to charge money for unsatisfactory work and more—for destruction?

I have to explain any mistakes I make on the job and give good accounting for them. Sometimes one wonders!

AUTUMN'S ART GALLERY.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Jack Frost is packing up his paint brushes and going away for another year. It will take a year to think up new studies for next fall's pictures. His masterpiece for this autumn, which hangs in my art gallery of memories, was seen in the north woods from the front porch of a log cabin. The hunters got up at dawn for early duck shooting, and down in the valley was a quiet lake surrounded by high hills covered with trees, all ablaze with autumn colors. The dried grass around the lake was full of cobwebs sparkling with dew drops; on an old fence hung bunches of blue grapes that looked like frosted jewels. As the sun came up this brilliant beauty was not only reflected in the lake, but as we looked up in the sky this same picture was there, and you felt as if the heavens had opened and you were looking into another world!

We may not be privileged to visit famous art galleries, but if we can hang nature's pictures in our memories we will have the finest collection the world has to offer. ANNE JESTY ROGERS.

WOULD OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—As Armistice day approaches and due to the fact that the fire is getting hotter on the battlefields of Europe, many are asking whether it is suitable, from a national standpoint, to celebrate Armistice day this year as elaborately as heretofore. This is a question to be decided by the authorities. However, it deserves debate. Tho there is a strong reason to abandon the celebration this year on account of the conflict in Europe, there is another sentiment in favor of it, due to the fact that it stands for historical events concerning the American expedition across the high seas and the heroic battles fought by the American soldiers in the battlefields of Belgium and France.

OUR STATE SALES TAX.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The fund derived from the sales tax for the last fiscal year amounted to over 81 million dollars. We now hear of taxes on cigarets, etc., to raise additional funds for relief, and the unfortunates on relief are practically on a starvation allowance. According to a recent statement by State Auditor E. J. Barrett the average old age pension is $19.50. Every intelligent taxpayer should ask what becomes of the fund derived from the sales tax, in face of present conditions, which are an increasingly strong argument for the Townsend National Recovery Plan.

HE LINES US UP.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—Why does THE TRIBUNE continue to heap calumnies upon any effort on the part of the United States government to benefit the dairy farmer? The big dealer always escapes any blame for the increased price of milk to the public. In the past every small fraction of a cent per quart increase has given the big dealer an excuse to raise the price a full cent per quart. You know this is unjust, and yet line up on the side of the big dealer. DR J. R. MC.

ADMINISTRATION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 19 [Legal Friend of the People].—An estate [no will left] was filed for probate in Cook county about six years ago. The court upon request of the heirs named as administrator and co-administrator the parties named in the petition for an administrator. In the inventory were listed personal property valued at $250 and some improved real estate.

1. Administrator proceeded to collect rents and disburse funds "as administrator." Rent moneys received were deposited in a bank account "as administrator" and checks for disbursements were signed "as administrator." Inasmuch as the claims allowed exceeded the value of the personal property and were paid by the administrator from the rents collected [2] is he accountable to the Probate court for the rents collected and disbursed?

3. Must the heirs pay rent for occupying the property?

4. Will the heirs be present in court at the time the case is closed? J. E. B.

1. The administrator as such does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate. Presumably he was acting by consent of the heirs.

2. Since the creditors would be entitled to force a sale of real estate to pay debts, we do not see how any one has been damaged by the course that was adopted.

3. In general, yes.

4. Yes, if they wish.

LEGALITY OF DIVORCE.

Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 19 [Legal Friend of the People].—How long does it take to get a decree of divorce in Mexico? Also, what is the cost and is such a decree recognized in the United States? W. G.

In Janssen vs. Janssen, 269 Ill. App. 233, 245, the court said, as to divorce decrees based on notice by publication, that it is only when the plaintiff has "established a bona fide residence in the sister states and the suit and action is free from any fraud that the courts of this state will give full faith and credit to the decrees of other states. . . . We are compelled . . . to hold that the decree of divorce granted by the Nevada court . . . is void."

In Jardine vs. Jardine, 297 Ill. App. 152, a marriage was annulled because of invalidity of the divorce that preceded it.

Three recent cases from other jurisdictions holding Nevada decrees void are Holt vs. Holt, 64 App. D. C. 280; Prima vs. Hinton, 244 App. Div. [N. Y.] 181; Mills vs. Mills, 119 Conn. 612. In Bergeron vs. Bergeron, 287 Mass. 524, a Mexican divorce was held invalid altho the wife had contracted another marriage in reliance on the decree.

We advise a person who contemplates going to a foreign state for a divorce to first get the advice of a disinterested lawyer in the home state. Do not rely on advertising, on news articles, nor on the claims of a lawyer who makes his living out of exploiting such cases.

Chamberlain: "Now, as an encore, what about a few of the old war songs?"

MAYOR PROPOSES PLAN TO BOOST RELIEFER INCOME

City Also Would Save on Funds, He Says.

Two million dollars more would be available during November and December for 29,162 Chicago families on the relief rolls. Approximately 1 million dollars in savings for the Chicago Relief administration would be effected in the two months, and approximately 2½ millions in additional trade would be done by merchants during the period.

This was suggested yesterday by Mayor Kelly in announcing that the city has asked the Works Projects administration to place 29,162 employable reliefers on WPA work rolls for the two months.

IERC Funds Would Be Used.

The request was the result of several weeks of conferences by city officials, Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, and WPA officials. It was made in accordance with a law sponsored by Mayor Kelly and passed at the last session of the Illinois legislature.

The law provides that the Illinois Emergency Relief commission can use its funds as part of a local sponsor's contribution to WPA projects if those projects remove persons from relief rolls. The saving to the IERC and the benefit to the persons transferred from the relief rolls would result from the fact that on WPA workers receive more than the relief average, while the IERC contributes less as its share of the project than it would pay in direct relief.

Explaining the method of diverting funds from the IERC to the WPA, the mayor said:

"At an average cost of $27 a month, the 29,162 persons transferred would cost the relief administration $787,374 if they remained on idle relief. Of this sum the city asks an average of $13.08 a worker, or $381,439, to buy materials, hire skilled labor, and employ trucks as a contribution to the WPA employment.

"It follows that the relief commission will save $405,935 each month—the difference between $787,374 and $381,439. If the commission transfers its high cost clients—those who receive $40, $50, and $60 a month—before going to the lower brackets or the $27 a month average, the saving will be larger than that estimated.

"In idleness they [the relief clients] would receive $787,374 a month an average of $27. On the WPA they would receive a total of $1,860,827, or an average of $63.81 a month. This is a gain of $1,073,453 for each month to the relief clients if they work."

Merchants would benefit by the difference between the low average of the idle relief clients and the $63.81 average WPA payment for work relief, according to the mayor. The WPA wage would give each of the 29,162 persons $36.81 each month more to spend than he now gets from the CRA. Added to this would be the expenditures by the WPA in employing the reliefers—approximately $6 a month for each worker.

All But One Job Approved.

Mayor Kelly said the projects for which he has asked the WPA to assign the 29,162 reliefers have been approved, with the exception of one new sewer project. Approval of that project is expected soon.

Projects on which the men would be employed include construction of roadways in unimproved streets, construction of macadam pavements, relaying brick and granite block pavements, rounding curb corners, laying asphalt pavements, tree planting, and other parkway improvements, and rehabilitation of city catch basins and sewer construction.

The September cost to the CRA for each relief case was $22.32. Wednesday the city lent the CRA $1,033,000 for the remainder of the year. Friday the relief commission estimated that with the additional money the monthly budget would be increased to $27.

Plan Studied Several Weeks.

Relief officials said last night that the Kelly plan embraced in more detail a program which had been developing for several weeks.

Lyons announced yesterday that the CRA has established the procedure to be followed in accordance with the three year residence law passed by the legislature.

He said an applicant must have resided in the city or in some other governmental unit in the state for three consecutive years immediately preceding his application for relief, or have been receiving relief from the city last July 26, when the law became effective, to receive relief.

Sources of the University of Illinois' income for 1938-'39 and the purposes for which the money was spent, as reported by controler.

COSTS 8 MILLION TO RUN U. OF ILL. FOR YEAR '38-'39

Attendance of 17,500 Sets Record.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—Total cost of maintaining and operating the University of Illinois for the 1938-39 fiscal year which closed June 30 was $8,051,481, Lloyd Morey, university controler, revealed today in his annual report to President Arthur Cutts Willard. It was the university's 71st year of operation. Operating income of the university totaled $8,179,648.

Attendance at the university during the year was 17,500, largest in the university's history. This total includes departments at Urbana and at Chicago, summer session, and extramural courses.

State Provides $5,045,154.

State appropriations from tax revenues provided $5,045,154 or 63.4 per cent of the income, Mr. Morey said. Student fees provided $1,331,128 or 16.7 per cent. Federal appropriations, mainly for agricultural research and extension, totaled $918,557, or 11.6 per cent of the university's income. Private gifts and endowments and miscellaneous accounted for the balance.

For what was the money spent? Instruction and general research in all of the university's colleges and schools at Urbana and at Chicago, required $4,186,036, Mr. Morey said. This was 53.3 per cent of total expenditures. Organized research called for an additional $1,034,571.

Federal Funds Provided.

The statewide extension program of the college of agriculture and the college of fine and applied arts cost $592,501 last year, or 7.5 per cent of the university's operating expense. Agricultural extension work expended $586,513, being provided by federal funds. The federal money expended for this purpose is matched by an equal sum not handled by the university.

Operation and maintenance of the physical plant, buildings and grounds at Urbana and at Chicago, cost $1,127,690. A total of $396,997 was spent on libraries, and $512,564 for administration and general expense.

Five Cadet Majors Named in Illinois R. O. T. C. Unit

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—Five cadet majors of the University of Illinois R. O. T. C. brigade were named this week-end by Col. Fred R. Brown, commandant. They are: John C. Haugeland of Rockford, Ill., signal corps, who will be brigade executive; Arthur R. Mathieson of Kansas City, Mo., infantry, brigade adjutant; George H. Garnhart of Urbana, Ill., coast artillery, brigade intelligence officer; Thomas H. Crackin Jr. of Overland, Mo., engineers, and Frank J. Schaefer of 735 West Junior terrace, Chicago, cavalry, who also were named members of the brigade staff.

MOVES FOR NEW COURT PLEA ON LAKE DIVERSION

Attorney General Gathers Facts and Law.

Attorney General John E. Cassidy announced last night that steps will be taken this week toward a plea to the United States Supreme court for an increase in the amount of water being diverted from Lake Michigan to the Illinois waterway.

His announcement followed the recommendation of army engineers that Chicago be allowed to draw into its sanitary canal 5,000 cubic feet of water a second. Only 1,500 cubic feet are permitted now under a Supreme court order of 1930. This low figure was reached by gradual reduction from 6,800 cubic feet.

Three Steps to Be Taken.

The steps to be taken:

1. Cassidy expects to receive this week a complete brief of the facts and law in the case.

2. He will then confer with Gov. Horner to determine the quickest and most effective course of action.

3. If the evidence is adequate in their view, Cassidy will proceed immediately to petition the Supreme court for an extension of the time limit set for the diversion of 5,000 cubic feet of water.

Cassidy said his Chicago office is rushing to complete an investigation of the legal angles and charges that a public health menace is growing as a result of the reduced water flow.

Confer with Sanitary Board.

Cassidy's first assistant, Edward T. Breen, will confer with Chicago sanitary district officials tomorrow on data for a court fight. The sanitary district lost the legal battle on health grounds, but the points concerning danger to navigation have not been ruled out.

At a hearing held by Cassidy in September, conditions along the Chicago sanitary canal were described as "intolerable" and "disgusting." Sewage laden waters barely moving thru the center of Joliet carried scum as much as four inches thick, it was testified. Pollution of the waterway was said then to extend as far as Peoria.

Mayor Kelly yesterday wrote Cassidy a letter urging that the matter be pressed to safeguard the interests of the entire state.

Mayor George T. Jones of Joliet joined with Mayor Kelly in pleading for action. He said he hopes that a bill increasing the water diversion will be passed at the next regular session of congress, but that an earlier remedy must be sought.

Expects Favorable Ruling.

"There is a good chance of a favorable decision by the Supreme court," said Maj. Rufus W. Putnam, a director of the Mississippi Valley association. "The court permitted the present amount of diversion for navigation on the Chicago river.

"This is the legal loophole thru which we must work. It is logical that the court ought to allow the drawing of 5,000 cubic feet of water for navigation on the Illinois waterway, on which traffic has increased year after year until it carries about seven million tons annually. Crews will not long continue to work on boats moving in open sewers."

RITES AT DURAND TODAY FOR THREE DROWNED IN CAR

Durand, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—Triple funeral services will be held at the First Methodist church here tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Egbert Kewin, 46, of this city, and her two granddaughters, Beverly Ann, 5, and Susan, 3, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schofield, Eau Claire.

They were drowned when their car, driven by Egbert Kewin, plunged into a 30 foot hole in Thompson lake on highway 10 near here after a collision with a cattle truck driven by Allen B. Phillips, Gilmanton. Phillips has been released on bonds pending the inquest to be held Tuesday.

Kewin said that after their car struck bottom and the water began slowly seeping in his wife calmly sat in the car and discussed with him the best method of getting the two children out. It was decided to break a back window in the closed car "and she insisted," Kewin sobbed, "that the only hope was in me getting out first and that she would hand the two children out thru the window. She said she was ready to give up her life to save the children."

Kewin said he smashed the window and got out thru the rush of water, but the current was too strong and swept him away from the car. Mrs. Kewin was formerly Minnie Lawler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lawler, De Kalb, Ill., and was born on a farm near Cortland, Ill.

HARRY EDWARDS, 59, SENIOR JUDGE OF 15TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT, DIES

Dixon, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—Judge Harry Edwards, 59 years old, senior judge of the 15th judicial circuit and former presiding judge of the fourth district Appellate court, died at his home last night following a heart attack.

Judge Edwards. [Associated Press Photo.]

Last spring Judge Edwards accompanied his wife to Europe and had been unable to preside at court sessions since his return. He resigned his Appellate court post last June. He served as state's attorney of Lee county from 1908 to 1916 and was elected judge of the 15th circuit, composed of Lee, Ogle, Stephenson, Carroll, and Jo Daviess counties, in 1920. He is survived by his widow, the former Eleanor Bastar of Berwyn, and a brother, Frank, living here. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at the home.

STARTS PACKING COMMISSION ON SEAWAY PROJECT

Roosevelt Puts Backer on Federal Board.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—President Roosevelt today began packing his revamped international joint commission, which is concerned with land and water boundaries of the United States and Canada, with administration officials in sympathy with his efforts to develop the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway project.

He named Roger Barton McWhorter, chief engineer of the Federal Power commission, a member of the commission. The appointment came within 24 hours after the chief executive told his press conference he would replace the present members of the commission with experts on water power.

Lorton Forced to Resign.

McWhorter will fill the vacancy on the commission created by the enforced resignation of Eugene Lorton of Tulsa, Okla. President Roosevelt asked for Lorton's resignation under his government reorganization powers, purportedly to effect an economy. He will save $22,500 a year by appointing men already on the pay roll.

The McWhorter appointment, however, confirmed congressional suspicions that the shakeup was undertaken with a view toward reviving the northern border seaway and power project at the next session of congress. McWhorter was United States engineer on the St. Lawrence waterway project in 1925 and 1926.

In 1934 when Mr. Roosevelt submitted the St. Lawrence waterway treaty to the senate, McWhorter helped to prepare the presidential message which transmitted favorable reports on the pact.

Two Bulky Volumes.

The message consisted of two bulky volumes. One of more than 600 pages contained glowing reports on the advisability of the projects.

President Roosevelt has acknowledged he has taken the project from the shelf and dusted it off. He was reported to have done so because he was told that Canada is favorably disposed to the development now that she is engaged in war.

McWhorter was born in Roverton, Ala., July 31, 1888. He began as a rodman and inspector with the United States engineering department in 1908. In the federal service he has been connected with the Muscle Shoals development, the St. Lawrence waterway, Mississippi flood control, and various dams and power projects.

There will be another vacancy on the revamped commission Nov. 1 when the enforced vacancy of former Gov. John H. Bartlett of New Hampshire becomes effective. Augustus O. Stanley, former senator from Kentucky, also is expected to submit his enforced resignation.

It is believed that one of the two vacancies will go to Adolph Berle Jr., early brain truster, who was credited with drawing the St. Lawrence waterway treaty which was defeated by the senate in 1934. Berle is now an assistant secretary of state.

Father of Dr. Levinson Dies of a Heart Attack

Meyer Levinson, 58 years old, 1644 Pratt boulevard, father of Dr. Sidney O. Levinson of the Michael Reese hospital staff, was stricken with a heart attack yesterday in front of 1713 Albion avenue. Dr. Levinson, whose name was on a card in his father's pocket, was summoned, but found his father dead when he arrived. A daughter, Mildred, also survives.

JOHN T. ADAMS, FORMER G. O. P. CHAIRMAN, DIES

He Rose from $3 Job to Be Maker of Presidents.

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 28 [Special].—John Taylor Adams, former chairman of the Republican national committee, died at his home here today. He was 76 years old. He had been ill for two months.

John Taylor Adams.

Adams started a successful business career upon his graduation from Dubuque high school, when he went to work for $3 a week as office boy for a sash and door factory. He rose to its presidency and guided it to top ranking in its field.

His Entry Into Politics.

His political career began in 1908, when Senator William B. Allison engaged him to manage the senator's last campaign. Allison started his own career in 1862 by defeating Adams' father for congress.

In 1912 President Taft induced Adams to direct his primary campaign in Iowa. During the 1920 presidential campaign of Warren G. Harding, Adams was vice chairman of the Republican committee. He became national chairman on June 7, 1921.

Adviser to Coolidge.

He managed the 1924 campaign of Calvin Coolidge and was a close adviser of that President.

Adams retired from active leadership of the committee in 1924, but continued to be prominent in Republican politics.

A. C. McComb, 82, Wealthy Oshkosh Lumberman, Dies

Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—Alfred C. McComb, 82 years old, lumberman, died here today. He was a graduate of Lawrence college and was superintendent of schools in several Wisconsin towns. He said he personally owned 100,000 acres of timberland at one time, being the largest owner in the state. Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. G. M. Watterson, Chicago, and Mrs. Harold Zaug, New London, a granddaughter, and a sister. Burial will be under the monolith he erected in Riverside cemetery here Monday.

Services will be held in the church at 912 Sheridan road at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

OLD TIME CHICAGO NEWSMEN HOLD REUNION DINNER

Reminiscences of news events as far back as the World's Fair of 1893 flowed last night at a get-together dinner of veteran Chicago newspaper men in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle. About 60 were present. Only those who were in Chicago newspaper work at least 20 years ago were eligible to attend.

Joe G. Davis was in charge of arrangements for the dinner and Charles N. Wheeler was toastmaster. Other at the speakers' table were Charles Collins, Ralph Ellis, Herman Reiwitch, Thomas T. Hoyne, Henry Barrett Chamberlin, and Ashton Stevens. Leo Loewenberg, who retired as foreman of THE TRIBUNE'S composing room last February after 45 years of service, was a guest.

Several veterans telegraphed their regrets at being unable to attend. Among these were Hugh Fullerton, James O'Donnell Bennett, George Ade, John Kelley, and Charles H. Dennis.

SLEEP MEDICINE IS FATAL TO MRS. RUTH COGSWELL

Mrs. Ruth V. Cogswell, 2440 Lake View avenue, wife of Harry J. Cogswell, head of the Latrobe Tool works, died early today in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, from the effects of an accidental overdose of a sleep inducing medicine. According to Dr. Ben H. Huggins, an Evanston physician, she had been ill recently.

Mrs. Cogswell was 41 years old. The former Miss Ruth V. Yancy of Champaign, Ill., she became the wife of Mr. Cogswell in 1928. There is one child. Mr. Cogswell was a Red Cross official in Washington, D. C., in 1914 and 1915, and assistant to the assistant secretary of war in 1916 and 1917.

Frank F. Roeder.

Frank F. Roeder, 60 years old, who was city purchasing agent under Mayor William E. Dever, died yesterday in his home at 1352 Wellington avenue. Mr. Roeder was a native of Chicago. He was Democratic committeeman of the 45th ward from 1910 to 1930 and served one term as alderman, from 1916 to 1918. He had been a real estate broker in recent years, and formerly was in the printing business. His widow and two daughters, Mrs. Charles Prevot and Mrs. William Welch, survive. Services will be held at 9:30 a. m. Thursday in St. Alphonsus church.

Peter A. Dasso.

Peter A. Dasso, one of the first settlers in Chicago's Italian colony, died yesterday afternoon in his home at 3511 Flournoy street. Mr. Dasso, who was 92 years old, came to Chicago from Genoa, Italy, at the age of 9. Services will be held in Our Lady of Sorrows church, Jackson boulevard and Albany avenue, at 10 a. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Mrs. Fannie A. Holland.

Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie A. Holland, 88 years old, sister of former United States Senator Albert J. Hopkins of Illinois, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in her home at 323 West Chicago street, Elgin. Mrs. Holland died there Friday. Burial will be in Mound Rest cemetery, Cortland township. She was the widow of Thomas Holland, a De Kalb county farmer. Three children survive.

Guy E. Hustis.

East Orange, N. J., Oct. 28 [Special].—Guy E. Hustis, 78 years old, former controler of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, who also had held executive positions with other railroads, died today at his home here. From 1902 to 1905 he was general western agent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at Chicago. A daughter survives.

Leslie J. Spiller.

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Leslie J. Spiller, 39 years old, Broadway theatrical producer, died yesterday after a brief illness. Spiller, a native of London, staged "One Sunday Afternoon," a hit play here in 1933.

DENIED FREEDOM FOR FUNERAL OF BABY GRANDSON

His infant grandson was buried yesterday, but Steve Flashing, 42 years old, janitor of the building at 4447 Carroll avenue, was not at the funeral. Authorities refused to let him leave the Bridewell, where he is serving 30 days for driving while intoxicated. The baby, one month old, died Friday in County hospital from a skull fracture. He had slipped from the arms of his mother, Joan Flashing, 18, and his head struck a metal box.

KILLS HIMSELF WITH POISON.

A man who registered Friday as Walter Conti, 30 years old, of Cleveland, O., killed himself in the Y. M. C. A. hotel at 826 South Wabash avenue by drinking poison.

Getting Up Nights, Nervousness and Kidney Strain

If you're feeling out o' sorts, Get Up Nights, or suffer from Dizziness, Nervousness, Backache, Leg Pains, Swollen Ankles, Burning Passages, Excess Acidity, or Loss of Energy and feel old before your time, non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles may be the true cause.

Wrong foods and drinks, worry, colds or overwork may create an excess of acids and place a heavy strain on your kidneys so that they function poorly and need help to properly purify your blood and maintain health and energy.

Help Kidneys Doctor's Way

Many doctors have discovered by scientific clinical tests and in actual practice that in many cases the best way to help the Kidneys clean out excess poisons and acids is with a scientifically prepared subscription called Cystex. Hundreds and hundreds of Doctors' records prove this. All Cystex active ingredients are listed on each package.

Money Back Guarantee

Often the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping your Kidneys flush out Excess Acids. This action plus the palliative work of Cystex in many non-organic and non-systemic cases of Kidney and Bladder troubles may easily make you feel like a new person in just a few days. Try Cystex under the guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfied. Cystex (Siss-tex) costs only 8c a dose at druggists and the guarantee protects you so start your test today.

JOHN LEWIS' AID FINED $2,500 IN MAYTAG STRIKE

Iowa Is Opposed to C.I.O., Judge Tells Sentner.

Montezuma, Ia., Oct. 28 [U. P.].—William Sentner, St. Louis communist and regional director of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was fined $2,500 today on charges of criminal syndicalism growing out of the Maytag Washing Machine company strike at Newton last year. He was found guilty by a jury On Oct. 6.

William Sentner.

"Iowa doesn't believe in the communist party or the C. I. O.," Judge W. S. Cooper said before pronouncing sentence.

"Iowa is against such activities as Sentner's," the judge continued. "In a rural community like Iowa, the common people talk to the judge more than they do in urban areas.

"Practically every man on the street asked me to give Sentner the limit. I am not doing that, but if the Maytag trouble had occurred at this time instead of a year ago I would have given Sentner a stiffer penalty."

Escapes 10 Year Sentence.

The maximum penalty on the charge is 10 years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Sentner was ordered to serve 750 days in jail if he cannot pay his fine. His appeal bond was set at $3,000.

C. I. McNutt, attorney for the defendant, in pleading for clemency, said Iowa's criminal syndicalism law [passed during the world war] was directed at the I. W. W. [Industrial Workers of the World] and had no connection with the Maytag strike.

The law defines criminal syndicalism as the "doctrine which advocates crime, sabotage, violence, or other unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform." McNutt said that neither Sentner nor the C. I. O. had any such aims and that the law therefore was not applicable in his client's case.

Convicted of Contempt.

The Maytag strike lasted from May until August, 1938. While the plant was closed Sentner, international vice president of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers' union, the C. I. O. affiliate recognized as the bargaining agent at the Maytag plant, and James Carey of New York, the union's international president, were found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 each. The Supreme court reversed the sentences, but upheld the fines.

Hollis Hall, former vice president of the Newton local of the union, also was convicted on the contempt charge. He will be tried in the November term of court here on charges of criminal syndicalism.

Former Insurance Chief Convicted of Mail Fraud

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 28 (AP).—A federal jury today convicted Thomas W. Benson, former president of the Suwannee Life Insurance company of Jacksonville, and three others of mail fraud conspiracy. The government charged Benson, J. P. Atkins, W. H. Gillespie, and C. O. Davenport fraudulently used the mail in connection with the sale of some $190,000 worth of Suwannee Life Insurance stock from 1933 to 1937 when Benson was president. None is now connected with the company. Judge Robert T. Ervin sentenced Benson to serve 18 months in the penitentiary. The others drew six month jail sentences.

Find Crimes by Women More Serious Than Men's

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—The federal bureau of investigation has decided that fewer women than men commit crime, but when they do their crimes are more serious. Basing its estimate on figures for the first nine months of this year, the bureau reported today that only 7.5 per cent of arrest records examined showed that the violators were women. Of each 1,000 men arrested only 11 were charged with murder, while in the same number of arrests for women there were 16 murder charges.

Keeps Divorce

Mrs. Cecile Potts in court yesterday as her suit to set aside divorce was dismissed.

Judge Oscar F. Nelson, refusing to set aside the divorce granted Aug. 1 to Mrs. Cecile Garvy Potts, expressed the opinion yesterday that it was a "reasonable deduction" that Mrs. Potts, after obtaining the decree, changed her mind 30 days later because her hope of marrying another man had been blasted in the interim.

Robert E. Cantwell Jr., attorney for William Fernandes Potts, the divorced husband, brought out in cross-examining Mrs. Potts that "Frank," to whom she wrote letters prior to her divorce, had been remarried shortly after she got her decree.

Mrs. Potts, 30 years old, 3920 Marine drive, charged that her husband used threats to make her divorce him, that she was ignorant of the extent of his wealth, that attorneys in the case were in collusion against her, and that she wanted a separate maintenance decree instead of a divorce. Judge Nelson said the evidence failed to sustain her contentions.

INVESTIGATE NEW CASKET COMPANY STRIKE VIOLENCE

Vandal Smashes Truck Windshield; 2 Hurt.

The state's attorney's office and Shakespeare avenue police yesterday investigated the third alleged act of violence in three weeks in a strike of a minority group of American Federation of Labor employés at the Central Metallic Casket company, 2333 Logan boulevard.

W. O. Hedrick, plant superintendent, and Frank B. Kramer, a salesman, were injured Friday when a man stepped before a company truck Hedrick was driving and threw two bricks thru the windshield.

Home Stench Bombed.

Hedrick, whose home at 807 South boulevard, Evanston, was stench bombed Oct. 10, was driving a shipment of coffins from the plant to the Milwaukee railroad freight terminal for shipment. Kramer was with him in the truck cab.

Hedrick told Sergts. John Lynch and Walter Till that the attack occurred while he was driving the truck in Cortland street between Elston avenue and the Chicago river. He said he started to pass a street car when a man stepped from the curb. The man was about 26 years old, with a mustache, and wore a brown pullover sweater and dark trousers.

Both Cut by Glass.

Hedrick shouted at Kramer to duck. Both Hedrick and Kramer were cut by flying glass and Hedrick barely was able to keep the truck from hitting the street car.

Last Wednesday Joseph Lowicz, 27, of 2006 Walton street, a nonstriking employé of the casket company, was dragged from his car and slugged with jackhandles by two men who drove his car away. The car was found drenched with stench fluid.

Poppy Seed Price Rises; Bakers May Halt Its Use

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 28 (AP).—Omaha bakers say their customers may have to forgo poppy seed rolls because the poppy seed is imported from Holland and prices have advanced from 12 to 40 cents a pound.

COME BACK AND ALL IS FORGIVEN, RUTH JUDD TOLD

Escaped Slayer Promised New Beauty Shop.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 28 [Special].—Unsuccessful in their efforts to recapture Winnie Ruth Judd, escaped trunk slayer of two women, authorities today resorted to cajolery and promises in an attempt to induce her to surrender.

They broadcast word that if the fugitive murderess will come back to the prison asylum which she fled Tuesday night they will make the following concessions:

1. She will be given a new beauty parlor in the asylum to replace the one which she had operated and which was closed on the complaint it competed with commercial interests.
2. No move will be made to carry out a sentence of hanging her for the murders she committed.

Twice Sentenced to Die.

The woman, now 34 years old, was saved from the gallows, to which she was twice sentenced, by a finding of insanity six years ago. The hanging order still stands, however, in the event she is ever found sane.

Any move to have her declared sane probably would originate with Dr. Louis J. Saxe, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane. He expressed the opinion that "she is worse now than when she entered the hospital in 1933."

The inducements to return were held out by Dr. Saxe, who said that if Mrs. Judd is caught she will be "returned here and again placed under observation."

Similar assurance that no effort would be made to change her status and have the death penalty invoked came from Gov. Bob Jones. Members of her family have said that fear of that eventuality had weighed upon her.

Negligence Blamed.

Altho Dr. Saxe suggested the mad slayer's escape probably was due to negligence of some hospital employé rather than intentional aid, authorities continued their investigation of the possibility she had assistance, either from inside or outside the institution.

Sheriff Lon Jordan began a search for a discharged hospital employé who was described as quite friendly with Mrs. Judd. The sheriff said the man felt bitterly about his discharge five months ago.

Sheriff's deputies also continued to watch the residence of the killer's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, whom she visited briefly after her escape.

Meantime, word came from Eagle Pass, Tex., that a woman answering the description of the fugitive had visited the office of Dr. E. F. Gates. The physician, who said Mrs. Judd was once his patient, said the woman asked him to analyze some medicine she carried.

Departs Hurriedly.

Dr. Gates, who owns a clinic, said the woman told him the medicine made her "act crazy." She left hurriedly when he tried to question her, he said, and was evidently picked up by some one in an automobile.

Mrs. Judd killed two women friends at Phoenix in 1931 and shipped their dismembered bodies in trunks to Los Angeles. She surrendered after a sensational three week search and was convicted of murder.

A LITTLE LESSON IN JOURNALISM: NAMES ARE NEWS

With a little assistance from the Tribune composing room, which has 75 linotype machines, it should not be too difficult to get thru this story.

George P. Rose came into the Gary police station yesterday with a ticket for parking his car in the alley at 5th and Broadway. He told Sergt. Carl Taylor:

"This ticket doesn't belong to me. A friend was driving my car."

"Who?" asked Taylor.

"Ioannis Pappatheodorokoumoreorogeorgopoulos. He's a Chicago confectioner."

"Who?" reiterated Sergt. Taylor.

"Ioannis Pappathe—"

"Never mind," said the sergeant, as he assessed Rose a fine of $1 and credited it to John Pappas, an alias which he hastily created for purposes of the record.

SILK STOCKING BANDIT HAS A BAD HANGOVER

If he has to rob, it might be better if the fellow who has become known as the silk stocking bandit didn't drink along with it. It makes his disposition nasty. He turned up at another hosiery store at 428 North Michigan avenue yesterday and made Evalynne Bolotin, the clerk, hand over $20. Before leaving, he narrowed his bloodshot eyes and growled, "I'd just as soon kill you as not. I don't care if I do burn." "After all," Miss Bolton said huffily, "I'm not responsible for his hangovers."

50 ARE ROBBED AT HALLOWEEN PARTY IN TAVERN

A pre-Halloween party that started out in a lot of fun in Stanley Maruszak's tavern at 4148 West 47th street last night ended up on a sour note several hours later.

Three bandits, carrying shotguns, played the sour note. About 50 men and women were in the place when the robbers entered. They were forced to lie on the floor and to empty their pockets and purses on the floor.

From them the bandits got $124 and from Maruszak an additional $50.

BODY TAKEN FROM CANAL.

The body of a man identified thru cards in his pocket as Martin Gavac, about 45 years old, 1130 West 71st street, was removed from the drainage canal at California avenue by Brighton Park police yesterday.

DESK SERGEANT RETIRES AFTER 32 YEARS IN SERVICE

Desk Sergeant Louis Pfannkuche of the Racine avenue station filled out his last report last night, put on his hat and coat, and went home. His long career as a policeman was over. He retires under the compulsory 63 years age limit law.

Pfannkuche joined the police department 32 years and 8 months ago. The last 21 years he served at Racine avenue, and most of the time as head of the detectives. Recently he was made desk sergeant, and Ralph Miller succeeded him as detective head.

For valorous deeds, including the capture of a policeman's murderer, Pfannkuche won several honorable mentions. He was once shot in a gun fight with hoodlums. Sergt. Pfannkuche lives at 3719 Waveland avenue. Now that he has retired, he said it might be a surprise to many of his police friends to know his name is Pfannkuche—and not "Von Koop," as they called him.

MASQUERADER STEALS FOOTBALL.

Big Residential Construction Project Is Under Way in South Section of Hinsdale

PROGRAM CALLS FOR 72 HOMES IN NEXT TWO YEARS

Houses Are to Cost from $7,500 to $9,500.

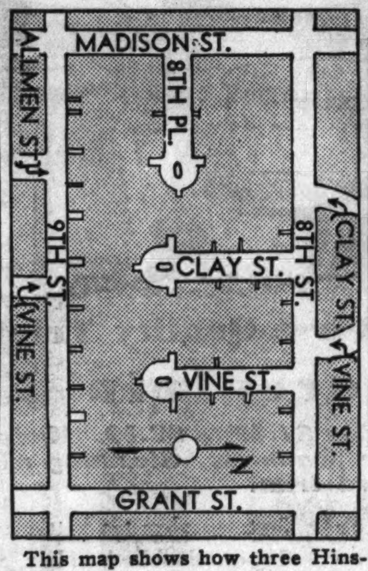
BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

One of the largest residential developments announced for the suburbs along the Burlington railroad in several years is under way in Hinsdale. Seventy-two homes to cost $7,500 to $9,500 and to be built during the next two years form the goal set by a group of Hinsdale men supporting the project. The houses will be in a newly laid out area comprising three square blocks in the southwest part of the suburb, approximately a mile from the business center.

The Central National bank of Chicago has obtained a commitment for insured loans from the Federal Housing administration for the first 20 units, 10 of which already are under construction. Others will be built as rapidly as they are sold.

Regnery Is President.

The project is owned by Hinsdale Homes, Inc., of which William F. Regnery, vice president of the Western Shade Cloth company, is president. Ernest B. Johnson of the United States Gypsum company is vice president. Colwell Beatty, secretary of the Hinsdale Federal Savings and Loan association, is secretary-treasurer. All are residents of Hinsdale.



This map shows how three Hinsdale blocks have been laid out without thru streets. Work is under way on 10 homes at the east end of this new development on Grant street.

The land to be improved is bounded on the north by 8th street, on the west by Madison street, by 9th street on the south, and by Grant street on the east.

The three square blocks have been laid out so that instead of being crossed by several thoroughfares the area has three dead-end streets. Two enter from the north and one from the west. The lots vary from 60 to 75 feet in width and from 125 to 158 feet in depth.

Can Add More Rooms.

Walton & Kegley of Evanston are architects for the project. They have designed five, six, and seven room houses, with two, three, and four bedrooms, and one or two baths. Plans in many cases are so arranged that one or two additional rooms can be added without marring the architectural effect.

Restrictions provide that each garage shall be an integral and architectural part of the house. In several instances an unusual combination will be worked out whereby two independent houses actually will be one unit. The outside garage wall of two houses will be placed so that a single party wall will be used. This, in effect, will give the project several units made up of two houses linked together.

Five of the homes now under construction will be ready for occupancy about the end of November, according to Lewis B. Walton, architect.

Improvement Scheduled for Western Suburb

Loewenberg & Loewenberg are architects of this $160,000 business building to be erected at the southwest corner of North avenue and Austin boulevard, Oak Park, by a syndicate of Detroit and Chicago men. It will be occupied by national chain stores. Work is scheduled to start next Wednesday, with completion set for March 1, 1940.

First Units in New Suburban Development

Here are some of the houses under way in Hinsdale's new residential development occupying three square blocks in the southwestern part of that suburb. Walton & Kegley are the architects. A two year program calls for 72 homes to cost $7,500 to $9,500. The units shown are on the west side of Grant street, just south of 8th street.

At the Realty Boards

Members of the Chicago Real Estate board, at their next regular monthly meeting, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 1, will elect officers, directors, and standing committees. Morgan L. Fitch is the nominee for the presidency of the board for 1940. There is no other ticket in the field.

The board of directors of the Oak Park Real Estate board announces the election of R. J. Caron as vice president and George B. Waterstraat as director for the remainder of 1939. They fill vacancies left by the resignation of Irving H. Banker.

DIES WILL SPEAK AT ANNUAL REAL ESTATE BANQUET

Martin Dies.

Martin Dies, Texas congressman in charge of the federal investigation of un-American activities, will deliver the feature address at the 56th annual banquet of the Chicago Real Estate board, at the Stevens hotel, Tuesday, Nov. 21.

Direction of banquet arrangements is under the supervision of Louis Sudler of Sudler & Co. He is assisted by a committee composed of John C. Bowers, Bruno J. Boehm, Fred M. Lorish, John P. Hooker, and Frank C. Wells.

Reservations may be made thru board headquarters or from committee members. Drawings for table locations will be held at the board on Nov. 10. It is understood that the names of those who reserve tables on or before that date will be printed in the official banquet program, together with the table number drawn.

Build One Story Addition to Clearing Spring Plant

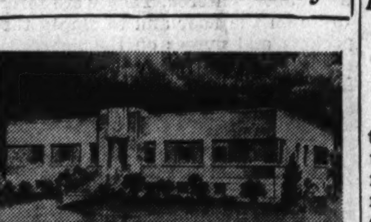
Contracts have been let and work has been started on a one story addition to the plant of the Great Lakes Spring corporation, at 6401 West 65th street, in the Clearing Industrial district. It will contain 40,000 square feet, and is expected to be completed by Dec. 1. The company makes springs for automobile seat cushions.

News of the Architects

Fall and winter activities of the Architects' Club of Chicago will be resumed tomorrow in its new quarters in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. At a noon luncheon S. E. Collins Jr. of American Airlines, Inc., will give an illustrated talk on the progress of air travel. W. S. Carlisle is chairman of the program committee.

A. L. Himelblau and Alexander H. Spitz announce formation of an architectural firm under the name of Himelblau & Spitz, with offices in the Consumers building, 220 South State street.

Industrial Laboratory



Wishnick-Tumpeer, Inc., a chemical company with offices in Chicago and other cities, yesterday let contracts for the construction of a research laboratory building at 6100 West 51st street. Jacob Lewis is architect. The new laboratory will be fireproof. Experimental and research laboratories in the corporation's factories will be combined in the new unit.

SECOND FEDERAL SAVINGS-LOAN BUYS BUILDING

The Second Federal Savings and Loan association yesterday bought the two story building at the northeast corner of Pulaski road and West 26th street. The Michigan Federal Finance company was the seller. The lot is 58 by 166 feet. According to John Sierocinski, president of Second Federal, $35,000 will be spent in remodeling the property, which was purchased for use by the buyer. It will be air conditioned. Albert A. Wilbur of Baird & Warner, Inc., was broker.

HYDE PARK RESIDENCE SOLD.

Miss Catherine G. Rawson and Susan Rawson McDowell, daughters of Dr. Vance Rawson, sold the family residence at 5137 University avenue, to the Samuel Ludwig Trust. Willard T. Orr of the Orr Realty company was broker.

MERRILL QUITS FHA; JOINS NEW DESIGN FIRM

John O. Merrill.

John O. Merrill, chief zone architect of the Federal Housing administration for Illinois, yesterday resigned to reenter private architectural practice. He has formed a partnership with Louis Skidmore and Nathaniel A. Owings. The new firm of Skidmore, Owings & Merrill will have offices at 104 North Michigan avenue and also at 5 East 57th street, New York City. John R. O'Connor, state director of the FHA, in announcing Merrill's resignation, said:

"Merrill formerly was a partner of the Chicago architectural firm of Granger & Bollenbacher. He was president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects during 1936 and 1937. No successor has yet been named for Merrill's post with the FHA."

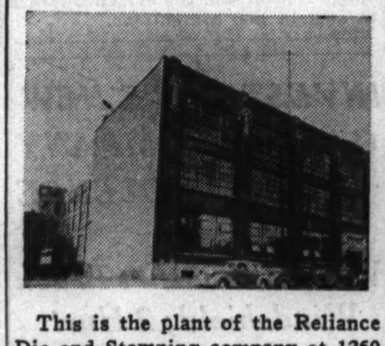
KEENEY SELLS $1,587,582 IN HOLC PROPERTY

Albert F. Keeney, realtor at 5612 West North avenue, yesterday reported that he has sold for the Home Owners' Loan corporation 252 properties for a total of $1,587,582. Of these 121 have been sold since Jan. 1, 1939, for $729,969. Keeney reports selling for other owners since Oct. 1, 10 properties for a total of $84,500.

Radio Parts Maker Buys Die Company

The Oak Manufacturing company, manufacturers of wave band and selector switches for the radio industry, yesterday bought the Reliance Die and Stamping company, its plant and all equipment. A reported $213,000 was paid for the land and building at 1260 Clybourn avenue, and $160,000 for the machinery and equipment, or a total of $373,000.

According to Edward F. Bessey, president of the Oak concern, the property consists of a modern three story factory and office building, and one of the best equipped tool rooms in the middle west. The Oak company within the next few weeks will move its offices from 711 West Lake street to the new location.



This is the plant of the Reliance Die and Stamping company at 1260 Clybourn avenue bought by the Oak Manufacturing company.

The Oak company was organized in 1932 by Bessey, George D. Sullivan, secretary, Harold E. Sullivan, assistant treasurer, B. J. Grigsby [formerly of the Grigsby-Grunow company] and J. R. Cardwell, head of the Cardwell-Westinghouse company.

Originally employing ten persons, it now has a pay roll of more than one thousand at its main plant at Crystal Lake. It also manufactures vibrators for automobile radios and farm sets where electric power is not available. Other products include mechanical tuners, special switches, solenoids, and similar appliances for radio sets.

DETROIT CONCERN WILL BUILD ON OAK PARK CORNER

Plans Business Block at North and Austin.

Entry of one of Detroit's most active real estate and building concerns into the Chicago area was announced yesterday. The firm will start work next Wednesday, Nov. 1, on what is said to be one of the longest business buildings erected in the metropolitan district in several years. The site is at the southwest corner of North avenue and Austin boulevard, in Oak Park.

The Michigan firm is the Joe Silberstein Realty company, which has erected more than 45 buildings in Detroit in the last few years. It has opened offices in the Conway building with Bernard Greenebaum of Chicago in charge of operations in this area.

Designed by Chicagoans.

Loewenberg & Loewenberg, Chicago architects, have designed a one story building which will front 289 feet on the south side of North avenue, extending from Austin boulevard to Humphrey avenue. It will have a frontage of 125 feet on both Austin and Humphrey. It will have exterior walls of Indiana white stone, terra cotta and marble.

There will be 14 stores, and all either have been leased or are being negotiated for by chain store concerns. The Walgreen company has leased the Austin boulevard corner space for 15 years for one of its largest and most modern drug stores. It will be 35 by 87 feet.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company has leased the Humphrey avenue corner for a term of years for one of its larger food markets. The space is 50 by 125 feet.

Other Leases Made.

Other leases have been made with the F. W. Woolworth company for 50 by 120 feet, for 20 years; Gay-Time Frocks, Inc.; G. R. Kinney Company, Inc., shoes; Grayson Shops, Inc., dresses, and Better Value Shops, hosiery.

All of the leases except that of the A. & P. are on a minimum guarantee and percentage basis. The A. & P. lease is on a flat rental basis.

With the exception of one of lessees, which refused to accept the provision, all of the leases provide that the stores shall keep their windows brightly lighted until midnight.

The building will cost a reported $160,000. It is scheduled for completion by March 1, 1940. Parking space may be provided in the rear.

Syndicate Buys Property.

The property was purchased from the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, by a syndicate composed of Joe and Ben Silberstein of Detroit, and I. Schuman of Chicago. Title was taken by the Metropolitan Trust company, as trustee for the syndicate. The Joe Silberstein Realty company is agent for the owning group. Harold Rathburn and John Thurman were brokers. Charles Satinover of Sonneschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse, was attorney for the Detroit concern.

A combination theater and store building was contemplated for this corner in 1938. Plans were drawn and preliminary bids were taken, but the project was abandoned. At that time the land was valued at $105,000.

NEW THANKSGIVING IGNORED IN MAKING REALTY DINNER DATE

Benjamin F. Bills.

Former heads of the Chicago Real Estate board will be guests of honor at a "Past Presidents' and Harvest Home Dinner" in the board dining room, 32 West Randolph street, on Tuesday noon, Nov. 28. In former years the annual dinner to former executives always has been on the Tuesday preceding Thanksgiving. It still precedes the former Thanksgiving date of the last Thursday in November. This is later than the Thanksgiving of Nov. 23 proclaimed by the President.

Benjamin F. Bills will be in charge of the affair, assisted by LeRoy J. Keneval, Leo Hogan, Ward Farnsworth, L. J. Sheridan, Frank Slosson, Kenneth C. Rice, and Edwin V. Burke.

The decorative theme will be entirely in the old Thanksgiving tradition, Bills said. Cornstalks, pumpkins, bright lanterns, and masks will be used to transform the dining rooms into a scene of harvest festivity.

LINGERIE SHOP RENTS MICHIGAN-OHIO CORNER

The Michigan-Ohio corner store in the Michigan Square building, occupied for several years by the Kenwood Woolens shop, has been leased to Florence Tarrson, Inc., for five years from Dec. 1, 1939. The rental was not disclosed. Miss Tarrson will operate a women's lingerie and sportswear shop.

Hogan & Farwell, Inc., managing agents, report that 57 of the 58 shops in the building are rented and that they have a waiting list for the next shop available on the Michigan avenue side.

$100,000 Dairy Building Contracts Are Awarded

Contracts have been awarded for a $100,000 building for the Forest Glen Dairy at 1636 North Honore street. Completion is set for April 1, 1940, according to Thadeus Niemira, attorney for all parties. Engineering Systems, Inc., was architect.

COMPLETE FIRST THIRTY HOUSES IN GLEN ELLYN PLAN

Syndicate Offers $2,250 to $2,500 Units.

Joseph H. Wagoner, Glen Ellyn real estate broker, yesterday announced completion of the first of 30 contemplated residences costing from $2,250 to $2,500. Work is under way on a second unit. All will be built in an area just outside the northern village limits of Glen Ellyn, west of Main street, between Five Corners and the Chicago and Great Western railroad right of way.

The property is owned by a syndicate of Chicago and eastern interests. Wagoner represents the owners and is developing and marketing the land.

Following a trend which has been increasingly popular in the Chicago metropolitan area, the contemplated houses will be built so that buyers can do considerable work themselves.

The exterior will be wholly finished. The interior, however, will be left so that the owner not only can make many changes if he desires but he can do both carpentering and plumbing—if he knows how. If he doesn't, the construction company which has the general contract for the 30 homes will do it for him, at an additional cost.

Partition frames have been installed in the first house, but even these can be moved about, Wagoner said, if the owner wants a larger living room and smaller bedrooms, or vice versa.

Some of the things he must do, or have done for him if he's not a handy man around the house, will be to put up wall board on the interior of the outside walls and for the partitions.

Must Install Plumbing.

Then he must install the plumbing or have the work done. There are no sewers in the area and septic tanks will be used. Each owner must provide his water supply by digging his own well.

The houses will have no basements. They will be wired for electricity by the contractor. Gas is available.

The houses will stand on lots with 50 feet of frontage and with depths varying from 150 up to 258 feet.

All will be set back 35 to 40 feet from the street and will be staggered to give more visability to the owners from the front part of their homes.

Insurance Company Plans Several Chicago Offices

The American National Insurance company, of Galveston, Tex., yesterday leased, as the first of a contemplated series of branch offices in the Chicago area, space in the McJunkin building, Broadway and Wilson. Arthur Rubloff & Co. were brokers.

NECKWEAR CHAIN STORE LEASE.

Ace Neckwear Manufacturing company leased as fourth unit in chain of retail necktie shops space at 30 South Clark street. Arthur Rubloff & Co. were brokers.

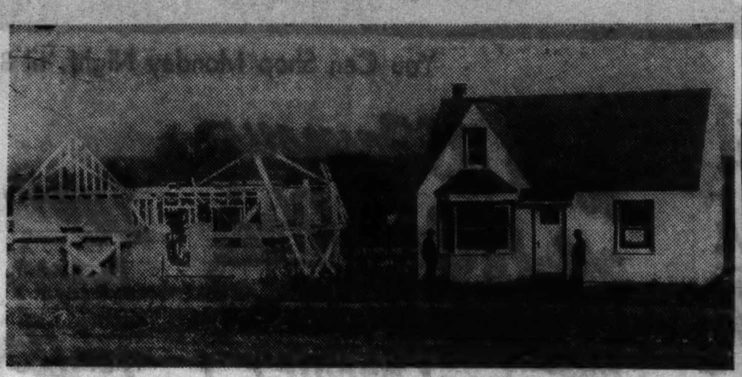
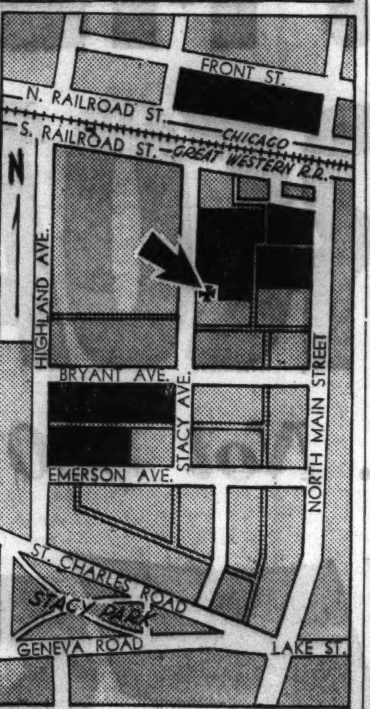
House and Lot Cost $2,250

(Story in adjoining column.)



On the right is the first of a contemplated thirty low priced homes to be built on the northwestern outskirts of Glen Ellyn by Joseph H. Wagoner. Adjoining the completed unit is a second house just started. The completed home stands on a 50 by 216½ foot lot and will cost a reported $2,250 for building and land. It is privately financed with a mortgage which will be completely paid up in eight and a half years, with monthly payments of $25. It has two bedrooms, a living room, and kitchen. Much of the interior is left in an unfinished state so the owner can complete the job himself. The house will be open to the public for several weeks, beginning today. It is on the east side of Stacy avenue, just north of Bryant avenue and a block west of Main street, Glen Ellyn.

Map of Project



The map shows the location of a new home development just outside the northern limits of Glen Ellyn. This is about three-quarters of a mile south of North avenue and about two blocks north of "Five Corners"—the intersection of Main street, St. Charles, and Geneva roads. The project lots are shaded. Location of the completed house is shown by an arrow.

BEGIN RAZING PROGRAM FOR SOUTHTOWN AREA

The Southtown Planning association, of which Lincoln Rogers is executive director, yesterday announced a program to demolish, as far as possible, all obsolete buildings in the area bounded by State, 54th, Marshfield, and 76th.

The first structure to be eliminated is the former Lanyon Opera house, built 55 years ago, at 217 West Englewood avenue. It is being razed by the Aball Wrecking company, under supervision of R. A. Goldman.

A. L. White bought the property from Lanyon in 1903 and operated the White Manufacturing company in the building until last year, when the business stock was sold. The Ries & Porter company, wholesale grocers, occupied it for many years and vacated it a few years ago.

FLOWER MAKER LEASES FLOOR.

Abraham Tomari yesterday leased the entire sixth floor of the 306 West Madison Street building for the manufacture of artificial flowers. Arthur Rubloff & Co. were brokers.

MAY COMPANY LEASES LOOP OFFICE SPACE

The George S. May company, management engineers, yesterday leased for five years more than 2,000 square feet of space in the 111 South Dearborn building, at the southeast corner of Monroe street. The new location, equipped with all-year air conditioning, will be maintained as the downtown office of the company. Its headquarters are at 2600 North Shore avenue.

George S. May.

In 1925 George S. May established the business by opening an office in one room of a north side apartment. It grew rapidly, and two years later the present three story building at 2600 North Shore avenue was built to accommodate the general offices. Other offices are maintained in 15 cities in the United States and Canada.

From a one man organization the company has expanded until it now employs more than 400 people. William H. Ames of Aldis & Co. negotiated yesterday's lease.

BROADWAY LEASE.

The Royal Quality Furniture company leased first floor space at 4544-52 Broadway, in the McJunkin building, for the fourth unit in a chain of stores. Arthur Rubloff & Co. were brokers.

Realty Miscellany

Morgan Fitch, vice president of Charles Ringer & Co. and nominee for president of the Chicago Real Estate board, will speak informally on real estate problems at the next meeting of Lambda Alpha, land economics fraternity, at the Chicago Real Estate board, 32 West Randolph street, at 6:30 p. m. on Nov. 2. Charles Rummel of Shaw, Naess & Murphy, architects, also will speak.

Earl H. Macoy, executive secretary of the Landis Award Employers' association, will speak before the Chicago Association of Loft Buildings at its annual meeting on Wednesday noon, Nov. 1, at the Great Northern hotel. His subject will be "Chicago Ahead Instead of a Headache."

NORTHBROOK HIGHLANDS
On the North Shore

$55.70 Per Month Pays Everything!

The plans of this lovely home and of 15 other distinctive homes specially designed by three outstanding architects still can be changed to suit your special needs, with "first residents" afforded important advantages.

Northbrook Highlands provides protections and restrictions comparable with the most expensive and exclusive developments on the North Shore, including:
1. Curving drives, spacious parks; lots beautifully landscaped and facing in on the English Quadrangle plan.
2. Entrance gates of character; unique street and community identification signs.
3. Wide frontages—from 60 to 90 feet for as little as $16.50 per foot.
4. Independent and chain stores; a 50-room grammar and high school; a number of churches, fire and police protection.
5. 51 trains daily to the Loop; low rates (steam and electric), in 32 to 45 minutes.
6. Water piped from Lake Michigan—no wells.
7. Sanitary sewers at lot line—no septic tanks.
8. Low taxes; all assessments paid, and utilities provided.

DRIVE OUT—Take Skokie Blvd. (Route 41) North to Dundee Rd., then West 2 miles; or Waukegan Rd. (Route 42A) North, then West ¼ mile on Dundee Rd. across the C. M. & St. P. tracks.

For convenience paste this coupon to the back of a penny post card addressed to this office.

MERCHANDISE MART REPORTS 11 NEW LEASES

Eleven new leases, totaling 15,500 square feet of floor space in the Merchandise Mart, were reported yesterday by Percy Wilson, managing director of the building and vice president of Marshall Field & Co. These were made coincident with the opening of the Oct. 30-Nov. 4 midseason furniture market in the mart.

One of the lessees is the Herman Miller Furniture company of Zeeland, Mich., and marks its entry into the Chicago market. The Zangerle & Peterson company of Chicago, also leased space on one of the furniture floors.

TELLS RESULTS OF REBUILDING IN PILSEN AREA

One of the most extensive modernization campaigns by a neighborhood group is under way in the old Pilsen area bounded by Western avenue, 16th street, Morgan street and Cermak road, according to Frank J. Petru. It was launched by the Twenty-First Ward Taxpayers' society, of which Petru is president.

In the last six months, he said, more than two thousand buildings have been or are being remodeled. There is not a block in the area, Petru said, which hasn't from one to fifteen buildings being modernized.

The officers and committee in charge of the modernization campaign last week made a survey of the district and found few vacant flats and stores, it was said.

Hemzacek Is Elected Head of Southwest Realty Board

Joseph Hemzacek, of Benes & Hemzacek, was elected president of the Southwest Realty board at the annual meeting held recently. He formerly was vice president, and succeeds Ben Bohac. Other officers elected were: Albert Tabola, vice president; John Jurik, treasurer; Norman O. Geyer, secretary. Bohac, Jerry Pech, and A. R. Zintak were elected directors.

Harris Liberal Sales Policy!
- Because no real recovery to prosperity can be had without a substantial increase in home building and remodeling . . .
- Because the quickest way to stifle the progress of any building program is to permit prices to advance to a prohibitively high level . . .
- Because Harris Brothers Company feels that its most helpful contribution to general prosperity can be made by reducing, rather than advancing prices.
- Because Storm Sash and Combination Doors are the most seasonal articles which you, the buying public, are interested in now . . .

For these all-important reasons we have concluded to start the price pendulum swinging back to low levels and encourage your buying at prices you'll be glad to pay.

Columbus, O., Oct. 28.—Cornell university this afternoon convinced the football world, and Ohio State's Buckeyes in particular, that there is no moss on the Ivy league.

The Big Red from Ithaca, undefeated and doped to retain their Ivy league championship won last year, beat the previously undefeated Buckeyes, 23 to 14, after spotting the Big Ten fellows a 14 to 0 lead in the first 22 minutes of play.

A crowd of 49,583, most of them rabid Buckeye partisans, saw the startling result of the first meeting in history between Cornell and Ohio State football teams.

The Ohioans, a hospitable race, appeared to be elated and at the same time sympathetic in the early stages of the contest.

Ohio Marches 87 Yards.

Cornell made the first thrust, executing a flashy end around maneuver by Jim Smuck, which netted eighteen yards, after which Hal McCullough and Ray Jenkins negotiated another first down on a pass play. These two first downs, the only ones made by Cornell in the first half, weren't long remembered by the spectators, for shortly afterward McCullough punted out of bounds on Ohio's 13 yard line and there the Buckeyes started a march to their first touchdown, a march which embraced eighty-seven yards and six straight first downs. A half minute before the first period was over Jim Strausbaugh plunged over from the 2 yard line and Don Scott converted for a 7 to 0 Ohio State lead.

The Buckeyes were hilarious. They had expected no such soft touch from the team which has been called [and will continue to be called] the East's best team. When the Ohio players left the field the reserves in blankets rushed to the sidelines to greet and applaud them. Ecstasy was everywhere, except around the Cornell bench and in the Cornell band section.

Buckeyes Travel Again.

But Ohio had just begun to travel. Along about the fifth minute of the second period Strausbaugh ran back a punt to his 21 yard line; Frank Zadworney, Jim Langhurst, and Scott started pounding and soon had a first down on their 40 yard line.

A pass, Scott to Frank Clair, netted thirty-nine yards and put the ball on Cornell's 21 yard line. Strausbaugh moved it to the 15 and Zadworney made it first down on the 9 yard line. Langhurst rammed to the 8 yard line. Zadworney added three but Scott fumbled and recovered for a two yard loss.

It was fourth down and seven to go.

Scott was foiled in a pass project and chased back to his 15 yard line before he gave up his tossing idea and decided to run. He swooped wide to his left and dived over for a touchdown. Charley Maag converted.

Then Cornell Goes to Work.

Maag kicked off to Mort Landsberg on the goal line and Mort returned to his 20 yard line. Walter Scholl, who had replaced Mal Baker at right half, broke through his right tackle into the clear, and then, following magnificent blocking by linemen and backs alike, galloped eighty

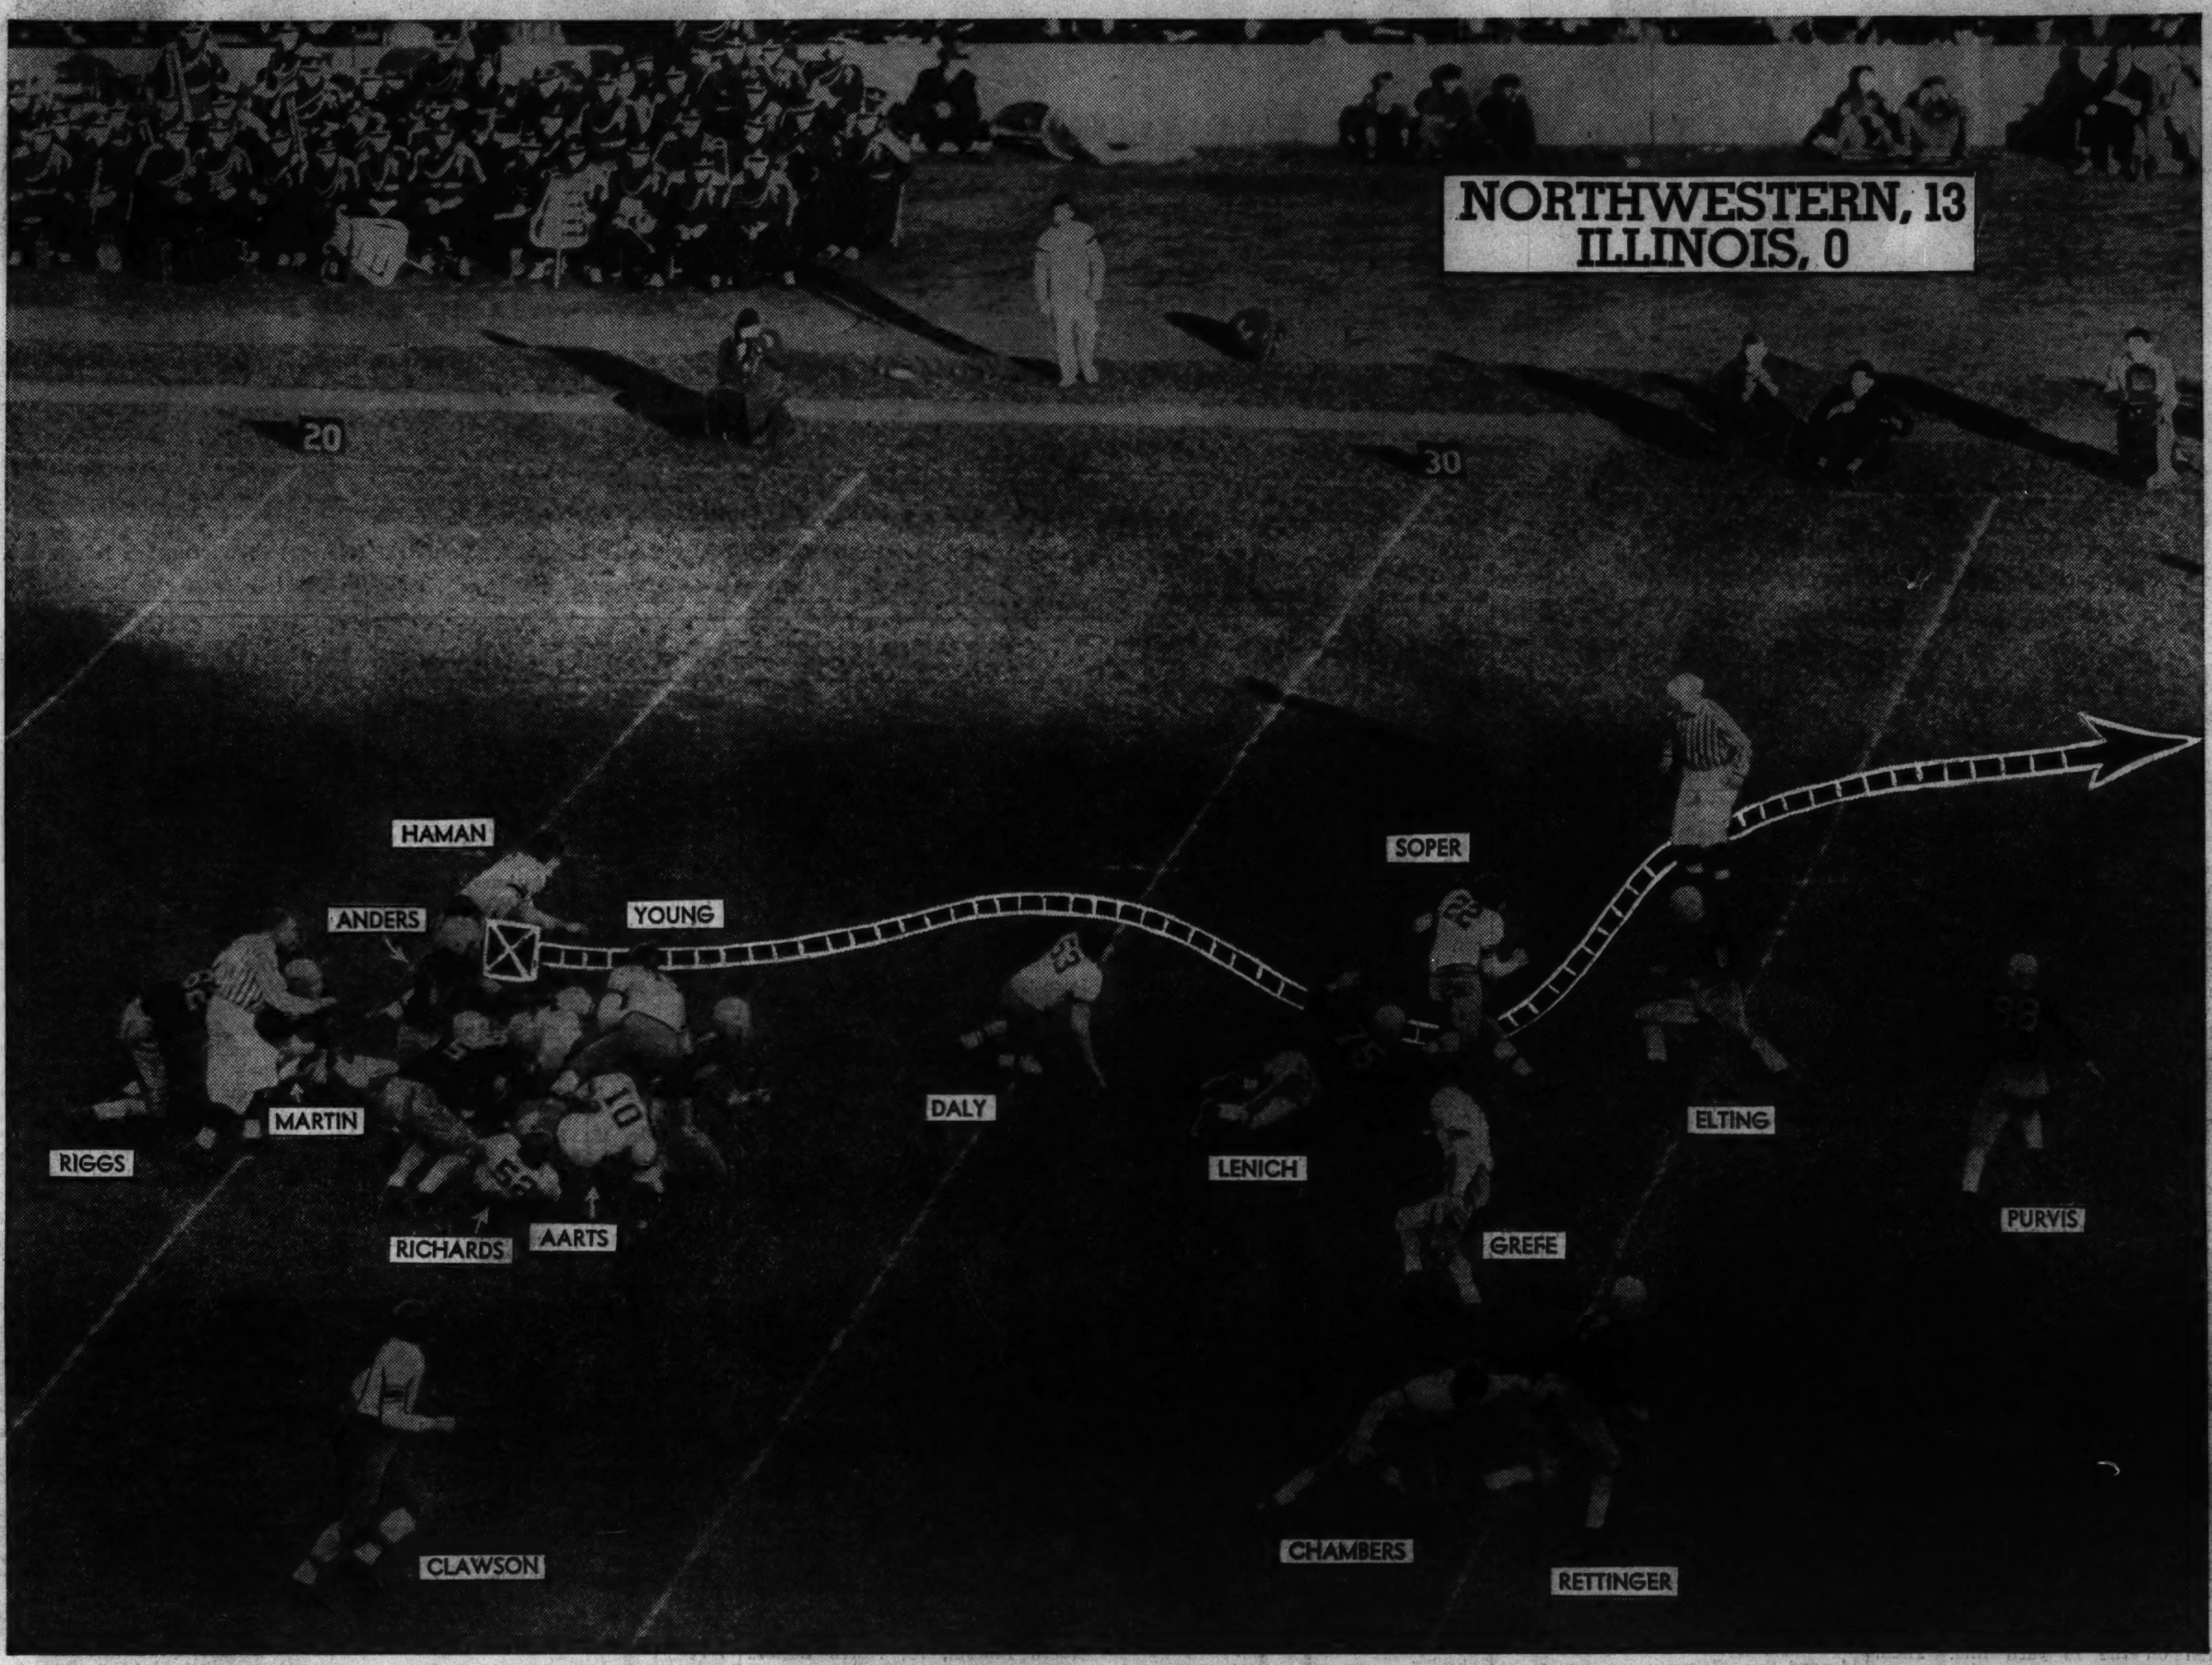
OFF AND RUNNING ON A 74 YARD JOURNEY TO A TOUCHDOWN



Paul Soper, stocky Northwestern half back, shown in the early trials of the 74 yard touchdown run which started Northwestern towards its 13 to 0 triumph over Illinois yesterday before a homecoming crowd of 35,000 in Dyche stadium. The Wildcat line has blocked Soper thru the Illini primary defense, but he still faced difficulties at this point. Lenich, Illinois center, misses in his dive from the rear, and Soper literally ran thru the arms of Elting, set to make the tackle, and Purvis, who tried to head him off. Rettinger eluded Chambers' block and gave chase, but he couldn't overhaul the fleet Purple back and made a desperate but futile attempt at a tackle near the goal line. Clawson added the point after touchdown and then scored on a plunge in the fourth quarter for the final margin. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Northwestern university loyalists, who always have their fingers crossed when they meet the University of Illinois, especially in a homecoming battle, had their digits entwined for thirty-three minutes of the homecoming struggle in Dyche stadium yesterday afternoon. Then they untwirled them and hundreds of purple balloons ascended as Left Half Back Paul Soper of the Wildcats romped seventy-four yards for the first touchdown, with Don Clawson kicking the extra point. In the fourth period Clawson went over from the half yard line to make the final score Northwestern, 13; Illinois, 0, much to the satisfaction of 35,000 homecomers.

Until Master Soper, who played an encore to his splendid performance in the Wisconsin game, found himself clear of enemies out in the bright, chilly air around his 40 yard line, there was an ominous feeling that the Illini defense was going to prove as pesky as it did two years ago when the visitors scored the only touchdown of the game in the waning minutes of the final quarter.

De Correvont Does His Part.

That Soper touchdown, however, did something to the Northwestern offense, and from that point on there was no doubt about which was the superior eleven. Even a couple of dashes of the old Illinois legerdemain were smacked down, one of them for a near safety.

The Wildcats counted nine first downs to seven for the Illini. Northwestern collected a total of 254 yards against 81 for the Illini. Illinois managed a three yard kicking edge for the game, 40.9 yards to 37.9. Ralph Ehni did practically all the Illinois kicking, while Soper and Bill De Correvont shared the Northwestern booting detail. The latter turned in a noble piece of punting and figured in the production of the second touchdown. He threw a pass to Ted Grefe, good for twenty-eight yards on the Illinois 3 yard mark. On the second play Clawson went over for the touchdown, but missed the point try.

First Half Evenly Fought.

Illinois started the game by kicking off to Soper, who received near his goal line and returned twenty-one yards. Soper punted on third down, Purvis bringing the ball back thirteen yards to the Illinois 46 yard mark. This was the texture of the first half, the best advance being made by Northwestern at the conclusion of the first quarter, a march climaxed with a fourth down loss of the ball on Illinois' 11 yard line.

The first half statistics testified to the evenness of the play, Northwestern picking up five first downs against four for the Illini. The Wildcats led in total yardage, 90 to 55, and held the advantage in punting with an average of 45.3 yards to 41.1 for Illinois. De Correvont was largely responsible for this Northwestern edge, getting away three fine kicks in succession.

Wildcats' Drive Fails.

Fumbles and intercepted passes were bartered on both sides thruout these first two quarters. The Wildcats' aforesaid futile march began when Ehni kicked to Soper, who, thru excellent blocking by Haman and Aarts, returned twenty-eight yards to the Northwestern 35 yard line. Chambers drove over the right side of the line for nine yards and Soper made it a first down at mid-

Iowa Defeats Badgers, 19-13, in Air Battle

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—Nile Kinnick, the Hawkeye with the tireless right arm, hurled defeat into the faces of Wisconsin's Badgers today for the first Iowa triumph at Camp Randall in ten long years. Three of his successful aerials drifted over the goal line into the arms of fellow Hawks and the assault crushed the Badgers, 19 to 13, in a dazzling free for all battle waged before 21,000 spectators.

This was one of those spectacular affairs that belonged to anybody until the final pistol shot served notice on the participants that their day's work was done. The Badgers jumped away to a 7 to 0 lead. In the second period the Hawks closed in by 7 to 6. In the third quarter they jumped ahead, 12 to 7, only to encounter a bewildering assault that moved the Badgers into a 13 to 12 lead. But in the last quarter the Kinnick menace materialized again and the decisive touchdown was recorded after an interception of a Badger pass.

Kinnick Does All the Pitching.

Kinnick was Iowa's passing attack in its entirety. He launched all of the Hawks' fourteen aerials. Seven of them found their mark. One sailed to Dick Evans for a thirty-nine yard gain. Another went to Bill Green for twenty-nine yards. Three were captured by Al Couppee for twenty, fifteen, and thirteen yards.

Erwin Prasse took one for an eight yard gain. The slimmest advance thru the air was a two yard affair with Floyd Dean on the receiving end. And these 126 yards out of Kinnick's arm effectively erased Wisconsin's apparent superiority at the good old game of running and smashing.

The Badgers were so good on the ground that they rolled up 177 yards from scrimmage, against 85 for

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28.—Michigan's mighty men, with Tom Harmon, mightiest of them all, setting the pace, paid their respects to threescore members of the famous Wolverine point a minute teams this afternoon. To the delight of the oldsters and their beaming coach, Hurry-Up Yost, Michigan's youngsters romped over Yale, 27 to 7, winning for the second consecutive year from Old Eli and safeguarding their own undefeated status. Harmon made 21 points.

Few in the throng of 53,719 had doubted the ability of Michigan's men to win from Yale. But even the most optimistic had thought that Yale's line, declared to be its best in a decade, would have more success stopping the powerful thrusts of Bob Westfall and the slanting, open field dashes of Harmon.

Michigan Checked—Once.

Altho Yale finally checked Michigan's first drive on its 3 yard line after the Wolverines had paraded sixty-four yards, that was the limit of its resistance. Harmon crossed Yale's goal line later in this period, then helped his fellow half back, Paul Kromer, score the second touchdown in the next quarter. Harmon then counted again before the intermission. He place kicked the three points after touchdowns and thus Michigan rested safely, leading, 21 to 0.

In this time Michigan piled up twelve of its game total of thirteen first downs and held Yale to one. Yale never crossed midfield and, indeed, before Michigan went into the lead, 7 to 0, Yale had possession of the ball for only five plays from scrimmage, three of them punts.

Yale's Passes Score.

Harmon raced fifty-nine yards for Michigan's fourth touchdown in the third quarter, but failed on his try for the point. With this advantage of 27 points, the Wolverines grudgingly yielded to Yale's fourth period passing attack that scored the consolation touchdown amid enthusiastic cheering of the crowd, which undoubtedly felt some reward should be given the valiant easterners for their courageous battle against a superior foe.

In this Yale drive of fifteen plays that covered eighty-eight yards Frederic Burr, Eli quarter back, threw thirteen passes and completed eight of them, the last being caught for a four yard gain on Michigan's goal line by Henry Wood, Yale's full back.

Pay Tribute to Former Stars.

The thousands paid their tribute to Michigan's famous players of that five year span from 1901 to 1905 during the intermission. Inside of the hollow square formed by the Michigan band, lined up in a huge block M, these men who went thru fifty-six games without defeat stood facing the west stands. Among them were Michigan's gridiron immortals Willie Heston, whose flashing runs are remembered wherever football is played, and the giant Germany Schulz, greatest of center rushes.

At the apex of the block was the man who coached these teams, who has spent thirty-nine years serving Michigan, Fielding H. Yost. Then, in finale, Louis Elbel of this same football era, led the thousands in the song he wrote from the inspiration of these athletes, "The Victors."

Santa Clara Victor Over Purdue, 13-6

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 28 [Special].—Santa Clara pounced on the scoring opportunity presented by a blocked kick to defeat Purdue here this afternoon, 13 to 6, in a bitterly fought intersectional battle played before 25,000 in Kezar stadium.

With the count tied at 6 to 6, the hard charging Bronco forwards broke thru a tiring Boilermaker line that had been weakened by the loss of Carl Verplank and Tom Melton, right guards, on the first play of the fourth quarter to block one of Jack Brown's left-footed kicks. The Boilermakers recovered on their own 12 yard line, but the ball went over to the Broncos on the spot on downs.

Score in Three Plays.

The Boilermakers started off impressively and apparently had the game well under control until only two minutes remained to play of the first half. Thruout the remainder of the contest, which was played in sweltering heat that had the spectators in their shirt sleeves, Purdue appeared to tire, altho it fought gamely to the end. It was apparent that Purdue always packed a threat, but virtually every potential scoring rally in the second half was snuffed out by fumbles, penalties, or the slashing Bronco forwards who repeatedly broke thru at the crucial moment to throw the Boilermakers backs for disheartening losses before they could get up steam.

Purdue Takes Lead.

The first quarter was all Purdue as far as advantage was concerned,

ZONTINI KICKS CARNEGIE INTO 7-6 DEFEAT, AFTER SCORE ON FUMBLE

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 28.—John McIntyre has a sore nose tonight, but he doesn't care because Notre Dame has a 7 to 6 victory over Carnegie Tech.

With a little more than three minutes to play, George Muha of Carnegie prepared to kick for the point after touchdown that would tie the score. Merlyn Condit crouched on one knee ready to take the pass from center and set the ball in position. The Irish forwards gathered themselves for the charge. And all around the massive Pitt stadium 68,000 people sat wondering whether Notre Dame's winning streak was to be broken.

Saved by a Face.

The ball came spiraling back from center. The two lines crashed together. Condit set the ball and Muha swung his foot squarely into it. As it rose, McIntyre broke thru the screen of blockers and took it full in his face.

The ball went bounding back and half a dozen Notre Dame forwards went for it. Bill Kerr fell on it and the play was completed, leaving the score 7 to 6; and there it remained.

A pair of opportunists—Kerr of Notre Dame and Gerald White of Carnegie—prepared the way for that climax. After seven minutes of the third quarter had been played, Kerr caught Condit's fumble in the air on the Carnegie 21 yard line and sprinted to the goal. Then Lou Zontini kicked the point after touchdown that was destined to take on such great importance later in the afternoon.

Kerr to White Helpful.

White made his contribution by catching a partially blocked pass from his teammate Condit, the ball having caromed off Kerr's outstretched hands. When Condit launched the toss it was fourth down and six yards to go on the Irish 15 yard line. After White had been brought down it

OTHER GAMES TODAY.

New York at Brooklyn.
Washington vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee.
Pittsburgh at Cleveland.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Favorites choose up sides in the National Football league today and by the time the last signal is called, championship races in the two divisions will have assumed more definite shape. Three of the four games scheduled involve division leaders. The odd contest is between Pittsburgh and the Rams in Cleveland.

Milwaukee will be host to the Green Bay Packers and the unbeaten Washington Redskins, co-holders of the leads in the western and eastern sections, respectively, in a game that shares the spotlight with the Bears' engagement against Detroit in Wrigley field. In Brooklyn, the New York Giants will battle the Dodgers and a let-down after last week's triumph over the Bears. Only the let-down is expected to give the Giants trouble.

The Bear game will start at 2:15 o'clock. Twenty-five thousand seats will be placed on sale at Wrigley field.

Important to Bears, Lions.

Last week's defeats have increased the importance of today's engagement for both the Bears and Detroit. The Bears are confronted with the alternative of winning or being dropped from immediate consideration as a championship contender. Detroit not only has its championship hopes to protect, but must win to prove that it really had an off day at Green Bay when, for the first time this season, it was asked to face a first flight eleven. To most observers the Green Bay setback indicated the Lions' lack of strength, but Coach Gloomy Gus Henderson and his aids insist that their line and man-in-motion offense is equal, if not superior, to any in the league. A Bear victory would leave them with little room to argue hereafter.

Detroit has fortified itself by signing Tony Martinovich, a field goal kicker from College of the Pacific, who played last year and the early part of this season with the Cincinnati Bengals, a minor league team.

May Adopt Giant Strategy.

Signing of Martinovich indicates that the Lions may adopt Giant strategy and may seek to beat the Bears by taking three points every time they cross midfield rather than gamble on a touchdown and six against the burly Bear line. Their chief offensive threats, however, will be Johnny Pingel's passes and Bill Shepherd's line smashing, with Lloyd Cardwell and Gordon Gore attempting occasionally to break away on wide reverses around Eggs Manske, Dick Plasman, Russ Thompson and Aldo Forte, who man the right side of the Bear line. If this fails, Cardwell and Gore, who share wing back duties, can be expected to sweep around the Bears' left side on reverses. This reverse to the right is a new wrinkle in the Lion offense.

The game undoubtedly will produce an abundance of fireworks. Detroit is capable of almost anything in the circus line and the Bears have not failed, even in their two losing battles against the Giants and Green Bay, to produce long gains and hair-raising passes.

Snyder May Start.

Bob Snyder, only recently recovered from an injury sustained in camp, may start at left half back for the Bears. Snyder will bolster the Bears' passing attack without lessening their running power at left half. If he does not make his debut as a starter today, Bob Swisher will be restored to the first team.

Green Bay, which expects to break all previous attendance records for professional football in Milwaukee, will match its aerial magic against the passing of Chuck Filchock and Sammy Baugh and the running of Andy Farkas. Here again spectators are likely to go home with stiff necks from following the flight of the ball.

Green Bay, tied with Detroit for the western division lead, is the favorite to deal the Redskins their first defeat of the year, but the Packers, like the Giants, have to combat a letdown after last week's sensational success.

The Giant-Dodger game, the only one of the day in the eastern section, will bring together the league's outstanding field goal kickers, Ward Cuff and Ralph Kercheval, who kicked their teams to victory last week with three long placements apiece. If the game follows the form charts, the Giants will not find it necessary to rely on Cuff. Kercheval, however, should have a busy day.

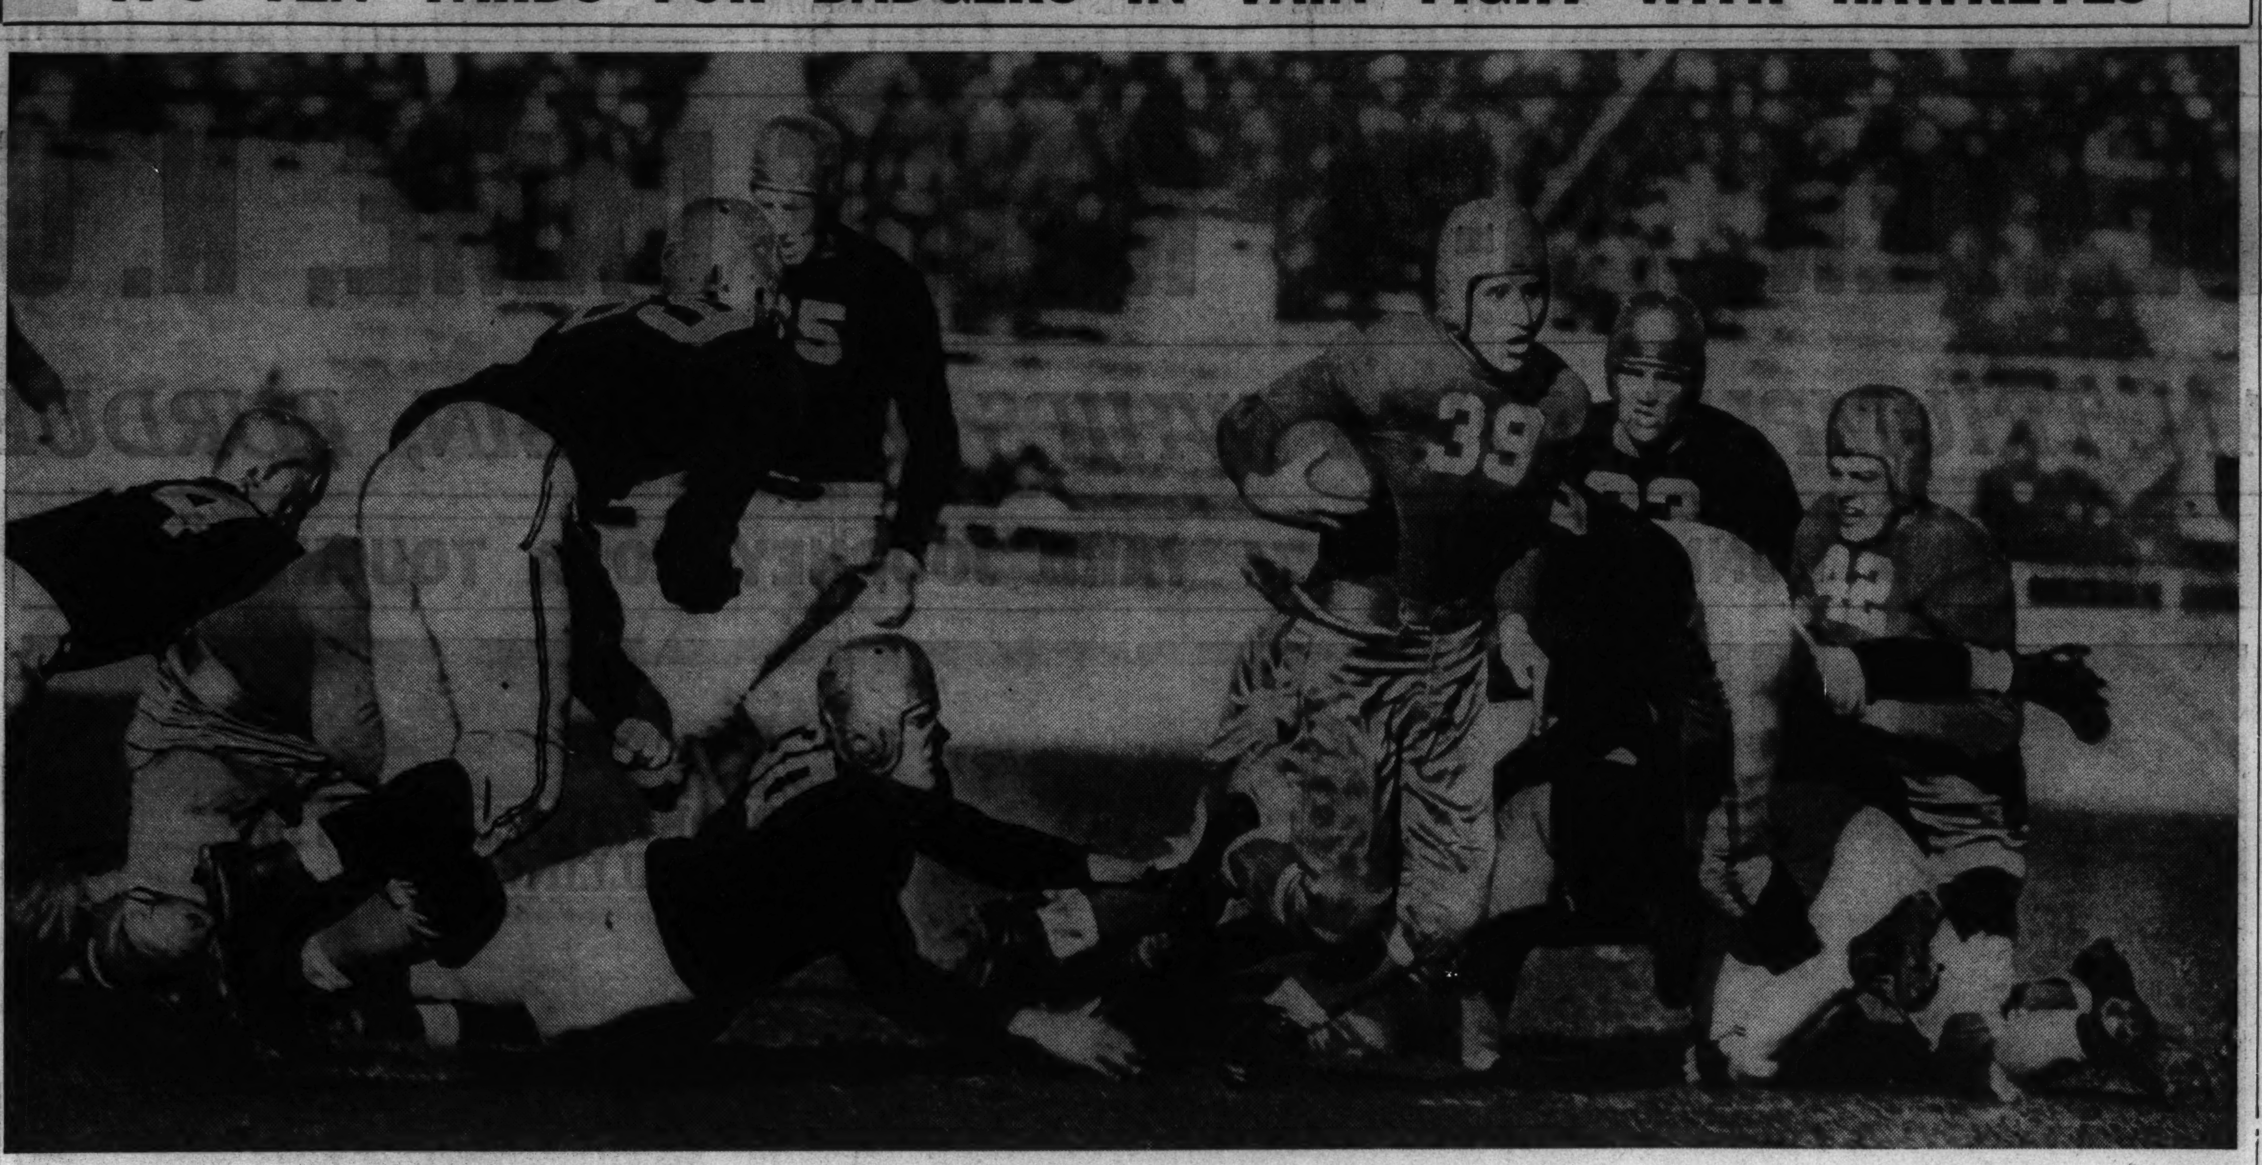
Carroll Routs Lawrence, 32-7; Clinches Title Tie

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—Carroll college cinched a tie for the mythical Big Four state championship today for the fifth successive year by defeating Lawrence, 32 to 7, scoring on the first play of the game and in every quarter.

MANITOWOC WINS, 28-6.

Manitowoc, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—Manitowoc defeated Sheboygan North, 28 to 6, in a Fox River Valley High School conference game today. It was the Shipbuilders' fourth conference victory, and the fifth consecutive defeat for Sheboygan.

IT'S TEN YARDS FOR BADGERS IN VAIN FIGHT WITH HAWKEYES



Wisconsin's star full back, George Paskvan (No. 39), hammers thru for ten yards against Iowa in first quarter of contest in Madison, Wis., yesterday. Paskvan's gains didn't help much, for the Hawkeyes took to the air to win, 19 to 13. Al Couppee (No. 30), Iowa quarter back, is on the ground. Bob Eckl (No. 42) is Wisconsin's left tackle. Kinnick Is Hero as Iowa's Passes Whip Badgers, 19-13 the victors. The Badgers, whose touchdowns also were the results of passes, gained 100 yards by the overhead route. Between their five successful passes out of eighteen attempts and their riddling of the Iowa line they fashioned fourteen first downs, exactly twice the number totaled by the Hawks. But the Badgers lost six passes by interception and stole only one for themselves.

Running Game Bogs Down.

The Badgers, taking the offensive on the initial kickoff, devoted the first few minutes to a demonstration of their running and plunging game featuring Paskvan, but the threat never developed into serious proportions. More than nine minutes of the period elapsed before they made their first thrust thru the air, but the pass, launched by Gradisnik, fell into the arms of Kinnick. Then Kinnick punted and the Badgers set forth on their touchdown expedition.

Gradisnik took Kinnick's punt and ran it back twenty-three yards to the Badgers' 36 yard line. He stepped thru right tackle and the Iowans surrendered eleven yards. They gave up ten more as Paskvan waded thru center. He tried to repeat but was stopped, so the Badgers decided to take another flyer thru the air. Gradisnik sailed the ball to Lorenz, who, with a clear track to the goal, slipped as he made the catch on the 14 yard line. Then, after picking up a yard at right tackle, Gradisnik passed to Gage deep in the end zone. Gage place kicked for the extra point.

On the following kickoff Kinnick began to make arrangements for a similar exploit by the Iowans. The speedy Hawk took the kick on his 7 yard line and in the twinkle of an eye wriggled his way thru the entire Wisconsin wall, finally being brought down by Gradisnik on the Badgers' 35 yard mark. A lateral, Green to Busk, lost two yards. Kinnick tried to pass to Busk in the end zone, but the intended receiver wasn't within gunshot of the throw. The Badgers were penalized five yards for offside and Kinnick hit right tackle for three more as the quarter ended.

In the first play of the second period the Hawks showed they meant business. Kinnick turned loose a pass taken in charge by Couppee on Wisconsin's 15 yard line. Green tore into center for three yards, two of which were lost immediately when Prasse attempted an end around maneuver. A five yard penalty was assessed on the Hawks, but on the next play Kinnick drifted back to the 35 yard line and rifled a pass to Couppee, who, being unguarded, experienced no difficulty stepping over the goal. Kinnick's drop kick effort for the extra point went astray.

Nile Does It Again.

Less than two minutes of play in the third quarter was all the Hawks needed for the touchdown that put them in the lead. After taking the kickoff the Badgers punted to Kinnick, who was chased out of bounds on the Badgers' 40. Green tried right tackle but picked up only a yard. Then Kinnick sauntered back, looked over the situation, and finally heaved a pass to Evans, who was standing unguarded on the 9 yard line. He jogged over the goal to give Iowa a 12 to 7 edge. For the second time Kinnick failed to drop kick the extra point.

The Badgers promptly turned on the power for their seventy-seven yard parade that moved them into a one point lead. Gradisnik took the kickoff and lugged it twenty yards to his 23 yard line. He smashed the line for eight yards but was hurt on the play, Schmitz taking his place. Paskvan dived thru for a first down on the 37 yard line. Schmitz, Paskvan, and Schmitz again made it first down in midfield. Altho their smashing game was functioning the Badgers took to the air but failed, so returned to the ground and accomplished another first down on Iowa's 37.

York, Paskvan, and Schmitz took turns rolling back the weakening Hawks. A first down was registered on the 25 yard line. A five yard penalty on Iowa and two short gains by Paskvan pushed the Iowans to their 14 yard line. Schmitz cut thru right tackle for five yards and repeated for three. Paskvan smashed center for a first down on the 4 yard line. Paskvan lost four yards at left end and a pass by Schmitz intended for York was incomplete, but Schmitz passed again and Lorenz made the catch in the end zone, making the score 13 to 12. Gage's placement for the extra point was blocked by Evans.

Just as the third quarter ended Kinnick punted to Schmitz, who returned to the Hawks' 46 yard line. The opening play of the final quarter was a pass by Schmitz, but it was intercepted by Dean and this was the break the Hawks turned into a touchdown. Kinnick hurled a pass, but it missed connections. A line play failed, so Kinnick passed again, Prasse getting the ball on Wisconsin's 40 yard line. Another pass by Kinnick, this one to Couppee, moved the line of battle up to the 29 yard mark. Then Kinnick passed to Green, who made the catch as he was sprinting over the goal. Kinnick's drop kick picked up an extra point, making the score: Iowa, 19; Wisconsin 13.

BUTLER IS HELD TO 6-6 DEADLOCK BY WASHINGTON

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP).—Washington university of St. Louis snapped Butler university's victory string at five straight today by tying the Bulldogs, 6 to 6.

Butler took to the air in the first quarter to score, but Jack Frost, Bear reserve half back, ran thirty-three yards on a reverse to tie the score in the second period.

Two of Butler's leading half backs—Tom Harding, high scoring Negro, and Hanks Abts—went out in the first quarter with injuries. Abts suffered a broken left wrist and Harding received a leg injury.

Both teams missed field goals in the second half. Half Back Jimmy Garwood took a sixteen yard pass from Capt. Bob Connor for Butler's score.

TROJANS DEFEAT CALIFORNIA, 26-0, IN SECOND HALF

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 28 (AP).—Southern California passed and pounded one lap nearer the Rose Bowl today with a 26 to 0 victory over University of California in one of the annual classics of the far western season. A crowd of 50,000 attended.

Three surges in the third quarter turned the contest from a fairly close battle into a wild rout, the Trojans scoring three times, twice on successive drives after taking kickoffs.

Neither team scored in the first half, but the Trojans scored on seven plays in the third quarter, Quarter Back Grenville Lansdell passing to Right End Bob Winslow from the 15. After a punt exchange Southern California used seven more plays to score, Full Back Bob Peoples crashing thru right guard the last eleven yards.

Three plays after the next kickoff, Lansdell faked a pass, then cut thru the Bear line to dash to the third touchdown. Bob De Lauer place kicked the extra tally for the second time. In the fourth quarter Ambrose Schindler, third string Trojan quarter back, whipped a long pass to John Stonebreaker, substitute right end, who trotted the remaining ten yards to score. The lineups:

HUSKIES FINALLY WIN.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 28 (AP).—The University of Washington Huskies turned in their football first victory of the season today, defeating the Stanford Indians by the baseball score of 8 to 5. The victory, Washington's first in five starts, so enthused the Washington rooters that they swarmed on the field after the game and tore down their own goal posts.

It was Stanford's third Pacific Coast conference defeat. The Cards have yet to win a game, having tied U. C. L. A. in their other contest.

Washington scored a safety in the first when Full Back Norm Standlee of Stanford was nailed behind the goal line, but Half Back Jim Groves booted a place kick in the second quarter to put the Indians ahead, 3 to 2. A 75 yard Husky march in the third, with Full Back Don Jones going the final foot, clinched the contest. After a fourth period Stanford drive was stopped on the 3 yard line, Washington deliberately gave Stanford a safety and thus was enabled to kick from its 20.

OREGON STATE WINS AGAIN.

Corvallis, Ore., Oct. 28 (AP).—Oregon State strengthened its undefeated and untied position in the Pacific Coast football conference by downing Washington State, 13 to 0, before 8,000 today.

A substitute back field, sparked by Full Back Ken Dow, took over in the second quarter and put the Beavers out in front, 7 to 0. With 6 minutes remaining in the last quarter, Full Back Jim Kisselburgh took the ball on the Cougar 35, blasted over right tackle into the open, and scored standing up. Leonard Younce, who kicked the first try for point, had the second one blocked.

OREGON BEATEN, 16 to 6.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28 (AP).—University of California at Los Angeles in two spectacular plays knocked Oregon out of the Pacific Coast conference undefeated ranks today, 16 to 6, before 40,000 in Memorial coliseum.

A tremendous forward pass by Kenny Washington to his Negro half back companion, Jackie Robinson, good for sixty-six yards, brought one touchdown, and Robinson broke thru in the third period with an 82 yard sprint for the second Bruin tally. A first period field goal by Jack Sommers from the 30 yard line started the Uclans off to the triumph.

T. C. U. FINALLY WINS.

Shreveport, La., Oct. 28 (AP).—Texas Christian university ended a season long losing streak today, defeating Centenary, 21 to 0. T. C. U. was in complete control, gaining 329 yards on passing and running plays to 97 for Centenary. Two of the touchdowns were made on passes.

JACK CRAIN RUNS AGAIN AND TEXAS WHIPS RICE, 26-12

Austin, Tex., Oct. 28 (AP).—Slippery Jack Crain, sophomore back of the year in the southwest, and his University of Texas mates smashed Rice institute, 26 to 12, today.

After Crain broke loose for several long runs early in the game, there was no doubt as to the outcome. In the third quarter he reeled off a touchdown run for eighty yards. Aside from Crain's dash, in which virtually every member of the Rice team hit him but could not hold him, the Texas touchdowns were scored on short line thrusts by Pete Layden and Gilly Davis and a fifty-seven yard punt return by Davis.

The Owls couldn't dent the Texas line consistently and their only markers were made on Ernie Lain's passes. They broke a scoreless deadlock in the second period with a twenty-eight yard goal line toss from Lain to End Bob Brandon and tallied in the third with a ten yard toss, Lain to Doug Tipton, end. The lineups:

RICE [12].		TEXAS [26].
Brandon	L. E.	Neeley
Green	L. T.	Williams
Singletary	L. G.	Dawson
Whitlow	C	Goodwin
Bassett	R. G.	Daniel
Stanzel	R. T.	Myers
Tipton	R. E.	McDonald
Stevens	Q. B.	Grubbs
Brumley	L. H.	Crain
Cordill	R. H.	Puett
Suman	F. B.	Patrick

CORNELL COMES FROM BEHIND TO BEAT OHIO, 23-14

yards to a touchdown. His last challenger, Strausbaugh, coming across the field, was knocked off on the Ohio 7 yard line. Nick Drahos, one of the most brilliant stars of the game, apparently wasn't really warm yet. His try from placement was blocked by Fritz Howard, substitute guard.

Cornell's second touchdown started to bud after a quick kick by Ohio's Johnny Rabb was downed on Cornell's 37 yard line. Scholl cast a thirty-three yard pass to Jack Borhman who ran the remaining thirty yards to the goal after spearing the ball. This time Drahos added the point.

Cornell Keeps It Up.

Ohio State was ahead, 14 to 13, but Ohio's ecstacy was a scarce emotion at this juncture. What turned out to be the winning score, Cornell's third touchdown, started in midfield after about four minutes in the third period. Scott punted to Brown, who took the ball on the 50 yard line and returned to the 34, where he fumbled following Andrako's hard tackle. Drahos recovered for Cornell.

McCullough's pass to Kelly over center was good for eleven yards and a first down on the 23 yard line, after which Landsberg went thru right tackle for first down on the 13 yard line.

Landsberg made four over left tackle, then Baker's pass to Landsberg was good for four yards. McCullough plunged over center for first down on the Ohio State 2 yard line. The next play, in the sixth minute of the second half, was the victory act. McCullough went over center for a touchdown. Drahos' place kick for the extra point was good.

Drahos Kicks Field Goal.

There were no lulls in the remainder of the third period, tho Cornell seemed to be hep to all of Ohio's open stuff designed to catch up.

Things happened after McCullough intercepted Scott's pass on Cornell's 35 yard line. On the second play Landsberg broke thru right tackle and sprinted forty-three yards before being pushed out of bounds on Ohio State's 24 yard line. One jab by Landsberg was good for four yards and another netted twelve yards and a first down on the Buckeyes' 8 yard line. The attack bogged after McCullough had made five yards, then Drahos dropped back and kicked a field goal from the 18 yard line. Things that happened thereafter didn't mean much.

Anyway, Ohio State followers had something to boast about. Besides having by far the superior band on the field, didn't their team make sixteen first downs to Cornell's eight? And aren't they still undefeated in the Big Ten race?

The Buckeyes were superior on the ground, gaining a total of 188 yards in rushing the ball 54 times to Cornell's 151 yards in 39 attempts. But in the air Cornell had a little the better of it in the number of yards gained, completing six of their nine passes for a gain of 121 yards, while Ohio State completed four of their 14 attemps for a gain of 85 yards. So in total yardage gained by both passes and ground work, Ohio led by one measly yard, 273 to 272.

N. U. BEATS ILLINI, 13 TO 0; SOPER RACES 74 YARDS

field. Clawson was stopped and Chambers was spilled for a two yard loss, but Soper found a hole at right guard and went seventeen yards before he was brought down on the Illinois 35. Chambers slipped thru two Illinois tacklers for nine yards and Clawson made it a first down on the Illinois 20 yard mark.

De Correvont had entered the game by this time and assisted Clawson and Chambers in making nine yards in three downs. On the fourth down try De Correvont was smothered at the line and the Illini took over the ball on their own 11 yard mark, Ehni promptly punting to the Northwestern 49 yard line.

Elting Loses a Touchdown.

After Haman kicked off to Illinois at the outset of the second half, Ehni quick-kicked on second down, the ball going to the Northwestern 23 yard line, where Anders downed the ball. Northwestern punted to the Illinois 32 and then, after two plays had produced a net of three yards, Ehni got away a fifty-five yard punt which went out of bounds at the Northwestern 10 yard marker. Soper replied with a first down quick-kick.

The first play, a pass, Purvis to Elting, produced seventeen yards and a first down on the Northwestern 30. Elting continued on to the goal line, but he had stepped out of bounds on the 30 yard line. Purvis then tried another pass after losing a yard, but Elting couldn't reach it as he stood on the Wildcat 4 yard mark.

Purvis tried another pass, but he was rushed as he threw it and the ball fell into the hands of Richards, who was downed on his 26 yard line. On the first play the speedy Soper, with the aid of a block by Aarts just beyond the line, broke into the clear at his 40 yard line. He sprinted down the sideline with no immediate pursuer except Rettinger, who made a last futile dive at him along about the Illinois 10 yard line. Clawson added the point by placement.

Illini Hocus Pocus Fails.

Shortly after the release of the purple balloons the Illini sprang one of their fanciest sleight-of-hand maneuvers, involving four men, but Purvis, the fourth man, dropped back to pass and was downed on his 15 yard line for a 30 yard loss. In the middle of the final quarter the Illini attempted another complicated passing stunt, and Purvis, again attempting to pass, was spared the embarrassment of a safety by the margin of two feet.

Near the end of the quarter Chambers intercepted a pass by Ehni, catching it as he fell on the Illinois 29 yard line. De Correvont finally flung a pass to Grefe, who caught it at about the 6 yard line, and altho he appeared to have scored, it was ruled out of bounds on the 3 yard mark. The play covered 28 yards. De Correvont dove up to the half yard line, and Clawson went over on the next play. The latter's try for the point struck the left upright and bounced away.

A Thrill for Illinois, Anyway.

Following this, Illinois took the kickoff and traveled 41 yards to the Northwestern 23 yard line in a passing frenzy which many Illini customers thought had produced a touchdown. With Purvis pitching, they moved up until they yielded the ball on downs. On the last play, Purvis tossed the ball to Milosevich, who caught the ball over the goal line for what appeared to be a touchdown, but it was ruled null and void because O'Neill, another Illini, had touched the ball before it reached Milosevich without a Northwestern man touching it in the interval.

C. Y. O. Boxing Tourney Will Open Thursday

The ninth annual C. Y. O. Christmas Fund boxing tournament will open Thursday and will be climaxed on the night of Nov. 29 when title matches will be held in Chicago Stadium.

South section entrants will be the first group to see action. They will be called on to appear in the preliminary contests in St. Sabina gymnasium, 7800 South Racine avenue, Thursday and Friday night.

Boxers from the west side of the city will crawl thru the ropes in the Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street, Nov. 6 and 7. North side entrants will be the next group to show their wares. They will box in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, Nov. 9 and 10. Elimination matches for suburban boxers will be fought at Joliet, Ill., Nov. 16 and 17.

Winners of the city sectional bouts will qualify for the quarter-finals which will be presented in C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street, Nov. 13, 14, and 15. Victors in the quarter-final matches will advance to the semi-finals which will also be fought in the C. Y. O. center, Nov. 20 and 21.

RETURN OF TRAINING TABLE PLEASES PLAYERS AT NORTHWESTERN

The return of the training table as a part of Western conference football after a lapse of 20 years has been pronounced by players and coaches as one of the most beneficial experiments of the season. It is particularly appreciated at Northwestern where football practice begins a half hour later than in any other Big Ten camp. With the training table in operation Wildcat players are enabled to get a balanced meal, which they might be too late to obtain at regular campus eating places. Here are members of Northwestern's squad at training table in the Goodrich house.

Schambergers Take Lead in North End Traveling League

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Schambergers bowling team took the lead in the North End Traveling league last week when they swept their series with Fox, while Koenig could take only two from Jack Samuelson's Kids. In beating the Foxes, Schlitz set a new league record with a 1,149 game and totaled 3,150 for the match.

Alex Bartock set the pace for the leaders with 660, Billy Zelasko had 631, Frank Kartheiser 626, Ted Hjort 619, and Harry Ledens 614. The Pepsi-Colas retained third place by winning two from Chapin & Gore, the Jolly Jacks won a pair from the Budweisers, and the Birks took the odd from the De Luxe Recreations.

Stanley Keegan, Pepsi-Cola youngster, tops the individual averages with 205, and Alex Bartock has moved into second place with 204.

Tomorrow night the North End league winds up its first round with the following schedule:

Budweisers vs. Schlitz at the North Town.
Koenig Brau vs. Birks at the Willow.
Pepsi-Colas at Samuelsons.
De Luxe vs. Foxes at Kaadland.

Greater Chicago Traveling League.

Early Avondale Recreation, paced by Ed Early's high series of 670, moved into a tie for second place at 9 games won and 6 lost in the Greater Chicago Traveling league by winning the odd game by one pin—982 to 981—from the Merits. They now are tied with the Schlitz who dropped two to DeLuca's Cragin Recreation and a game behind the leading Kruses who lost two to Mohawk Recreation, the team that is holding up the league.

The Mohawks, who by their two games won, now have four on the black side of the ledger against eight on the red side, took the first game from the Kruses, 919 to 906. They dropped the second by a sizable margin and took the odd, 993 to 990. The Sunkists, previously winner of only one of their six games, swept a series with DeLuxe Recreation.

George Eland and Pat Panzek have high average of 205, followed by Gus Caponi with 203. A. Caponi of the Sunkists had high game of the week, 264.

Windy City League.

The Nonebetters scored a major upset in the Windy City league when they took three games from the Gills. The winners bowled consistently, toppling 1,015 in their first game, then increasing it to 1,038 in the second, and finishing off with 1,081 for a 3,134 series, the league's high for the week. Mike Marinello paced the Nonebetters with a series of 692. Their 1,081 game was two pins shy of the evening's top, 1,083, rolled by the Bennetts.

Ed. Hymes of the O'Keefes rolled high individual series, 695, as his team took the odd game from the Betinis. Paul Krumske of the Betinis and John Small of the Budweisers each rolled a 257 game.

Randolph League.

A 3,150 series in which four men registered better than 600 individual totals gave the Butlers a slam over the Rupperts in the Randolph league at Bensinger's. The Butlers opened with a 1,033 game, then dropped to 1,017, and ended up with 1,100.

Buck Flint, Butler's leadoff, turned in the league's high total of 687, getting 257 on his second game. Si Lock hit 649 and Gus Fetz dropped 644. High game was turned in by the Mineralites. It was an 1,132 total which enabled the team to salvage one game in its series with the Budweisers. The Budweisers registered a 3,087 series, led by Emil Landman who got 674 and Don Pinc who hit 672.

Gold Coast League.

The Marxes, a team which previous to last week, had won only six of its 18 games in the Gold Coast Recreation league, moved into the spotlight by rolling 3,055, the only total to exceed 3,000 in the league. They dropped their first game to the A. J. Williams team, then came back with games of 1,111 and 1,011. Bus Udell, Marx anchor, rolled 230, 220, 249—699, high individual series. Tom McPherson hit high game, 289, and a 691 series.

Classic League.

The league leading Pabsts meet the third place Monarchs, defending champions, when the Classic league bowls at Samuelson's Arcade, 3947 North Pulaski road, tonight. In other games the Michelobs face Power House, the Koenigs meet Schlitz, and the Ambrosias clash with the Pragers.

The league appears to have hit its stride, four teams having turned in better than 3,000 series Wednesday night. Axel Sandquist was the star of the assault, turning in a 735 series.

Beverly Major League.

The Edens pulled up to within a game of the Beverly Major league lead and into a second place tie by winning three games from the Mathiesens on a 3,129 series. They opened their series with 957, then stepped the pace up to 1,135 and finished off with 1,037. The Mathiesens got 925, 1,084 and 992 for a 3,001 series. The week's competition left the Chris Bauers in front by a game and the Automatic Heating team tied for second with the Edens. High scores were:

Doctors' League.

Fibula swept a series with Humerus to climb to within a game of Sacrum in the Chicago Doctors' Bowling league last week. The league bowls at Western Recreation. Sacrum meanwhile won its odd game from Pelvis to bring its season's standings to 18 games won and 3 lost. Fibula, in second place with 17 won and 4 lost, is four games ahead of Pelvis, Patella, and Scapula, which are tied for third with 13 won and 8 lost.

The Question.

Do you think the University of Chicago football team should disband?

Where Answered.

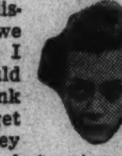
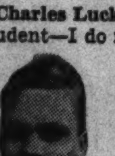
The Answers.

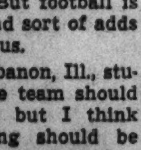
Ralph Richardson of Zelienople, Pa., end on the team—There is no reason for the team to disband. The university may lighten the schedule or else get players of the type it needs to stay in Big Ten competition. But disbanding the team won't solve the problem.



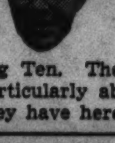
Miss June Cover, 5419 University avenue, student—I do not think the team should be disbanded. I think we need the sport and I think the team should be encouraged. I think the players should get scholarships as they do at other schools, but not openly.



Charles Luckow, 4419 Beacon street, student—I do not think so. The players seem to be in the game for the sport of it; so I don't think they should give it up. I can't account for the scores of the last two week-ends.



Miss Marcia Merrifield, 5626 Kimbark avenue, student—I'd have to think about that a while. I couldn't say right off, for it's a debatable question. We certainly aren't getting anywhere. It is very tragic and very hard on the fellows. But football is a part of college life and sort of adds something to the campus.



Malcolm Spencer, Lebanon, Ill., student—I don't think the team should disband, but I think something should be done about the other schools. It ruins any chance of some other team better than Chicago getting into the Big Ten. They don't seem to care particularly about the kind of team they have here.

AUSTIN BEARS, WINKLER A. C. TO MEET TODAY

The Austin Bears and Winkler A. C. will meet in a neighborhood semipro football contest in the Austin Bears athletic field, Harlem and North avenues at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Earlier in the season these two clubs battled to a scoreless tie before a capacity crowd in Austin Bears' field.

Anderson Returns to Brown Bombers' Lineup

Return of Ox Anderson, star full back from Texas college, to the lineup has strengthened the Chicago Brown Bombers for their postponed clash with the unbeaten Edison Park eleven in Spencer field Wednesday night.

Football Training Table Proves a Hit in Big Ten

The behind the stands feature of the 1939 Big Ten football season is the training table, described by coaches, athletes, and faculty as one of the most successful innovations in the Western conference in recent years.

More properly called the "evening meal provision," since a single meal after daily practice is furnished the football squads, the training table has answered all demands for dietary care of Big Ten football players and afforded other obvious advantages, according to conference officials.

The training table was formally approved by the conference in 1938 after considerable agitation in its behalf, but did not become immediately operative until the current season pending the expiration of a protest period when the proposal did not receive unanimous affirmation at the 1938 meeting. Revival of the training table came after a lapse of more than 20 years, training tables and training quarters in the Western conference having been banned since 1906. The Big Ten's move resulted in adoption of the provision in other schools and conferences thruout the country.

Conference regulation of the training table provides a limit of 55 eligible squad members for the daily meal. While a coach may eat with the squad, a conference agreement prohibits lecturing on football at the table. The conference also prescribes that the squad must eat as a group so that no squad member may eat elsewhere and be reimbursed for his meal.

Dietary Advantages Apparent.

Dietary advantages in the supervised menu are apparent, according to Big Ten coaches.

Supervised menus designed to meet the particular demands of a football group are prescribed by each school. Steak is the favorite course at all of the 10 training tables in the Western conference, according to reports, as at Northwestern where it is served three times a week. Northwestern presents a typical mid-week menu.

Cream of vegetable soup
Fruit salad
Broiled sirloin steak
Baked Idaho potato
Buttered cauliflower
Dry toast
Ice cream
Coffee, tea, or milk

Enabled to Get Complete Meal.

Northwestern, with its training table quarters in the Goodrich House, typifies the operation of the training table in the conference, and affords an example of one of the many advantages resulting from the innovation.

Practices at Northwestern start a half hour later than at any other school in the Big Ten and consequently carry thru until after the normal dinner hour in the campus eating places. The training table therefore ensures a complete dinner, otherwise an impossibility.

Midget Indoor Auto Racing Opens Tonight

The indoor auto racing season opens tonight in the 124th Field Artillery Armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue, where approximately 50 drivers will compete in an eight event program. The first race will start at 8:30, following 90 minutes of time trials.

Tonight's meet will be the first of the 1939-'40 national indoor championship series. Meets will be held in the armory each Sunday night from now until late April, 1940. During that time drivers will be awarded points in proportion to the money they win and the driver with the most points at the end of the season will be declared the champion.

That's the Duck Census in Canada.

BY BOB BECKER.

The magic number for waterfowl hunters is 59,399,793! Duck hunters in Illinois and throughout the United States are getting a thrill out of that big figure. It is the number of ducks that are flying south from the vast Canadian west, the home of the ducks.

According to reports issued by Tom Main, manager of Ducks Unlimited in Canada, a census of the duck breeding range in the Canadian west [from the 49th parallel north to the arctic and from Hudson bay to the Yukon] shows that there are 59,399,793 members of that family heading for the gulf states and intermediate points. This compares with 49,180,000 ducks in 1938. The increase this year is slightly more than 20 per cent, a little lower than the preliminary estimate of 22 per cent made by this department several weeks ago.

Gaining Objective.

When you add to this bird population of the Canadian west the hatch from other North American marshes the total is such that it makes every waterfowl hunter smile with satisfaction. With more birds in the 1939 hatch it means that the ducks and geese have moved up another notch toward the goal which conservationists and sportsmen have ahead of them—growing enough ducks and restoring their breeding grounds so that the sport of waterfowling is assured for the future.

Ducks Unlimited, the organization of American sportsmen which has been working at top speed to rehabilitate Canadian breeding grounds of the waterfowl, rightfully may take credit for part of this splendid increase in the 1939 hatch. This organization has built dams to impound water in lowlands to give the aquatic birds nesting places. It has taken over old drainage districts in Canada, flooded them and handed them back to the birds. It has worked out a sensible but economical plan of cooperation with Canadian officials, provincial governments and sportsmen to grow more ducks in the marshes. As a result of this far-reaching program millions of birds now coming down the flyways may be called "Ducks by Ducks Unlimited." All of the engineering and field work done in Canada to provide nesting places for waterfowl has been financed by American sportsmen.

Interesting Statistics Issued.

Officials of Ducks Unlimited have issued interesting statistics in the sizes of the duck broods this year. For example, a count of 114,429 broods shows that the green winged teal with 7.67 ducklings per brood had the largest number of ducklings this year. Blue winged teal were second with 7.31. Gadwalls averaged 7.07 ducklings per brood. Pintails followed with 6.03. Mallards also did well. They raised an average of 5.97 ducklings per brood. If sportsmen see more canvasbacks on the wing this year they needn't be surprised. This species, which has been very low in numbers, averaged 5.97 ducklings per brood. These brood figures tell why duck hunters are happy this fall. The ducks have made a nice comeback.

TRAINER LARKIN BANNED FOR LIFE AT SPORTSMAN'S

Three Others Suspended by Race Commission.

The Illinois Racing commission yesterday ruled off a trainer for life, another one for 90 days and meted out indefinite suspensions to two owners as the result of activities at Sportsman's Park, where the Chicago 1939 race season is now nearing its close.

The life ban was given J. D. Larkin, the trainer of Fluke. The action came, the commission said, because of a saliva test on Fluke showing caffeine and morphine or its derivatives on Oct. 21 when it competed in the second race. Larkin was arrested by federal agents on the charge of possessing narcotics. He was held in the county jail in default of $2,000 bond.

Report Caffeine Present.

Owners W. J. Jenkinson and Lillian Jenkinson and Trainer H. Lindley were suspended after the commission reported the presence of caffeine was found after a saliva test was taken of the horse It's Keen, which competed in the sixth race at Sportsman's on Oct. 21.

Gray Jack and Chance Ray, coupled as the entry of C. E. Davison, Illinois horseman, ran one-two, respectively, in the Autumn Handicap at Sportsman's Park yesterday, a race at a mile and seventy yards in which six horses competed. The entry started as 2 to 1 favorites.

Elam Rides Winner.

Busy Morn was first to take the lead after the rise of the barrier, and held it for three quarters of a mile, where she gave in to Gray Jack. The latter, after coming from far behind, took the lead with a rush at this point and drew out to win with ease. Chance Ray, third most of the way and dropping into fourth place momentarily, came again on the outside and was up just in time to get second money. Mo, which was second most of the way, weakened near the end, but held on for third money.

A capacity crowd was on hand to witness the next to the last Saturday's racing of the Illinois season. The skies were clear and the track was slow.

Hawks Defeat Barons, 8 to 3, in Exhibition

Cleveland, O., Oct. 28 [Special].—The Chicago Blackhawks defeated the Cleveland Barons here tonight in an exhibition hockey game, 8 to 3.

Although billed as an exhibition, fist fights were frequent and brought a steady parade to the penalty box.

The Hawks bore down from the start, leading 3 to 0 at the end of the first period, and 5 to 1 at the end of the second. There were five major penalties, two against the Barons and three against the Chicagoans.

With the exception of Johnny Gottselig and Earl Siebert, who play tomorrow night in the Babe Siebert memorial game in Toronto, the Hawks will return home tomorrow, practicing in Chicago Monday morning before proceeding to St. Louis to end their training season in an exhibition with the Flyers of the American association.

On Wednesday Manager Paul Thompson will send his squad thru final drill in preparation for the National league opener against Detroit in Chicago Stadium on Thursday night.

RACE STARTS THURSDAY

The National Hockey league 1939-'40 race gets under way Thursday, earlier than ever before in history, when the Detroit Red Wings meet the Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago Stadium.

No other teams will play Thursday, but on Saturday the Boston Bruins clash with the Maple Leafs in Toronto. The same two teams ended the Stanley Cup playoffs last April, the Bruins winning.

By Nov. 9 every team in the league will have played the first of a 48 game schedule that ends March 17.

Mr. W. R. Blend,
Classified Advertising Manager,
The Chicago Tribune

October 18, 1939.

Dear Mr. Blend -

It gives me great pleasure to inform you of the splendid showing made by Tribune want ads in our recent used car advertising campaign in the classified section of the Chicago Tribune.

As you know, on Wednesday, October 11th we started our 1939 'Price Slashing Sale' with large classified ads in the Tribune and promotion in other mediums. The sale ended today. As a result we have sold 107 cars and I think you will be interested in the following analysis of expenditures and results:-

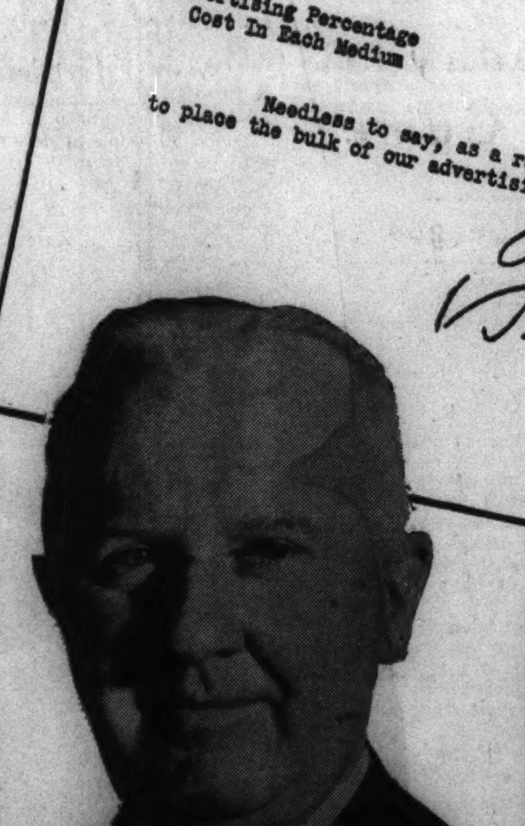
	Tribune	Medium "A"	Medium "B"
Advertising Expenditure	$609.51	$612.96	$293.58
Cars Sold By Each Medium	75	22	10
Advertising Cost Per Car Sold	$ 8.13	$ 27.86	$ 29.36
Value of Cars Sold By Each Medium	$31,290	$ 8,841	$ 4,010
Advertising Percentage Cost In Each Medium	1.95%	6.93%	7.32%

Needless to say, as a result of this impressive record we are going to place the bulk of our advertising appropriation in the Tribune.

Very truly,

F.M.Miller, President
West Side Buick Sales Co.,
4666 Washington Blvd.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.



F. M. MILLER
President
West Side Buick Sales Co.

To the West Side Buick Company's salesroom at 4666 Washington Blvd., Tribune want ads brought prospects who bought $31,290 worth of cars.

THIS recent example of the responsiveness of the Tribune audience proves again that Tribune readers make up Chicago's biggest and best market for advertisers.

Every day of the week the Tribune now has more than a million circulation. Seven days a week right in Chicago and suburbs, Tribune circulation is in excess of 760,000. This is the equivalent of majority coverage of all metropolitan Chicago families.

This seven-day readership creates and perpetuates a relationship which accounts for the greater returns enjoyed by Tribune advertisers.

Thru Tribune want ads you can place your offers before a huge constant audience which is accustomed to respond to buying ideas set forth in Tribune want ad columns.

FENGER, AUSTIN AND LANE NEAR SECTIONAL TITLES

Score Decisive Victories in High School League.

Fenger, Austin and Lane Tech, each of which hopes to qualify for Mayor Kelly's All-City game on Dec. 2, drew closer to sectional championships in the Public High School league yesterday.

Fenger, with Ray Florek and Don Griffin leading the attack, routed Morgan Park, 31 to 0, in Pullman Tech field for its fourth straight victory in the south section. Florek scored four touchdowns and Griffin one. Lane Tech overwhelmed Lake View, 32 to 0, in Loyola stadium for its fifth triumph in the north division, and Austin won from McKinley, 33 to 0, in Mills stadium, to remain on top in the west zone with five victories and no defeats.

Milt Pergament starred in Lane Tech's victory, scoring two touchdowns, one on a 35 yard run in the fourth quarter. Half Back Anthony Rotunno and Tom Tobin led Austin to its triumph, the former scoring two touchdowns and Tobin one.

Fenger, Austin and Lane Tech, three of the five unbeaten and untied teams in the league, each has two more sectional games to play. The races in the four districts will come to an end on Nov. 11. The semi-finals will be played on Nov. 18 and the championship will be decided on Nov. 25.

Tilden Tech and Lindblom, the two other teams with perfect records, continued their battle for the central division title. Two touchdowns in the third period gave Tilden a 26 to 12 victory over Du Sable in St. Rita field, and Lindblom whipped Englewood, 26 to 0, in Normal park. The lineups:

LONG SHOTS WIN TWO HANDICAPS AT EMPIRE CITY

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Two long shots, Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Merry Knight and H. F. Guggenheim's War Dog, won the Ardsley and Scarsdale handicaps at Empire City today on a muddy track.

Such favorites as John Hay Whitney's Calory, Mrs. Charles S. Payson's Call To Colors, and C. V. Whitney's Parasang were scratched from the Ardsley, $10,000 added race for 2 year olds. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Third Degree was withdrawn from the $5,000 added Scarsdale.

As a result Merry Knight, a 20 to 1 shot which had been beaten in three recent stakes, won the mile and 70 yards juvenile test by a length from Liberty Franc, which set the early pace. War Dog, an 8 to 1 outsider, ran away with the $5,200 winner's share in the Scarsdale, another mile and 70 yards event. The 11-5 favorite, Mrs. Parker Corning's Chip In, trailed the field home.

PREP BACKS GALLOP---BUT IT'S FUTILE

Anthony Rotunno (42), Austin High back, is off for a touchdown that didn't count. Rotunno carried the ball thirty-five yards and over McKinley High's goal line, but it was recalled because of an offside. In the picture also are Danno (37) and Kennedy (31), both of McKinley, and Bell (99) of Austin. Austin won, 33 to 0. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Glenbard Wins to Take West Suburban Lead

Glenbard High school's football team went into first place in the West Suburban conference by defeating Riverside, 19 to 0, on the latter's field yesterday. It was Glenbard's fourth victory. Half Back Marshall led the attack with two touchdowns. Lineups:

St. Rita Meets Leo Today in Charity Game

Catholic League

GAMES TODAY.

Leo vs. St. Rita, Soldiers' field, 1:30 p. m.
Weber vs. De La Salle, Normal park, 2 p. m.
Fenwick vs. Loyola, Loyola stadium, 2 p. m.
St. Patrick vs. St. Mel, Mills stadium, 2 p. m.
St. George vs. St. Philip, St. Philip field, 2 p. m.
St. Ignatius vs. Marmion M. A., Roosevelt road and Central avenue, 2 p. m.

St. Rita and Leo, friendly enemies on the south side, this afternoon will move their annual neighborhood battle to Chicago's lake front, where in Soldiers' field they will engage in the 13th annual game for the Sisters of Mercy benefit fund. The contest will begin at 1:30 o'clock.

Skip Carroll.

Leo, former Catholic High School league champion, and St. Rita haven't enjoyed success in league competition this season, but a victory in the charity game will help players forget the setbacks suffered in south section play. Leo will be making its fourth appearance in the charity series, which began in 1926, and will be seeking its fourth triumph.

Same Lineups to Start.

The same starting lineups used in last Sunday's games which saw St. Rita triumph over Weber, 19 to 0, and Leo lose to De La Salle, 6 to 0, were named by Coaches A. L. [Whitey] Cronin of Leo and Hicks Connelly of St. Rita. Leo's starting lineup includes two of the outstanding players in the league, Tackle Skip Carroll and Center Ed Corrigan.

Others named by Coach Cronin include Naugzemis and Kunka, ends; Madigan, tackle; Hurley and Johnston, guards; Baronowski, quarter back; Hawkey and Richter, half backs, and Kelly, full back. St. Rita's starters include McCarthy and O'Hare, ends; Zimmy and Stasukaitis, tackles; Melichar and Blake, guards; Kennedy, center; Chasty, quarter back; Ruby and Borst, half backs, and Smith, full back.

St. George Meets St. Philip.

St. George and Loyola academy will attempt to continue their drives toward the north section championship in two other league games this afternoon. St. George will oppose St. Philip in St. Philip field, Van Buren and Albany streets, and Loyola meets Fenwick, 1938 sectional champion, in Loyola stadium, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue.

Three other games are scheduled. St. Patrick will face St. Mel in Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue; Weber plays De La Salle in Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue, and Catholic High of Joliet meets De Paul on the latter's field, Sheffield and Webster avenues.

Lake Forest Triumphs, 16-0, Over Millikin

Early in the first period a poor Millikin punt that went out of bounds on the 38 yard line put Lake Forest in position to register its first touchdown. After a first down on the 26 yard line a pass, Metz to Koss, placed the ball on the 6, from where Becker went over on a spinner. Morphew kicked the point.

Near the end of the first period Lake Forest blocked Merker's punt on the Millikin 30 yard line. A Metz to Anderson pass gained fourteen yards just before the quarter ended. After picking up nine yards in three plays Petersen, who defeated Millikin last season with a place kick, booted the ball between the uprights from the 16 yard line. Lake Forest scored again in the second period when Metz passed to Bulow in the end zone. Millikin never got beyond the Lake Forest 30 yard line. Lineups:

ELMHURST, 7; N. CENTRAL, 7.

The Elmhurst football team made a fourth period drive yesterday to score a touchdown and tie North Central college, 7 to 7, at Naperville. The Elmhurst score came when Don Rosback, right end, went over from the 10 yard line on an end around play. Aubuchon kicked the extra point.

North Central scored in the second period when Lloyd Houden intercepted an Elmhurst pass on the North Central 44 yard line. Barrett Saville made twelve at end. Then Bill Shatzer threw a pass to Saville who took the ball on the 30 and ran to score. Shatzer kicked the extra point.

Wheaton college yesterday celebrated its homecoming by battling a strong Illinois college team to a 0 to 0 deadlock. Wheaton maintained first place in the Illinois college conference. Wheaton halted Illinois' passing attack and marched fifty yards in the last five minutes of play, then lost the ball on downs.

MACOMB, 20; CHARLESTON, 7.

Macomb, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—Macomb Teachers marched on toward the Little Nineteen title today with a 20 to 7 victory over undefeated Charleston. Paced by Paul Stewart and Bob Blaha, Macomb scored twice in the second quarter and once in the last. Eastern made its score in the second on a pass from Stewart to Olson who lateraled to Bates for forty-nine yards.

Knox Spoils Homecoming at Beloit, 7-0

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—Beloit college lost a heartbreaking 7 to 0 homecoming game to Knox college in Strong stadium today. Tattini, Knox half back, made the lone touchdown late in the second period when he caught a long pass from Christianson behind the Beloit goal line. Beloit threatened frequently thruout the game behind the efforts of Loyll Plinske and Eddie May, but lacked sufficient drive to score. Late in the third period Beloit held Knox for four downs on the Beloit 1 inch line.

The passing of Bruno Virgili, Beloit field general, put Beloit in near scoring position twice during the fourth quarter. Al Christianson, Knox triple threat, was the bulwark of the Siwash offense.

DE KALB TIES MILWAUKEE.

De Kalb, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—Milwaukee Teachers and De Kalb Teachers battled to a scoreless tie today with neither eleven offering much of a threat. Milwaukee missed a chance to score once when an intercepted pass put them on the De Kalb 5 yard line, but the half was over on the play.

Milwaukee gained more yardage than De Kalb and outscored the locals in first downs, 15 to 2. Bethke and Eckenrod led the Brewer offensive and for De Kalb it was Jenks, Behan, and Kovacevich who stood out in the line. De Kalb will resume defense of its Little Nineteen title next Saturday at Carbondale.

ILLINOIS NORMAL WINS.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—After playing three successive scoreless ties, Illinois State Normal turned on the power today and pleased homecomers with a 14 to 7 victory over Carbondale Teachers. It was Normal's first Little 19 conference victory of the year. Two previous league battles were scoreless deadlocks. Carbondale suffered its second conference setback.

Carbondale scored first in the second period when Harold Musgrave passed to Bill Guiney, reserve end, who received on the 1 yard stripe and fell over the line for a touchdown. Frey kicked the extra point to give Carbondale a 7 to 0 lead. The Red Birds tied it up a few minutes later when Covill plunged over for a touchdown after a pass had placed the ball on the 8 yard line.

In the third quarter Normal started the march that led to the winning touchdown from the Carbondale 40. Covill carried the ball on four successive plays, one of which was for thirty-nine yards to the opponents' 3. He then smashed for the touchdown. Gehrt passed to Joe Vucich, half back, for the extra point.

Illinois Conference Kings Retain Lead.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 28 [Special].—Bradley Tech downed Augustana college, 14 to 0, today before 6,500 in a one sided Illinois College conference game. It was Bradley's thirteenth straight victory and gave the Peoria team a good chance to retain its conference championship.

Don Case, quarter back star of the winning team, got the first touchdown during the opening period after his teammate, Ken Olson, had run forty-nine yards following an Augustant fumble. Olson, McCall, and Schindler carried the ball to the 16 yard line and Case plunged off tackle for the final five yards. Chuck Pitcher made the extra point.

Augustana fumbled again in the second period and set Bradley up for the second marker. A long pass, Olson to O'Brien, put the ball on Augustana's 6 yard line. Olson plunged thru to the 1 yard line and counted on the next attempt. Pitcher's second conversion made it 14 to 0.

Paul Hoglund, Augie half back, took the offensive honors for the locals with Capt. Bob Crist playing well at guard. The lineup:

AUGUSTANA [0].		BRADLEY [14].
Nelson	L. E.	Kiefer

Marquette's Finish Beats Arizona, 13-6

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28 [Special].—Marquette spotted the University of Arizona an early touchdown and then fought back to win, 13 to 6, before a homecoming crowd of 10,000 here today.

The Hilltoppers, scoring their first victory at home since the Duquesne game of 1937, tied the score in the third quarter and, after several threats, finally clinched the game in the fourth quarter.

Arizona, after an early flurry in the opening quarter, never threatened but fought brilliantly on defense. The Hilltoppers made six first downs and the Wildcats eleven.

Arizona Drives 60 Yards.

Arizona asserted surprising power in the first five minutes of the game by marching to a score from its 40 yard line, principally thru fine gains by Half Back Johnny Black. Black climaxed the push with a twenty-two yard romp thru the line for the touchdown. His attempted conversion for the extra point was wide.

Another Wildcat drive late in the first quarter was stopped on Marquette's 8 yard line when Bill Burke recovered Black's fumble. Shortly before the half ended Marquette made it first serious threat when a pass from Jim Richardson to Johnny Goodyear was good to Arizona's 12 yard line.

Marquette received the third quarter kickoff and on the second play Richardson passed from his own 40 yard line to Don Vosberg. He took the ball on the enemy 25 yard line and raced to a touchdown. Bob Kemnitz failed to add the extra point, however, and the score was tied, 6-6.

Renzel Crashes Over.

Fine punting by Full Back Doug Renzel kept Arizona in trouble in the second half, but the Hilltoppers were unable to capitalize on various opportunities. Finally, in the fourth quarter, the Wildcats kicked from behind their goal line to their 26 yard line. Richardson's pass to Vosberg made a first down on the 13 yard line. Richardson and Renzel added another first down on the 1 foot line and Renzel crashed over. Kemnitz converted to make it 13 to 6. Lineups:

KENTUCKY, 21; XAVIER, 0.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 28 (AP).—Fighting against superior power, Xavier university fell before the University of Kentucky today, 21 to 0.

Dartmouth Overcomes Harvard, 16-0

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 28 [Special]. — Dartmouth maintained its clean slate today by conquering a spirited Harvard eleven, 16 to 0. The Hanover team was pretty well bottled up by the Harvard defenders in the first period. In the second, however, the Indians succeeded in knifing thru the Harvard line for a touchdown as the result of a thirty-eight yard run by Bill Hutchinson, and from that point the visitors definitely asserted their power.

They registered another score in the third period when Sanford Courter booted a twenty-six yard placement kick and tacked on a touchdown in the closing quarter as Jim Bauman hurled a forward pass from the Harvard 10 yard line to Bob Krieger in the end zone.

PRINCETON, 26; BROWN, 12.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28 [Special].—Princeton paid little attention to the jinx that has marred its previous meetings in Palmer stadium with Brown and routed the Bruins, 26 to 12, today before 15,000. Except for the third period which saw the visitors in a rally that accounted for both their touchdowns, Princeton held the upper hand.

On the second play of the game, Bob Peters, Tiger left half, dashed 67 yards for the opening touchdown. Bob Hinchman kicked the extra point. A safety and touchdown left the score 16 to 0 at the half.

In the third period Brown, starting from its own 48, passed and ran to the 5 with Blount going over on the next play. It was Brown's first score in three games. The attempt for the point failed. Brown then put on another touchdown drive of sixty-four yards, but Princeton came to life again in the final quarter to hold the Bruins in check and add ten points more to its own total.

NORTH CAROLINA, 30; PENN, 6.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28 [Special].—North Carolina played Pennsylvania off its feet today, winning, 30 to 6, after the Quakers had led at the end of the first period, 6 to 0. It was Penn's worst defeat since the Notre Dame rout of 60 to 20 in 1930. Jim Lalanne starred for the winners, his running, passing, and kicking being mainly responsible for all North Carolina's touchdowns. Lalanne did not enter the game until the second period, but from then on it was all North Carolina.

ARMY WINS, 46 TO 13.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP).—Army today cast aside the uncertainty that marked its previous performances with a crushing second half offensive display that buried Ursinus college, 46 to 13.

After Jack Hatch opened the scoring with a plunge from the 4 yard line, Fred Yeager of Army provided the longest run of the day when he intercepted a pass by Leroy Dawson and raced eighty yards to tally. Frank Waddell, who counted twice, contributed a sixty-five yard run for his second touchdown in the fourth period.

New York, Oct. 28 [Special].—A Georgia team that was completely outclassed in the first half came back today in the second half to come within an ace of setting back New York university but saw its hopes fade as two field goal attempts inside the 15 yard line failed, leaving New York with a 14 to 13 victory.

Just a few minutes before half time, with N. Y. U. leading, 14 to 0, the two teams staged a free for all fist fight in the center of the field. Joe Frank of N. Y. U. was set to gather in a pass when Knox Eldredge hooked his arm and the ball fell away. Frank turned and threw a right hand. As he and Eldredge mixed it other players joined in and things really hummed until officials broke it up.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP).—Villanova shook loose a sophomore speedster, Joe Behot, for an eighty-two yard run to conquer Arkansas university's heavier Razorbacks, 7 to 0, today before 20,000. Behot sliced thru the left side of the Arkansas line, cut back to the right, and outran a half dozen pursuers to score the game's only touchdown half way thru the third quarter.

HOLY CROSS GETS A BREAK; USES IT TO ROUT COLGATE

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 28 (AP).—Holy Cross mixed a strong running game with an effective and tricky passing attack today to romp to a 27 to 7 triumph over Colgate's Red Raiders, before 15,000 shivering fans at Fitton field.

The Crusaders were helped by a lucky break in scoring the first touchdown. Colgate had marched steadily for sixty-five yards. Then Al Klasoskus, who went in for Malinowski, took charge. Reaching up to intercept a Colgate pass on his 27 and darting to his left behind perfectly forming interference, the bulky sophomore scored without a Raider getting close.

ONLY 10 MEN DIE FOR RUTGERS, BUT IT WINS ANYWAY

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 28 (AP).—Rutgers remained undefeated today by trouncing Lehigh, 20 to 6, in Rutgers stadium before 8,000. The Scarlet scored twice in the first period and then clinched the game with another touchdown in the final quarter. Lehigh scored in the last period while Rutgers had only ten men on the field after Scarlet substitutes poured into the game and mixed up the count. The score was allowed.

Chicago Wins Roller Derby Game in Overtime Period

Nine thousand fans watched the roller Derby game go into overtime last night in the Coliseum before the Chicago team won over the Canadian squad, 16 to 15. However, in accumulated points for the four nights of skating the Canadians lead, 54 to 52.

MISSOURI BEATS IOWA STATE BY RUSHING, 21 TO 6

Remains Tied for Lead in Big Six.

Ames, Ia., Oct. 28 (AP).—Missouri, striking three times in the first half, rushed thru Iowa State, 21 to 6, in a Big Six football game before approximately 12,000 homecomers today.

Missouri, with its passer, Paul Christman, on the sidelines the first half, pounded thru Iowa State for two touchdowns in the first quarter and added a third in the second period on Dan Wager's pass to Ronald King in the end zone. It was Missouri's second conference victory and kept it in a tie for the Big Six lead.

OKLAHOMA WINS, 41-0.

Norman, Okla., Oct. 28 (AP).—Oklahoma's undefeated Sooners, crushed the Oklahoma Aggies, 41 to 0, today before 28,000, the largest crowd in the 34 year history of the teams' rivalry.

The Aggies were helpless before the slashing ground and passing attack by which the Big Six champions scored six touchdowns. Oklahoma scored twice in each of the second, third and fourth quarters.

NEBRASKA WINS, 25-9.

Manhattan, Kas., Oct. 28 (AP).—Herman Rohrig's eighty yard return of a Kansas State punt was inadequate today when Nebraska twice shook loose Butch Luther on deep reverses in the third quarter to triumph, 25 to 9, before 15,000.

Both of Luther's runs were made from the same formation Nebraska used to gain a tie with Indiana and defeat Minnesota in earlier games. Both were for twenty-four yards, but he crossed the goal on only one. The triumph kept Nebraska in a tie for the Big Six lead with two victories.

Kent Duwe, a sophomore, crashed sixty yards in eight plays in the second quarter to set up Kansas State's field goal. With the ball on Nebraska's 14 yard line the injured Jim Brock was hurried from the dressing room and kicked the ball between the posts. Less than a minute later Rohrig made his run.

and early in the second period, the Boilermakers jumped out in front when Half Back Mike Byelene passed to Right End Dave Rankin from the 37 yard line. Rankin gathered in the ball on the 5 yard line and galloped over. Fred Montague missed the place kick.

The tide turned suddenly when Sanders made a neat punt return in the waning minutes of the quarter to the Purdue 27 yard line. On a well executed reverse, Roche raced seventeen yards on the second play to the Boilermaker 9 yard line, and Johnson followed with a dash to the 5.

Then came one of the costly penalties. An offside on third down gave Santa Clara the ball on the Boilermaker 1 yard stripe, but Purdue held for downs, taking over the ball on downs on the 8 inch line. The effort, however, apparently was tiring.

Santa Clara Goes Over.

PENN STATE AND SYRACUSE PLAY 6-6 TIE IN SNOW

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP).—Syracuse and Penn State each took advantage of an early break to score today, and then settled down to fight a bitter 6 to 6 stalemate thru a wind whipped snow squall before a shivering crowd of 13,000.

The Syracuse score came before the game was a minute old. Penn State fumbled on the first play and Hank Piro of Syracuse recovered six yards from the goal line. In two plays, Cliff Wilson went over for the touchdown. Late in the same period Johnny Petrella went four yards for Penn State's touchdown after a Syracuse punt was blown back by the wind to Syracuse's 13 yard line.

99 Yard Run on Fumble Breaks 13-13 Tie.

New York, Oct. 28 [Special].—Trailing at half time, 13 to 6, Fordham rallied to beat Pittsburgh today, 27 to 13.

It was the first time since 1923 that Pittsburgh had suffered defeats in two consecutive games.

Fordham's runs won the game at the outset of the final period when it seemed they were pinned to the wall in defeat. They won when Vince Dennery, left end, grabbed a goal line fumble out of the air and galloped ninety-nine yards to a touchdown.

That broke a 13 to 13 tie and made the final touchdown by Dom Principe an anticlimax.

CLEMSON, 15; NAVY, 7.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 28 (AP).—A rugged and alert Clemson football team turned back the Navy eleven here today, 15 to 7, before 18,000. The southerners scored a touchdown and a safety in the first quarter, increased their margin to 15 points with another touchdown in the fourth quarter, but faltered slightly thereafter to permit the Middies to score.

A lateral pass play gave Clemson its first touchdown. From the Navy 48 Chuck Timmons gained twelve yards, then lateraled to Shad Bryant, who raced the remaining thirty-six yards. Norwood McElween's place kick failed. Late in the third quarter Walter Cox intercepted a Navy pass on the 43, the interception paving the way for an Aubrey Rion-Maness touchdown pass.

Spartans Win, 13-7; Score in Last Minute

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 28 [Special].—A twenty-three yard run by Wyman Davis, with 36 seconds remaining to play, pulled a game out of the fire and enabled Michigan State to register a 13 to 7 victory over Illinois Wesleyan this afternoon before 17,000 chilled spectators at Macklin Field.

State was trailing by 1 point when Davis shot thru the left side of his own line and crossed the goal line with State's margin of victory. Les Bruckner added the final point from placement.

The teams played on even terms for the first 13 minutes of the opening quarter. The Spartans then started a sustained drive from their own 14 yard line, which terminated when Duane Crosthwaite went over from the Wesleyan 13 yard line. Lyle Rockenbach missed the extra point.

Illinois Wesleyan's only scoring opportunity came late in the second quarter when Clem Eiden recovered a Spartan fumble on State's 24 yard line. Bob Morrow picked up twelve yards and Chet Wetterlund tossed a short pass to Frank Soeka on State's 6 yard line. He then passed to Bob Lenahan in the end zone. Morrow added the point from placement.

State rolled up a total of 306 net yards against 42 for the Titans, but poor ball handling and pass interception cost them several opportunities. The lineups:

PITTSBURGH ADDS ALBANY CLUB TO FARM SYSTEM

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates of the National baseball league today announced a working agreement with Albany, N. Y., of the class A eastern league.

The working agreement with the Knoxville, Tenn., club of the southern association will not be renewed for 1940, but one or more other minor league clubs soon will be added to the Pirate farm system under working agreements, it was said.

Carnegie's Condit Makes Impression on Irish Line

Merlyn Condit, Carnegie Tech's outstanding half back, cuts thru center of Notre Dame's line for short gain in game in Pittsburgh. Bill Kerr (No. 42), Irish end, and Tom Gallagher (No. 84), Notre Dame tackle, join in stopping the play. Notre Dame triumphed, 7 to 6, for its fifth straight victory of the season.

was first down on the Irish 6 yard line. Condit drove over for a touchdown on his third successive plunge thereafter. Then came McIntyre's blocking feat.

Today's victory kept Notre Dame's record clear, the Irish having conquered Purdue, Georgia Tech, Southern Methodist, and Navy in previous weeks. They have now won 16 of their last 17 games.

Tho the first half was uneventful the spectators were kept on edge thruout the second period. Heedless of the occasional gusts of rain and flurries of snow that were blown down from fast moving clouds, they never made a move toward an exit until the last play. For it seemed as tho anything might happen—and it very nearly did.

Kerr vs. Carnegie Again.

Figures on yardage and first downs show how evenly the teams were matched. Each made only four first downs. Notre Dame made 160 yards by rushing, but the Carnegie forwards were so aggressive at breaking thru that the Irish lost 22 for a net of 138. Carnegie gained 157 and lost 15 for 142 net. Each team threw eight forward passes, and the only one completed was that freak affair from Condit to Kerr to White.

Thus Condit and Kerr were key men in the two breaks that led to touchdowns. Incidentally, this is the second consecutive year that Kerr has scored the touchdown that beat Carnegie. Last season he went over on an end around play from the 7 yard line.

Condit gave a distinguished performance from his position as Carnegie's left half back. His brilliant work reached its peak in the fourth quarter march to a touchdown.

Scots Begin March.

After Notre Dame's only sustained drive had been stopped on the Carnegie 12 yard line, the Scots launched a counter attack. On the second play, Condit swept wide around his right end behind excellent blocking and galloped forty yards to Notre Name's 40 yard line.

Then George Muha ran the other end for eight yards. White hammered center for four and Condit, after faking a pass, went thru the line for another eight. White made it first down on the 18 yard line. After three plays had netted only three yards, Condit dropped back to pass.

Three Notre Dame forwards rushed in to smother him. As he let the ball go, Kerr hit it with his hand. It took an erratic bounce high and off to the right. White, who had been carrying out a blocking assignment, grabbed it and stamped his way to the 6 yard line. Then Condit delivered the three smashes that put it over.

It's Mr. Condit's Day.

Condit handled the ball forty times in the course of the afternoon. Nineteen times he carried it on rushes, gaining seventy-four yards, an average of four per attempt. Once he intercepted a pass and returned it fourteen yards. He received six punts, returning them for a total of ninety-one yards, an average of fifteen. He threw two passes, one being completed for nine yards. He had twelve punts that averaged 37 yards.

Condit also cut off what would have been a certain Notre Dame touchdown. Lou Zontini, receiving a punt on his own 25 yard line, dodged, sidestepped, hesitated, and ran like an antelope until he had shaken off half a dozen Carnegie tacklers. A retinue of Irish blockers gathered around him and no one but Condit was between him and the goal. Condit nailed him on Carnegie's 47 yard line.

That one Notre Dame march was launched late in the third quarter. It started when Steve Sitko received a punt on his 18 yard line and returned it to the 36. With Milt Piepul, Bernie Crimmins, Joe Thesing and Ben Sheridan making long gains, they advanced to first down on Carnegie's 20 yard line.

Irish Drive Bogs Down.

Then Sheridan slipped on one attempt and two end around plays failed, Frank Biagi carrying the ball on one of them and Johnny O'Brien on the other. On fourth down, Sheridan tried to pass, found no receiver and ran eight yards, failing to make first down. Both lineups were well sprinkled with reserves when that march took place.

Carnegie missed one scoring opportunity early in the game. Condit was the leader in this attack also. After his punt had rolled dead on Notre Dame's 4 yard line he caught Bob Saggau's return kick on the Irish 45 yard line and ran to the 14. Three plays netted two yards. Then Muha failed on a place kick from the 19 yard line.

Notre Dame was without the services of Saggau after the first few minutes of the game. This fleet half back wrenched a leg and was withdrawn.

WRIGHT JUNIOR COLLEGE BEATS CONCORDIA, 7 TO 0

LANDIS PROBING GAMBLER'S PASS TO BALL PARKS

Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis was continuing his investigation yesterday in connection with a charge that a reputed professional gambler had carried a pass good for all professional baseball parks in the country which listed him as a scout for the Dallas club of the Texas league.

Owner George Schepps of the Dallas club was given a "clean bill of health" by the commissioner Friday.

"That man didn't have a pass sponsored by the Dallas club after I took control at the end of the 1938 season," Schepps said. "Landis recognized that fact and cleared the present ownership."

CROSS-COUNTRY TITLE IS WON BY MAINE TOWNSHIP

Maine Township High school won the West Suburban conference 2 mile cross-country championship for the fifth consecutive year yesterday at Maine. Capt. Jack Frankhauser crossed the line in 10:40.2 to lead his team to victory.

Maine scored 41 points, Downers Grove finished second with 62, York was third with 83, Riverside fourth with 94, and La Grange fifth with 96. P. Kilgore and J. Willi, captains of the Downers Grove and La Grange squads, respectively, placed second and third. Two other members of the winning squad finished among the first ten, Howard Patterson was seventh, and Lester Habben, ninth.

TULANE PLAYER RUNS 106 YARDS IN 18 TO 6 VICTORY

New Orleans, La., Oct. 28 (AP).—Mighty Tulane, featuring Bob Kellogg, turned on the power again today and routed the University of Mississippi Rebels, 18 to 6.

Kellogg, 165 pound half back from Wynne, Ark., thrilled the 35,000 fans in the first and third quarters with a 106 yard dash to a touchdown, and a 24 yard sprint without interference thru the entire Ole Miss team for another.

Tulane scored its other touchdown late in the game when Burton [Buddy] Banker intercepted Junior Hovious' pass on the Rebel 45 yard line and raced over the goal line. Hovious saved his team from a shutout in the final quarters. He returned the kick off thirty yards and then dropped back to pass. Finding no receiver open, he sprinted thru Tulane's defense for twenty-six yards. Then he began to fling passes right and left, Chick Gladding catching the touchdown pass.

Kellogg made his amazing run in the second quarter when he took the ball in the end zone and behind strong interference raced the length of the gridiron. Lineup:

TENNESSEE WINS 18TH.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 28 (AP).—Tennessee's vaunted attack clicked for only one quarter today, but it was long enough to bowl over the little Mercer, 17 to 0. It was the Volunteers' 18th consecutive triumph.

Tennessee punched over two touchdowns in the first quarter, and marched down to the 3 yard line for a field goal by Fred Newman in the second.

L. S. U., 12; VANDERBILT, 6.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 28 (AP).—Louisiana State's forward passing combination, Leo Bird to Ken Kavanaugh, proved too much today for Vanderbilt, the Tigers winning, 12 to 6, before 10,000. Kavanaugh strengthened his bid for national honors by taking a fifteen yard toss from Bird and scoring before the game was four minutes old. It was his eighth touchdown this season and his ninth was recorded early in the third period when a thirty-three yard pass culminated a seventy yard march.

TECH, 7; AUBURN, 6.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 28 (AP).—A kick after touchdown in the fourth quarter gave Georgia Tech a 7 to 6 victory over Auburn in a Southeastern conference game today. Auburn scored in the first quarter on a thirty-six yard drive, but McGowen's kick for the extra point failed.

Tech began its touchdown drive for victory from its own 35, Ector plunging over from the 2 yard line. Roy Goree kicked the game winning point.

ALABAMA WINS 7-0.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oct. 28 (AP).—Alabama power was too much for Mississippi State today and the Crimson Tide won a desperately fought 7 to 0 victory before 16,000 homecoming day fans. Alabama scored on a thirty yard march in the first quarter, Holt Rast taking a four yard pass from Charley Boswell for the touchdown. Hayward Sanford added the point.

Ends Score 4 Touchdowns as Virginia Wins, 26 to 6

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—The University of Virginia walloped William and Mary, 26 to 6, before 7,500 today. Ends accounted for all of the Cavaliers' touchdowns, Jim White, sophomore star, tallying three, and Nick Gianakos adding the other. Bull Dudley kicked two placements for extra points. Charlie Gondak took a twenty yard pass from Hal Burchfield and went over for the Indian touchdown in the second period.

pions of the west still is a question this game left unanswered. It was no contest from the point of ascertaining what Michigan's line will accomplish against later opponents or whether Michigan blockers will bowl over other defenders as easily as they opened the way this afternoon.

Michigan played smoothly, with keen judgment, and speedily rolled up the required points. Of course, it is unfair to single out Harmon from the other Wolverines, but not since the days of Red Grange has a half back of his speed and ability flashed across the Western conference horizon.

There's Evashevski and the Line.

Harmon runs explosively, with a sprint that surprises tacklers and frequently crushes those he does not leave grasping futilely for a form that has passed even as a shadow flits over the wall and is gone. His fifty-nine yard run today on a reverse is emphasis. Harmon took the ball from Kromer and then, without back field protection, skirted the right flank of Yale's line, straightened out down the east sideline and literally sprinted away from astounded secondary defenders.

Harmon's athletic genius is counterpointed by the excellent blocking of Evashevski and the spirited charge of the linemen. Moreover, his threat is balanced by the unusually effective drives of Westfall and the passing and kicking of Kromer, who today returned to action for the first time since Michigan's opening game.

Seymour Punts Well.

In the first Michigan assault which was wrecked by Yale's goal line stand, Harmon tossed two forward passes, the second going into the flat to Evashevski who scooted along the east side line for fourteen yards and a first down on Yale's 11. Four plays, however, gained only eight yards and Hovey Seymour, Yale right half, kicked out. Seymour made quite a show of punting this afternoon, one of his kicks sailing nearly seventy yards in the air. Except for Seymour, Burr's late passing, and the defensive play of Capt. Joseph Stack, Yale center, the point disparity would have been far greater.

Michigan's first scoring march started with Westfall's nine yard plunge inside Yale's right tackle from Michigan's 30 yard line. Harmon swept past Yale's defensive left end, William Zilly, for forty-four yards, then followed with a thrust at guard for three yards. Kromer plunged three yards and then Harmon, from an outside position after the shift, shot inside of Zilly and scored. Tom ran over Harold Whiteman, left half back, on the 3 yard line.

Kromer Makes Second Score.

The second march started in the final play of the first period and ended two minutes later after five additional plays with Kromer cutting over right guard for four yards and the touchdown. In this sixty-nine yard attack Harmon had successive runs of one yard, thirty-one yards, a loss of three yards, and then thirteen yards before Kromer's pass to Evashevski set up the touchdown.

Michigan's third touchdown required eleven plays to advance forty-nine yards, Harmon scoring on fourth down from the 1 foot line after he, Kromer, and Westfall had been stopped with less than two yards to go by Yale's eight man line. With the score 21 to 0, Yale had been permitted only eleven plays from scrimmage.

Michigan's final touchdown came on the sixth play of the second half. After Seymour had kicked to Kromer on Michigan's 33, Harmon cracked the line for eight yards, Westfall was held without gain, and then Tom ran fifty-nine yards for the score.

Yale Finally Makes It.

In the last quarter Yale advanced to Michigan's 37 yard line, again to Michigan's 42 before carrying all the way. Knowing line plays could not gain, Burr threw thirteen passes, his eight completions accounting for all except eight of the eighty-eight yards gained. On the next to last in the series of completions, Burr passed to Tom Lussen, substitute left end, for first down on the Michigan one foot line. Lussen leaped over Harmon's head to make the catch.

Then, after Seymour had lost four yards and two passes had failed, Burr shot a short pass into territory defended by Kodros and Harmon. Wood took the ball in the scramble and fell directly on the goal line. Howard Kaye was substituted and he place kicked the point.

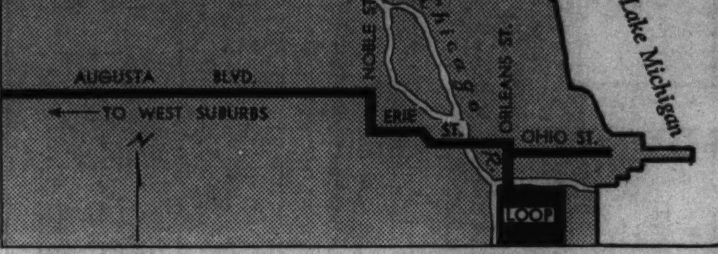
Improved Route to Downtown



New pavement on Noble and Erie streets forms a connection with Augusta boulevard as indicated on the map. Survey is under way for signs and signals on this connection.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

"BUT FOR THE GRACE OF GOD."

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Recently a car struck and slightly injured a pedestrian at Wabash avenue and Randolph street. Much unfair and unjust criticism has been given this case by the Safety court and newspapers, because of the lamentable fact that the driver of the car was operating an automobile despite the fact that his legs are partially paralized. I know nothing of the circumstances of the accident, nor am I acquainted with the persons involved, but as a fair minded citizen, who would object as strenuously as any one else to being run over, I feel that an injustice is being done to all handicapped drivers, inasmuch as they are immediately judged guilty, irrespective of evidence, and must prove their innocence, whereas a drunken or feeble minded driver is at least given the benefit of the doubt until proved otherwise. This, to me, is a throwback to that barbaric, but still human parttime of kicking a man when he's down.

I am well acquainted with several visibly handicapped persons and have no fear of their capabilities as drivers. I definitely prefer them to some brawny, athletic idiots I am also forced at times to ride with.

I cannot follow the logic that dictates how an automobile should be driven. Just because the first inventors designed the clutch for the left foot, and the brake for the right foot, does not mean that a car cannot be operated any other way. Each handicapped person has a thoro knowledge of his incapabilities, and if he uses his brain to overcome these by mechanical means, he is but being progressive along with the rest of mankind. Also, it must be remembered, that his physical shortcomings have, thru years of experience, caused a sharpening of the senses, a quickening of the reflexes, and the development of an instinctive knowledge of how to handle a crisis.

I am sure handicapped drivers do not cause all the accidents, nor do they participate in any appreciable percentage of accidents. Let us not cover up the inadequacy of our safety laws, or the carelessness of some drivers by persecuting a man who carries enough of a burden as it is.

"But for the grace of God, there go I."

PARKING SLOWS BUSES.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Note in your article of the 22d a picture showing that double parking impedes and menaces traffic.

In conjunction with this would like to call your attention to Seneca street between Pearson street north to Walton place and DeWitt place from Walton to Pearson street. Both of these streets are exceptionally narrow with no parking signs, a number of the hotels in this vicinity provide for their tenants private lots for parking. It is surprising how you will find cars parked on parkways and sidewalks, on both sides, making only one lane of traffic. This of course interferes with our transportation bus line, the only one we have in this section.

Also at the other end of the bus route at the Union depot between Adams and Jackson on Franklin street, the bus service on which this district depends is slowed up considerably by parking. It will be a great assistance to the public in this district if a photographic survey was made on the points mentioned above and I am sure it would aid greatly.

OGDEN AND DAMEN.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—I cannot understand why there is no stop light at Ogden and Damen avenues, for it is a dangerous place whether one is walking or riding. The fact that there are so many people working in that vicinity and have to fight their way across daily, under hazardous conditions, should surely warrant one.

Something should be done before the cold, slippery weather arrives.

EASILY SATISFIED.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Instead of superhighways why not put 22d street from Ashland to Halsted in such shape that broken springs, etc., will not result when driving down this much traveled street?

H. H. E.

DOUBLE PARKING.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—I note with a great deal of satisfaction in today's Tribune that your efforts in behalf of ending the inexcusable double parking menace are bearing fruit.

I think that THE TRIBUNE could render the motoring public no greater service at this time than to follow up the police drive on this menace with concentrated publicity, pictures, and the like, making the public conscious of the effort at reform while it is hot.

My experience, which includes a great deal of driving in all parts of this country and when at home, some 50 miles or more per day in Chicago city limits, has shown me that the prevalence of this traffic delay menace in Chicago is attended by the most cynical disregard for the other fellow that I have ever seen.

While the curse against motoring convenience is indulged in by many nonbusiness cars, I have found that the lack of consideration of the ordinary industrial or commercial driver in leaving all types of delivery vehicles in the way is an apparent part of their generally unlovely character, and in my estimation should be treated by the police most cavalierly until the injury to their and their employer's pocketbooks brings results.

The basis for this conclusion may be found without driving very far about this city any day and observing the number of delivery vehicles of every description that are left out in the to-left-of-curb-car area when open spaces along the curb may frequently be observed one or two car lengths forward or to rear of the offending car and often an open space at the side of the car so slothfully parked.

I cannot see why wherever these flagrant cases are found, all or any of the traffic detail take care of such without mercy, nor why the ordinary beat policeman should not be instructed to write tickets for such. Policemen on beat are supposed to be there as safeguards of the public law and safety and are supposed to take malefactors into custody for all kinds of offenses. There is no good reason why police should not include these offenders against public convenience. Hope you go after this in a big way.

OBJECTIONABLE TRAFFIC LIGHT.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 25.—Can you tell me why it is that a traffic light stops heavy traffic on Indianapolis boulevard at the spur of the New York Central railroad in the north part of Hammond?

There is absolutely no cross traffic; yet, lines of cars are stopped here every Sunday by a red light. I have heard that the light was put up there to protect workers in the various plants. This is a good idea, but there is no sense in having the light work at any time except during the morning and evening rush hours. Particularly is there no sense in having it work on Sundays.

A traffic policeman situated at this point would be a better bet than the light. The Indiana state highway department ought to take it out.

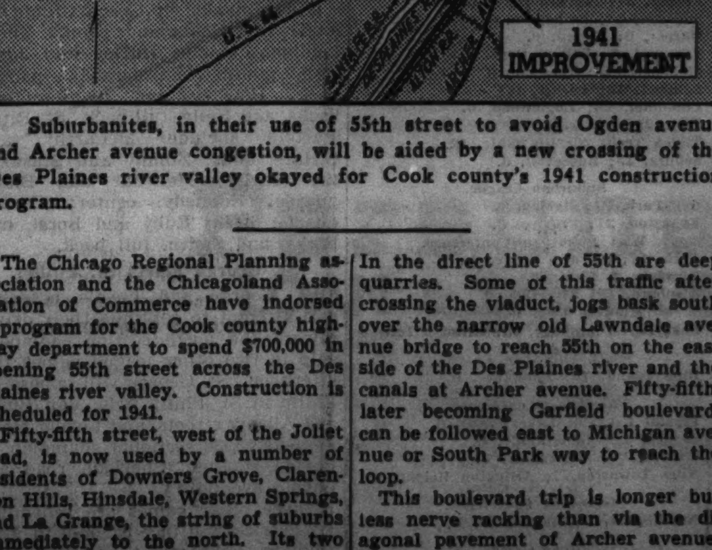
CHICAGO'S AUTO SHOW TO OPEN ON SATURDAY

The 40th annual Chicago automobile show will open in the International Amphitheater, Halsted and 43d streets, at 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, continuing until 11 p. m. Thereafter daily, including both Sundays, thru Nov. 12 the hours will be from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.

The management, a committee of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, anticipates an attendance for the nine days to exceed last year's record. The admissions for the eight days of the 1938 show were announced as 310,000.

This is the only opportunity to inspect all of the 1940 models under a single roof. A stage performance, at 3:30 and 9 o'clock each afternoon and evening, will present the new cars with music and girls.

$700,000 Project for 55th Street



Suburbanites, in their use of 55th street to avoid Ogden avenue and Archer avenue congestion, will be aided by a new crossing of the Des Plaines river valley okayed for Cook county's 1941 construction program.

The Chicago Regional Planning association and the Chicagoland Association of Commerce have indorsed a program for the Cook county highway department to spend $700,000 in opening 55th street across the Des Plaines river valley. Construction is scheduled for 1941.

Fifty-fifth street, west of the Joliet road, is now used by a number of residents of Downers Grove, Clarendon Hills, Hinsdale, Western Springs, and La Grange, the string of suburbs immediately to the north. Its two lane bituminous macadam pavement is an escape from the congestion of Ogden avenue.

At Joliet road, east bound traffic turns northwest to use the U. S. 66 viaduct over the belt railroad. In the direct line of 55th are deep quarries. Some of this traffic after crossing the viaduct, jogs back south over the narrow old Lawndale avenue bridge to reach 55th on the east side of the Des Plaines river and the canals at Archer avenue. Fifty-fifth, later becoming Garfield boulevard, can be followed east to Michigan avenue or South Park way to reach the loop.

This boulevard trip is longer but less nerve racking than via the diagonal pavement of Archer avenue. Furthermore, for destinations at the north end of the central business district, the boulevard route at times is faster, since Archer leads into the southwest corner of the central business district.

STOP SIGNS AND MARKERS NEEDED FOR THRU ROUTE

Noble and Erie Streets to Be Surveyed.

BY HAL FOUST.

An installation of stop signs and traffic lights is about all that is needed to complete a fair connection between Augusta boulevard and the central business district. This boulevard from western suburbs has for ten years ended on the east in congested Elston and Milwaukee avenues, more than two miles from State and Madison streets.

This gap between the boulevard terminal and traffic destinations has been closed by $305,000 worth of pavement laid by the Cook county highway department this year. The route lacks markers to be followed by drivers unfamiliar with the local geography and the new improvements. And it also lacks stop signs and lights to protect this travel from cross traffic.

Noble Street Completed.

A couple of weeks ago the county highway department completed its pavement of Noble street, 1400 west, from Augusta boulevard to Erie street. This summer, the county paved Erie between Noble and Halsted street. With the exception of a narrow old viaduct over railroad yards beside the Erie street bridge over the Chicago river, signs and signals could make this a good route east from Augusta to Orleans street. Orleans is a good entrance to the west side of the loop. Ohio is a broad street for travel from Orleans to the near north side and Streeterville.

"We're putting a survey crew on this route next week," Leslie Sorenson, city traffic engineer, said yesterday. "Our field observations will be reported to the council traffic committee which will decide where traffic lights should be installed and whether these sections of Noble and Erie should become stop streets."

Urge Thru Street.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, and Carl A. Barrett, president of the Illinois Automobile club, both urged that the council make this connection a "thru street." Ald. George D. Kells is chairman of the council traffic committee.

Hayes also addressed a letter to Kendrick Harger, district engineer of the Illinois highway department, urging that the Ill. 64 markers now on North avenue be placed east of Austin boulevard upon Augusta boulevard with its new connection with the central business district.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Pontiac has been greatly encouraged by the results attained at the New York Automobile show, H. J. Klingler, general manager of the Pontiac division of General Motors, said yesterday. "We are having one of the most favorable public reactions in years," he reports. Based on the number of new Pontiac cars delivered all over the United States in the first part of this month, October may easily be the biggest month Pontiac has had this year."

The Packard Motor Car company has announced the creation of a dealer advisory board designed to bring the parent company and its worldwide dealer organization into closer coöperation. M. M. Gilman, Packard president, states the objectives sought are betterment of sales and service facilities in their relation to the public, further strengthening of distributor and dealer companies and for the general improvement of the company's position in the industry.

Joseph W. Frazer, president of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., believes the development of low cost housing, decentralization of industry, declining installment charges and lower prices for motor cars should strongly influence automobile sales in the coming decade. He adds that a 40,000,000 passenger total by 1950 is entirely possible, with fair prospects of a 15,000,000 car increase in the next decade.

The Chicago Automobile Trade association in the last two weeks has added thirty-one new members, bringing its rosters to an all-time high, Lynn S. Snow, president, said yesterday. Fifteen of the additional car and truck dealers are located in Cook county and fourteen in Chicago. The remaining two are engaged in automobile financing.

R. J. Dewar has been elected president of the De Soto Dealers association for the coming twelve months. J. A. Brough and Arthur W. Rowe were elected vice president and secretary treasurer, respectively.

With cold weather in the offing, altho this has been forgotten as a result of balmy days of the last few weeks, the companies making antifreeze are warning motorists to prepare their radiators. One company said that as a result of a survey it has found that some car owners put in antifreeze as early as September and that by the middle of November 57 per cent are ready.

Lee D. Cossart, whose appointment to the position of sales manager of the Plymouth division of the Chrysler corporation recently was announced by Harry G. Moock, vice president in charge of sales, is well known in Chicago automobile circles. He was located in Chicago for five years as regional manager for one of the corporation's sales divisions.

Construction is under way at the Detroit plant of the Lincoln Motor company of a new driveaway building to cost $300,000.

DROUTH TURNS WINTER WHEAT LANDS TO DUST

Crop Reduction in West Predicted.

The rich winter wheat lands of the west and southwest are turning to dust under the severest drouth for this time of the year in history, crop experts in the district reported yesterday. Only meager rains have fallen since August as the bread grain region parches in the sun.

Observers have reported that seeding of the 1940 crop has been delayed by dusty top soil and that planted wheat has withered before sprouting. Sharp reduction of the crop, which will be harvested next June and July, has been predicted.

Plentiful rainfall and warm growing weather can still save the wheat, it was said. The approach of cold weather and the unseasonal delay in planting, however, may prove too great a handicap.

Recall Drouth In 1932.

The long dry season is reminiscent of the fall drouth of 1932, which cut the 1933 winter wheat crop to 376,000,000 bushels. This year's harvest produced 550,710,000 bushels, compared with 686,637,000 in 1938.

If the drouth takes full toll, the 1940 winter wheat harvest will be the smallest since 1932, it was said. At this time of the year the young wheat plants should be green above the soil surface and taking good hold with their roots to withstand snows and wind.

Grazing cattle should be nibbling on the green shoots, leaving the shortened plant mostly below the surface where it can protect itself best against frost. The period when the wheat lies dormant thru the winter is not distant.

Growing Period Short.

With planting delayed, the wheat which is seeded will not have sufficient growing time to gain strength to last through the winter.

Because the plant growth will be stunted, live stock will have inadequate pasturage, adding to the farmers' problem of obtaining feed.

Returning from an inspection of five hard winter wheat states—Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Texas and Colorado—H. C. Donovan, crop expert, said the moisture deficiency there is the worst he has known in 55 years of observation.

The drouth, he said, has caused farmers to defer seeding three to four weeks. Much of the seed already planted has not germinated and plants which have sprouted are weak or dying.

Nation's Supply Ample.

The wheat supply of the nation, however, will not be menaced by the possibility of a serious shortage. There is now a surplus of 2,5,000,000 bushels, a large part of which is under government loans. There will be sufficient grain to meet the country's annual requirement of about 675,000,000 bushels, crop experts said.

Despite the abnormally dry condition of the soil, Kansas farmers cooperating with the Agricultural Adjustment administration's farm program will have to plant their seed in the dust if they wish to obtain the government's crop insurance benefits.

The weather bureau has reported that in the last two months only about one-fourth of the normal rainfall fell in Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Kansas and neighboring states have not benefited much more.

Winter wheat is normally seeded in September and October. The hard and soft red winter wheat crops supply about three-quarters of the nation's annual wheat yield in normal years.

WHEAT AT MONTH'S HIGH

Buying based on reports of accentuation of drouth conditions in the winter wheat belt stimulated new gains in wheat futures yesterday. Prices rose to the highest levels in a month and to within 3 to 5 cents of the war boom peaks early in September.

Wheat futures in the Chicago market were 1⅛ to 1¼ cents higher than at Friday's close. Soy beans closed 1⅛ to 2 cents higher, with the December and May contracts selling at new seasonal highs. Corn gained ¼ to ½ cent.

Not in many years has the grain trade received such a steady stream of unfavorable crop comments from the hard winter wheat belt, brokers said. A weather bureau long range forecast indicated there would be little or no rain this week in states west of the Mississippi river with the possible exception of Montana, North Dakota, and Minnesota.

Corn and other grains and soy beans were affected by the action of wheat and prices averaged somewhat higher. Weather conditions in the main corn belt this week are expected to be generally favorable for completion of harvesting of the new corn crop. Nothing was heard regarding European demands for corn.

Soy Beans Set Export Record; Crop Is Large

Export shipments of soy beans from Chicago elevators are being made in the largest volume in the history of this crop, it was learned yesterday. Several Norwegian and Canadian vessels have left Chicago docks for foreign ports within recent weeks, and several more cargoes are scheduled for shipment before the end of the lake navigation season next month.

Grain authorities estimated about 5 million bushels of soy beans have been shipped from Chicago elevators this month, and predicted another 5 million bushels will be shipped before the end of the lake shipping season. The total shipped thus far is about twice the normal amount.

Elevators Are Filled.

Despite the large shipments, Chicago elevators are said to be filled almost to capacity, with new shipments, coming from the nearly completed harvest, amounting to as much as 600 carloads a day. Elevators downstate are clogged with soy beans, and railroad employés worked at top speed during the last week attempting to keep the flow of traffic moving.

Despite their efforts, soy bean processing mills in the Decatur area were unable to handle the incoming shipments except after much delay. At one time last week, more than 1,100 cars were on sidings in the Decatur area awaiting unloading. The railroads were operating more switch engines in the area than ever before.

Two factors account for the vast increase in business in soy beans. These are the record breaking domestic crop, and the fact that normal sources of foreign countries' supplies have been cut off as a result of the war.

This year's crop is estimated at 72 million bushels, against 54 million last year. Production in Illinois, accounting for half the national total, is placed at 41 million bushels.

Sent to Northern Europe.

Most of the export shipments from Chicago are destined for northern European countries by way of Canadian ports, it was said. Some have gone direct in ocean going vessels, and some have been sent by barge to eastern centers for transshipment abroad.

With the exception of corn, soy beans are put to more varied uses than any other major crop, and many industrial uses have been developed for the crop in recent years. Germany has been the largest consumer, using soy beans for cooking purposes and for animal feed.

Manchuria has been an important exporter of the commodity and has shipped 40 to 50 million bushels a year, much of it going to Germany thru barter arrangements. The war, however, has severely restricted these shipments.

RAILROAD PLACES $7,500,000 ORDER FOR FREIGHT CARS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP).—The booming steel industry got another boost today with the placing of a $7,500,000 freight car order by the United States Steel corporation's Bessemer & Lake Erie railroad. This railroad has been hard pressed to fill expanding demands of the corporation's units for iron ore from Lake Erie and coal.

The order for 2,050 cars requires 25,000 tons of steel which will be produced here. The cars will be fabricated in the western Pennsylvania area and will be made of rust-resisting steel.

Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company will supply 1,000 90 ton hopper cars, Pressed Steel Car company 500 50 ton gondola cars, and the Greenville Steel Car company 500 50 ton steel box cars.

WINTER STORAGE OF GRAIN NEEDS BIG LAKE FLEET

Exports Are Curtailed by Submarine Warfare.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 28 [Special].—One of the largest fleets in Great Lakes history will hold storage grain at lower lake ports this winter, vessel men predicted today. Crowded elevators at both upper and lower lake ports, and curtailment of export cargoes, due to submarine warfare, will result in the chartering of a big storage fleet, according to shippers and vessel operators.

Altho harvesting of a bumper Canadian crop has not yet been completed, Fort William and Port Arthur elevators are holding approximately 81,000,000 bushels of grain and dominion railroads have declared an embargo on the movement of grain from the interior to lake points. It is estimated that 30,000 cars are holding 43,000,000 bushels of grain on railroad tracks in the vicinity of Fort William and Port Arthur.

Elevators Near Capacity.

Elevators at Duluth and Superior are holding about 36,000,000 bushels of American grain, or only 7,000,000 short of capacity. The movement of United States grain is slowing, however, and it is reported that some Canadian grain may be sent to Duluth and Superior by rail. The movement to Buffalo, Erie, and Oswego also will be heavy if tonnage becomes available before ice closes upper lake harbors.

Grain shipments from Fort William and Port Arthur to American ports in September were the largest since a preferential tariff ended Buffalo's reign as the greatest receiving port on the lakes a number of years ago. Vessels dumped 9,385,476 bushels of Canadian wheat, 333,480 bushels of oats, 1,863,127 bushels of barley, and 285,100 bushels of rye in Buffalo elevators; 2,420,241 bushels of wheat and 191,045 bushels of barley at Erie; 1,007,532 bushels of wheat at Oswego; 131,753 bushels of oats at Duluth, and 262,074 bushels of oats at Superior.

American Ports Get Grain.

The movement of Canadian grain to American ports this month is even larger, according to shippers, and will continue to increase until convoys can be arranged for shipping grain to Great Britain thru the war zone. Vessels now engaged in the ore and coal trade will be pressed into service as grain storage boats to relieve congestion as soon as they are available.

Elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur were holding 77,181,050 bushels of wheat, 1,681,338 bushels of oats, 1,758,909 bushels of barley, 111,157 bushels of flaxseed, and 276,794 bushels of rye on Oct. 21. This represents an increase of about 48,000,000 bushels over stocks on hand at the same time a year ago.

NIAGARA HUDSON POWER TO MAKE BIG EXPANSION

Oswego, N. Y., Oct. 28 (AP).—Alfred H. Schoellkopf, president of Niagara Hudson Power corporation, announced today the steam-electric generating station under construction by Central New York Power corporation, will be immediately doubled in size.

A second turbo-generator unit equal in size to the 80,000 kilowatt unit being installed, will double capacity and cost an additional 7 million dollars. He said the two units are expected to be as efficient as any in the world and to produce a kilowatt hour of electric energy for each 85-100 of a pound of coal burned.

CHANGE LABOR ACT, BUSINESS GROUP DEMANDS

Present Law Termed Recovery Barrier.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 [Special].—Prompt and important amendment of the national labor relations act was urged today by the committee on manufacture of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Its report will be submitted to the special house committee which is to hold hearings on proposed changes in the act.

B. C. Heacock, president of the Caterpillar Tractor company of Peoria, Ill., is chairman of the trade committee.

The act in its present form "constitutes one of the most serious threats to complete economic recovery" and "legislative preferment of one class or group of citizens over another has no place in the American system," the report asserted. It also referred to the failure of past congressional committees to report remedial legislation, altho "testimony overwhelmingly supported amendments as immediately needed in the public interest."

States Its Conclusions.

Study of the act, the committee said, brought these conclusions:

"The act as administered by the labor relations board has materially increased rather than decreased the number and intensity of strikes and other forms of industrial strife."

"It has interfered with, rather than promoted, the amicable settlement of industrial disputes.

"It has disrupted, rather than fostered, friendly relations between management and workers, with resulting discord among the employés, reduced efficiency in operation, and increased costs.

"It has deprived large numbers of workers of the right which the law was presumed to protect—the right to bargain collectively thru representatives of their own choosing.

"It has fomented class distinction and class hatred.

Expansion Is Prevented.

"By subjecting management to new risks and uncertainties it has prevented the expansion of existing facilities and the creation of new facilities, so essential to the economic growth and development of this country."

The committee's proposals for amendments were:

"We recommend that the act be amended to grant to an employer the express right to petition the Labor Relations board for a determination and certification of the representatives selected by his employés for collective bargaining.

"In view of the constitutional guaranty of freedom of speech, there should be no necessity for suggesting that further guaranty in this respect be incorporated as part of a federal statute. Nevertheless, decisions of the Labor Relations board would appear to warrant an amendment of the labor relations act for this purpose. We therefore favor an amendment to provide that the act shall not interfere with or diminish the right of free speech.

Amendments Are Proposed.

"We favor amendments which will remedy conditions which arise out of combination of inconsistent functions in one body alone handling so controversial a subject as the regulation of labor relations. We propose:

"1. That the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia should be authorized and directed to set up panels of trial examiners performing judicial functions in the administration of the national labor relations act.

"2. That trial attorneys should be appointed by the department of justice.

"3. The rules of evidence applicable in courts of equity in the District of Columbia should be applied.

"The labor board has been entirely free to forget the public interest, if it is so disposed. It is accordingly recommended that the act be so amended as to provide that the board may issue complaints, alleging the use of unfair labor practices, only in those cases in which it clearly appears the public interest requires the board to undertake a proceeding."

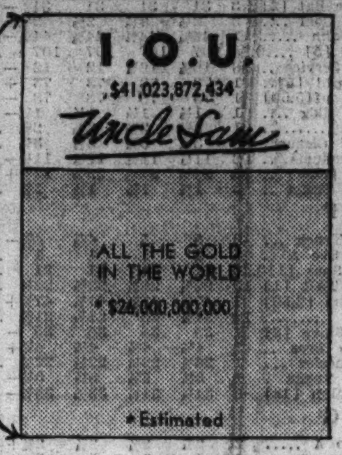
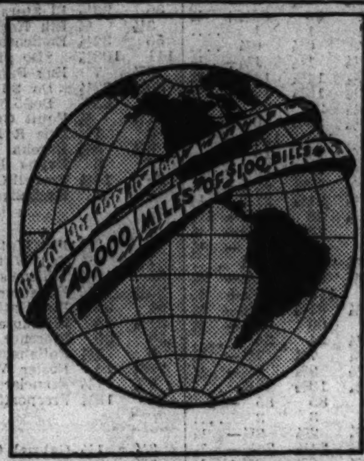
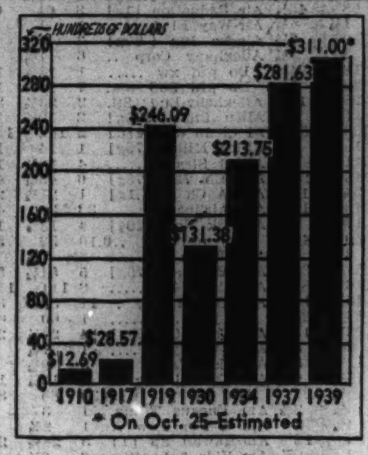
A PICTURE OF THE UNITED STATES DEBT



This chart illustrates that all the monetary gold in the world would fall far short of paying the $41,023,872,434 debt of the United States government.



The federal debt in $100 bills (end to end) would extend about 40,000 miles and encircle the earth more than one and one-half times.



This diagram shows how the federal debt has increased from $12.69 for every man, woman, and child in the United States in 1910 to $311 at present.

Britain Paves Way for Cheap War Financing

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Britain's problem of financing the war is yet to be tackled and business quarters still are awaiting the government's disclosure of finance plans.

Sir John Simon. His war budget awaited.

Suggestions of financial observers that the market is being prepared for the early issue of a big defense loan were apparently confirmed Thursday when the government shifted the bank rate for the third time since the outbreak of hostilities and reduced it to the bedrock prewar level of 2 per cent.

The main object of the operation, it seems, is to clear the way for cheaper government borrowing. Incidentally, it means an immediate saving of about $100,000,000 a year at current rates of interest payments on treasury bills.

Prices Are Soaring.

Britain already is spending more than $28,000,000 daily, according to the first wartime report issued by a British organization known as "PEP"—political and economic planning. At the same time prices are soaring, the cost of living is rising, the value of the pound sterling has fallen about 15 per cent in terms of the dollar, and overseas trade on which Britain depends for foreign exchange shows a general decline.

The emergency budget brought out by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, obviously is a stop-gap measure. Government decisions have yet to be revealed about how much of the country's wealth will be absorbed for war purposes and what combination of price control, inflation, taxation, and borrowing will be used in diverting the nation's income from civil to military needs.

Exceeds Spending Estimate.

For the current financial year, 1939-'40, the government proposed to spend eight billion dollars, about half of which was to be provided by taxation and the rest from loans. PEP figures, however, indicate that he chancellor's estimates already are being exceeded.

Britain's liquid foreign assets have been computed at about $4,688,000,000. To buy essential raw materials needed in war time the country must either realize on these assets or increase its export trade, economists say. But government red tape and rigid control of export licenses, according to PEP, have brought export business virtually to a standstill and no comprehensive scheme for its revival has yet emerged.

To loosen the fetters, PEP calls on the government to work out immediately, in consultation with industry, a scheme to allocate the nation's resources between three main priorities—military needs, essential civilian requirements, and maintenance of export trade.

PEOPLE THAT RAISE CATTLE ARE LARGEST CANNED MILK USERS

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 28 (AP).—More canned milk, in proportion to fresh milk, is used in rural areas of America than in cities, Dr. Leland Spencer of Cornell university told the International Association of Milk Dealers' convention today.

"The largest use of canned milk was found among rural families that keep no cows," he said. "Such families, interviewed in a New Jersey survey, bought 20 per cent of their milk canned. Buffalo, N. Y., has a higher consumption of canned milk than most other cities."

The largest amount of canned milk used per person, he reported, was found in the cattle country of the west—the Pacific coast states, the west north central, and the Rocky mountain sections. In cities, he said, those who used the canned product reported they did so chiefly because of cost.

The Bowman Dairy company of Chicago was announced as winner of the annual award in the large city newspaper advertising contest. The Mellody Farms dairy, Highland Park, Ill., won the small city newspaper contest.

SEARS, ROEBUCK DEALS FOR NEW WAREHOUSE SITE

Negotiations are under way for the purchase of a site for a new warehouse of Sears, Roebuck & Co., costing about $600,000, near 35th street and Ashland avenue, it was disclosed yesterday. The property is owned by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, and was formerly occupied by a plant of the Union Rolling Mill company. The plant was erected in 1863 and was the second mill to be established in Chicago.

The property fronts about 1,200 feet on Ashland avenue, 480 on Archer avenue, and about 1,150 on 35th street. In addition, about 1,800 feet of dock property fronts on the Chicago river.

British Newsprint Price Advanced to $68 a Ton

LONDON, Oct. 28 (AP).—The controled price of newsprint in the United Kingdom advanced to £17 [about $68] a ton today, an increase of 46.6 per cent since the European war started. The principal reason for the increase, the paper controler said, is the difficulty in obtaining pulp from Norway, Sweden and Finland.

Federal Debt 40,000 Miles of $100 Bills

The federal debt is 41 billion dollars. A figure of that size is small change to the astronomer who deals deftly in light years and scorns a number which will fit into a single line of type. But for the average man, to whom even a million dollars is just something he wishes he had, 41 billion dollars is nearly incomprehensible.

This debt means that the federal government owes about $311 for every man, woman, and child in the nation. For the average family of man, wife, and two children, the government owes $1,244.

Per Capita Debt Bounds.

Despite an increasing population, the per capita debt has increased nearly 25 fold in the last 30 years. In 1910 the per capita public debt was only $12.69 for a population of 92,267,000. By 1917 it had increased to $28.57. Then the United States entered the war, and in 1919 the debt had jumped to $246.09 per person.

In the booming twenties the debt was reduced, and by 1930 the government owed only $131.38 for each of the 123,091,000 persons in the country. With the advent of the depression and the New Deal, it began to climb again. In 1937 it was $281.63. Last week it was $311 for a population of 132,000,000.

Forty-one billions in gold would tip the scales at something like 36,000 tons—fighting trim for a modern battleship. The average family's portion would weigh more than two pounds. It would take 654 coal cars holding 55 tons each to haul the gold.

Fortunately, no one in Washington has to worry about the freight charges on that gold, because there just isn't that much. The world's monetary supply is estimated at only 26 to 27 billions, and the United States hoard tops the 17 billion level.

But there is plenty of paper in the world. Laid end to end, enough $100 bills to pay the debt would stretch 40,000 miles—one and one-half times around the earth—with plenty left over to keep the home fires burning.

Wheeling Steel to Build Mill Costing $1,000,000

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 28 (AP).—A new butt-weld mill to cost approximately $1,000,000 will be constructed at the nearby Benwood mills of the Wheeling Steel corporation, the firm announced today.

NATION'S TRADE CLIMBS AT RATE SELDOM SHOWN

Domestic Influences Outweigh War.

Business and industry, climbing upward at a rate rarely exceeded in the commercial history of the United States, made further progress last week in extending the advance which became pronounced after Labor day. Minor recessions in a few of the measures of industrial activity were more than offset by the more numerous advances recorded by other indices.

The European war, accelerating the improvement which had begun as a result of normal autumn factors in the domestic economy, remained an important influence, altho its stimulation was less pronounced, according to various indications.

Not Dependent on War.

Several industrial executives expressed the conviction the industrial upturn would continue if the conflict were to end overnight. Their conviction was translated into concrete terms with various announcements of plant expansion plans involving many millions of dollars. The effect of the improvement recorded to the end of last month was indicated in the earnings reports of many leading corporations, virtually all of them showing more profitable operations.

Principal indices recording recessions during the week were production of electric power, steel output, and commercial loans. These declines were offset by increases in steel mill employment, construction contracts, railway freight traffic, foreign trade, and building construction.

Index Highest Since 1937.

As measured by the Associated Press index, industrial activity was at the highest point since May, 1937. With advances recorded in 15 of the last 16 weeks, the index reached 106.9, calculated on 1929-'30 levels as 100, compared with 106.4 in the preceding week and 81.8 a year ago. The composite index and its seasonally adjusted components compared as follows:

Retail Buying Heavy.

The general public's view of the state of the nation was reflected in a Dun & Bradstreet survey of retail buying showing sales at about the high level of the preceding week, and 8 to 12 per cent above last year. That conditions in Chicago are more favorable than in other parts of the coun-

NEUTRALITY BILL ACTION FAILS TO ADVANCE STOCKS

Most Issues End Lower; Steel Group Weak.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—Passage by the senate of the amended neutrality bill failed to inspire buying of stocks today. Instead prices turned downward with losses ranging from fractions to about a point.

Stocks were firm at the opening but quotations gave way as selling pressure cropped out shortly after the start of the session. Steels, coppers, aircrafts, motors, rails, and rubbers finished lower.

A number of miscellaneous issues managed to rise against the trend but declines were in the majority at the close. Of the total of 693 issues traded, 206 finished higher as 306 declined. Sales amounted to 418,670 compared with 535,940 last Saturday.

Steel Group Weakens.

Selling of the steels developed despite indications that plant operations next week will reach a new high mark. United States Steel opened at 77, up ⅝, but in the first half hour dropped more than a point. It came back only slightly closing at 76⅛ where it had a net loss of ¼. Bethlehem turned in a similar performance and ended ⅝ lower.

Most aviation issues were weak from the start. Douglas at one time showed a loss of more than 2 points after opening fractionally lower, but made up a good deal of the deficit in subsequent dealings to close with a major fractional loss. Bendix also ran into selling that chopped a large fraction of its value.

Curtiss-Wright was an exception to the trend of the group, advancing to a new high for the year. American Airlines, which turned in a good earning statement, rose more than a point to a new 1939 high.

Curtiss-Wright Sets Peak.

Coppers eased fractionally. Utilities were firm. Rails finished with fractional losses. General Motors had a fractional loss. Chrysler, still beset by labor troubles, was weak.

Bliss and Laughlin in its debut on the New York Stock exchange opened fractionally higher but eased in later details. This was the first issue to be transferred from the curb since Sept. 8 when Consolidated Copper Mines was shifted.

COTTON

Cotton futures were in demand from mills and commission houses early yesterday, but the market eased later in sympathy with the recession in securities. Hedging pressure was also in evidence. Closing trades were .09c higher to .01c a lb lower.

Generally fair weather was forecast for this week over the western part of the cotton belt, while frequent showers are anticipated in the more eastern states.

Department of agriculture officials were said to be anxious to have a cotton loan this year, believing it will be influential in securing a favorable farm vote for continued acreage control.

Spot cotton closed .02c higher to .04c lower, with New York, 9.31c; New Orleans, 9.20c; Galveston, 8.88c, and Houston at 8.75c a lb.

BRITAIN TAKING GREATER PART OF CANADIAN COPPER

Price of Red Metal Rises in New York Market.

The office of Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada yesterday announced details of the copper purchasing agreements between Great Britain and Canadian producers. Britain will purchase 420,000,000 pounds of electrolytic copper from the companies over a half-year period at a price equivalent to a little more than 8½ cents a pound in United States funds. Payments will be made in Canadian currency.

International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., will supply over half of the total, or 237,700,000 pounds. Noranda Mines, Ltd., and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., Ltd., also will sell large amounts. The total to be purchased represents about 80 per cent of the companies' producing capacity.

Copper Futures Advance.

Copper futures at New York last week were one of the few commodity groups to move upward. Buying by French and Japanese interests, and indications that Great Britain cannot supply much copper to France were price boosting influences.

Silk was a spectacular performer on Monday, advancing sharply to the highest price in nine years. The cash staple reached a peak of $3.55½ per pound, but by the end of the week the quotation had slipped to $3.42.

Other commodities lost ground under pressure of general selling. Chicago cash hides, which sold at 16½ cents a pound a week ago, dropped to 16 cents in mid-week and were lowered to 15½ cents yesterday.

The raw sugar price was cut from 3.70 to 3.30 cents a pound on Tuesday. Yesterday's prices:

JAPAN'S MONEY LINK TO DOLLAR MAY AID TRADE

Plan Expected to Cut Into British Business.

The Japanese government's decision to link its currency with the dollar and discontinue the tie with the British pound, is expected to stimulate business between this country and Japan, foreign trade experts said yesterday. Authorities expressed the opinion the improvement may be made at the expense of Great Britain.

Japanese finance authorities were presumed to believe their currency, the yen, would fare better in the international currency relationship thru a link with the United States dollar, which is backed by huge gold reserves, rather than with the British pound and the increased degree of control exercised as a result of the war.

Gesture of Friendship.

Japanese currency had been based on the sterling rate since 1933, but prior to then had been linked with the dollar. The switch was regarded by Chicago authorities as a gesture of friendship on the part of the Japanese government as a step preliminary to the negotiation of a new trade treaty between this country and Japan.

The United States govenment several months ago notified Japan of the abrogation of the existing trade treaty, effective Jan. 1, 1940. Unless a new commercial pact is negotiated, Japan will be denied the export subsidy benefits on cotton granted on shipments to other countries. In switching the currency link to the United States, Japan followed the example of Holland, Denmark, Sweden, and other countries.

May Win British Trade.

The possibility of an increase in United States-Japanese trade at the expense of British commercial interests has been strengthened by tension resulting from various "incidents" to British nationals growing out of the Chinese-Japanese conflict, according to foreign trade representatives.

Chicago bankers, specializing in foreign trade, expect Japan to concentrate purchases in this country on equipment for use in the industrial development of Manchukuo, which has been dominated by Japan since 1932. A good share of the Japanese business which formerly went to Germany thru barter arrangements is expected to flow to this country because the European war has forced discontinuance of these transactions.

Japan is expected to enter the United States market for additional supplies of steel scrap, cotton, oil, Diesel motors, and other products, some of which formerly were supplied by Germany. Purchases are expected to be confined to bare essentials, however, and a big increase in business is not likely, it was said.

Ranks Third as Customer.

Japan ranks third as a foreign trade customer of the United States, exceeded only by England and Canada, and has maintained this rank since 1931. This country is Japan's best buyer of raw silk and textiles.

American exports to Japan totaled $135,752,543 in the first eight months of 1939, compared with $152,644,003 in the corresponding period of last year. Imports from Japan amounted to $83,337,742, against $77,229,827 a year earlier.

Statistics issued by the Japan foreign trade bureau, which maintains offices in Chicago, show that United States sales to Manchukuo increased from $11,798,000 in 1929 to $17,005,000 in 1938, after reaching a low of $1,186,000 in 1932.

MONEY, GOLD, AND SILVER

The British pound fluctuated uncertainly in foreign exchange transactions at New York yesterday, and closed with a loss of ½ cent in terms of the United States dollar. The French franc lost 0.00¼ of a cent and the Belgian belga 0.02 of a cent.

New President of Fair

JAMES STANLEY SCHOFF.

James Stanley Schoff, whose appointment as president of The Fair, Chicago, was recently announced by S. S. Kresge, was born 39 years ago at Hilton, N. Y. He is said to be one of the youngest department store top flight executives in the country.

Schoff was educated at the Hilton High school and the University of Michigan from which he was graduated in 1922. After leaving college he went with the Retail Research association. He left after eight months to enter the research department of L. Bamberger &Co., Newark, N. J.

Schoff resigned as vice president of the Bamberger store to take the presidency of The Fair. He is married and has two sons, one 6 and the other 2. He succeeds Charles S. Maginnis, who has been president of The Fair since 1938. Maginnis will remain as vice president.

UNEMPLOYMENT BELOW 9 MILLION IN SEPTEMBER

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Unemployment in the United States decreased 7 per cent in September, falling below 9,000,000 for the first time since November, 1937, the national industrial conference board estimated today. The board is a private organization largely supported by manufacturing interests.

Since last February, when the figure was estimated at 10,694,000 by the same organization, the total has decreased 1,896,000 to 8,798,000.

Total employment rose during September to 45,943,000, a gain of 685,000 or 1.5 per cent over the August estimate. New manufacturing jobs accounted for 396,000, a major part of the increase.

The government's emergency labor force declined in September for the seventh consecutive month, to a total of 2,081,000 from August's 2,228,000.

Nation's Food Bill Rises 5.2 Per Cent in September

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—Housewives paid 5.2 per cent more for food in September than they did in August. The labor department's statistician, Isador Lubin, reported today that the increase between Aug. 15 and Sept. 19 was widespread, with advances shown in all of the 51 cities in which the department conducts such surveys. Prices were higher for 41 of the 60 priced items, sugar and lard leading with increases of about 25 per cent and 35 per cent, respectively, he said.

Eggs Advance on Prospect of Decline in Production

October eggs on the Chicago Mercantile exchange advanced ½ cent a dozen yesterday on prospects of smaller production due to the colder weather. Cash prices gained ¼ to 2 cents a dozen. Fresh graded extra firsts reached 26 cents, highest point of the year. Butter trading was slow, but cash market strength encouraged buying of futures which lifted quotations on the latter 0.10 to 0.20 cent a pound. Cash prices were unchanged to ¼ cent a pound higher.

CHICAGO TRUCK EXPERTS ASSIST ARMY OF CHINA

Efficient Transportation System Is Built.

Chicago truck experts who went to China last August to build an effective transportation system for the Chinese army have been successful in their undertaking, J. L. Keeshin said, yesterday. Keeshin, who is president of Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Lines, Inc., said establishment of a working transportation system has made it possible for Chinese soldiers to fight their Japanese foes "on a full stomach."

Earlier this year, Keeshin, a Chicagoan and operator of one of the largest trucking systems in the world, undertook to help straighten out China's transportation difficulties. Inability to get supplies to the fighting men has been mentioned as one of the reasons the Chinese did not make a better showing in the field.

Sends Members of Staff.

Little has been heard of the Chicagoans since they went to the orient, but in recent weeks reports have come of Chinese successes over their foes.

"Sheahan and his aids have got the Chinese transportation system working," said Keeshin. "They have been able to get food and other vital supplies to the troops. This has increased the morale of the soldiers. A soldier fights better, he handles a bayonet better, when he has a full stomach than when he is half starved. This is well indicated by the recent victories the Chinese have scored over the Japanese."

Operate 6,000 Trucks.

Keeshin said the Chicagoans are in charge of the operation of 6,000 trucks. Many of them were bought through a $25,000,000 credit granted China last December by the Export-Import Bank of the United States. Purchases were made from the truck producing units of Chrysler, General Motors, and other automobile companies.

He disclosed that the trucks are bringing supplies to the interior of China from Burma and from Russia. The road from Burma, a British possession, is regarded as one of the most dangerous in the world. He declined to say how or from what part of Russia supplies are being brought on the ground that it would disclose a military secret. It is surmised that the Russian supplies are being carried over some of the old caravan trails.

Controled from Capital.

The Chinese truck operations are being controled from Chungking, in Szechwan province, one of the several "capitals" which China has set up in its interior far from the Japanese strength.

Keeshin said Sheahan probably will return to Chicago after the first of the year, when another member of his organization, Andrew Bassi, will take charge. Keeshin said altho he originally had planned to go to China, he now does not expect to go.

The Chinese this month are reported to have had several notable successes in fighting with the Japanese in Hunan province, southeast of Chungking. A coördinated Japanese drive against the city was reported by the Chinese to have been stopped, with the Japanese driven back over a wide area.

Chicago Bank Clearings Show Decline for Week

Bank clearings in the last week totaled $307,200,000, compared with $322,700,000 in the preceding week, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The figures follow:

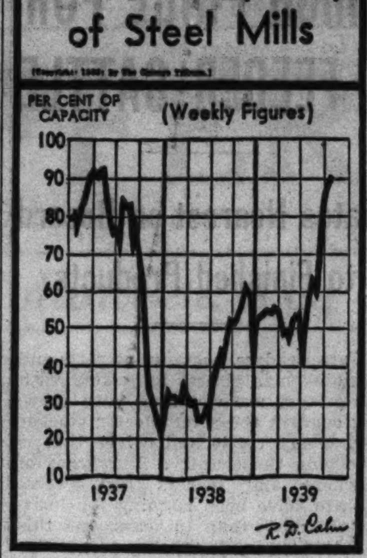
Ratio of Operations to Capacity of Steel Mills

[Copyright: 1939: by the Chicago Tribune.]



CHICAGO STEEL OUTPUT WILL SET NEW 10 YEAR HIGH

Production Is Near 90 Per Cent of Capacity.

Chicago district steel mill production this week is scheduled to increase for the eighth consecutive week, and to set a new 10 year peak for the fourth consecutive week, trade reports indicated yesterday.

The new rate will be 89.9 per cent of theoretical capacity, up 1.8 points from last week. A month ago the Chicago area mills were producing at 84.8 per cent, and a year ago at 56.4 per cent.

Gain in Pittsburgh Area.

In Pittsburgh mills will start tomorrow at 93 per cent of capacity, up 1 point from last week. All companies in the district except one are operating at practical capacity.

Shipments of pig iron from producers in the Pittsburgh area are at the highest level on record, it was reported. Of 50 blast furnaces in the district, 42 are in operation, the largest number since 1929.

Structural Steel Orders Rise.

Orders for structural steel booked during September totaled 118,020 tons, the largest since May, when 156,848 tons were booked. The total was 94,314 tons in August and to 92,469 tons in September, 1938, according to the American Institute of Steel Construction.

Shipments of fabricated structural steel were 136,278 tons, against 136,402 tons, the year's high, in August, and 93,563 tons in September, last year. Unfilled orders on Sept. 30 totaled 439,205 gross tons.

FEDERAL BUREAU PLANS TO TAKE HOUSING CENSUS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28 (AP).—The United States Housing authority announced today that it would conduct a nation-wide housing census in conjunction with the regular 10 year population census starting in April, 1940.

Nathan Straus, administrator, saying such a survey "should provide basic data vital to the planning of an effective national housing program," explained that the USHA hoped to determine the following:

The total number of dwellings, types and style of structure, essential household facilities, age, condition, and state of repair; amount of overcrowding and doubling up of families, monetary value of homes occupied by owners, rentals charged for leased dwellings, present mortgage status of dwelling properties, and costs of home financing.

RAIL EFFICIENCY PERMITS USE OF LESS EQUIPMENT

Rolling Stock Reduced in Recent Years.

Altho the railroads in recent years have substantially reduced their rolling stock, more efficient equipment and methods have made it possible to get along with fewer cars and engines. This is disclosed in the 1939 edition of Railroad Facts, which has just been published.

In 1938 the roads had 43,810 locomotives in service against a peak of 64,949 in 1921 and 61,332 in 1916, the first year that detailed records were kept. But for 1938 the average tractive power per steam locomotive was 49,803 horse power, against 36,935 in 1921 and 33,183 in 1916. Ability to get greater power from the locomotives has made possible a reduction in the total number required to run the railroads.

Fewer Cars; Load Increased.

In 1938 the railroads had 1,699,689 freight cars, against a peak of 2,348,679 in 1926 and 2,253,233 in 1916. Altho traffic losses were responsible for a part of the reduction, new equipment of greater capacity and more intensive utilization of equipment made it possible to reduce the number of cars. The average capacity per car has increased from 41 tons per car in 1916 to 49.4 tons in 1938.

Average speed of freight trains has increased from 11.5 miles per hour in 1921 to 16.6 in 1938. The average speed includes all stops made for switching, for picking up and setting out cars and for other causes. Actually, many freight trains run on the road as fast as passenger trains. Because of the many exceedingly fast freight trains it has been possible for the railroads to get along with fewer cars.

Use Fewer Passenger Cars.

There were 39,309 passenger cars in service in 1938, compared with a peak of 54,773 in 1926, and with 52,179 in 1916.

The United States on Dec. 31, 1937, had a total point to point mileage of 238,539, which was more than 30 per cent of the 788,672 total for the world. Operated mileage, including main line, switch track, yards and so on, was 411,324 in 1937. Texas ranked first in point to point mileage with a total of 16,496 and Illinois was second with 12,064.

Despite the size and importance of the American railroads the 1938 operations resulted in a loss of $123,000,000 after provision for interest and other fixed charges. In 1929 they had a total net income of $896,806,611—the largest in history. In 1916 net income totaled $646,880,673.

COMPANY BONDS FIRMER; OTHERS ARE IRREGULAR

New York, Oct. 28 (AP).—Selective buying in parts of the bond list today failed to alter the irregular trend prices have followed during the last two weeks.

The only difference was that at today's close the corporate division showed a somewhat better proportion of plus signs, due to moderate buying interest in certain utility, industrial, and rail issues. United States government issues also reversed the previous day's movement with some advances ranging to 9-32 of a point, but dealings were unusually light.

NATION'S TRADE CLIMBS AT RATE SELDOM SHOWN

Domestic Influences More Important than War.

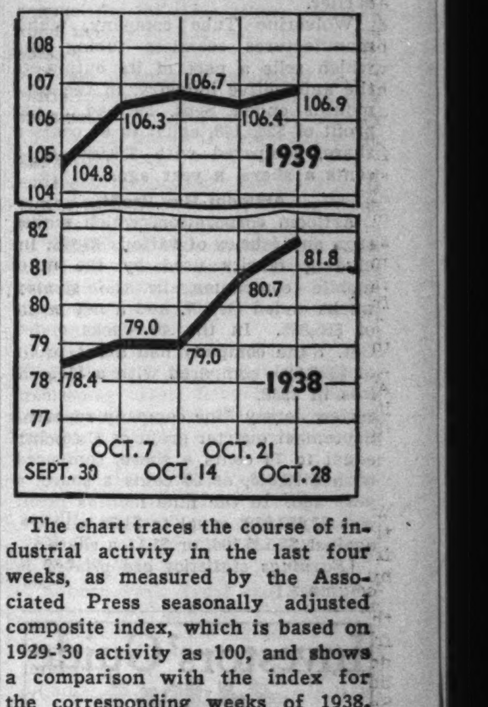
try was indicated by a federal reserve board report showing Chicago department store sales for the week ended Oct. 21 at a level of 14 per cent above the corresponding period of last year, against a national average upturn of 11 per cent.

The steel industry began the week at a national operating rate of 90.2 per cent, or 0.1 point below that of the preceding week. However, little importance was attached to the recession, which was the first since Labor day, because most mills continued to operate virtually at the peak of their theoretical capacity.

Chicago Steel Mills Active.

Steel mills in the Chicago area operated at 88.1 per cent of capacity, the fastest clip since 1929 About 44,000 workers were added to steel mill pay rolls thruout the country in September, bringing average employment of 502,000 workers, the largest number in nearly two years.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100, and shows a comparison with the index for the corresponding weeks of 1938.

Bethlehem, Jones & Laughlin, and other steel producers disclosed the effects of the industry's boom in sharply increased earnings. The steel industry plans large expenditures for new productive facilities, power and light company construction calls for a heavy outlay of capital funds, and aviation manufacturing companies revealed plans for new plants.

Corporation Profits Increase.

A compilation of the profits of the first 220 corporations to issue reports for the September quarter showed aggregate net income 55 per cent larger than a year ago. General Motors corporation, leading producer in the automotive field, shared in the improvement.

Last week's automobile production increased to 78,210 units, from 70,114 in the preceding week, despite the strike shutdown at Chrysler plants.

Reports of railroad earnings for September showed almost universal improvement over last year, with amounts double or triple the 1938 figures common. The railroads are using virtually all of their serviceable freight equipment to handle increasing traffic volume, and temporary car shortages have been reported for the first time since the middle of 1937.

Most Traffic in Nine Years.

Railway car loadings in the week ended Oct. 21, the latest period reported on, reached 861,198 cars, the largest total in nine years. John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, was called on to outline the railroads' position to President Roosevelt, and said the carriers were prepared for an extension of the business improvement.

Evidence of the recovery in building operations was furnished in a report of engineering construction awards for the week ended last Tuesday. Awards were 11 per cent above those of the preceding week.

The valuation of building permits issued in Illinois in September was $12,621,104, against $8,124,662 in August and $6,504,146 in September, 1938. The number of permits issued totaled 3,033, compared with 3,075 in the preceding month and 2,468 a year ago.

AUTO COMPANY SUPPLIERS EARN MORE THIS YEAR

Improvement in the automobile industry this year was reflected yesterday in the earnings reports of several companies whose products are taken in whole or in part by automobile manufacturers.

Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company reported a September quarter net profit of $11,416, including a $45,199 profit on the purchase of its debentures. The company had a $486,634 loss in the 1938 September quarter. In the first nine months of this year the company had a $391,055 profit, including the profit on the debentures, against net loss of $963,152 a year earlier.

Steel Firm Has Gain.

Midland Steel Products company, which makes numerous automotive parts, had a third quarter net profit of $248,266, equal after preferred dividend requirements, to 12 cents a share. In the third quarter of 1938 the company had a net profit of $37,263. Nine months' profit was $1,265,643, compared with $371,960 a year earlier.

Wolverine Tube company, which manufactures seamless tubing and which sells a part of its output to the automotive industry, in the nine months ended Sept. 30 had a net profit of $283,148, equal to 66 cents a share, compared with $39,054, or 5 cents a share, a year ago.

Artloom Has Profit.

Artloom corporation, which makes rugs and fabrics of various kinds, including fabrics used by the automobile companies, in the sixteen weeks ended Oct. 7, had a net profit of $65,885. In the 40 weeks ended Oct. 7 the company had a net profit of $193,899, compared with a $185,563 loss in 1938.

New Jersey Zinc company reported September quarter profit of $1,460,290, equal to 74 cents a share, compared with $798,246, or 40 cents a share, a year ago. In the nine months profit was $3,507,939, equal to $1.78 a share, against $2,185,104, or $1.11 a share.

PURCHASING POWER.

In the last several weeks Investors' Guide has received numerous inquiries from holders of government and high grade bonds. Altho they have rallied from recent lows, the prices of such securities are down considerably from their high levels. What, ask the inquirers, is the reason?

There is no questioning the soundness of such bonds. They have declined almost entirely because of an anticipated upturn in interest rates. With higher money rates, prices on best grade bonds may be expected to drop to a level where the yield corresponds with prevailing interest rates.

This decline emphasizes one factor which should be considered in buying bonds—the changing purchasing power of money. It is extremely difficult to predict the change in money's purchasing power that is likely to occur over a long period.

The value of money exists in its ability to be transformed into goods. In itself, money does not constitute real wealth. It is only tangible goods, froms clothespins to yachts, which are wealth. Money is valuable, and its value rises or falls with the amount of it necessary for transfer into goods.

It is obvious that the purchasing power of money does not remain constant. The same sum of money which will purchase two suits in one year may be able to purchase only one suit of the same material in a later year. Between the two periods prices have risen, and the purchasing power of money has declined.

The effect of this upon the value of money placed in a bond is apparent. The bond may be purchased at par in a period when the purchasing power of money is great. It may be a thoroly sound bond. Ten years later the bond may mature in a period when the purchasing power of money is small.

In this example, the purchaser has lost no money. For each 100 cents he used to buy the bond, he gets back $1. But, because the purchasing power of money has declined, he cannot transfer this money into the same amount of goods as formerly.

In recent years the importance of this factor in investing has received increasing stress. The easy assumption that an individual seeking safe investments should always buy bonds and never buy stocks does not necessarily hold good. Growing emphasis is placed on the need of diversification.

The possibility of an inflationary price rise has added importance to the purchasing power factor. Some trust funds, citing inflationary potentialities as a reason, have requested, and received, permission from courts to place their funds in stocks as well as bonds.

Sound bonds naturally remain the backbone of an investment program primarily concerned with the conservation of capital. It should, however, be recognized that bonds do not necessarily protect investors from loss of purchasing power of their capital.

FARMERS PAYING HIGH PRICE FOR FEEDER CATTLE

Rates Nearest on Record to Finished Products.

Farm leaders, packing interests and business men closely associated with agriculture are watching with growing concern the scramble for stocker and feeder cattle and calves that is sweeping the country. Purchases of stockers and feeders for several months have been running the heaviest in more than 10 years, and this month's buying is topping any month since 1928, it was said at the Chicago stock yards yesterday.

The concern of leaders in the industry is not over the danger of expanding production of beef, but over the fact that cattle men are too liberal with their money in making purchases. It was estimated yesterday that farmers are investing well over $1,000,000 daily in filling their feedlots with bovine stock.

Replacement Costs High.

A review of the markets covering about 40 years disclosed that at no time during the western range season have costs of replacement cattle been as close to the prices paid for slaughter steers as they are this fall.

Farmers during the first 28 days of October paid an average of $9.00 a hundred pounds for stockers and feeders on the Chicago market, the highest October average in 10 years.

Returns from steers sold for slaughter during the 28 day period averaged $9.75, or only 75 cents above the price the farmers paid for thin stock to refill their feedlots.

Spread Narrowest on Record.

This was the narrowest spread on record for October. A year ago slaughter cattle outsold stockers and feeders by $2.25 a hundred pounds. Two years ago there was a spread of $4.90. During the world war years, 1914 to 1918, October costs of replacement stock ran $2.25 to $3.55 below killing cattle.

Most market experts say it is the reluctance of farmers to remain idle, even at the risk of savings, that has created such a wide market for all sorts of meat animals that will furnish an outlet for the big grain surplus this year.

Farmers who held off the market earlier in the season to wait for the big movement of stockers and feeders from the range states during October before they filled their feedlots are disappointed. Some of these cattlemen now are buying fleshy stock away from packers to hold for a few months.

Some Seal Corn and Loaf.

Others have decided to "do it the AAA way," seal their corn on loans from the government, let their pasturage stand idle or burn it to control weed seeds, and remain idle on the farm until spring work begins. Some veteran cattle feeders on the market looking for cattle last week admitted it was a strange situation when men like themselves, industrious all their lives, were forced to quit work and lock up their corn to comply with the AAA.

Stockers and feeders as well as fleshy light slaughter cattle, the classes for which farmers were aggressive bidders, closed strong to 25 cents higher at the Chicago stock yards last week. Heifers also finished the week 15 to 25 cents higher. Most slaughter steers ruled weak to 25 cents lower. Cows were steady.

Other live stock slumped rather sharply. Lambs closed off 25 to 50 cents. The various classes of hogs declined unevenly 25 to 75 cents, "lard hogs" showing the least downturn. The six day average at $6.70 was off 40 cents.

As little as $2.00 to $2.26 a week repays in full, including all charges, a $150 loan over 20 months at America's largest loan company. No salary assignments.

$2.00 a week on the average is all you need to set aside for every $150 borrowed on Personal's new amazing "Special" loan plan of only 1¼% per month on the actual balance owed. This plan is for persons with a steady income or salary sufficient to meet payments promptly without undue credit strain and a good credit record. You don't need co-makers, life insurance, or bankable securities.

For persons without established credit and employment ratings and who wish to carry a loan larger than 8 to 12% of annual salary or income, Personal offers its "Regular" loan plan. On this plan an average of $2.26 set aside per week takes care of everything on a $150 loan—the charge is based on 3% monthly on unpaid balances of $100 and less and 2% monthly on unpaid balances over $100.

Loans up to $300 on either plan on your personal note, or with furniture or auto. Co-maker loans are also available on "Regular" plan. Seize this opportunity to save on loan costs. Come in or telephone today.

PARKS TO OFFER HALLOWEEN FUN

PASTOR GIVEN SURPRISE; HE'S NOW A BISHOP

The Rev. Howard Brinker.
[Gibson Studio.]

On Stewart avenue, which reputedly has more houses of worship than any other street in the world, there is a stone church which has the ageless look of reverence. Ivy reaches to the eaves and an old-fashioned iron fence guards the dignity of the church yard. A gate swings wide on the path to the side entrance. On a Sunday evening after service, children ride on the gate and young men and women dot the path. An organ can be heard thru the open door.

Here in the center of a busy city neighborhood, a quiet-voiced, sandy-haired man sits in his study at the side entrance of the church. He is the Rev. Howard Brinker, south side dean of the Chicago diocese in the Episcopal church and pastor of St. Bartholomew's, Normal parkway and Stewart avenue.

Less than a fortnight ago, this picture, which Father Brinker has been creating for 16 years, was suddenly turned for him in fate's album. He received the news of his unanimous election by the Episcopal laity and clergy to the bishopric of the windswept state of Nebraska.

Surprise for Pastor.

Father Brinker is surprised that renown has found his little corner on the southwest side. He does not know how it happened. Yet, according to all reports, no other bishop was ever elected unanimously on the first ballot by the Episcopalians and rarely has one been so young. He is 46. Modest, with the humility of the cultured, Father Brinker did not realize that he is known for his executive and oratorical ability and that quiet humanitarianism has spoken loudly in his favor.

Careers are generally built on a single purpose. From the time he was a boy in the small, unincorporated village of Nashotah, Wis., Father Brinker's only ambition was to be a priest. His father, the postmaster, owned the village store and young Howard spent many hours, which otherwise would have been baseball time, perched on a barrel in his father's store listening to the stories of the young seminarians who came regularly from the bordering mission.

He remembers how, in the midst of winter, he used to hitch the horses to the sleigh and voluntarily travel the cold miles to the Nashotah seminary with the mail so that the lonely students would not have to wait for word from home. "But that was all hero worship," Father Brinker says as he remembers.

Scholarship in Music.

Straight backed and straight purposed, Father Brinker won a musical scholarship to Howe's Military academy in Indiana and then transferred to St. John's Military academy in Delafield, Wis., to be near his home.

About this time his father's death necessitated working to continue his education. With a double schedule as student and a wage earner, Father Brinker attended Phillip Brooks academy in the east and then the University of Pennsylvania, where he obtained his degree of bachelor of sacred theology.

His work at the university came to the notice of Bishop Nathaniel Seymore Thomas of Wyoming who appointed him lay reader of Christ church in Douglas, Wyo. The appointment came, much as his present honor, with astonishment to Father Brinker. He had always thought during his years in the university that he would work with the student movement in Russia, endeavoring to revive a dying religious feeling. In fact, such mission work was his goal.

With the obedience of a true clergyman, he took up his duties in Wyoming and was ordained a deacon in June of 1918 and a priest in 1919. He stayed at Christ church until 1923 when he was given the pastorate of St. Bartholomew's in Chicago.

An Old Building.

St. Bartholomew's, whose aged look now gives it picturesqueness, was an old building when the young priest assumed the pastorate. The entire inside of the building had to be rebuilt, and the grounds to be altered. There was also a large mortgage.

This debt has been wiped out and the congregation increased to 1,000 communicants. Being young, Father Brinker emphasized the youth movement in the church. At present, there are 11 young people's organizations at St. Bartholomew's.

Not confining his activities to his own parish, however, Father Brinker has been president of the Episcopal Clergymen's Round Table, chairman of the Chicago diocese department of missions as well as of the ways and means committee, and the first president of the Episcopal Architectural Guild.

They Like Halloween, Too

It takes money to have fun. Even the boys and girls at the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children, 107th street and Prospect avenue, realize this as Halloween hovers near. Just like other youngsters, they want their pumpkins to wear illuminated smiles and their tubs of big apples bobbing up and down. They can't parade the neighborhood streets in Halloween fashion, but they want Indian headdresses and gay clown costumes, nevertheless. To assist the children in just such good times the Ridge Service Guild auxiliary will hold its third annual Monte Carlo ball Saturday evening in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel for the Morgan Park home. Four of the many children who will benefit by the party are (left to right) George Springer, Marie Springer, Eleanor Axbery, and Dennis Coughlin.

SEEK WPA AID TO BUILD BIG JOLIET STADIUM

First Plans Drawn for $100,000 Bowl.

Tentative plans for a $100,000 civic stadium in Joliet that would seat about 20,000 persons, have been drawn and efforts are being made to obtain WPA aid in its realization.

This was disclosed last week by George Mahoney, president of the Joliet park board. He said that WPA officials, in preliminary discussions of the proposal, had indicated their accord with the general plan.

A stadium of the sort proposed would fill a long felt need in Joliet, officials and civic leaders agreed. They said it would answer the increasing public demand for a place to stage such public spectacles as music festivals, July Fourth celebrations, patriotic gatherings, and high school games and other sports events.

Want Early Action.

Efforts are being made to gain early assurance of federal aid, Mr. Mahoney indicated, in order that the workers released recently upon completion of the city's $1,745,000 west side sewer system can be provided with employment and thus kept off the relief rolls this winter.

Benefits of a new stadium would not be entirely local, inasmuch as it would increase the comfort of visitors to the city witnessing games or celebrations in the city, advocates of the plan emphasized.

The cost to Joliet could be held at a low figure if the project were approved by the WPA, it was said. The park board's contribution as sponsor would be 25 per cent of the estimated cost, or about $25,000.

Would Include Site.

This would include the value of the site, the cost of stone, the salaries of supervisors, and other items that might be provided by the board without cost to itself. Thus the actual cost of the project so far as Joliet taxpayers are concerned might be much less than the 25 per cent figure, it was indicated.

Several proposed locations for the new bowl are under consideration. Selection of the site will depend on such factors as the availability of land, proximity to the center of population, and contour of the ground.

One suggested location is a 15 acre plot on the southeast side of Joliet, lying between Gardner and Richards streets on the south side of Blackburn avenue.

Charles Nowell, retired wallpaper manufacturer who owns the tract, is reported to have offered to donate it to the park board provided the stadium project were assured. This offer is to be considered at a park board meeting soon, Mr. Mahoney said.

Qualities that suit it to the purpose include its high, well drained situation, its easy accessibility from all parts of Joliet township, and the fact that an abandoned stone quarry on the side would obviate much of the necessary excavation.

LINNEA AID SOCIETY TO PRESENT BETHANY SINGERS IN CONCERT

Mrs. Eva Margaret Sackerson

The Linnea Aid society will present its fall concert at 8 o'clock Wednesday night in the Englewood Mission Covenant church, 59th and Carpenter streets. The Lyric choir of the Bethany Covenant church with Mrs. Eva Margaret Sackerson, 8343 Maryland avenue, as chorister, will give the program.

Assisting the choir, composed of young woman, will be the Nordic quartet of male voices; the Chapel quartet of mixed voices; the Carolers, young women's trio; Herbert Kropp, tenor; Howard Brandel, trumpet player; Evelyn Young, pianist; Viva Lundeen, violinist, and Willard Collins, marimba player. All are members of the Bethany Covenant church, one of the 24 represented in the membership of the Linnea Aid society.

The society, which is composed of 1,200 women from 24 of the south and southwest side Swedish churches, is known for its charitable work during the last 34 years. Officers and committees serve without remuneration, and all funds are devoted to charity.

WOMEN VOTERS IN FLOSSMOOR TO HEAR LEGISLATOR

Bernice T. Van der Vries, Illinois state legislator and lecturer on current events, will speak at a meeting of the Flossmoor League of Women Voters Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Charles Ford, Flossmoor.

Mrs. Van der Vries is a member of the House of Representatives, from the Seventh Senatorial district in which Flossmoor is located. She is former president of the Winnetka League of Women Voters and has served on the state board of the league.

She is an active member of the board of the National Women's Republican Club of Chicago and that of the Illinois League of Republican Women. Mrs. Van der Vries also gave two terms of service to the village council in Winnetka and was a member of the commission on Northwest Territory celebration for Illinois in 1938.

Infant Welfare Aids.

Members of the South Shore center of Infant Welfare society will meet at 11 o'clock Tuesday, Nov. 14, in the home of Mrs. Broman Rockwell, 6830 Jeffery avenue.

LADIES' CHORUS OF BLUE ISLAND WILL CELEBRATE

Liederkranz Group Now 10 Years Old.

There are a number of women in Blue Island who have made harmony a household word. They are members of the Liederkranz Ladies' chorus, who will celebrate a decade of song with a concert and dance this evening in Eagles hall, Grove and Henry streets, Blue Island.

Masculine approval of the chorus will be given in the form of assistance by the Blue Island Liederkranz Male chorus and the Hammond Singing Society Fidelia and Ladies' chorus under the direction of Herman Kornemann.

The Ladies' Liederkranz chorus was formed 10 years ago when the wives of members of the male chorus decided to have their own unit. They had assisted their husbands with arrangements for the 76th anniversary of the male chorus and had found enjoyment in song. Several titles were suggested for the group and due to the harmony which existed with the male chorus, the charter was taken out under the present name.

Gave Services Free.

Mr. Kornemann, director of the men's unit, volunteered to give his services free to the women's unit until such time as the newly formed organization had sufficient funds to hire a conductor.

The chorus has been active in local affairs and during the centennial of the town was awarded a ribbon for the attractiveness of its float. It also took part in A Century of Progress, depicting the early history of Blue Island. During the Christmas season, the women sing carols over loud speakers on the main streets of the suburb.

The concerts are not limited to Blue Island, as each year they receive more invitations to assist in municipal affairs. Members took part in the National Song festival last year at the international amphitheater, assisted by 60 members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Officers of Chorus.

Officers of the chorus are Minnie DeGroot, president; Florence Hennig, vice president; Rebecca Kramer, recording secretary; Hazel Florian, financial secretary; Catherine Benzing, treasurer; Helen Kornemann, librarian, and Clara Sieben, publicity agent and historian.

PRESTO MUSIC CLUB OF CHICAGO HEIGHTS IS TO GIVE PROGRAM

Miss Eleanor Senesac.

Opening its twentieth season, the Presto Music club of Chicago Heights will present a musical program and tea at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in Odd Fellows hall in the suburb.

Members of the club will take part in piano, voice, cello, trombone, and dance numbers. Mrs. Clementina Murdock will be in charge of the tea table, assisted by Miss Anita Kahler, former secretary and graduate of Chicago Musical college, and Miss Rehel De Palma, former president and dramatic soprano, who won second place this year in the Chicagoland Music festival's south side contest.

Officers of the club who are in charge of the program today are Miss Rose Nardella, president; Miss Eleanor Senesac, vice president; Miss Ruth Kich, third vice president; Miss Alba Piunti, secretary, and Miss Mary Maciariello, treasurer. The club is affiliated with the Chicago district of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs.

HOSPITAL CLUB BENEFIT PARTY SET FOR SUNDAY

The Service club of the Little Company of Mary hospital will hold its ninth annual card party for the benefit of the children's ward of the hospital next Sunday afternoon at the Evergreen Golf club, 9140 South Western avenue.

The past president, Mrs. John A. Olson, heads the reception committee and also is in charge of publicity. She resides at 6102 South Whipple street. The committee in charge of table prizes is headed by Mrs. Charles Clarke, 9245 Bishop street.

Heading the committee on distribution of turkeys, which will be a feature of the afternoon, is Mrs. Edward Delaney. Door favors will be in charge of Mrs. Alfred Stapleton.

Mrs. James M. Casey, 8610 South Sangamon street, is president of the Service club. The primary purpose of the organization, which has a membership of more than 200, is the making of surgical dressings for the hospital. The women meet every Tuesday at the hospital for this work. The club's philanthropy is the children's ward, for the support of which the annual card party is held.

PLAN TO KEEP FROLIC WITHIN LEGAL BOUNDS

Aim to Put Curb on Destructiveness.

Scores of recreation workers of the Chicago park district are rounding out plans to harness the forces of fun and frolic that are prone to get out of bounds on Halloween, officials of the district announced last week.

George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the parks, said that entertainment for upward of 28,000 boys and girls is being arranged in 17 parks in the southwestern part of the city.

So important do Chicagoans consider this annual mobilization of youthful spirits by the park district that clubs, civic groups, and individuals thruout the city are lending aid to the work.

List of Activities.

Ada, 11330 Ada street—Some 600 persons will take part in a program that will start with a parade at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. There will be singing, games, and other activities around a bonfire later. John M. Turner, park supervisor, will be in charge.

Armour Square, 33d street and Shields avenue—More than 1,000 boys and girls will enjoy a parade starting at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, costume judging and other entertainment, around a huge bonfire, and a snake dance to wind up the festivities.

Cornell Square, 51st and Wood streets—The big party will get underway at 7 p. m. Tuesday with a costume parade, which will be followed by games, stunts, and contests around a bonfire.

Pupils in Parade.

Davis Square, 45th street and Marshfield avenue—Some 2,000 children from the 11 schools in the community will take part in a program to be sandwiched between a parade at 7 p. m. and a monster bonfire.

Fernwood, 10438 South Lowe avenue—At 3:30 p. m. Tuesday there will be a grade school party with games, a chamber of horrors, and refreshments. At 6 p. m. the young folks will have a parade that will end near the big bonfire where the big, bad witch will be burned.

Fuller, 45th street and Princeton avenue—More than 2,000 children from the "back-o'-the-yards" neighborhood will have a night of frolic starting with a parade in costumes at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday and ending with an extensive program of entertainment around a huge bonfire which will spell the doom of the wicked witch. William J. McNeil, park supervisor, will oversee activities.

Gage, 55th street and Western avenue—The parade for this park will get under way at 7 p. m. Tuesday. It will circulate thru the community and will disband near a bonfire which will light a program of games, contests and other entertainment.

Parade At 7 P. M.

Hamilton, 72d street and Normal boulevard—The parade here, too, will start at 7 p. m. Tuesday. Later there will be a supervised program around a bonfire near the fieldhouse.

Hardin Square, 26th street and Wentworth avenue—A big costume parade at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, followed by an extensive program of games, contests, singing, and refreshments will climax the season activities at this park.

Mark White Square, 29th and Halsted streets—A costume parade for 1,500 persons will start at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. There will be a snake dance and other entertainment around a bonfire later. Patrick McCarthy, park supervisor, will be in charge.

In Marquette Park.

Marquette, 67th street and Kedzie avenue—Entertainment for 2,000 persons will start a grand assembly near the fieldhouse at 7 p. m. Tuesday, followed by a costume parade, games, and a bonfire. John Kosnar, park supervisor, is in charge.

McKinley, 39th street and Western avenue—There will be a big masquerade dance in the gymnasium tomorrow. Tuesday's big program will start with a frolic about a monster bonfire, Ogden, 65th street and Racine avenue—About 5,000 boys and girls will assemble at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday to parade thru the community in costume.

102d street, 1518 West 102d place—At 4 p. m. Tuesday there will be a party for children up to 15 years old. At 7 p. m. those of 16 and over will have a costume promenade and a program of games, contests and refreshments. Edward Kenny, park supervisor, will be in charge.

Children to Have Party.

Ridge, 96th street and Longwood drive—Children of 7 and under will have a masquerade party in the fieldhouse starting at 7 p. m. At the same time the older children will start their program with a costume parade.

Sherman, 53d street and Racine avenue—A costume parade, followed by a huge bonfire and games and contests of various kinds. Arthur Butler, park supervisor, will be in charge.

West Pullman, 123d street and Stewart avenue—At 10 a. m. Tuesday there will be a costume party for children 3 years old and younger. At 1 p. m. those 4 and 5 years old will have a party. The general party will start with a parade at 7:30 p. m.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Mrs. Sarah F. Phillis.

MRS. SARAH F. PHILLIS, 6345 University avenue, will hear "happy birthday" greetings for the 90th time today at a party in the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Perkins, Glen Ellyn. She was born in 1849 on Long Island, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kinsey, who had arrived from England several years before. When she was 2 years old, they moved to Mankato, Minn., and then to Iowa. At her next home in Centralia, Ill., she was married to Thomas Phillis in 1870. From 1880 to 1901, when her husband died, she lived in Bloomington, Ill. Since that time she has been an Our Towner. She has four sons.

Altho Mr. and Mrs. Stephen V. Ronksley, 8021 Marquette avenue, headed up thru Detroit and Canada for Boston and the east last Thursday, Mr. Ronksley's interest won't be fully aroused until next Saturday in New York, according to friends. For several weeks he has been proudly displaying tickets for the Notre Dame-Army football game, which is a sellout.

FRED OTTMAN, social science department of Wilson Junior college, surprised his colleagues and students with his retirement recently. The department gave him a farewell luncheon, and he was special guest at a faculty tea, at which a gift was presented to him. He was one of the first instructors to be transferred from the Crane college faculty to Wilson upon the organization of the school. Before joining the Crane staff in 1924, he taught one year at Marshall High school, one year at Farragut, 10 years at a Pittsburgh high school, and at Duquesne university.

Miss Ruth Zwissler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Zwissler, 6656 Parnell avenue, recently was elected vice president of the MacMurray college band, which will become a marching group this year. She is a senior at MacMurray in Jacksonville, Ill.

ALLEN PORTER, 21 years old, 9700 Vanderpoel avenue, recently became one of the youngest Y. M. C. A. board members in the city. Announcing his election to the Beverly "Y" board of directors, Chairman George B. Miller said, "Inasmuch as we are a Young Men's Christian association, we felt we ought to have some young men in charge of activities. Mr. Porter is the son of the first chairmen of our board, was president of a Hi-Y club while in high school, and has been the successful head of the high school alumni team in the annual finance campaign for three years."

ON the way to becoming full fledged lawyers, five graduates of the John Marshall law school from the south and southwest sides recently passed their state bar examinations. They are Harold P. Block, 5026 Woodlawn avenue; Philip Rittig, 4915 Drexel avenue; Pearl Lange, 5357 South Hermitage avenue; Howard Meadors, 7438 Colfax avenue, and George Borovic Jr., 6355 South Austin avenue. In addition, Block and Frederick B. Kaempf, 10142 Vernon avenue, are authors of prize winning essays on copyright law in the school's annual Nathan Burkan Memorial competition. Instead of the customary award of $100 to the writer of the best paper, prizes of $50 have been given to the two whose compositions were rated as worthy of sharing the award. The contest was sponsored by the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers.

From the DePauw university campus at Greencastle, Ind., comes word that Edward Hauch, 6200 South Troy street, has been pledged to Delta Omicron Chi, honorary pre-medical fraternity, and that Robert Lavidge, 6933 Vernon avenue, has been named a member of the freshman debate team.

TEMPLAR GROUP TO WELCOME NEW STATE LEADER

The first and second district school of instruction of the grand commandery of Knights Templar of Illinois will be held at 2:30 o'clock next Saturday in the Midway Masonic temple, 61st street and Cottage Grove avenue, under the direction of David Bertric Finney of Petersburg, deputy grand commander and James Norris Finn of Zion, grand generalissimo. The grand commander, Charles Hunt Toothe of Galesburg, and his staff of officers will attend, with the officers of the first and second district which include subordinate commanderies in Chicago and suburbs. Five hundred officers are expected to welcome the new grand commander in his first official visit to Chicago.

AWAIT $142,900 REFUND FROM 2 CLOSED BANKS

10,000 Depositors to Be Benefited.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Two closed southwest side state banks are expected to distribute about $142,900 among their 10,000 depositors during the next few weeks. This was indicated by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett last week when he made public the statements of the first of the 134 closed state banks in Cook county that are still in receivership.

These statements are based on reports made to Mr. Barrett by the receivers for the defunct banks. Charles H. Albers is general receiver for all but two.

The Brighton Park State bank is expected soon to return another $17,900 to its 2,400 depositors.

The Central Manufacturing District bank may soon distribute an additional $125,000 among the 7,600 persons who had funds on deposit when the bank closed.

Mr. Barrett also announced that the Citizens Trust and Savings bank's remaining assets have been sold at public auction, and that the final repayment may be forthcoming in the next few weeks.

Here are summaries of the new figures for the first group of southwestern banks, with the best estimates available on how much the depositors may still expect:

Auburn Park Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $671,860. Paid on prior claims, $162,980. Paid depositors, $251,726, or 47½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $6,140; legal, $22,188; clerical, $47,074; interest, $350; advanced to protect assets, $163,675, with $155,321 refunded. Cash, $17,722. The percentage may eventually rise to 55 per cent.

Bank of Harvey—Total receipts, $955,650. Paid on prior claims, $244,101. Paid depositors, $533,022, or 85 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $7,138; legal, $24,194; clerical, $52,700; interest, $4,217; advanced to protect assets, $75,340, with $71,495 refunded. Cash, $14,935. There may be another 5 to 10 per cent.

Brainerd State — Total receipts, $202,866. Paid on prior claims, $52,110. Paid depositors, $82,306, or 38⅓ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,209; legal, $8,770; clerical, $26,079; interest, $217; advanced to protect assets, $17,279, with $13,295 refunded. Cash, $202,866. The next small distribution will probably be the final one.

Brighton Park State—Total receipts, $556,660. Paid on prior claims, $235,864. Paid depositors, $141,038, or 40 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $5,396; legal, $29,540; clerical, $38,123; interest, $10,075; advanced to protect assets, $79,008, with $75,988 refunded. Cash, $17,612. The percentage may rise another 10 per cent.

Bryn Mawr State—Total receipts, $426,132. Paid on prior claims, $131,856. Paid depositors, $158,627, or 32 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $6,213; legal, $19,259; clerical, $43,563; interest, $537; advanced to protect assets, $52,366, with $42,798 refunded. Cash, $13,707. If pending liquidation results favorably the present percentage may be increased slightly.

Central Manufacturing District—Total receipts, $4,414,507. Paid on prior claims, $1,693,044. Paid depositors, $999,147, or 40 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $11,620; legal, $93,387; clerical, $206,407; interest, $11,302; advanced to protect assets, $880,143, with $755,964 refunded. Cash, $240,968. As high as 20 per cent more may be expected.

Chicago Lawn State—Total receipts, $1,157,143. Paid on prior claims, $361,680. Paid depositors, nothing. Costs: Receivers, $15,112; legal, $50,694; clerical, $106,625; interest, $2,151; advanced to protect assets, $445,123, with $441,200 refunded. Cash, $175,745. Only a small percentage will ever be paid.

Citizens Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $1,010,560. Paid on prior claims, $477,822. Paid depositors, $310,727, or 30 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $19,139; legal, $35,252; clerical, $92,673; interest, $1,554; advanced to protect assets, $48,825, with $45,652 refunded. Cash, $24,565. The next small distribution will be final.

Commercial Bank of Chicago Heights—Total receipts, $708,271. Paid on prior claims, $162,180. Paid depositors, $363,323, or 80 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $8,357; legal, $17,975; clerical, $50,938; interest, $84; advanced to protect assets, $89,686, with $89,819 refunded. Cash, $15,724. The total payout may rise to 85 or 90 per cent.

Commonwealth Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $553,972. Paid on prior claims, $382,923. Paid depositors, $19,859, or 5 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,454; legal, $17,403; clerical, $46,150; interest, $29,071; advanced to protect assets, $28,486, with $23,994 refunded. Cash, $415. The percentage previously paid may eventually be duplicated.

Depositors State—Total receipts, $3,081,255. Paid on prior claims, $886,316. Paid depositors, $709,441, or 33⅓ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $9,784; legal, $72,477; clerical, $129,095; interest, $38,116; advanced to protect assets, $884,660, with $754,108 refunded. Cash, $86,825. The payout may go up another 5 to 10 per cent.

Similar figures for a second group of southwestern banks will be available for publication in these columns next week.

TARDY AND DOESN'T LIKE IT.

Why doesn't somebody do something about the traction problem?

There is no other line I can use but Ashland. . . . It takes 45 minutes to cover the distance between 42d and 35th streets every morning.

There should really be a detour line for automobiles, as they can easily cut in before the street cars, thus pushing the street cars farther back in line.

Before they raise the fare the surface lines had better perfect their service. The irony of these Uncle Watt Rider's signs. TIRED OF BEING TARDY.

ASKS SIDEWALK REPAIRS.

Now that the WPA is putting new curbs on 56th street, from Halsted to Ashland avenue, which were sorely needed, what about the broken down sidewalks? Twice my little girl came home from school with bruised knees after stumbling over same. Surely walks in such a deplorable condition should merit some attention and repairs.

MRS. MICHAEL CASEY.

END ARMISTICE DAY!

Now that time and the European war have proved just how useless and ridiculous the world war was and how little it accomplished, why continue the celebration of Armistice day? The war's end, which it was supposed to celebrate, evidently hasn't arrived yet, so why rejoice over something which doesn't exist or pay special homage to the war dead. Memorial day would be enough to pay respects to all those who have passed on. Abolish Armistice day and remove the grievous memory of the noble "war to make the world safe for democracy."

ABANDONED CARS.

What does the city do about abandoned cars which are left on the street? I've seen some standing at different places around town which I know have been there for eight or ten weeks. And one of them happens to be in front of a piece of property I own. I think an ordinance should be passed authorizing the city to remove cars which are left in the street longer than a week. This would rid property owners of a nuisance and improve parking facilities.

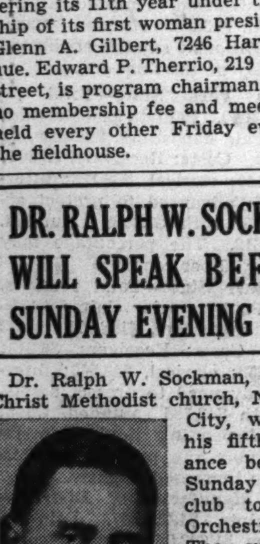
RAPS CAR SERVICE.

As a regular reader of THE TRIBUNE I am appealing to you to see if you can be instrumental in getting the Chicago Surface Lines to give us better street car service on the South Kedzie avenue line. The number of street cars run between the hour of 7:30 a. m. and 7:45 a. m. is entirely inadequate. I have to stand almost all the time. Since you have often come to the rescue of the "little fellow," I trust you can aid in securing better street car service on this line. O. N. CORD.

Is Government in Danger? to Be Discussion Topic

"Is Our Constitutional Form of Government in Danger?" will be the topic of a talk by George Staley, 7031 Stewart avenue, former president, at a meeting of the Hamilton Park Discussion group Friday evening in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. The group is entering its 11th year under the leadership of its first woman president, Mrs. Glenn A. Gilbert, 7246 Harvard avenue. Edward P. Therrio, 219 West 66th street, is program chairman. There is no membership fee and meetings are held every other Friday evening in the fieldhouse.

DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN WILL SPEAK BEFORE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB



Dr. Ralph W. Sockman

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist church, New York City, will make his fifth appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. The subject of his address will be "God and the American Dream." Dr. Sockman, known to many as radio minister for NBC, has for years claimed the attention of religious thought in America thru his writing. His most recent book, "Discoveries in Religion," is a plea to return to the basic ideals of religion, and a portion of his address tonight will deal with the fact that a democracy cannot endure unless it is theocentric.

The vocal program at the 7 o'clock meeting will be given by the Northwest Lutheran male choir directed by Edgar Nelson. This a cappella group is composed of men from eight Lutheran churches in Chicago included in the Norwegian synod. As part of the observance of temperance Sunday, the film, "The Pay Off" will also be shown at this preliminary meeting.

OCTOBER AUTO KILLINGS AGAIN AT NORMAL RATE

Month's Average May Be Below Normal.

Automobile killings in Cook county, after surging briefly during the second week of October, settled back to a normal rate in the third week.

The death total at midnight Tuesday, with one week of the present month still to go, was low enough to raise hopes that the October massacre toll this year would be considerably below the average for the month.

In the 24-day period there were 67 deaths from motor vehicles in the county. This was an average of 2.8 deaths a day. The October average for the 10 preceding years was 3.5 deaths a day. The lowest October average in the last 10 years was established in 1932, when it was 2.9.

On a projection basis, if the present rate of traffic killings is maintained until the end of the month, the October toll would be 87 deaths. The October average since 1929 has been more than 109 deaths. The lowest October total in that time was in 1932, when there were 89 motor vehicle fatalities in the month.

Early Hopes Blasted.

Until Oct. 12, it appeared that a new low death record might be set this month. Then in the five day period from the 12th to the 16th there were 27 new deaths, which dashed earlier optimistic hopes.

Chicago had more than four times as many traffic deaths in the first 24 days of this month as all the Cook county suburbs combined. There were 55 deaths in the city, as compared with 12 in the suburbs and other outlying territory.

Pedestrians continued to predominate in the death column of the casualty list. Forty-two of the 67 men, women, and children killed by gasoline driven vehicles were on foot when they were run down. Three of these were hit by trucks and the other 39 by lighter cars.

Collisions Kill 11.

Collisions between automobiles figured as the second largest cause of the October deaths. Eleven of the 67 lost their lives because the machines in which they were riding collided with other cars. Four of the dead were cyclists. Two of these were hit by automobiles and two by trucks.

Police and other traffic authorities warned that the most dangerous days of the year are just ahead, and emphasized that only the greatest of driving caution will keep the death rate from skyrocketing.

Because of the early darkness and slippery streets caused by fall rains and winter snows, the automobile death rate usually jumps in October and remains abnormally high until February, according to figures compiled by the coroner's office.

—Harper—

A new system for determining the best company each semester has been instituted by Sergt. Charles N. Rea, military instructor at Harper High school. On inspection days, Thursday and Friday of each week, each company is graded on appearance and drill. At the end of the semester the period with the highest rating is rewarded by being presented with a trophy on which is engraved the company commander's name, the company and the date of the semester. The presentation will be made at the time the R. O. T. C. medals are awarded by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and other organizations.

The Harper battalion staff has been arranged as follows: commander, Maj. Julius Wrage; adjutant, First Lieutenant Kenneth Thompson; plans and training, Second Lieutenant John Enhorning; publicity, Second Lieutenant Otto Schaefer; supplies, Second Lieutenant Raymond Mischke.

Following are the line officers: Company A—Capt. Robert Carbray, commander, Second Lieutenants Leroy Lehr and Robert Ketterer; Company B—First Lieutenant Lawrence Cooke, commander, Second Lieutenants Martin Logsdon and George Scholze; Company C—First Lieutenant Warren Altman, commander, and Second Lieutenants Clarence Winstedt and Robert Leahy.

SONS OF LEGION TO INSTALL NEW OFFICERS TODAY

Eaton-Priddy squadron, Sons of the American Legion, will install new officers this afternoon in Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 78th street and Ingleside avenue. Officers to be installed by Joseph Wolf, Cook county council chairman, are George Murphy Jr., captain; Edward Ryan, first lieutenant; Donald Feige, second lieutenant; George Friske, adjutant; Paul Van Valkenburgh Jr., finance officer; Theodore Foster, chaplain.

A set of colors will be presented by Commander Leo M. McGlinn as a gift from Eaton-Priddy post.

Officers recently installed by Hyde Park post are Maurice I. Borg, commander; Frank M. Dukes, senior vice commander; Harry Clutterbuck, junior vice commander; John L. Stone, adjutant; Edward O. Starka, finance officer; Charles G. Easterwood, vice finance officer; R. Clyde White, chaplain; Francis M. Ward, judge advocate, and John W. Woods, sergeant at arms.

New officers of the auxiliary are Mrs. Beatrice Cummings, president; Mrs. Laura Domler, first vice president; Mrs. Bernice Braithwaite, second vice president; Miss Ann Skau, treasurer; Mrs. Mateel Jacoby, recording secretary; Mrs. Delores Ward, historian, and Mrs. Kathrine Green, sergeant at arms, and Mrs. Margaret Wahls, chaplain.

WOODEN GRILLE DIVIDES LIVING AND DINING ROOMS

Feature of New Residence in Glen Ellyn.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

It is impossible to escape an enthusiasm at the first glimpse of a charming small home which has been deftly planned as one living unit, and provides thereby a feeling of openness and space.

Such enthusiasm is felt upon entering the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Spahr, 534 High road, Glen Ellyn.

Fundamental changes have been slowly taking place in our small homes in the last eight years. Modern and traditional types are merging, the best features of the open plan are becoming common practice, windows are growing larger and better and outdoor living areas are accessible from different rooms.

The architect in this instance, John Van Bergen, 234 Cedar avenue, Highland Park, has designed this house by a rather different approach to the modern. He has adapted much that is fine from the traditional and combined it with a very honest and livable present day architecture. The house is gracious and comfortable, as well as economical and practical, and so reflects our twentieth century spirit.

White Cement Stucco.

The house is built of concrete masonry and finished with white cement stucco. There is a dark wood shingle roof, and the entrance is thru an intriguing Dutch door into a two story wide hallway which includes a side stairway with wrought iron rail. Directly opposite the front door is a double door guest closet of firwood, which is given a stain seal wax treatment.

At the left of the two story hall is a large two story studio living room, with exposed beams meeting at the peak of the roof and a large studio window. This pointed window is at the south of the living room, and careful draping gives an illusion of even greater height. On the east wall, to the left of the window, is a stone faced fireplace with its breast extending to the ceiling.

Then, as one turns and faces the north end of the living room the visitor has the feeling of looking into an entirely different room.

Dining Space Screened.

This half of the room is the dining end and is of conventional height, screened off by a wood lattice which is somewhat higher than the eye level. This lattice, or screen, is portable so that it can be removed or swung back on occasions when it is desirable to throw the entire space into one room. The dining end of the room has a heavy beamed ceiling, and the beams are of fir which blend with the rest of the woodwork thruout the house.

"I've lived with a basement and I didn't want one in my new home," Mrs. Spahr said frankly. "I've plenty of storage space. And everything easy of reach and convenient."

Studio Guest Room.

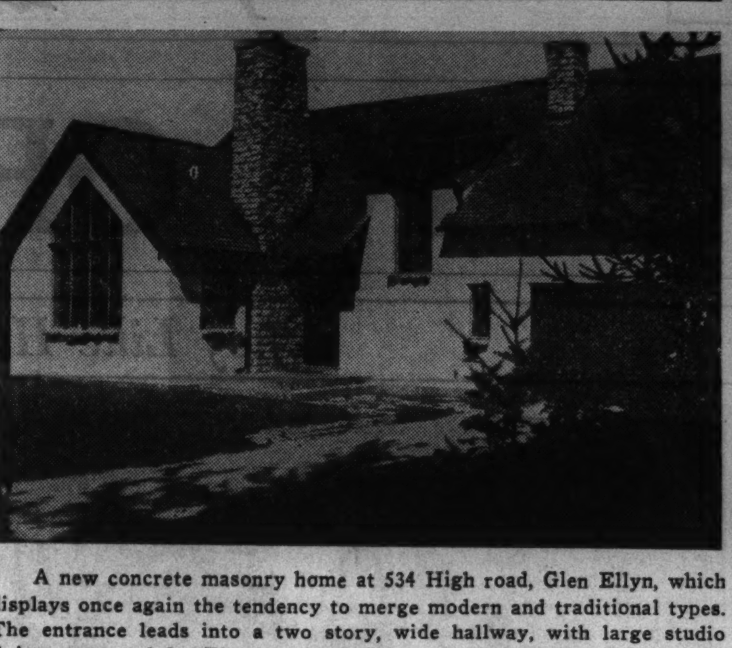
The second floor contains an interesting, carefully worked out plan. At the head of the first landing there is a studio bedroom which can be used as an occasional guest room. Several steps up is the daughter's room, with a window which extends the entire length of the north wall and has a corner window at each end. Underneath the window there is a storage bench which is ideal for lounging purposes.

The master bedroom above the dining hall is large and airy. A feature of this room is the cabinetlike door in the south wall which opens up some three feet above the floor and gives a view of the studio living room below. This arrangement naturally increases the ventilating possibilities of the room.

Varsity Mothers' Club.

The Varsity Mothers' club of Hyde Park High school will hold its autumn tea Thursday afternoon in the social room of the school. A style show will follow.

Small Home of Concrete



A new concrete masonry home at 534 High road, Glen Ellyn, which displays once again the tendency to merge modern and traditional types. The entrance leads into a two story, wide hallway, with large studio living room at left. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Warren Spahr. The architect, John Van Bergen, Highland Park.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 30.

Dwarf fruit trees which are now available in excellent quality and variety are highly desirable features for the home grounds, especially for smaller areas. Almost any of the standard varieties of fruit can be obtained in the dwarf form. They will bear fruit in from three to four years. The espalier types can be obtained more easily at present to be grown against walls, trellises, or fences.

Tuesday, Oct. 31.

A final mulching with pine needles or rotting oak leaves should be given to the rhododendrons and other broad leaves evergreens. It will maintain soil acidity, conserve the soil moisture, and generally serve to protect the roots and create natural conditions favorable to growth. Evergreens which have been planted this fall will benefit by a mulch of dead leaves or old manure. It helps them become fully established and, especially in the case of manure, adds valuable plant food to the soil for next year's growth. Cold frames in which young perennial plants are being carried thru the winter should be kept closed now except on warm days.

Wednesday, Nov. 1.

Unless the place where the lily bulbs are to be planted is thoroly drained it will be best to set each bulb on a layer of sand to prevent any rotting due to poor drainage. Dead leaves of the quickly decaying sorts such as maples and poplars will turn into humus by spring if dug into the garden now. Spread them thickly and spade entirely under. Any that are not so utilized should be added to the general compost heap. Newly planted trees require some sort of support against wind and storm. Stakes or guy wires are effective for this purpose, depending on the size of the tree.

Thursday, Nov. 2.

When circumstances require very late planting of trees or shrubs, it is well to remember that heavy mulching will keep frost out of the ground. Thus the soil around the stock and on the proposed site can be kept workable into December. Continue planting the Dutch bulbs—tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, crocus, snowdrops, etc., while good weather lasts. Too late planting means poor flowers in spring. Spade up new ground and let it lie for next season's planting.

Friday, Nov. 3.

In the general garden cleaning do not overlook the common weeds. It is especially important to dig out completely the roots of the tall, coarse growing kinds that are perennial. Unless this is done they will come up again next year. Lawn mowing is to be kept up as long as new growth continues. This not only keeps the lawn looking well but also improves its condition for next year. Long matted grass that has lain on the lawn all winter means trouble in the spring when mowing begins.

Saturday, Nov. 4.

Do not be in too great a hurry to apply winter mulch on perennials, roses, bulbs, etc. Wait until the ground is frozen hard. The idea is to keep the ground frozen until spring to prevent the damage to roots caused by alternate freezing and thawing.

'Y' TO CONDUCT 5 DAY INSTITUTE FOR CONSUMERS

Exhibits to Point Out Values to Buyer.

Instruction for housewives in appraising the true import and value of merchandise will be offered this week when the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 6545 Union avenue, holds its second annual Institute on Consumer Buying. Sessions will begin tomorrow and continue until next Friday.

Altho the institute opens tomorrow, the first principal day will be Tuesday. Sound motion pictures on "Getting Your Money's Worth" and "Hidden Values" will be shown at 11:15 o'clock that day. The Englewood Kiwanis club luncheon at noon will present Dr. Hazel Kyrk of the department of economics from the University of Chicago. Dr. Kyrk's topic will be "Is the Consumer Movement Antagonistic to Business?"

A tour of educational exhibits on consumer buying will be taken in the lounge rooms at 1:30 o'clock.

"The Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act" will be the topic of a lecture by Kenneth L. Milstead of the regional office for the food and drug administration at 2 o'clock. J. S. Campbell of the federal bureau of agricultural economics will speak on "Meat Grading Demonstrations" at 2:45 o'clock and Dr. S. M. Duvall, professor of economics at George Williams college, will discuss "Principles of Consumer Buying" at 3:45 o'clock.

The session will open Wednesday at 12:15 o'clock with a luncheon held by the Englewood Business Men's association to which guests are invited. A. B. Johnston of the Chicago Better Business bureau will speak on "What About the Second Sale?"

Gus Postler, instructor on consumer problems and secretary of the Consumer Service council, will be speaker at a dinner Wednesday evening sponsored by the Men's club of the "Y." His topic will be "Safeguarding Consumer Interests."

The institute will close Friday afternoon at a luncheon of the Englewood Lions' club.

CRESCENDO CLUB TO HAVE PARTY SATURDAY NIGHT

Members of the Crescendo Musical club and their escorts will gather Saturday evening in the north assembly room of the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive, for a pot luck supper.

Each member will bring six portions of whatever food item pleases her fancy, ready to serve. Beverages will be served by the club. After supper, several of the talented members of the group will present a dramatic and musical program.

During the season, the club will give programs at many institutions, among them the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Crippled Children. Mrs. Mary Franklin is president of the group.

THIRD DISTRICT WOMEN JOIN IN CLUB INSTITUTE

600 from Area Await Rally Thursday.

To give clubwomen a better understanding of club work, a regional institute will be conducted by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs Thursday in the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Thomas Gifford, president of the 3d district in the state federation, will head a group of approximately 600 women, including district officers and chairmen, club presidents, and representatives to the district at the institute.

The conference will open at 10 o'clock in the morning with Mrs. William T. Bruckner, state president, in the chair. She will be assisted by Mrs. Fred M. Tuckerman, first vice president of the northern region, and her committee who have arranged the program.

Department chairmen will outline their programs during the morning session and Mrs. Fred Bauchhenss, a south side clubwoman who is state chairman of finance and printing, will talk on "Finances."

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, first vice president and golden jubilee chairman of the general federation, will speak on "Adjusting Democracy for Human Welfare" at the luncheon meeting in the College Inn. Guest artist will be Marjory Mayer, contralto, and John MacDonald, baritone, both of the Grand Opera company.

Departmental conferences to iron out local problems will be held at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon by state chairmen.

Third District Active.

Serving on the state board from the 3d district will be Mrs. William Suthers, legislation chairman, who will hold a combined conference with Mrs. Alton Hall of Springfield, international relations chairman. Mrs. W. Selby Finn, another district member who is program bureau chairman, will visit various conferences, and Mrs. Arthur Kasehagen, 3d district chairman of the division of community service and public welfare, will introduce Judge B. Harry Reck in a lecture on "Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency."

Other members from the district assisting in the institute will be Mrs. W. M. Rennie, first vice president, in charge of luncheon reservations; Mrs. B. I. Meyer, second vice president, and Mrs. Elmer Toohey, recording secretary, in charge of registrations.

An institute for junior clubwomen will be held in the evening with Mrs. Alfred L. Jacobs, state chairman of juniors, in charge. Miss Helen Stoll, district chairman of juniors, will assist.

Clearing Woman's Club.

An old fashioned Halloween party will be held by club members Tuesday in Legion hall, 5649 West 63d street. Costumes will be worn and there will be traditional holiday games and decorations. Members of the Clearing Junior club will be guests.

Englewood Woman's Club.

Members of the painters' group will exhibit the work they did during the summer and the applied arts group will demonstrate new projects for the year at the morning meeting of the club tomorrow in the Englewood Masonic temple, 6734 Wentworth avenue.

During the afternoon, the Navarro Sisters will present a program called "Music of Latin America." They are the daughters of the former Panama consul in Chicago.

Gresham Woman's Club.

Board members will confer at 11 o'clock Wednesday in the Auburn Park Masonic temple, 7832 Union avenue, with Mrs. F. C. Hobbs, president, in the chair.

American home day will be observed in the afternoon with Mrs. Harold King, chairman, in charge. Mrs. Russell M. O'Hara, roll call vice chairman of the Gresham district for the Red Cross, will show two movies, "Footsteps" and "Let's Carry On." The speaker will be William Spuck, representative from the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross. An American home exhibit will be on display.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. Roy M. Folk, program chairman, will have charge of the afternoon meeting Tuesday in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. The guest artist will be Miss Betty Muehlberger, harpist, who has done solo work in Europe and Canada as well as with the Woman's Symphony orchestra here in Chicago. Ellen Alix du Poy will describe her travels in Greece.

During the morning meeting Mrs. I. L. Roberts, music chairman, will present Raymond Allyn Smith who will lecture on "Modern Music." Mrs. Merritt Ranstead will speak on the "Biography and Memoirs of Ignacz Jan Paderewski."

Hamilton Park Division B .

The annual benefit card party of Hamilton Park Woman's club division "B" will be held Thursday afternoon in the lounge of Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard.

Marquette Manor Woman's Club.

To raise money for club philanthropy during the coming holidays, Mrs. N. Bradley Dawson, ways and means chairman, will sponsor a luncheon and card party Thursday afternoon in Marquette park fieldhouse, Kedzie avenue and Marquette road. Reservations will be taken by Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Frank Keiser, Mrs. William Dwyer, Mrs. H. W. Samuelson, Mrs. Edward Kalley, and Mrs. Hugh Curran.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

A busy corner of the club which meets every week from October to April in the Morgan Park Methodist church, 110th street and Longwood drive, is the Book Nook. It houses the club lending library from which may be borrowed two books weekly. New books are added to the collection each week. Mrs. George W. Perkins is librarian.

The next meeting of the club will open at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning with Miss Frances Krimmel of the state department of public works and buildings as speaker.

At noon Mrs. William Suthers, district parliamentarian, will give the second of a series of talks on parliamentary procedure. Luncheon will be served under the direction of Mrs. B. J. Forball and her committee.

"Family Portrait," a play, will be dramatized by Lenore Coffee, a graduate of Northwestern School of Speech during the afternoon session. The program will be under the direction of Mrs. Norman W. Johnson, drama chairman.

Neighborhood Woman's Club.

A lecture on cancer control will be delivered by Dr. Frank L. Rector at a meeting of the club Wednesday afternoon in Ogden park fieldhouse, 65th street and Racine avenue. Dr. Edward Buckman will discuss "The Illinois Marriage Law and What It Means."

Ruffles for the Misses

Miss Teen Age need not worry any more because her mother wants her to dress in ruffles. She knows now that a ruffle can be as coy a decoration as a decollete. Young members of Beta chapter in Psi Chi sorority will prove this wise young theory tomorrow evening at a card party and style show in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Adapting demureness to good advantage, three of the girls who will model tomorrow evening are (left to right) Violet Latto, Maxine Rutherford, and Patsy McCune. The show will be under the direction of Miss Dorothy Miller.

1,500 PARENTS OF SCOUTS PLAN POT LUCK FEAST

Fifteen hundred parents of boys in the Southwest district of the Chicago council, Boy Scouts of America, will bring potato salad, cold meats, and cake Tuesday, Nov. 14, to the International Amphitheater in the Union Stockyards for the district's annual pot luck dinner and meeting.

In preparation for the event, mothers of the Scouts will form patrols this week to decide what each unit will bring for the dinner. Preparation of novel table decorations will also be arranged.

According to A. J. Clauter, chairman of the district, special guests will include Scout and Cub masters, assistants, skippers, mates, rover and explorer leaders and their personal friends.

In addition to formal entertainment, which will include musical solos, dramatic readings, and pantomimes, there will be community singing. Brief greetings of welcome will be extended by members of the district's executive committee and a 15 minute election will determine officers for the coming year. Reports will be read by various committees.

Assisting Mr. Clauter with the details are William Collins, a member of the district board; Harry Himmel, another member of the board, who heads publicity; C. M. Olson, chairman of the Southwest activities commission, who will handle the program, and K. T. Wood, Southwest commissioner, whose responsibilities will include program and attendance.

CLUB TO OFFER BENEFIT BRIDGE IN BLUE ISLAND

Party Tuesday to Swell Philanthropy Fund.

For the benefit of community, district, and state charitable institutions, the Blue Island Woman's club will conduct its annual bridge party Tuesday afternoon in the clubrooms, 13046 Western avenue, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Krueger.

Community organizations to benefit from the party include the Blue Island baby clinic, St. Francis' hospital, veterans at the Oak Forest infirmary, and the Blue Island Community High school. In addition a banquet and theater party are held annually for veterans.

Assisting Mrs. Krueger with the arrangements are Mrs. L. J. Laydon, Mrs. I. S. Rea, Mrs. C. M. Rohe, Mrs. Clifford Aulwurm, Mrs. Herbert Funk, Mrs. U. T. Easton, Mrs. A. J. Rush, Mrs. E. V. Chicago Heights Woman's Club.

Wednesday morning will be art and literature day in the Chicago Heights public library. Mrs. Frank E. Seipel, chairman, will present Mrs. Homer Abbott, who will talk on "The Viewpoint of the Modern Poet." Her talk will be illustrated by Mrs. Charles H. Bowles with readings from "The Story of the Ambitious Caddy," by Ogden Nash; "Record Stride," by Robert Frost; "Nightmare No. 3," by Stephen Vincent Benet, and "The Gavel Falls," by William Hornsby Ferril.

Harvey Woman's Club.

Lincoln H. Lippincott, national secretary of the National Safety council, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the club Wednesday afternoon in the Methodist Episcopal church. Lyle Hopkins, director of the Harvey grade school band, will present a clarinet quartet and a trombone soloist, accompanied by Mrs. J. M. Cooke. A sale of articles made by the inmates of Oak Forest infirmary will be held after the program. Mrs. J. H. Davis, welfare chairman, will be in charge of the meeting.

Homewood Woman's Club.

"Textile Identification" will be the subject chosen by Caddy J. Herrick, a textile research supervisor, at a meeting of the club tomorrow afternoon in the village hall auditorium. Mrs. J. H. Blair, chairman of the American home department, will be in charge of the program.

Orland Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. Ella Loebe, garden chairman, will be hostess to the Garden club Wednesday afternoon at a meeting in her home. "Indoor Gardening" and "The Study and Growth of the Chrysanthemum" will be the topic for discussion.

Palos Woman's Club.

Club members and guests will hear a talk on "Mental Hygiene" by Dr. W. Mary Stephens, psychiatrist for the board of education, at a meeting Thursday afternoon in the home of Mrs. George B. Ward, 123d street, in Palos Park.

Stewart Ridge Woman's Club.

Operating as the West Pullman Junior club for 11 years, the club recently became a senior unit in the 2d district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs under the name of the Stewart Ridge Woman's club.

Officers of the club are Mrs. Armand Chiappori, president; Mrs. Dwight Nelson, vice president; Mrs. Frank Erwin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ben Bradley, recording secretary, and Mrs. Arnold Lamb, treasurer. Departmental chairman will include Mrs. Clarence Dexter, American home; Mrs. David Cooper, press and publicity; Mrs. Dwight Nelson, public welfare, and Mrs. Karl Perkins, Park Ridge School for Girls. Heading the standing committees will be Mrs. Ralph Wood, program; Mrs. Lawrence Lloyd, social, and Mrs. Edward Loskill, ways and means.

Chosen President

Miss Marian Himmelwright, 7540 Wood street, was recently elected president of Pi Iota Tau sorority and will be in charge of a theater party to be held by the sorority Thursday evening, Nov. 9.

MEAT INDUSTRY AWARDS MEDALS TO OLD WORKERS

13 Employes Serve Total of 650 Years.

With an aggregate of 650 years in the meat packing industry, 13 Chicagoans, including 12 from the south and southwest sides, were among the 45 meat packing veterans who received gold service buttons of the Institute of American Meat Packers last week in recognition of the completion of half a century of service in the field.

Medals were awarded during the 34th annual convention of the institute in the Drake. Recipients from the south and southwest sides are:

Richard Burke, 3751 Emerald avenue, a caul fat puller, has been employed by Armour and Company for 48 years and a total of 51 in the industry. He lost his sight 35 years ago but has stayed on the job as an efficient worker, skillfully using a knife on a chain operation in the sheep department.

Held Many Jobs.

Harry J. Byrnes, 7730 Emerald avenue, a checker in the wholesale market of Armour and Company, who began in 1889 as a piece worker on the beef cutting floor and has been in succession a messenger, order clerk, scaler, inside salesman, and outside salesman.

James F. Carr, 7044 Loomis boulevard, who has been with Swift and Company for 49 years, working in many departments of the plant.

A. R. Crooks, 7715 Sangamon street, assistant treasurer of Miller and Hart, who worked two years with the Chicago Packing and Provision company and two with Swift and Company before starting with his present employers 47 years ago.

Otto Leis, 4928 Laflin street, superintendent of the sheep dressing department of Armour and Company, who has been with that company for 50 years in addition to one other in the industry.

Authority on Casings.

Edward S. Ludwig, 5858 Halsted street, whose work with the G. H. Hammond plant of Swift and Company has qualified him as an authority on sausage casings and taken him to many parts of the country.

William Lynch, 440 West 43d place, who followed in his father's footsteps as a cattle driver for Armour and Company. His father was one of the first drivers hired by the company and lived to be 107 years old. Mr. Lynch still resides in the house in which he was born, one that his father built. He has worked for Armour since 1895.

William Robinson, 11311 Union street, who entered the industry as an office boy in 1889 and the employment of Armour and Company in 1911. Among the positions he has held are those of night superintendent and car icing foreman.

Record for Attendance.

Edward Schultz, 5719 Albany avenue, superintendent of the pipe shop at Armour and Company, who has never been absent for sickness or any other reason more than one day during his 50 years in that department.

Frank Wesley, 5734 May street, who began tying sausages when he was 11 years old and has worked 27 years for Armour and Company and 24 years for other firms as a sausage maker.

Adam Young, 5608 Honore street, beef kill foreman of the Chicago plant of Wilson and Company, Inc., and co-inventor of the chilling needle to help in the prevention of spoilage. He served 25 years with the Morris organization and almost as long with the Wilson plant.

Fred W. Young, 1642 East 56th street, who has bought hogs for Swift and Company on every major market in the United States and Canada and has seen hog prices from $2.50 per hundredweight to $23.50.

SERIOUS MUSIC FOLLOWERS GET BREAK ON RADIO

Outlet for Toscanini Set; City Opera Slated.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Lovers of serious music have been getting a break or two the last fortnight. Just when it appeared that NBC would not be able to provide a local outlet for the Saturday night NBC Symphony orchestra concerts under the direction of Arturo Toscanini, WCFL came forward and offered to take them in their entirety from 9 to 10:30 o'clock Saturday nights.

WMAQ was unable to carry them because of sponsored programs; WLS is occupied with its five hour barn dance revelries on bath night, and WENR is off the air.

Toscanini is now occupied in his broadcasts with a six week Beethoven cycle which will conclude on Saturday, Dec. 2, with a performance of Beethoven's ninth symphony in Carnegie hall. Assisting Toscanini as soloist will be Jarmila Novotna, soon to make her Metropolitan opera debut; Kerstin Thorborg, Jan Peerce, and Nicola Moscona.

Chicago Opera to Be Aired.

Meanwhile, five performances of the Chicago City opera have been announced for broadcasting over NBC. Portions of the following operas will be aired:

"La Traviata" Wednesday, Nov. 1, soloists, Helen Jepson, John Charles Thomas, and Tito Schipa. The third and fourth acts will be aired.

"Mignon," Monday, Nov. 6, with Gladys Swarthout, Ezio Pinza, and Tito Schipa. Fourth act.

"Manon," Wednesday, Dec. 6, Jan Kiepura. Fourth and fifth acts.

"Otello," Wednesday, Dec. 13, with Giovanni Martinelli and Lawrence Tibbett. Fourth act.

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N-Mutual is musical director of the opera. Auditioners for the opera have been heard over W-G-N-Mutual.

More Good Recorded Music.

While WENR is continuing its week night recorded series, Music You Want, from 11 to 11:45, it has been announced that a similar series of serious music is to be aired at a late hour over WBBM.

WCFL also is airing at a somewhat earlier hour than WENR recorded music. W-G-N is continuing its Sunday morning Symphonic hour as is WAAF. Week days WAAF is continuing also its popular noonday Symphonic hour, a feature of many years standing.

Henry Weber's Pageant of Melody on Monday evenings and his Concert Revues on Thursday keep right on pleasing a lot of listeners on W-G-N and Mutual.

And, of course, the distinguished presentations of the New York Philharmonic orchestra is again back on WBBM Sunday afternoons from 2 to 4 o'clock. John Barbirolli is the conductor.

HOOSIER SALON PATRONS PLAN TO OPEN EXHIBIT

The Hoosier Salon Patrons association will open its November exhibition with a program and tea at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the galleries, 211 West Wacker drive. Mrs. June Burkholder, Gordon B. Mess, and Ruthven H. Byrum, all of Indiana, will be the exhibiting artists.

Mrs. Esther Ruble Richardson, artist and lecturer, will be the speaker, her subject being "An Artist Talks About Painting." She will illustrate her lecture by painting a still life picture in view of the audience.

Cocker Spaniel Expert on Bob Becker's Program

Listeners who own dogs have a special treat in store for them at 1:45 p. m. today when Bob Becker brings to the microphone of his weekly Sunday afternoon show Paul Moser, one of the best known breeders of cocker spaniels in the United States. Mr. Moser is the owner of famous prize-winning American and English-type cockers that have taken many ribbons and trophies in American dog shows. He owns 54 cocker spaniels and is probably the best informed man on this popular breed.

Whiteman on Mutual.

The popular rhythms of Paul Whiteman are aired over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual network from the Hotel New Yorker currently. His broadcasts are slated on Monday nights.

NEWS AND NOTES ABOUT PROGRAMS AND PERFORMERS

Dennis Day, Benny Tenor, Born Eugene McNulty.

Short subjects:

The real name of Jack Benny's new tenor, Dennis Day, is Eugene Denis McNulty. One of six children he was born 22 years ago in New York City. He attended Manhattan college and won the mayor's scholarship which led to his first radio job. He appeared on Larry Clinton's Campus club. Last April he started singing over a New York local station. Mary Livingstone heard him, had him make a recording which she sent Jack while he was attending the American Legion convention here. Benny was pleased and the lad was soon hired.

The part of his raucous voiced "mother" is portrayed by Verna Felton, who has played with the Benny company for several years.

To those who have asked: Vera Vague of the Charlie McCarthy program is really Barbara Jo Allen, heard on other dramatic shows. . . . Because listeners demanded it Fred Allen brought back his comic "newsreel" which he wanted to drop. . . . Listeners are whooping and cheering for Col. Stoopnagle's new "Stoopefying Stuff," his Quixie Doodle contest on W-G-N-Mutual. His first invention of the season: An umbrella with a bottle of warm milk attached for use when it's raining cats and dogs!

It's Squire Toscanini now. The world famous conductor instead of living in the Astor hotel or Radio City this year is commuting to Manhattan from a five acre country place near Riverdale, New York. . . . WLS will broadcast the Illinois state cornhusking contest from the George M. Wright farm near Danville at 11:45 a. m. and again at 2:45 p. m. tomorrow. The Prairie Ramblers and Patsy Montana will provide a musical back drop for the battle of the bangboards.

What was said to be the first broadcast of a football game was aired from Stagg field on Oct. 28, 1922, just 17 years ago, when Princeton beat Chicago, 21-18. Walter Eckersall wrote in THE TRIBUNE that the game "was carried by radio to a number of receiving points in large clubs elsewhere in the city." This season WHIP is airing the Chicago games.

Irma Glen is providing the organ back drop for Tony Wons new Scrap Book series on WMAQ. . . . Since Tony has been absent from the air he has been making violins and small model homes at his workshop near Kenosha, Wis. . . . Arthur Wright, former W-G-N tenor, is recovering from an illness in Aurora. . . . Artie Shaw left the Bob Benchley program because he [Shaw] was tired of the efforts that were made to make a comedian of him. . . . Virginia Clark, who plays the lead in the Romance of Helen Trent, has moved into her new Monterey type home in Glen View. . . . The local chapter of the American Federation of Radio Actors will hold its second annual Afra Antics at the Hotel Sherman on Friday, Nov. 10.

A question Bob Becker, W-G-N dog expert, hears often this fall through letters from fans is what type of clothes pin should be used to hold a pup's ears out of the food dish. Bob says the variety of clothes pin doesn't matter so much. But it's better for all concerned, he says, to get the dog one of those volcano shaped dishes that will admit his nose but not his ears.

W-G-N Actress

Pretty blonde Doris Larson, one of the reasons for the success of The Guilty Bystanders over W-G-N at 8:45 p. m. Friday nights. She plays the part of Mrs. Peg Cressy in the show, which is a dramatization of a novel by Rupert Hughes. A pictorialized version of The Guilty Bystanders is presented each week in the Graphic section of The Sunday Tribune.

W-G-N WILL AIR A HALLOWEEN PRELUDE TONIGHT

A Halloween prelude will be presented on "Your Sunday Date," featuring the singing of Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue, from 8 to 8:30 p. m. today on W-G-N. Harold Stokes will conduct the show.

Edna O'Dell will sing "Tomorrow Night." Salerno and the chorus will do "Lonesome Road." The orchestra will play the "Wizard of Oz" novelty "Ding Dong the Witch Is Dead," "Goblins in the Steeple," and "Night Glow." Salerno will sing "Quiereme Mucho."

Plans Indian Program.

A medley of American Indian songs will provide the feature of Pageant of Melody, directed by Henry Weber, with the singing of Attilio Baggiore, Mark Love, and Miss Harriet Brewer, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and Mutual.

Baggiore, Love, Miss Brewer and the octet will sing "Zuni Indian Call," "Pale Moon," and "By the Waters of Minnetonka."

Wilkomirski to Play.

A program of popular classical music will be presented on the Concert Revue, conducted by Mr. Weber, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday. Concertmeister Michael Wilkomirski and vocalists Kathryn Witwer and William Miller will be featured.

Anton Arensky's "Serenade" will be presented by the octet with Wilkomirski playing the violin obbligato and Peter Eagle playing the harp. Miss Witwer will sing "Aller Seelen," by Strauss. Miller will sing "Ah, Moon of My Delight," from Liza Lehman's "Persian Garden." Miss Witwer, Miller, and the octet will sing "Hymn to the Sun," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakoff.

WORLD'S GREATEST PARADE of FUN

THE GUMPS
WOW! 50 G'S REWARD -DEAD OR ALIVE!
HE MUST BE A VERY BAD MAN!
WANTED! RUFUS CHAPEL ALIAS $50,000. REWARD
YOU SAID IT, BROTHER!
STILL AT LARGE! RUFUS CHAPEL - AFTER DRUGGING UNCLE BIM, AND ESCAPING - HAS A 24-HOUR LEAD ON HIS PURSUERS - GOVERNMENT MEN AND THE POLICE OF EVERY CITY AND TOWN IN THE COUNTRY ARE ON THE LOOKOUT!!
GUS EDSON
THE GOVERNMENT MEN HAVE CRACKED DOWN ON HIS CRIME SYNDICATE - SEVERAL HUNDRED OF HIS HENCHMEN ARE BEHIND BARS - THE BIGGEST CLEANUP IN HISTORY -
BUT HE DISAPPEARED AS COMPLETELY AS IF THE EARTH SWALLOWED HIM -
IT MAKES ME SHUDDER WHEN I THINK HOW HE HORNSWOGGLED ME - WHY - I EVEN BROUGHT THE BEAST INTO MY HOME - WELL, YOU MUST ADMIT THERE'S ONE MEMBER OF YOUR FAMILY THAT WASN'T FOOLED BY HIM -
ANDY, MY BOY, I'LL NEVER GET OVER APOLOGIZING TO YOU FOR NOT TAKING YOUR SPLENDID ADVICE
EXCEPT FOR YOUR PERSISTENCE AND FINE DETECTIVE WORK, HE MIGHT HAVE GONE ON INDEFINITELY AS THE UNDERWORLD'S SUPREME CZAR - THOUGH FATE HAS DENIED YOU THE PRIVILEGE OF ACTUALLY BRINGING THIS MASTER THIEF TO BOOK, ALLOW ME TO PRESENT YOU WITH THIS $50,000 CHECK FOR BEING THE DIRECT CAUSE OF HIS DOWNFALL!
WH -? $50,000!!
OH, MIN! LOOK AT THIS! FIFTY THOUSAND COCONUTS!! NOT BAD PAY FOR A MONTH'S WORK, EH?
ANDY, ISN'T THIS WONDERFUL! I'M SO HAPPY!
BUT I'D WILLINGLY GIVE THAT AND MORE FOR THE PLEASURE OF PRESENTING THAT MISERABLE CARICATURE OF A HUMAN BEING A NECKLACE OF THESE TEN FINGERS!
-BUT UNFORTUNATELY I'M DENIED THAT RARE PRIVILEGE - CHAPEL IS PROBABLY HALF WAY AROUND THE WORLD BY NOW - THANK GOODNESS! I'D HAVE DIED A THOUSAND DEATHS IF I HAD KNOWN THE DANGER YOU WERE IN WHEN YOU WERE TRACKING HIM DOWN!!!
I'M GRATEFUL TO PROVIDENCE THAT YOU ARE WHERE NO HARM CAN COME TO YOU NOW - GOODNIGHT, DEAR -

HECK! I DON'T SEE NOTHIN' WRONG WITH ROSIE, UNCLE WILLIE.
WELL, ON ONE END SHE BITES, ON THE OTHER SHE KICKS, KAYO, AND IN THE MIDDLE SHE'S TOO BUMPY- THOSE ARE JUST THREE OF THE THINGS.
YA THINK BRINGIN' HER OUT IN TH' COUNTRY'LL CURE HER?
NO, BUT MAYBE MAMIE'S OLD MAN MIGHT BE STUPID ENOUGH TO BUY THE BUM BACK
WHAT TH'-? WHOA! WHATSA IDEA?
MAYBE SHE HEARD WHAT YOU SAID ABOUT HER.
OH!
OH!
STAY IN THAT CORN CRIB! DON'TCHA KNOW TH' BULL'LL SEE YOU SURE IF YOU KEEP POPPIN' OUT LIKE THAT?
WELL, I'LL TELL YOU SOMETHING YOU DON'T KNOW- ROSIE'S IN THIS CORN CRIB!
OOP!
OH, GOOD GRIEF! THE BULL'S GOING IN AFTER ROSIE... OOOH, I NEVER REALIZED HOW MUCH I CARED FOR THE LITTLE CRITTER TILL NOW
POOR ROSIE!
ZOK!
YOU MAY RIDE ROSIE HOME, KAYO- I'D RATHER WALK THAN SET.
GOSH! I WISHT SHE'D OF GOT INTO A HAYSTACK INSTEAD OF THAT CORN CRIB. SHE'D BE A LOT SOFTER STUFFED WITH HAY THAN SHE IS FULL OF CORN.

SMILIN' JACK
ME SO DUMB SOME-TIME! ME WAS TALK-UM WITH DIXIE AN' LET-UM IT SLIP THAT JACK LOVE-UM MARY!
DIXIE MUST STILL LOVE JACK--I HEAR SHE TRIED TO RUN AWAY AND ALMOST GOT HIT BY A TRUCK!
UP YOU GO, DIXIE--YOU'RE GOING ON A TRIP WITH MARY AND ME
NO--ALL I'VE EVER DONE IS BRING GRIEF TO YOU--AN' NOW THAT YOU HAVE A CHANCE AT HAPPINESS WITH MARY, LEAVE ME OUT OF YOUR LIVES!!
WE'RE PRACTICALLY KID-NAPPING DIXIE--BUT I KNOW WE'RE DOING RIGHT--EVEN IF IT DOES MEAN GIVING UP THE MONEY WE HAD SAVED FOR OUR HOME!
YES, JACK, THAT MONEY WILL HIRE A SPECIALIST THAT MAY BRING BACK HER EYE-SIGHT--I'VE DREAMED SO MUCH OF A HOME OF OUR OWN, BUT--- --IF WE DIDN'T GIVE DIXIE THIS CHANCE, HOW COULD WE BE HAPPY? WHEN WE WALKED INTO A DARK ROOM, WE COULD SNAP A SWITCH AN' THERE WOULD BE LIGHT-- --- BUT NO BRIGHTNESS!
I KNOW--EVERY LAMP IN OUR HOUSE WOULD REMIND US OF DESERTING DIXIE IN A WORLD OF DARKNESS!
NC 16854
THAT'S NICE--WELL--I MUST GET BACK TO THE CAFE-- SAY, WE'RE HAVING A FRIED CHICKEN SPECIAL TONIGHT!
WOO WOO, ME HAVE DECIDED WE WILL GET-UM MARRIED AS SOON AS JACK COME BACK!
SPEAK-UM OF CHICKENS, HAVE YOU EVER SEE THAT LITTLE CHICKEN THAT HANG-UM AROUND AIRPORT?
SURE---THERE HE IS NOW--HE'S ALWAYS LOOKING AT AIRPLANES WITH A PUZZLED LOOK!
WONDER WHAT HIM ALWAYS WONDER ABOUT?

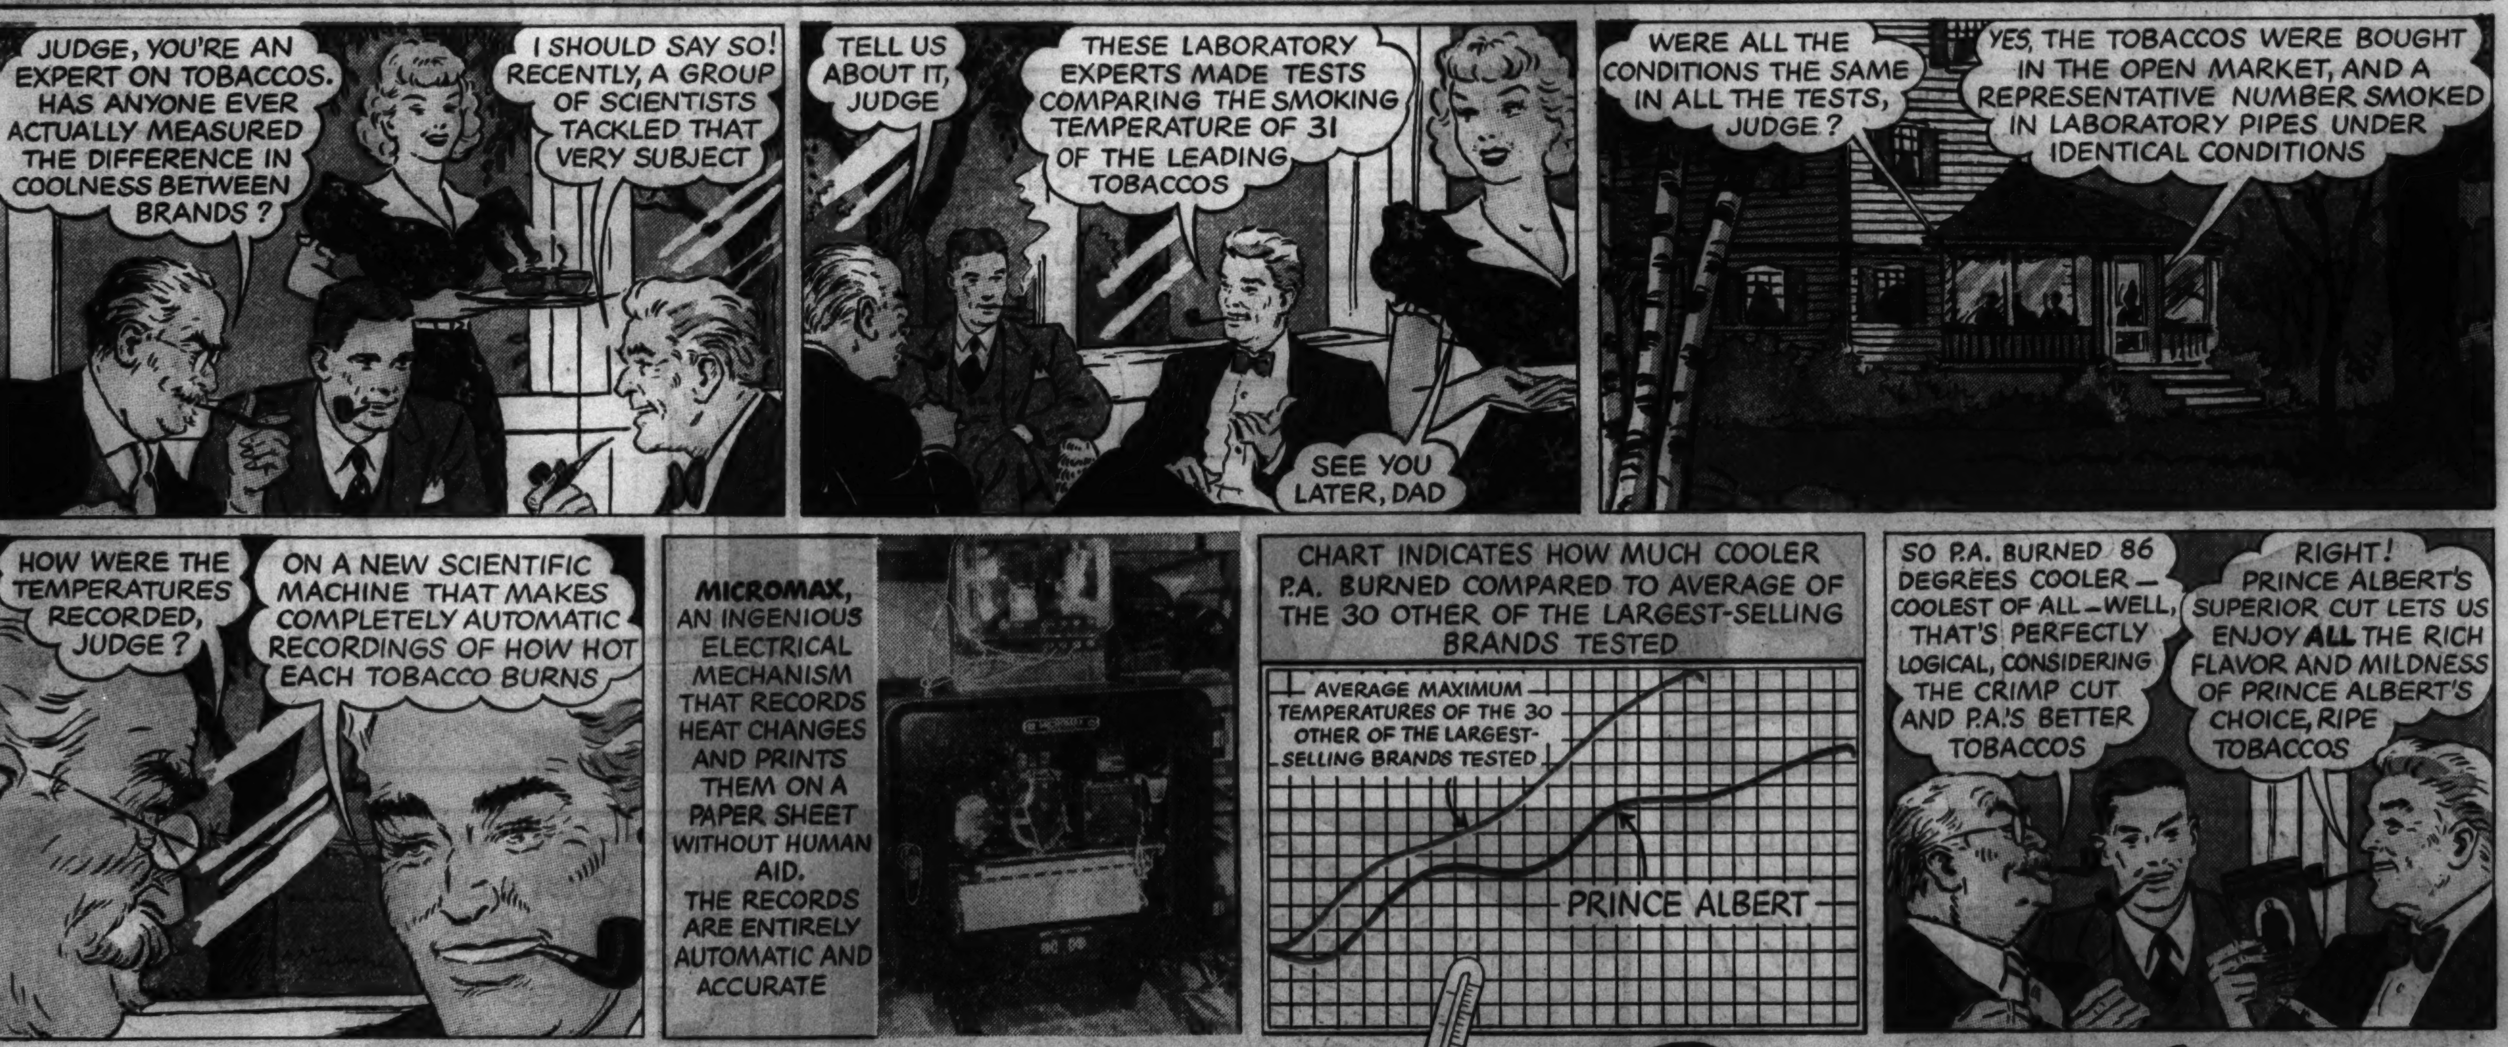
OL' JUDGE ROBBINS' PIPE CORNER



JUDGE, YOU'RE AN EXPERT ON TOBACCOS. HAS ANYONE EVER ACTUALLY MEASURED THE DIFFERENCE IN COOLNESS BETWEEN BRANDS?
I SHOULD SAY SO! RECENTLY, A GROUP OF SCIENTISTS TACKLED THAT VERY SUBJECT
TELL US ABOUT IT, JUDGE
THESE LABORATORY EXPERTS MADE TESTS COMPARING THE SMOKING TEMPERATURE OF 31 OF THE LEADING TOBACCOS
SEE YOU LATER, DAD
WERE ALL THE CONDITIONS THE SAME IN ALL THE TESTS, JUDGE?
YES, THE TOBACCOS WERE BOUGHT IN THE OPEN MARKET, AND A REPRESENTATIVE NUMBER SMOKED IN LABORATORY PIPES UNDER IDENTICAL CONDITIONS
HOW WERE THE TEMPERATURES RECORDED, JUDGE?
ON A NEW SCIENTIFIC MACHINE THAT MAKES COMPLETELY AUTOMATIC RECORDINGS OF HOW HOT EACH TOBACCO BURNS
MICROMAX, AN INGENIOUS ELECTRICAL MECHANISM THAT RECORDS HEAT CHANGES AND PRINTS THEM ON A PAPER SHEET WITHOUT HUMAN AID. THE RECORDS ARE ENTIRELY AUTOMATIC AND ACCURATE
PRINCE ALBERT
SO P.A. BURNED 86 DEGREES COOLER — COOLEST OF ALL — WELL, THAT'S PERFECTLY LOGICAL, CONSIDERING THE CRIMP CUT AND P.A.'S BETTER TOBACCOS

PRINCE ALBERT
LONG BURNING PIPE AND CIGARETTE TOBACCO

THIS CHOICE, "CRIMP CUT" TOBACCO

BURNS 86 DEGREES COOLER

than the average of the 30 other of the largest-selling tobaccos tested . . . coolest of all . . . in recent scientific tests at a nationally known laboratory

That means Prince Albert gives rich, full-bodied, yet MILD smokes, free from the mouth discomforts of excess heat. Enjoy MOUTH COMFORT, REAL SMOKE-JOY at last, thanks to P. A.'s choice, fully ripened tobaccos, the famous COOL-SMOKING "crimp cut," and "no-bite" process! (That's a tip to "makin's" smokers too.)

DIZZY! HOW WONDERFUL! LET'S TURN OUT IN OUR GRANDEST DUDS. THEY'RE SO CRITICAL ABOUT EVERY LITTLE DETAIL.
OFF TO THE GAME
HOLD THAT LINE!
C'MON, TEAM!!!
GOSH! A RUN! I FEEL IT CREEPING DOWN MY STOCKING. HOW CAN I DANCE WITH A RUN SHOWING?
DIZZY, YOU DOPE! WON'T YOU EVER LEARN TO WASH YOUR STOCKINGS EVERY NIGHT WITH IVORY FLAKES. THEY'D LAST LONGER!
(ADVERTISEMENT)
SHHH! I'M SNEAKING OFF TO FIND A STOCKING STORE. HOLD THE FORT TILL I GET BACK!
NEVER AGAIN WILL I SAVE UP MY SOILED STOCKINGS ALL WEEK AND WASH 'EM WITH ANY OLD SOAP!! DOLLY'S LAST MUCH LONGER.
WHAT'S HAPPENED TO DIZZY? THIS IS THE LAST QUARTER...MAYBE SHE'S LOST... MAYBE SHE'S KIDNAPPED...
BE CALM, PINKY! I'M NOT SUPPOSED TO TELL–BUT DIZZY GOT A STOCKING RUN AND SNEAKED OFF TO BUY NEW ONES.
HERE I AM, EVERYBODY. WHO'S WINNING?
DIZZY, YOU DIMWIT! WE WERE JUST GOING TO GET THE POLICE OUT AFTER YOU!
BETTER NOT MARRY HER, PINK–TOO MUCH UPKEEP ON STOCKINGS.
DOLLY, D'YOU SUPPOSE HE'LL EVER TAKE ME OUT AGAIN?
SERVES YOU RIGHT IF HE DOESN'T! NOW WILL YOU REMEMBER TO WASH YOUR STOCKINGS EVERY NIGHT WITH IVORY FLAKES???
LOOK, GIRLS! STOCKING MANUFACTURERS SAY NIGHTLY IVORY FLAKES WASHING HELPS STOCKINGS WEAR LONGER. TRY IT AND SEE!

Little Orphan Annie
"TALLY" SEEMS TO BE MOST HELPFUL-
"TALLY"? OH, SURE - SHE'S ALL RIGHT - THAT WAS A SMART IDEA OF YOURS FOR ME TO GO TO HER FOR THE LOW-DOWN ON THAT CASE, JILL-HM-M--- THANKS- I FIGURED SHE'D KNOW-
YEP - SHE'S SMART - AND IT ROILS HER AS MUCH AS IT DOES US, OR ANY OTHER DECENT PERSON-
THOSE POOR OLD FOLKS, ENOCH AND ELLA KEY - THEIR ONLY SON, JASPER, WAS EVERYTHING TO THEM - THEY'D SLAVED TO GIVE HIM HIS START - AND HE WAS ONE IN A MILLION, JILL - WHEN HE SUCCEEDED, HE NEVER FORGOT HIS FOLKS-
WHEN JASPER KEY WAS KILLED IN THAT ACCIDENT, HE MUST HAVE DIED WITH THE THOUGHT HE'D AT LEAST ASSURED HIS PARENTS' COMFORT FOR LIFE --- A HUNDRED THOUSAND - EVEN DEDUCTING TAXES, THERE WAS ENOUGH TO SEE THEM THROUGH-OR DID HE DIE WITH THAT THOUGHT? IT APPEARS HE'D BEEN PLANNING, AT THE LAST MOMENT, TO CHANGE HIS ADMINISTRATOR-
ANSON JOG?
YES - ANSON JOG - BIG SHOT, CONTRACTOR, BANKER, POLITICAL BOSS, A DOZEN ANGLES - AND NOW WE FIND EVERY CENT GOES TO ANSON JOG - NOT ONE DIME TO THE POOR OLD FOLKS-
WHAT WILL BECOME OF THEM?
THEY'LL HAVE TO GO ONTO RELIEF AS IT STANDS - LOSE THEIR HOME, FURNITURE, EVERYTHING-
WHY, IT'S NOT HUMAN, JOHN - THERE MUST BE A LAW - JUSTICE-
HA! HA! SURE - AND THE LAW SEEMS ALL ON THE SIDE OF ANSON JOG - EVEN IF THE OLD FOLKS HAD ANY CHANCE, WHO'D TAKE THEIR CASE?
WHY? THERE ARE ALWAYS LAWYERS WHO'LL TAKE SUCH A CASE, AREN'T THERE?
I DOUBT IT - NO LAWYER RELISHES CERTAIN DEFEAT - THE OLD FOLKS HAVE NO MONEY - AS FOR GETTING ANY OF THAT $100,000, FAT CHANCE OF THAT-
IT'S SO UNJUST - SO CRUEL-
NO SHYSTER CARES TO WORK FOR NOTHING, PLUS A BEATING - A GOOD ATTORNEY KNOWS HE'D HAVE TO BEAT HARPE, SCARP & TITLEMAN, PLUS THE POLITICAL MACHINE, PLUS THE LAW-
ER - UNCLE JOHN -- HOW DID WHAT'S-HIS-NAME, JASPER KEY, GET KILLED?
EH? HOW? ACCIDENT - AUTO, I BELIEVE - RAN OFF THE ROAD INTO A QUARRY --- HM-M--- SAY - WHY DID YOU ASK THAT, ANNIE?
OH, CHILDREN ALWAYS LIKE THE GRUESOME DETAILS-
BUT IT WAS SORTA A LUCKY "ACCIDENT" FOR ANSON JOG, WASN'T IT?

THEY CALLED BEA A BOOKWORM UNTIL...
FOLKS, GET A LOAD OF THIS – BEA, THE BEAUTIFUL BOOKWORM!
CAN'T A PERSON ENJOY A GOOD, INTERESTING BOOK IF THEY WANT TO-- WITHOUT CERTAIN PARTIES MAKING A SAPPY REMARK?
YOU'RE ALWAYS TIRED AND PEPLESS LATELY, BEA. COME ON OVER TO PEG'S HOUSE. THE BUNCH IS THERE. WE'LL TOSS SOME FOOD TOGETHER AND MAKE WHOOPEE!
ANOTHER CUP OF TEA, BEA? TEA IS A GREAT PEPPER-UPPER, YOU KNOW
OKAY, PAL. SAY, I'M FEELING BETTER ALREADY. THIS TEA TASTES SIMPLY DELICIOUS!

TEA LETS YOU SLEEP
Z-Z-Z

SIX GOOD TIMES TO ENJOY TEA

BREAKFAST – TEA GIVES YOU A QUICK PICK-UP – AND IT'S SO EASY TO DIGEST.

AT 11 A.M. – TEA HELPS YOU TO WORK BETTER, THINK FASTER.

LUNCHEON – FOR A GOOD AFTERNOON'S WORK, LET TEA PEP YOU UP.

AT 4 P.M. – SO REFRESHING – TEA CHASES AWAY 4 O'CLOCK FATIGUE.

DINNER – TEA TASTES SWELL AND MAKES FOOD TASTE BETTER.

EVENING – ENJOY TEA FREELY — TEA LETS YOU SLEEP.

IT'S AS EASY AS A-B-C TO GET A REALLY GOOD CUP OF TEA

A - ALWAYS USE BUBBLING BOILING WATER AND POUR IT ON THE TEA.

B - USE 1 TEASPOONFUL PER CUP, PLUS ONE FOR THE POT.

C - STEEP TO ANY STRENGTH YOU PREFER. (MOST PEOPLE WHO USE CREAM OR MILK CHOOSE A 5-MINUTE BREW.)

WHAT'S THE GOOD OF MY NEW DRESS, MOTHER WHEN MY FACE LOOKS LIKE THIS?

ADOLESCENT PIMPLES can spoil YOUR girl's or boy's good times

Many young people are made self-conscious and unhappy by pimples. Mother—learn now two important reasons these ugly blemishes are so troublesome between the ages of 13 and 25.

FIRST—During these years the skin is highly sensitive. Then sluggish intestines may cause pimples to appear.

SECOND—Your girl or boy may not get enough Vitamin A—the vitamin that is so important in helping to keep the skin free from blemishes.

Help for both these troubles is found by many in the new Fleischmann's HIGH-VITAMIN Yeast. The fresh yeast helps stimulate sluggish intestinal action. And 2 cakes a day now furnish over 6000 units of Vitamin A.

Why not get your girl or boy with poor skin to try eating Fleischmann's new High-Vitamin Yeast—2 cakes every day—one cake ½ hour before breakfast or lunch, one cake ½ hour before supper. Many greatly benefited in 30 days or less!

The IDEAL PROFESSION for the AMBITIOUS who will not be content with less than $50.00 a week

IT'S BEAUTY CULTURE. The profession which offers everything to a woman. POSITIONS ALWAYS AVAILABLE! Look in the "Help Wanted" columns. Note how many more advertisements there are for Beauty Operators than for stenographers, typists, office workers. BIG EARNINGS! Established beauty operators think nothing of making $50.00 a week. Then there's the chance for you to have a business of your own. LIFE LONG SECURITY! Beauty Culture is a profession where advancing years help, where a girl's advancement does not depend on the favor of some man.

General—Suburban South.

I WANT TO HAND SOME ONE $2,200.
That's true and here's why: I recently finished building a 5 room, 2 story brick house [never occupied] on FHA 20 yr. loan in South Side suburb, 36 minutes by I. C. train to Loop, on corner lot, beautifully landscaped, which cost me $9,700. Quick sale price $7,500. Small monthly payments. A $2,200 loss to me—money I had paid out. Sounds unbelievable. Here's the reason: I am not in the real estate business, but own 42 lots in this suburb and joined with others, who own lots, in building 7 new homes in order to stimulate sale of lots we own. I built one of the houses and as I live North of Chicago am willing to take this loss to affect quick sale. I hold receipts and waivers of lien to prove this. It is a chance of a lifetime. WE PREDICT that people who buy or build in the next six months are going to find that they acted at the most logical time in their entire lifetime.

Interest rates are now at the lowest in the history of home financing in this country, and indications point to an advance. A 1% SAVING IN INTEREST USUALLY MEANS AS MUCH AS 15% SAVING ON THE ULTIMATE COST. If interest rates advance the Home Buyer who acts now will be in a strong position.

Present financing terms are so favorable that it costs very little more to BUY AND OWN A HOME than it does to rent one.

IN SCARSDALE,
Arlington Heights,
we offer 4 of the finest six and seven room houses we have ever built. You will be amazed at the remarkable values, and the terms are within the reach of families who pay $75 or more in rent.
54 Chicago and North Western railroad trains serve Arlington Heights daily. The running time is only 32 minutes.

We will assume your lease, even if you have just signed a new one.

Day by Day on the FARM

By BOB BECKER

Feathered Vagabonds.

October, 28, 1939.

A FLOCK of half grown Muscovy ducklings are proving to be real feathered vagabonds on the farm these autumn days. While walking thru one of the fields last week we found th' flock of Muscovys on a reconnoitering expedition. They were more than a half mile from their barnyard headquarters.

We asked the flockmaster about these wandering ducks. He said they head for the fields or woods nearly every day and apparently they find food no matter where they go. Frequently he finds these birds in the oak and hickory woods. They may spend several hours strolling thru the timber and then nonchalantly head for the barnyard. It's noticeable that only this one family of Muscovys has the exploring urge. All the others are contented stay-at-homes, quite satisfied with the free handouts they get in the barnyard.

Double Dividends Returned.

One of the men on the farm was commenting this week on the number of plants that return double dividends to the farm from the time they flower until they mature in the fall. One that he cited was the pumpkin. Pumpkin plants add to the attractiveness of the garden plot with their huge orange flowers. Then in the fall they provide good pie material for the farm families. Tall sunflower plants, topped by huge flowers, send their giant stalks skyward all summer, and the seeds are threshed and stored away for feeding game birds during the winter.

This week we saw another example of how some garden plants yield a double dividend. The Jerusalem artichokes that grow in the garden are members of the sunflower family, so their stalks have had large golden flowers for the last few months. Now the flowers are gone, but the artichoke isn't willing to pass out of the picture without getting a little more attention. The men have dug up the tubers of this plant and the farm wives are getting some experience cooking them for the table. One man reports that his wife provided a delicious dish of creamed artichokes.

Many Ways to Prepare Them.

Jerusalem artichokes may be baked, mixed with cheese or meat as a sandwich filler, creamed, made into salad, or even fried like French fried potatoes. The plant grown on the farm [sometimes called American artichoke] is different from the green or globe artichoke often used for salads.

Turtle soup will be on the menu of one of the farm families in the near future, because the flockmaster captured another snapping turtle on the shore of one of the ponds the other day. Two weeks ago he caught a 19 pound turtle by flipping it into a burlap sack, and this week the prize catch was a 14 pounder.

Speaking of double dividends, the flockmaster was saying that the elimination of snapping turtles from any small body of water provides two benefits. One is that the turtle soup is a delicacy for any table, and the other is that the removal of turtles aids fish life and waterfowl. Large turtles can do a lot of damage to the ducks, geese, and swans that live on the ponds.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

WE just O. K.'d a $15,000 mortgage to settle a 7 year receivership on a 12 flat building. By proving to the bondholders our offer to be best possible, we got them to cancel their $29,000 unpaid bonds for $15,000 cash and to restore the building to the owner. We overcame many difficulties in this case because of the bad condition of the building and its low rentals.

We generally are successful because: FIRST—We grant in most cases larger loans than others, knowing that an owner will handle HIS OWN building better than outsiders, and SECOND—We will skilfully and honestly present the owner's viewpoint to the bondholders with CASH IN HAND, and such arguments usually win out.

On our really enviable record, without boasts or promises, we invite your business. We solved many knotty mortgage problems and can help you, too.

We lend up to 15 years on homes, 2 to 4 flats—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old on large apartment buildings, stores, factories, and garages; [2] place 20 to 25 year 80% to 90% FHA loans at 4½% interest; [3] advance funds to settle estates, heirs' interests taxes, liens, redeem property under foreclosure; [4] if even our top loan won't do, we will negotiate with Trustees, Mortgagees, Bondholders' Committees, Banks to cut down overly large debts to present day levels.

Lincoln-Zephyr Leader Among Used Car Values

WHY?

1. Because it's been the style leader every year since 1936.
2. Because of 12 cylinder performance with remarkable economy.
3. Because the body and frame are welded into one unit of steel. No bolts to cause rattles.
4. Because the elimination of running boards provides a wide body and roomy seats.
5. Because most used Lincoln-Zephyrs are guaranteed and some carry the famous R. & G guarantee.

We have grouped them for your convenience. Some have radios, heaters, and whitewall tires. Variety of colors and upholstery. Come early and take your pick!

Good Makeup Makes Up for Lack of a Flawless Loveliness

THE wise mother whose daughter is denied flawless features might well paraphrase the old adage thus: "Be meticulous about makeup, sweet child, and let who will be beautiful!"

It's entirely possible for the plain Jane to endow herself with the illusion of shining prettiness if she masters the art of fine and lasting makeup.

First, of course, comes the necessity for a good complexion. Skin must be clear and moist. Skin tone doesn't matter. Makeup takes care of that nowadays.

Makeup, as a matter of fact, can be magic. The girl who doesn't spend hours at her dressing table experimenting is not making the most of her time. She should study her eyebrow line, her lip line, her hair arrangement. Often slight changes make all the difference.

Every Wardrobe Should Have a Suit as the Foundation of Fashion

EVERY wardrobe begins with a suit. It's as much a foundation affair as a coat for winter. Around a well chosen suit some of the most distinctive wardrobes are planned and used season after season. Travel suits in flattering yet unobtrusive shades, made of good, sturdy, and well wearing fabrics, gad around the globe with a companion topcoat for chilly weather, an impeccable two-piece outfit of sleek fitted jacket and smart skirt for moderate temperatures.

In summer the silk suit, in-between seasons the wool suit, and for winter wear under fur coats the pastel colored suit or the one in a high contrast shade. There are suits for spectator sports wear, suits of stunning high-colored rough tweeds for country wardrobes, and suave town suits that look like expertly planned costumes or ensembles. Most of the sleek town suits are a matter of distinctive dress teamed with a carefully matched jacket with soft outlines and dressmaker details. These suits (Continued on Page 3.)

By MARY MEADE

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WHAT makes a chocolate or devil's food cake red? How can I get a mahogany colored cake? Why does my chocolate cake always turn out brown instead of red, no matter what recipe I use?

These and similar questions constantly recurring in my mail prove to me that most cooks prefer red-brown cakes to chocolate colored ones.

What factors affect the color of a chocolate cake? First of all, soda. An excess amount of soda, more than ordinarily would be required to neutralize the acidity of chocolate or sour milk used in a cake recipe, has a tendency to produce red color in the chocolate. Soda and sweet milk are more likely to give redness than soda and sour milk, for certain chemical reasons that I won't go into here.

Look for a recipe using sweet milk and soda, in the first place, if you want a red cake.

There are other factors, too. In most cases, if you let the cake batter stand for 10 to 15 minutes before baking, you'll get a richer red color than you would obtain if you baked the cake as soon as the batter is ready.

The brand of cocoa or chocolate used has an effect. Cocoa beans from which chocolate and cocoa are made vary in color from light brown to red brown. And the roasting process influences color, too, a higher roast giving darker color.

The amount of cocoa or chocolate used is important. The more of one or the other, the darker brown is the color

Some cake baking experts protest that the deep brown chocolate cakes have better flavor than the red ones, and that the excess amount of soda necessary to a red cake leaves a definite soda taste. "Why emphasize color?" they ask, "Why not concentrate on flavor, for flavor is what you're going to eat!"

Others argue that only a supersensitive palate can detect a slight too-muchness of soda, and that the appetite appeal of a reddish color is considerable.

I won't take sides in this dispute, but I must confess that I personally like a chocolate cake to have a slightly reddish tinge.

Put a fudgy frosting on your chocolate cake and you can call it fudge cake. Bake it in layers with marshmallow filling, frost the top with chocolate, and decorate it with nuts, and you have a chocolate marshmallow layer cake for company.

Bake it in a loaf and spread it with butterscotch or caramel frosting. Add a few nuts to the cake itself. Bake it in cupcake pans and frost the cupcakes with orange confectioners' sugar icing, then coat the orange frosting, not quite to the edges, with melted unsweetened chocolate, and top each cake with a nut meat. These and a dozen other variations will enable any cook to make one good chocolate cake recipe do for many of them. Her only problem is to find the good recipe.

You'd like that good recipe? All right, then, send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it, and you'll get not only the cake recipe but recipes for white mountain cream frosting and filling, fudge frosting and caramel frosting, as well. The cake may be baked as a 9 by 12 inch loaf, or in three layers, like the cake in the photograph. Address requests to me in care of the Chicago Tribune.

And if it happens that you'd like recipes for all kinds of cakes, fillings, and frostings, you'll find them in my booklet, "Baking the Perfect Cake," which sells for 23 cents by mail.

Let Tact Help You in Dealing with Children

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

You simply can't be an unswerving, adamant disciplinarian with your children and get the best and most far reaching results. Right may be right and wrong may be wrong. The principle may be perfect. But human nature is no hard, inflexible material that can be hewn to the line, that can be cut and chopped to shape. Its very texture is different from that; it is—well, what can we say it is? Volatile, flexible, changeable, malleable.

Child nature particularly is so. It is, besides, only partly formed, still in the process of growth and still in the midst of that more complex process, development. To make rules for a child's conduct and never, never to break them is to be headed, often, for either struggle or failure.

Besides, circumstances, to use an old saw, alter cases, particularly where children are concerned. For example, when a child is disobedient at 9 o'clock in the morning it may be for an entirely different reason from the one which makes him disobedient at 8 o'clock at night. You may have a rule that he is always to do certain things for himself, or for the family. Yet the circumstances that exist at 8 p. m. may be quite different from those existing at 9 a. m., and you may be wise, or shall we call it just human, to relax your demands on him under the more trying situation.

One of the fruits of this sort of understanding is the exercise of tact by those who have the constant care of children. And, of course, tact takes on various aspects, as used by different conditions.

For instance, haven't you often been feeling "low" and had some gay or interesting caller make you forget your troubles? Haven't you seen many a tense social situation or dinner party conversation rescued by a tactful change of subject by the hostess?

This "change the subject" aspect of tact is one that could stand being put to actual use a great deal more than it is. Nor is doing it a sign of weakness, a sign that a parent can't be firm and definite when the occasion requires it. To change the trend of a child's thoughts, to switch his attention in order to help him over a hard place doesn't mean you have no discipline; it is, instead, a human impulse to exercise one of the most comforting forms of tact.

Do you use this technic with your children ever? It's like magic sometimes, isn't it? For example, when your small son is tired and gets a fixed idea about what he wants; or when your little girl is ill or in pain and is determined she will not let you do what needs to be done; or when your teen age son is keyed up by a late at night talk about some personal problem, then a skilful change of subject changes your child's state of mind.

Changing the subject in this way is usually relaxing, where insistence and so-called discipline may serve no purpose but to increase tension. The conforming or not conforming to the simple demand becomes an issue, and the tired, ill, nervous or convalescent child becomes the storm center of a situation. It is, on the other hand, no sign of weakness or spoiling if a mother swings the conversation to another and interesting quarter.

This form of tact is most needed when small children are tired, or when children of any age are sick or convalescent. Knowing your own child and his interests, you can choose to talk about things that catch his attention, or tell him or her, if younger, a fascinating tale of cottontail rabbits, a doll's house to be built, of fairies, of fine, real adventures in the past, or of remote and soothing days in the woods or on the beach. In this way you put your child on a magic carpet that will carry him and you over hard places.

To those who don't "see the sense of using tact with children," who think "it's spoiling them," who call it "giving in to them and cajoling and coaxing," who say "tell them what to do and see that they do it" my answer is a question. Do you treat your husband, your sister, your father, your relatives and friends like that? Don't you ever make allowances? Aren't you ever tactful with other adults? Don't you try to get along with people?

Then, why make an exception of children? They are people, too. Indeed, they are people who need far more patience and compassion than grownups do. They need tactful handling more than their elders, though they do not usually get it.

Indeed, I have always contended in this column, though not always in so many words, that when children are treated like people, and not like a different race of human beings, they respond marvelously. And in all ways. Treat a child like a regular person at the table in regard to his eating, in showing him courtesy at home and abroad, in his learning and his mistakes, and in answering his questions—and his path and yours will be smoothed and made pleasant.

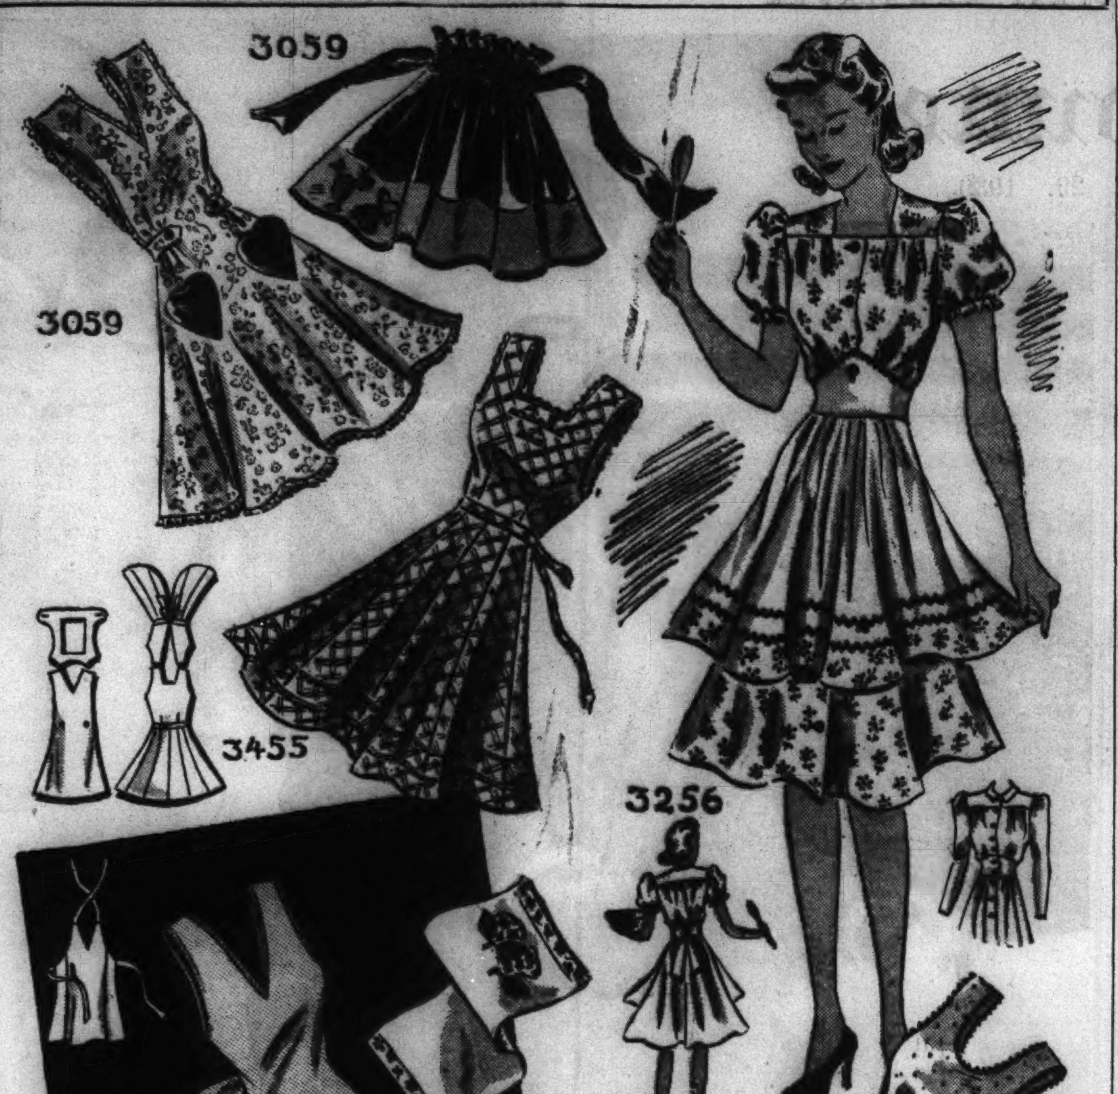
"Is Tact in Your Bag of Tricks?" carries the subject still further. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for this booklet. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

The bride in your circle, and your other friends and relatives, too, will appreciate receiving handmade aprons as shower gifts or at Christmas time. The sketch today illustrates five patterns you are certain to like. They fashion items easy to make at little cost.

No. 3059 creates both a coverall apron and a tea model that has a lovely shirred waistline.

No. 3455 creates another coverall, with squared shoulderline, snug waist, and flared skirt.

No. 3256 fashions a house dress with a matching or contrasting apron that buttons onto the frock.

No. 2154 makes a V neckline apron with a voluminous bow in back. Applique is its trimming, and this same print may be used for harmonizing kitchen items.

No. 3487 is utterly simple, with a tulip pocket and braid trimming.

All these models utilize the most inexpensive of cotton materials, in prints or plain shades.

No. 3059 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting for heart pocket apron; 1⅞ yards of 39 inch fabric with ⅝ yard contrasting for the shirred model.

Style No. 3455 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 11 yards of braid.

Style No. 3256 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material for dress; 1¾ yards of 35 inch material for apron; 3 yards of braid.

Style No. 2154 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. Medium size requires 1⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard printed fabric, ⅛ yard plain.

Style No. 3487 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. Medium size requires 2 yards of 39 inch material, ¼ yard 18 inch material for pocket, 4½ yards of braid.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

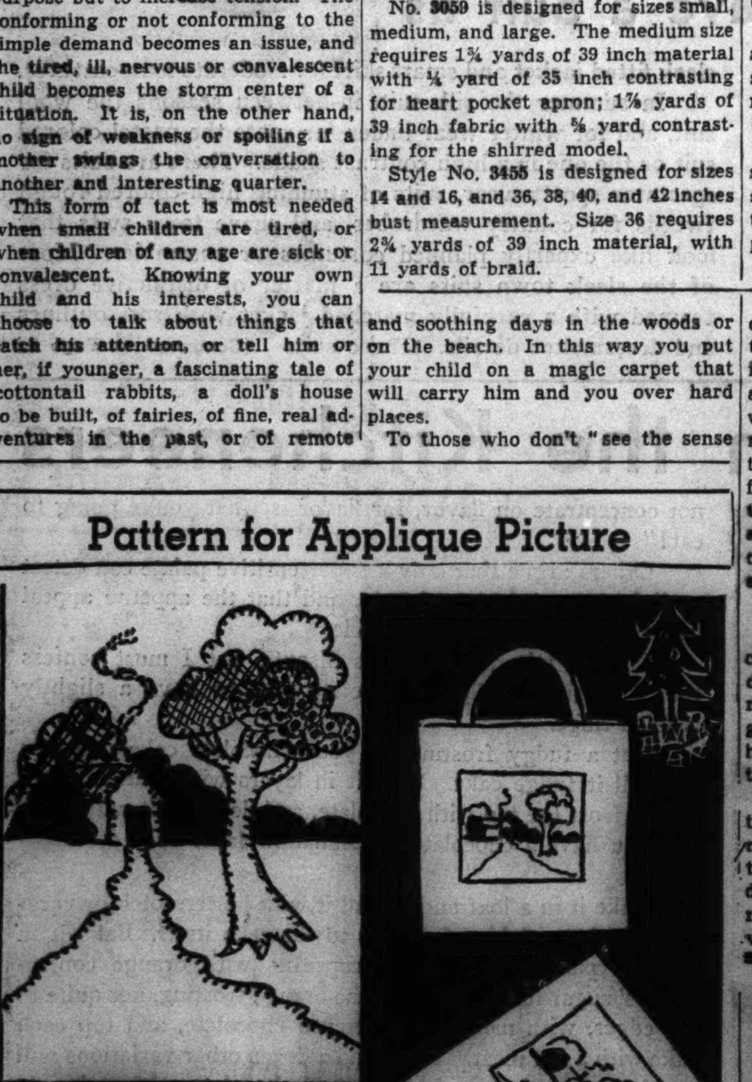
Pattern for Applique Picture



By Nancy Cabot.

Applique pictures make lovely gifts when they are made from gayly printed material combined with plain colors. These same 19 by 12 inch pictures may be used for decoration on the cover of one's favorite scrapbook or for a color spot on a linen crash knitting bag. As a pillow top this applique scene has no equal and gives a homey touch wherever it is used.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the applique picture, No. X-633, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Married for 45 Years, Seeks Maiden Name

After being married 45 years, Mrs. Mary Sidell T. Bush Lippincott, 84 year old widow of a prominent eye specialist of Pittsburgh, Pa., has appealed to the courts for permission to resume her maiden name. She is living in France, where her husband, Dr. James Lippincott, died a year ago.

Mercolized Wax Cream Skin Bleach Beautifier Lightens the Complexion

A LIGHTER, lovelier complexion can be acquired with the aid of Mercolized Wax Cream. This fragrant, dainty cosmetic contains active ingredients for flaking off the dull, drab surface skin in tiny, almost invisible particles to reveal the fresher, prettier underskin. Freckled or suntanned skin is lightened.

Mercolized Wax Cream has been famous as a complexion lightener for over a quarter century. Get a jar of Mercolized Wax Cream today. Apply it to your skin every night like a cold cream. While you sleep this delightful cream bleaches your skin to a fairer more attractive appearance.

Makeup Makes Up for Lack of Loveliness

Color sense. She must learn to choose instinctively the rouge, lipstick, eyeshadow, and powder tints that dramatize her own coloring and harmonize best with her costumes. The woman who goes through life unaware of the difference between a true red and a blue red in lip rouge is uneducated in one of the vital phases of a woman's existence.

Face grooming is important. Not even the raving, tearing beauty can get away with brows that need plucking, or lipstick that is smeared or badly applied. The state of makeup, during every single moment she is on parade, must be bandbox fresh. The powdered surface that has caked, smeared and become dust filmed is a handicap not even a Cleopatra could live down.

● ● ●

Under the heading of "what every girl should know" should come makeup foundations. The right foundation often is the secret of the successful and lasting makeup. It should give the skin a dewy finish to which powder and rouge cling firmly but unobtrusively. It should have delicate color, so that the skin is highlighted a little.

There should be harmony between cheek and lip rouge, and skill in the application of both. Orange cheek rouge worn with blue-red lipstick is a sight that offends the artistic eye of the beholder. And rouge is NOT worn in blobs. It is applied delicately, sparingly, and skilfully, so that its spot of color is an enhancement, not only to the complexion but to the contour as well.

Makeup should be renewed at least twice a day. The powdered face becomes soiled just as inevitably as the hands, and the only thing to do about it is to clean up and make up all over again!

Clean powder puffs, and lots of them, are guardians of good face grooming. The soiled puff, drawn over the nose a dozen times a day, does more harm than good to the makeup and to the complexion beneath it.

● ● ●

Oiling the eyelids is a "must" with the women who are meticulous about makeup. A tiny bit of cream on the upper lid serves not only to oil the delicate thin skin there but to flatter the eyes, too.

Every makeup should be followed by a careful brushing of brows and lashes. A trace of face powder on the brows gives them a gray, unkempt look. Brush it out, every bit of it. The brushing will be good for the brows, too.

Develop habits when you cleanse your face and apply a new coat of color. Remember that upward and outward strokes are best when you apply or remove cream. And remember, too, that regularity is the one and only beauty secret. Do the same things every day, year in and year out. Don't be a frantic try-outer of this and that.

When you find beauty aids that suit you, stick to them. When you find a makeup that gives you a well groomed, luminous look, don't abandon it.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

Dress Reflects the French Trend Toward Practicality

By Bettina Bedwell.

Fashion is favoring more practical models in Paris now, since the French mind has been forced, by war, to take an unusually serious view of life. Designers have not abandoned femininity, however, because the Parisienne, even if she must work hard for a cause and don uniforms and trousers, still is feminine, and most of her clothes must conform to her personality. This two piece frock is one that French women like very much this season.

Its jacket has unusual paneling and makes deft use of shirring. The bottoms of the puffed sleeves and the collar with the long tabs are stitched. This contrasting note is the only trimming on this otherwise simple frock, which has buttons in a row down both jacket and slightly flared skirt. The original is made of crèpe in a misty blue, but all subtle colors and gray and black will make up well. This model is adaptable to woolens and velveteen, too.

Style No. 5318 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Home Owners' Queries

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Would you advise lumiline bulb lighting in a bathroom, placed vertically the length of the mirror, or is it likely that this lighting will go out of favor shortly? Are these bulbs expensive? J. LANDY.

Answer—Lumiline lighting, placed as you suggest, is a handsome treatment. Haven't heard any one hint that this is going "out of favor." It is very popular and the bulbs are not expensive.

CHICAGO.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Where can I find out about available wood for a paneled room? We'd like such remodeling done, but would like to know about some of the opportunities available first. J. K.

Answer—See your local lumber dealer or modernizing firm or dealer in building supplies. Lumber associations have a great deal of literature and pictures on the subject. You can have a wood paneled room for so much less money than you could have had it even 20 years ago. Check up on the plywoods and on the wood veneers of various types.

* *

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Just what is meant by a "footcandle" in discussing the amount of light in a room? What wattage lamp is suitable for the ceiling light of an average size kitchen? M. N. SMITH.

Answer—A "footcandle" is a unit used for the measurement of light, just as we talk about a "degree" when we mention the temperature. This footcandle represents the amount of light a candle of certain size will throw on a surface 12 inches away. For a ceiling light in a kitchen, for general illumination purposes, a 150 watt lamp should be sufficient in most cases.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Now is the time when humidity in our air becomes quite definitely the vitamin "A" of our indoor, well-heated air. For those who live with hot water or steam or vacuum radiator heat, whether in home, apartment or hotel, there are individual room humidifiers which can be easily installed on a radiator. These units can be installed in place of the air vent valve and deliver to the room from three quarts to a gallon of water vapor per day. There is a device to prevent overhumidification of a room. As a protection against all the troubles that come in the wake of too dry air, not the least of these being colds, respiratory ills, drowsiness and skin irritations, these units are well worth their moderate cost.

* *

If you have a room with an aged floor and you'd like to give it a change of face, there are handsomely patterned hardwood block floorings which are especially adapted to be laid over your existing floor. These block floorings, which come ready finished, in light or dark or medium oak, in walnut, maple, and beech, can be installed in a few hours' time and ready for use, since they are completely factory finished. Whether these blocks are installed by nailing or by laying in mastic depends on the type of the old floor. There's warmth and quiet, too, in such a floor. Not a hard way to give fresh beauty to a room.

* *

If you have an old type hot air system, there are ways of converting it to a modern warm air system, and at no great cost, either. In place of the water pan which you fill by hand, there are pans which you can connect with the water supply and, automatically controled, they will always have water. Then, too, a blower fan to force warm air into hard-to-beat rooms will provide better and more even heat thruout the house. Another worth while "modernization" is the installation of an opening in the floor of a first story room, preferably in a hall. Cooled house air can then return to the heater thru such an opening.

Constipation Relief That Also Pepsin-izes Stomach

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

Overly Good Mother-in-Law Irks a Bride

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"It seems to me and another bride of a year that you favor the mother-in-law when there is an argument. We both have noticed that you charge the bride with going into marriage with a chip on her shoulder toward her husband's mother. Perhaps some of us do. Again, some of us are grateful to the woman for bringing up the son in the pattern that we find so pleasing and agreeable to live with. We carry no chip on our shoulders. BUT—and O, BUT—— "What do you think of a mother-in-law who is seemingly as friendly to you as can be, but who insists upon telling you what a trial as a son your beloved was? What a bad temper he had. How stubborn. How ungrateful at times.

"My friend, the other bride, has another difficulty to handle. She says she hates to voice it because it sounds so ungrateful. My friend, the bride, let me explain, is married to a fine, ambitious young fellow who, at present, is making $55 a week. They are willing to get along on this amount. Indeed, they take a great pride in their ability to save on it.

"My friend is a perfect little housekeeper and manager, but her mother-in-law likes her and almost every day she calls up wanting to know if she can't send her maid over to help; if my friend, the bride, doesn't want mamma to buy that chair the young pair is planning for an empty corner at a later date. She wants to take the bride of her son downtown to her dress house and buy her clothes that are all out of keeping with her son's income.

"In the spring she begged her daughter-in-law to take a cruise with her, all expenses paid, of course. My friend, naturally, being a normal person, might enjoy the luxuries, but she does not want to make her young husband feel that he is depriving her of anything, and so she wishes mamma would keep out of hearing and sight with her constant attempts to be generous."

Our bride-correspondent presents other angles on the in-law question. They all boil down to the mother-in-law behavior that wins the young pair over as dear, devoted children.

We deduce that the mother-in-law who exposes the son's shortcomings is doing it in order to compliment the young woman on her son's luck in getting such a wonder. We can see no other point in such disclosure, a stupid attempt to get on the inside with chummy confidences. But she reckons without the girl's knowledge of the young man she marries. Time and again it has been pointed out that a young man as a son and as a husband are two different persons, with only a possible faint resemblance one to the other.

The wise mother-in-law remembers back when she accepted her man and knew she knew a lot more about her husband than his mother did. That's the normal bride reaction, whether it is true or not. So the wise mother respects that younger woman's stand. She may smile behind the back of the pair of them at the marvelous qualifications marriage develops in her sometimes troublesome son, but she just smiles and lets it go at that.

• • •

As for the second mother-in-law, there is something so fine and grand about young couples who ask only that they be let work out their own financial salvation that the type of generosity pointed out above becomes a vicious interference. The good mother-in-law should accept the younger woman's determination to keep within her young husband's income and turn her generous impulses in some other direction. Indeed, she, the mother-in-law, might interrogate herself on the nature of this generosity of hers, whether, at bottom, she isn't trying to keep the young pair tied to her apron strings, to make them obligated to her, in other words. The younger woman must sense something of the sort. Otherwise she would accept the generous advances. So, if a daughter-in-law hedges or tries diplomatically to ease out of an acceptance, mother-in-law should take the answer to mean no. Instead of being hurt over the rebuttal, a vast pride should envelop the older woman for the spirit conveyed.

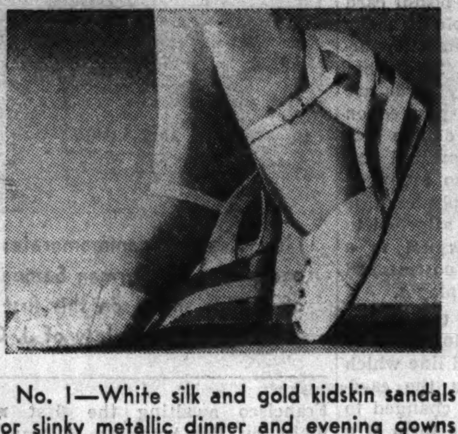
Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of The Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

Footnotes to Current Fashions

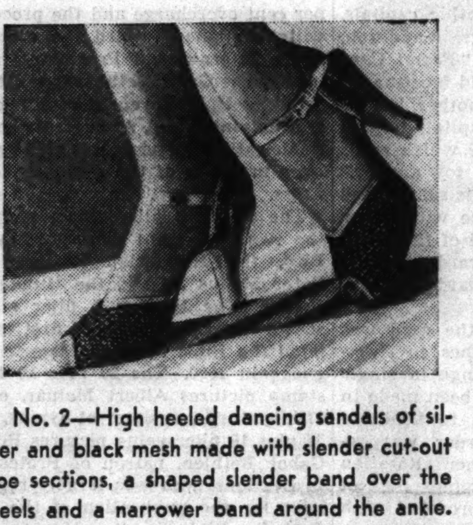
By Rhea Seeger.

Not since the magic worked for Cinderella have there been so many glittering footnotes or such glamorous, romantic slippers and sandals for dress parade clothes. Metallic brocades, gold mesh, lamés and shimmering tissues in vivid colors adorned with either silver, gold, or copper rhinestones, semiprecious gems and all kinds of gold or silver kidskin make the most exciting of this high fashion footgear!

For afternoon, the most sumptuous street shoes have demure bows or trim of fur. Dusky brown suedes have bows of leopard skin. The same skin goes equally well with bronze green or black. Small pompons of sheared beaver also enhance the sleek trimness of brown or green suede as well as the black or navy shades. Russian boot effects achieve even more luxury with the high cuff outlined with a band of the fur. The last gasp in footnote swank are the appliquéd patches of silver fox, or the bows of luscious brown mink skin. Brown, black, gray, and pale beige caracul and curly gray Persian lamb make other fur trimmed pumps, oxfords, and the modified Russian boot models the newest afternoon footwear of the season.

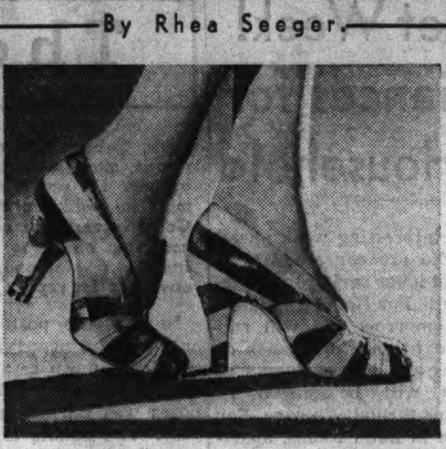


No. 1—White silk and gold kidskin sandals for slinky metallic dinner and evening gowns or for luxurious lounging outfits for Sunday supper and informal entertaining. The correct sandals for hostess gowns and the revived tea gowns. They can be dyed any shade to match the costume with which they are to be worn.

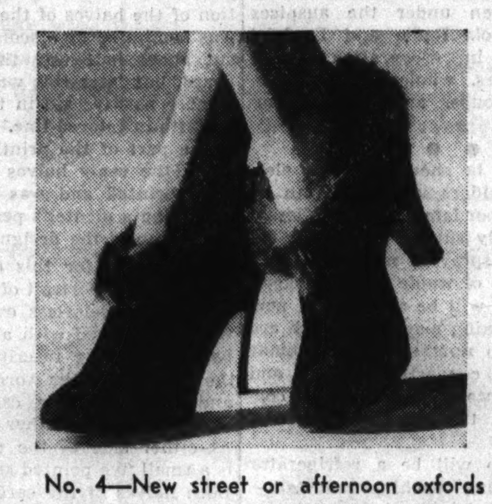


No. 2—High heeled dancing sandals of silver and black mesh made with slender cut-out toe sections, a shaped slender band over the heels and a narrower band around the ankle. Dancing sandals to wear with all the full skirted filmy net and sequin trimmed dance dresses.

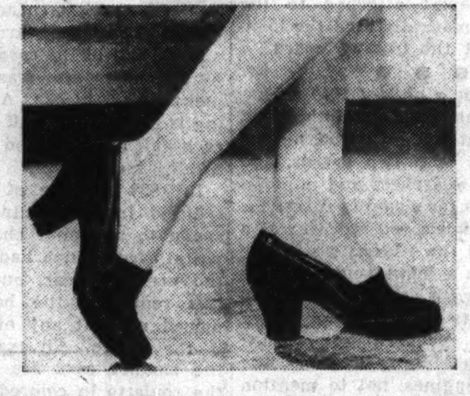
Street and spectator sports shoes are not only extremely comfortable but very smartly designed. They slice inches off the footlines, giving a sleek, trim appearance with all kinds of swagger. Combinations of shiny and dull leathers, suede with alligator, calfskin with alligator, wedge soles, tricky platform soles, snub toes, Dutch sabot outlines, moccasin toes, and similar supercomfort devices make such practical finds both easy on the eye and easy to wear.



No. 3—Sophisticated sandals made of checked black and silver metallic cloth. Even the slender high heels are covered with the same material. The toes are covered with shirred material gathered down the center with a narrow band. Ideal footnotes for velvet and taffeta ball gowns.

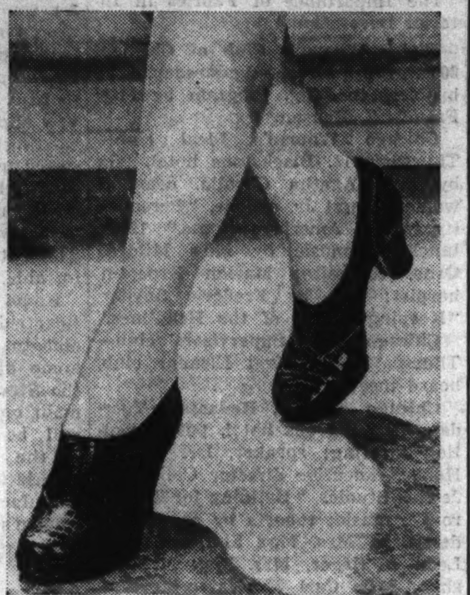


No. 4—New street or afternoon oxfords of smooth suede fashioned with high, slender heels and a band of fluffy fur outlining the edge of the shoe. For wear with scantily fur trimmed dress suits or with unfurred suits trimmed with appliqued kidskin and teamed with a huge fur muff.



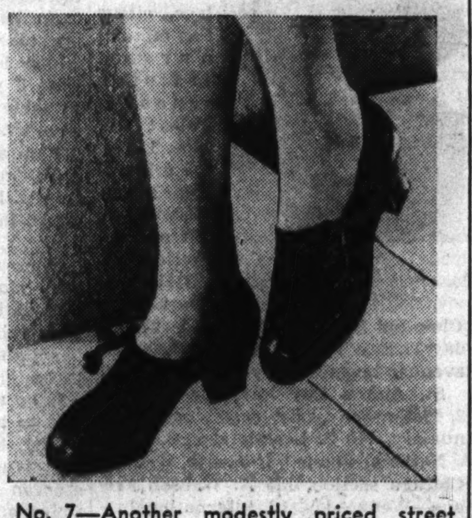
No. 5—A high treated version of the classic step-in, a spectator sports pump with a modest price mark. It comes in suede with calf trim with a new looking mudguard sole effect, in black or brown suede with calf.

Some of the most outstanding collections of such comfortable and high fashion daytime footwear are priced unexpectedly low, and every pair is a miracle of sturdy wearing qualities combined with the last expression in smart distinctive fashion.



No. 6—The suede gaiter revived from the old time comforts of the '90s. The walled vamp gives a shortened look, the alligator is accented with the lastex suede and it comes in black or brown.

The current showings of glamor evening slippers range from a modest sum to peak prices, but worth every penny. Gala fashions need the accent of gala footgear. Gowns, dinner costumes and evening wraps fashioned in the elegance of the hour can now be completed with the charm of proper footnotes.



No. 7—Another modestly priced street shoe, the classic oxford, now appears with a debonair side bow and lace effect. It comes in brown or black suede.

are legion, the clever, well pocketed wool twosomes worn with a classic swagger type top coat, or the newest affairs of fitted streamline suit as well as the fitted long coat. The same material in three colors often is used for such suits. Sometimes the blouse or top of the underdress uses a brilliant color for the third shade; at others the bodice is of lamé or decorative metallic cloth.

The extremely chic fall suits are the sturdier woolens trimmed with fur in dull black, taupe, bronze green, Degas red, sepia brown, and stone gray, the high fashion colors this season. The most popular furs are, the bands or appliqued designs of flat pelts such as Persian lamb, caracul, squirrel, mink, kolinsky, and marten. When the suits are more dress parade, the fur trim is fluffy bands, collars, deep cuffs of fox in smoky gray, cross fox, silver and ruby red fox. Distinguished suits of great elegance are the dull black woolens, highlighted with the sheen of frosty silver fox, deep lustrous sealskin, or the very subtle contrasts of sheared, silvery beaver with black.

Tailored suits of the old masculine outlines are no longer. The models that double for such creations are simple, but much softer in detail as well as general outline. Pockets, interesting stitched detail, soft folds and plaits, high necklines, a slightly puffed or bloused backline, a double row of buttons, and cuffs on the sleeves accent the very young and most engaging skirts, usually short, flared and snappy. High color, unusual color, is used for such suits. Most of them have most moderate price tags, and the materials are exceptionally soft and easy to wear.

Afternoon suits are the dress parade variety, the kind of a subdued smart model of handsome materials and fine furs, or the very new, unfurred models in duvetyn, velveteen, fine French corduroy, or soft suede, like wools. Linings are especially attractive because they are eloquent in color contrast, in brocaded pattern sometimes used for the brief short sleeved blouse attached to the skirt. Many are frankly just a suit, a skirt and jacket which the imaginative owner uses as a background for vividly colored and variously styled blouses.

Novelty suits are made of unusual fabrics, such as imported woolens in gay stripes, in soft, smooth materials, of two-tone checks, of wool, of fine soft flecked textures, of stunning self-ribbed or blurred checked patterns woven right in the material. Colors, too, are most unusual: two shades of gold; tri-tones of amethyst and rose red and a little yellow; double checks of red and green; big, bold outsize checks of beige, orange, and brown, and so on.

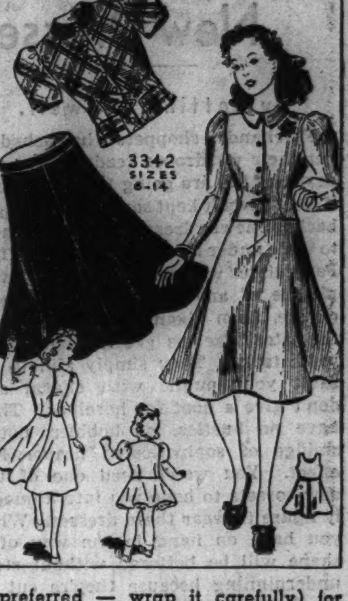
Black skirts teamed with brilliant red jackets, deep midnight blue skirts with emerald green tops, gold jackets worn with a skirt of India brown, gold colored wool skirts with green jackets, and a dozen other different color combines make still other notable suit finds. And the suit liked best in the import collections was the wide, flared, short skirt made of exquisitely patched together oblongs of red, green, and yellow, which was topped by a demurely fitted black, hip length jacket banded in narrow black Persian lamb fur.

The most subtle suits are the two and three piece suits in gray, deep gray skirt, a gray top, and a lighter gray jacket; taupe suits ready for tan or old gold colored taffeta petticoats; pale gray suits as demure as a Quaker, and the snap of gunmetal gray checks in the perfect travel suit, concisely streamlined, flawlessly tailored, and sleek in streamline, the necessary details for the perfect travel suit anywhere.

The new suits to come will be the pastel colored affairs, hinting of the coming resort fashions, designed to be worn for the midseason exodus to sunshine and warm weather, yet sufficiently smart to lead a snug fashion life under a fur coat. Baby blue wool is sensationally lovely worn with mink, with caracul in spicy brown shades, or with the dark gray fur coats. Equally eye-catching are the pink suits or the pale silver gray suits to slide under shiny black caraculs, under sheared beavers, or with sealskins in deep velvety black. Pale beige and gold colored suits are other color contrasts for wear now under a fur coat, or as the suit for the resort baggage.

Clotilde Children's Patterns



This two piece ensemble for juniors is designed for the girl in school. It is comfortable to wear, easy to keep in press, and spick-and-span, and the pattern is so simple that your daughter can make it herself without your assistance. She might use this pattern in her sewing classes in school.

Woolen is the logical fabric choice for young scholars' clothes at this season, but if the youthful wearer decides she prefers a party dress, the ensemble may easily be made of silk, velveteen, or corduroy.

The outfit may be created all in one material and color, or contrasts may be employed, for example, a plaid jacket with a dark skirt or vice versa. A velveteen jacket might keep company with a woolen skirt, or the opposite combination would be chic.

Style No. 3342 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch material for the jacket; 1¼ yards of 39 inch fabric for skirt.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Poverty, over a period of time, with attendant malnutrition and worry, frequently results in either mental or physical breakdown. Tuberculosis follows tragically close in the wake of need, and we have noticed an increase in the number of families in which one or more members have succumbed to the disease. Illness on the part of either parent forces separation from children, with the result that one parent is left to struggle to care for the youngsters, saddled with an additional worry. Children of such parents must be watched with special care and should be adequately fed and clad.

• • •

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a married man, 33 years old. I am on relief, I'm ashamed to say, but I just can't find employment. My wife is in a tuberculosis sanitarium. We have four children, two of whom are being cared for by my sister. The two eldest are living with me. The girl is 12 and the boy 10. The clinic has advised me that my daughter is run down and needs cod liver oil badly. I am asking your help in finding clothing and shoes for the youngsters. Of course, if it were possible for me to get a job, it would solve all our problems. My wife is improving out there, but, knowing I haven't a job, or a place for her to come to us, her mental condition is not of the best."

This address is on the west side of the city. Any warm clothing for the children will be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. K. writes from the institution in which she is under treatment:

"Dear Miss Brown: I'm in a very sorrowful predicament, and thought perhaps you might lend me a hand. I am a patient in this sanitarium, and my two children also are confined here. Since I have no income from any source, I cannot supply them with the necessary winter clothing, and their present wardrobes consist only of summer dresses. The children both are girls, and the youngest, 5½, needs shoes size 12, stockings 7½, flannel pajamas size 8, and clothing and underwear size 6. The oldest is 9½ and wears shoes size 4½, stockings 9½, pajamas size 12, and clothing and underwear size 10."

The sanitarium is unable to provide clothing for these youngsters, who will be there for some time, since they have been in contact with the mother and because they have no other place to stay. Altho she made no request for herself, I understand the mother needs warm pajamas size 16 or 18, and stockings size 9½. We shall be glad to supply the address to readers who have any of the abovementioned articles to donate, or who can supply overshoes for the children.

This family also is stricken with tuberculosis.

"Dear Miss Brown: I have heard of your good work for the needy, so I'm turning to you for help. I'm earning a very small salary, just enough to cover the bare necessities, such as food and rent. I have a son, 7, who is tubercular, and my daughter, 3, was discharged from the hospital just recently after an operation for a bone infection. At present, I'm living in a basement flat which will become very damp as soon as the wet season sets in, and I have no stove. Both children must be kept warm and dry. Could you get me a soft coal heater large enough to heat four small rooms, and some clothing for the boy, who wears size 9?—W. K."

This address is on the southwest side of the city.

Fish Sauce.

A little chili sauce and catsup added to mayonnaise makes a very satisfactory sauce to serve with baked or broiled fish. It can be prepared in a short time.

Sputtering Grease.

A little salt sprinkled in the pan before putting in the fat helps to prevent grease from sputtering.

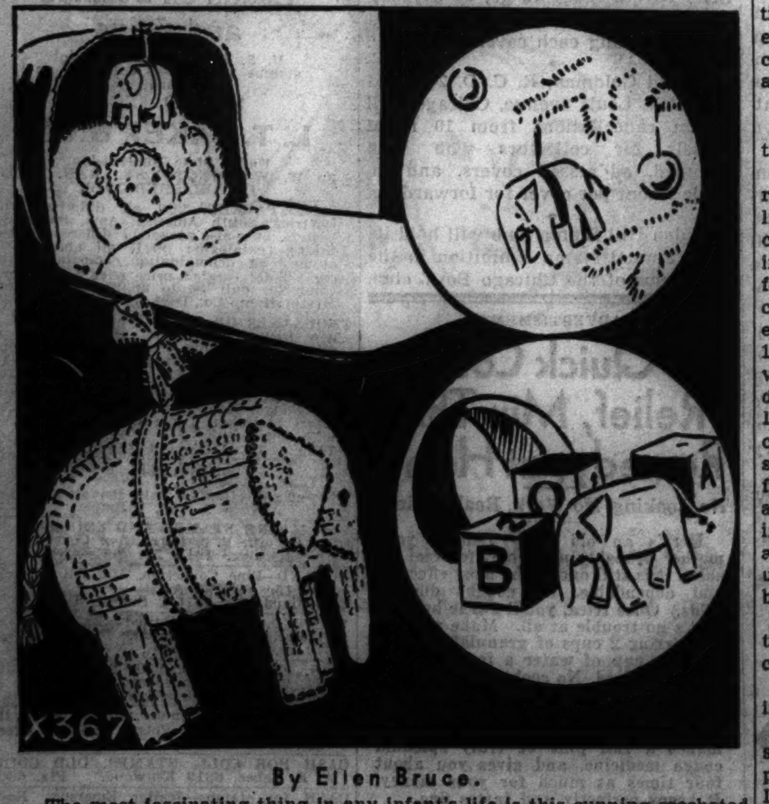
Infants' Crocheted Elephant



By Ellen Bruce.

The most fascinating thing in any infant's life is this cunning crocheted elephant. He is soft, white, and cuddly, and may be hung in the carriage, dangling happily in thin air, or as a companion in baby's crib. Soft white baby wool, pompadour, or Shetland floss may be used. His feet, ears, and tail are trimmed with a contrasting color. He is stuffed with kapok, so there is no possible chance for injury, and the pleasure derived from this little fellow is paramount.

For instructions in crocheting the elephant, No. X-367, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Your Own Shape Will Do for New Dresses

By Bettina Bedwell.

Forehanded shoppers who rushed to get their wardrobes ready before the first leaf fell are going to be in a fury if they haven't kept some of the budget back for newer dresses coming out now to wear under fur coats. The early fall Paris styles will make you into a swell picture of any assorted heroine you choose, from about 1870 to 1912, but the latest dresses get right down to brass tacks. They simply aim to assault your public with charm and don't give a hoot for heroines. They have no bustles, no hobbles, not a smidge of sophisticated drapery-for-effect. You won't need one of the new corsets to bone you into a queenly figure to wear these dresses. What you have on hand in the way of a shape will be bettered without steel underpinning because they're cut to do all that.

Beautiful shimmering silks and deep velvets make the dressier items among the newest crop of dresses. They're not flashy, but small figured brocades, showing a bright and dull side, are the materials of many a dress of this type. You can wear a taffeta dress under your winter coat this season, and it doesn't have to be black or have a bustle. For charm taffeta dresses are often trimmed with little ruffles of lace, or with velvet ruffles, bands or ribbons. Wool dresses are made, by trimmings, as elegant as anything in velvet or silk. Lacy bands and ruffles, usually dyed to match, are used on some of the very best of the new dresses, or they're embroidered around the neck, the waistline, and the sleeves, all or one of these locations.

Dolled up this way the sheer wool frock can hold its own with the best at a cocktail party, for bridge, or any other kind of doings when you want to look your best. The velvet dress that has the grande chic this winter usually is cut simply to give the luscious material a break, but a bit of lace or a touch of bright color with black velvet makes it completely charming.

Hats to wear with new dresses are coming out at the same time. Maybe you've noticed that when you have a glamor hat on your head the dress you wear plays it up better when it's not too brazenly trimmed or too colorful. Midwinter dressy hats are stars in their own right and the dresses I'm talking about play up to them. Chanel has a flock of new velvet berets trimmed with ostrich tips in color, and they're made to be worn by anybody. Halo turbans, made of pastel colored velvet in shades such as turquoise, Parma violet, and ruby red, are draped to flatter your face, and intended to match a jewel you'll be wearing. Whether phony or real doesn't matter.

I like the new brimmed hats that are so kind to faces under them. They're often made of velvet or velvet felt, and likely to be trimmed with feathers. Colorful, either as to the hats themselves or the trimming they sport, these will last throughout the winter. There aren't as many veiled hats this winter as there were last, but you may wear a veil with almost any piece of millinery if you feel that way.

Sample of a charm dress is one designed by Chanel and made of black Lyons velvet of the crush-resistant type. It has a round shoulder yoke of black velvet applique over rose colored net and a deep hem of the same on the moderately flared skirt. A saw tooth edge of velvet finishes the hem and velvet is encrusted along the shoulders and down the front of the yoke. The sleeves are shirred into the armholes and finished with ruffles of the applique, lined with rose colored net, and designed to flatter the arms. An accompanying black velvet beret is high at the left side and trimmed with rose colored ostrich tips.

Maggy Rouff's dress and jacket combine black wool for the dress and black shaved lamb for the basque jacket. The jacket has balloon elbow sleeves, mostly made of black satin with stripes of vivid pink moiré. The dress is tucked from a shoulder yoke and trimmed with bows of black satin and pink moiré ribbon. The belt is made of the same.

A Patou model, made of a mossy silk crêpe in a shade of blue, is called "winter blue," the blue you see in pines and cedars. The waist and the leg o' mutton sleeves are quilted into flower shapes that make a very effective trimming. A sash of the material draped around the hipline hangs to the hem of the slender skirt and is quilted at the left side.

STUBBORN RHEUMATIC PAIN
When Aggravated by Excess Uric Acid
Thousands take ALLENRU for the pains of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago, or rheumatic backache when aggravated by excess uric acid or other circulating poisons. Such excess acid and poisons should soon start to leave your body and thus the terrible agony is often relieved—no powders—no opiates.
Ask any live druggist in America for an 8 ounce bottle of ALLENRU—a liquid—costs about 85 cents—save this notice.

Gadget Week! Appliances for the Household

There is an interesting week ahead for women who are concerned with what's new and labor saving in household appliances. For Home Appliance week opens tomorrow and will run to Nov. 4, and literally hundreds of new appliances and improvements of existing ones will be shown in stores and shops thruout Chicago. For those who live in hotel rooms, apartments, rented houses, and houses of their own, there will be opportunities galore to add to easier, more comfortable, and gracious living.

Home appliances have made gigantic strides in the last few decades, and to dramatize their progress a home appliance show will open at the Stevens hotel on Nov. 1 and remain open until Nov. 4. This show will be given under the auspices of the Illinois Radio and Dealers' association, in coöperation with manufacturers, wholesalers, schools, women's groups, and utility companies.

There will be shown the new electrical humidifiers which plug in as easily as a floor lamp, and soundlessly and efficiently supply the indoor air with a fine spray of moisture.

New types of waffle irons, cookers, and roasters will be shown, and new electrical mixing machines which are harnessed to numberless convenient uses, from converting fruits and vegetables into juices for family consumption to turning the ice cream freezer.

There also will be a refrigerator and a washing machine that talk—by way of explaining their respective merits and virtues. One manufacturer has introduced a midget washing machines, just 12 inches high, which is light enough to carry on trips if you wish, and with it a tiny, portable wringer. And there's a hand iron which you don't even need to lift up and set down! All you do is push—and a rest attached to the iron will automatically hold the heated surface off the ironing board.

There will be a host of 1940 ranges with clocks and tubular lights and automatic heat controls; and newest type vacuums with two speeds, and headlight dirt searchers and numberless appliances for cleaning furniture.

If by any chance you are ever at a loss to amuse the youngsters of the family, there's a home sound recording studio with microphone and a dozen gadgets for making your own sound effects! You can produce such sounds as the ringing of bells, the whistling of engines, not to mention nature's various sounds—such as rain and wind and the lapping of water on a sandy beach. Incidentally this same sound recording studio can be used to make your own home recordings.

Before you have left this show you may have decided on a new radio with a remote control so you don't have to leave your kitchen range to turn on your favorite program in a nearby dining room or hall, or you may have decided that life would be much more worth the living if you installed over your bed a combination bed-lamp-radio. With such a unit you can read and listen to your radio—without glare from the light. These units come finished in ivory or walnut.

There will be entertainment of various kinds thruout the week at the Stevens home appliance show, and also interesting exhibits of historic materials, showing vacuums and washing machines of yester year.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

In 1892 the postoffice department authorized a new type of postal card which is known as a double, or reply card. Such a card for domestic purposes was issued on Oct. 25 of that year. The double or reply cards are actually two postal cards printed on the opposite sides of a double size piece of cardboard. The printed portions of the cards are so arranged that the face of the reply card is concealed as long as it is attached to the message card and is not in a position to be accidentally postmarked or canceled by postal employés.

At first the folding and the separation of the halves of the double cards was facilitated by a scored line which cut about half way thru the cardboard, but later this was changed to a more positive aid in the form of a roulette in colored line. This roulette was a part of the printing operation when the reply halves of the cards were printed and was accomplished by adding a printer's perforating rule at the top of the design.

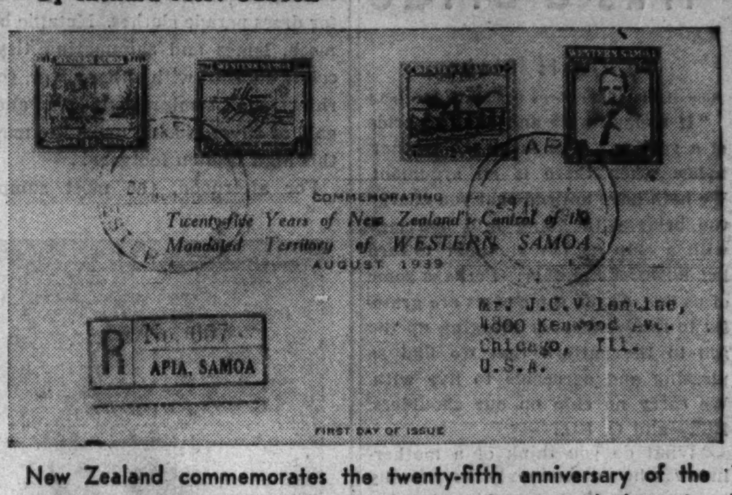
The design for this card shows a three-quarter portrait of Grant, facing left upon a colorless oval medallion, which is framed with a rather broad band containing inscriptions. Below the portrait are the words "One cent," and above, in one case, "message card," and in the other "reply card." At either side of the portrait there is a small five pointed star in a circle. Both halves of the card bear the inscription "United States of America" in shaded English text and the admonition "This side is for address only," in very small Gothic capitals.

The message half bears, in addition, an inscription reading "Postal Card with Paid Reply," in bold face shaded Roman capitals, and another in two lines of small Gothic capitals located in the lower left corner which reads "Detach annexed card for answer."

Each half of the card is surrounded by an ornamental frame with prominent corner blocks. All of the printing is in black on buff cardboard and each half of the folded card measures 3½x5½ inches.

In 1898 the size of the card was reduced to 3¼x5½ inches to correspond to a similar change in single postal cards which had been made in the previous year, and to facilitate this reduction the border was removed without any other alteration in the design. All examples seen of the smaller card are provided with the roulette in colored line.

It is announced that more than 70,000 first flight covers are stacked in the Ferry Annex postoffice at San Francisco awaiting the first mail flight by Pan-American Airways to New Zealand, via Honolulu, Canton Island, and New Caledonia. Allowing for covers sent to the postmaster at Honolulu to be posted from that point would bring the total on hand to approximately 100,000. Although the original instructions of the postoffice department required collectors to have their covers in the hands of the San Francisco postmaster or Pan-American Airways by Sept. 30, the flight still awaits the approval of the civil aeronautics authority, and covers will be accepted up to the day prior to the actual flight.



COMMEMORATING
Twenty-five Years of New Zealand's Control of the Mandated Territory of WESTERN SAMOA
AUGUST 1939
R No. 057
APIA, SAMOA
Mr. J. C. Valentine
4800 Kenwood Ave.
Chicago, Ill.
U. S. A.
FIRST DAY OF ISSUE

On Oct. 31 Hungary will issue a series of five stamps to honor the Protestant pioneers of that country. Each value of the series carries a 50 per cent overcharge and the proceeds will be applied toward the erection of an International Protestant institute by the Gabor Bethlen foundation.

Miklos Horthy, regent of Hungary, is a Calvinist, and, as head of the administration, sponsors a week of exercises in honor of the Protestant pioneers.

The 6 plus 3 filler stamp pictures the two Protestant pioneers, Matyos Biro, the Hungarian Luther, and Peter Melius Juhasz, the Hungarian Calvin. The 10 plus 5 filler stamp shows Gaspar Karoli, who first translated the Bible into the Magyar language in 1590. The 20 plus 10 filler stamp pictures Albert Molnar, early 17th century translator of hymns. The 32 plus 16 filler value pictures Prince Gabor Bethlen, patron of Protestant institutions, who was largely responsible for the publication of the first Catholic Bible in the Magyar language. The 40 plus 20 filler, highest value of the series, bears a portrait of Zsuzsanna Lorantffy, who laid the foundations for the English Protestant college at Sarospatak, Upper Hungary.

The stamps were designed by Legrady Sandor [Alexander Legrady] and the issue will be 200,000 sets.

The "J. W. Bureau Print Album" is the title of a new album for precanceled stamps which has been published by Joseph Whitebourgh of the Garden City Stamp company, Chicago. The new album which comes in five styles of binding, including two which are looseleaf, has spaces for every bureau print precancel issued prior to the current Presidential series.

There are 154 pages in all, including 142 pages for the major varieties 1 page for experimentals, 2 pages for playing card stamps, 1 page for electric eye varieties, and 8 pages for errors, special varieties, and for those stamps which were ordered but which have never reached the hands of collectors.

The design and arrangement of pages is neatly handled and collectors will find that this album adds greatly to the appearance of their collections.

George Richardson, R. C. D. 243, postoffice box 95, Hyattsville, Md., is sponsoring a series of 41 cachets including 7 for Armistice day, 2 for Thanksgiving day, and 32 for birthdays of Presidents. The last mentioned group will start on January. Send covers ready to go, 10 days before the event and include 1 cent for forwarding each cover.

Harold Goldman, R. C. D. 244, 1551 South St. Louis avenue, Chicago, will obtain cancellations from 10 naval vessels for collectors who send stamped, addressed covers, and include 1 cent per cover for forwarding.

Ogden Hill Stamp club will hold its third annual stamp exhibition in the clubrooms of the Chicago Boys' club, 6405 South Hermitage avenue, Sunday, Nov. 5, 1939.

The postal authorities have authorized the use of distinctive envelopes for special delivery matter. These are patterned after air mail envelopes and have prominent border or edge markings to enable clerks to recognize them when they are accidently tied up with other mail matter. The border should be composed of alternating green and yellow half discs separated by colorless spaces and should appear on both front and back of envelopes. There should be an inscription "Special Delivery" in bold face type just below the normal stamp space. The words are to be printed in green ink between yellow bars. All special delivery envelopes are to be printed on white paper and corner card or request form should be shown in the upper left corner. The department will not furnish these envelopes, but they may be obtained from printers, stationers, etc. The use of the distinctively marked special delivery envelopes will be strictly limited to that class of mail matter.

Marts to Open a Midseason Show Tomorrow

The midseason Home Furnishings shows to be held at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart here open tomorrow and continue thru November 4. They will be attended by buyers from retail stores all over the country.

Style emphasis will be placed on the modern period of furniture design, which because of its pleasing finishes, simple lines and appealing price range is here to stay. The accent, too, will be on American patterns of several eras, says a spokesman for the Merchandise Mart. "The new furniture has burrowed into our own ancestry, rediscovered the charms of the old south, of Victorian Natchez, and Pennsylvania Dutch and recast them in a modern mold for today's use."

Fabrics exhibited in the shows will reveal subtle changes. Novelty jacquards, spun rayons, more stripes than ever and a veering away from the deep shades to pastel and medium hues is forecast. Turquoise blue, soft gray-blue, dusty rose that combines beautifully with turquoise, raspberry red, and a cocoa tone that contrasts with turquoise and dusty rose are hailed as leading colors. A brighter tint of yellow than that shown before will bid for popularity.

The American Furniture Mart announces that modernized period furniture given zest by new finishes, upholstery fabrics and hardware will continue to be the fashion of the hour in its midseason show, furnishing the connecting link between period designs and modern. Early American and colonial pieces are being done in a more sophisticated manner, and more formal 18th century styles are being simplified. The vogue for Regency furniture [an early 19th century period], continues.

Merchandise purchased by buyer visitors to this market will be on the floors of the stores for Christmas promotions.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Remedy, at Home
No Cooking. No Work. Real Saving.
Here's an old home remedy your mother probably used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.
It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.
Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly and tastes fine.
And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold promptly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it eases breathing, and lets you sleep.
Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Ranger's Wife Writes of 24 African Hours

The following article was written by a game ranger's wife who lives in the wild bush of Tanganyika, central Africa. As a reader of The Tribune she believes that Chicago readers will be interested in her daily experiences. If you have a personal experience story of general interest the Sunday editor invites you to submit it. No manuscript will be returned unless a stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies it.

By Eleanor Rushby.

Nyasa, Dar-es-Salaam, Tanganyika.

I am alone. The tropical darkness of Tanganyika presses thickly against the metal treilis work which encloses my veranda and spills over onto the veranda itself, except here at the table where the oil lamp reclaims a warm circle of light.

In the surrounding bush cicadas sing with exasperating intensity, frogs croak throatily from puddles, and every now and then comes the eerie wail of a hyena, or the melancholy call of a night bird in the bush.

Paddy, our Airedale, is sitting with his nose pressed against the padlocked veranda door. He is listening for a familiar sound, the moaning grunts of a lion.

Overruling all the other noises by reason of monotonous reiteration comes the relentless rhythm of a drum from a nearby village.

● ● ●

In the bedroom, which opens onto the veranda, lie my children, Kate and Johnny-Jo, fast asleep under their mosquito nets, their hair damp and their soft limbs sticky with perspiration.

This long and spacious veranda serves as our living room, and here I sit alone, night after night, while my husband is away. His work as game ranger takes him from home for three weeks in the month, but as this is a most unhealthy range it would be unfair to my children for us to accompany him, even to those places which can be reached by car.

The nights seem very long after I have tucked the children in bed. I usually make an attempt to read or write letters, but there are many distractions. I am conscious all the time of the noises outside and of the irritating, thin song of mosquitoes. I get up to spray them and invariably give up any attempt to read, and watch instead the pale lizards, with protruding eyes like black beads, which nightly stalk moths and other winged insects on the house wall.

Then I fall to thinking of my two children away in England, and back through time to their babyhood. My years in this country sweep by like a cinema film, and I live again the joys and anxieties of them.

Besides Paddy, I have another protector, Hasmani, an old game scout, who sleeps on the back veranda and makes heartening noises by slipping ammunition into the breech of his rifle when the lions seem overbold.

Paddy has risen and is listening intently but his attitude is eager and not aggressive. Now that he has drawn my attention to it, I also can hear the distant hum of a car. I hear the muffled tones of Hasmani as he exclaims: "Bwana," and a tinny noise as he fumbles with his Dietz lamp.

The hum grows louder. The houseboy, summoned from his hut by Hasmani, begins to rattle teacups, the wood boy and the water boy come running down the road with lights. I feel elated and a verse from "Marmion" comes to mind and makes me smile.

Now broach ye a pipe of Malvoisie,
Bring pasties of the doe,
And quickly make the entrance free,
And bid my heralds ready be,
And every minstrel sound his glee,
And all our trumpets blow.

The car has stopped, and in the light of the boys' storm lamps I see my husband, caked from head to foot with mud and looking utterly weary. Alas! for "pasties of the doe!" Tea and bully-beef sandwiches are all I can produce by way of refreshment. It is the end of the month and the stores are low.

● ● ●

Little Kate wakened me this morning by calling plaintively: "Mummy, I've got a sore toe"! I lifted her mosquito net and examined the toe, which was swollen like a tiny red balloon and had a familiar bluish patch above the nail. "A chigger, I am afraid, darling," I said, and called the houseboy, who is an expert at removing them. He hurried in, his black face creased with concern, and his white klanzu flapping about his thin legs. He clucked sympathetically while selecting a safety pin from the tray on my dressing table. Kate watched resignedly while he sterilized the pin in a match flame and sat quietly on my lap while the boy probed the toe skilfully and confidently. In a few moments he grinned at Kate and showed her the chigger with a bag of eggs the size of a match head skewered on the pin. "It's not broken," said he happily. "I shall get a prizie today."

I dressed Kate and then started on Johnny-Jo, thinking regretfully of my ayah who was ill. Last week she complained of headache and stomachache, and I dosed her with quinine, aspirin, castor oil, and epsom salts, without result. She looked as miserable as only a sick native can do, and as my remedies were exhausted I packed her off to her village with instructions not to return until she felt better. Today I had just settled John in his pram when ayah walked in, her face radiant. "Why, ayah," said I, relieved, "I thought you still were ill." "No, memsahib," she said complacently. "I am quite better. The medicine man has driven the devil out of my stomach." Apparently I looked skeptical, for she asked eagerly: "Did memsahib not hear the drum yesterday?" "Yes, indeed," I replied. "Well," she added triumphantly, "I lay on a mat beside the down and the maganga drummed the devil out. The elders of the village were there, and I had to buy much food. Will the memsahib please advance money to pay for the ceremony?"

The children went under the trees with ayah while I had morning tea with George, my husband, and discussed plans for the day. I then bathed, had breakfast, packed batting costumes, napkins, and baby food, and finally was ready for the monthly shopping excursion to Dar-es-Salaam.

The cook and the houseboy, smiling and immaculate in white trousers and shirts, and starched embroidered caps, fetched the luggage. They chattered happily, for they were off to visit their wives and children at Dar-es-Salaam as well as to do their shopping. Ayah brought John to me and then slipped into the kitchen to reappear with long paste earrings dangling coyly from ears distorted with hideous holes as large as shillings, and designed to accommodate far less sophisticated ornaments. From one nostril dangled a charm on a gilt chain which quivered with every breath she took and which John found irresistible. Poor ayah, at all times excessively plain, looked grotesque, beyond telling, today.

Our box bodied car was mud-splashed and battered, but as we had a rough drive before us it wasn't worthwhile sprucing it up. The children and I sat in front with George, while a tall game scout, with four pairs of elephant tusks and some leopard skins, the boys and the ayah, occupied the back of the car.

The weather was lovely, after days of rain, so we started off gayly enough along the 11 miles of unspeakably bad bush road which joins the main trunk road to Dar-es-Salaam. The drive through the bush was uneventful except here and there where the track crossed swamps or rice fields, and we were in danger of sticking. Because the car was so loaded, the boys had to jump out and push through the swamps, their white trousers rolled above their bony knees.

Soon the bush gave way to coconut groves and small villages set among orange trees. Here children rushed out to wave, chickens and goats scattered, and comely native women, with bright combs in their elaborately plaited hair, called out gay greetings to our boys.

Once we reached the palm-lined highroad we increased our speed and bowled happily along and, after about an hour and a half, we reached Dar-es-Salaam.

The palm fringed beaches and the sea and the ships seemed beautiful beyond words after a surfeit of bush.

● ● ●

Today, after feeding John and settling him at a hotel with ayah, Kate and I visited the shops and the hairdresser. We returned at twelve to the hotel, where we met George and had long cool drinks in the lounge. Then came lunch in a dining room full of chattering people, after which we rested before going to the beach. We had a marvelous bath. The bay is so sheltered that there are no breakers, and the water is pleasantly warm and ideal for swimming.

We lazed on the beach watching the children playing in the sand, and a high-pooped, seagoing dhow putting out to sea. Then, when the sun got low, we piled into the car again and started for home. An uninspiring day, you might think, but picture such a day after weeks of isolation and loneliness in the bush, and you might realize how enchanting it seemed to me.

We stopped at a street stall to buy fruit and vegetables, and by the time we reached the rice fields on our homeward journey, the sun had set and darkness fallen, for here there is no twilight. Luck deserted us there, for the car settled down in the soft mud and we all were obliged to pile out. Ayah carried John, and I, Kate, along the center of the road where the mud was not so deep. George warned us not to go beyond the circle of light thrown by the head lamps, so there we stood in the swamp where the frogs set up an almost deafening noise, fireflies flitted about by the hundreds and innumerable mosquitoes took advantage of our unprotected state.

George and one of the boys worked with the shovels while the others collected poles and brushwood. The game scout passed us with a long pole to be used as a lever, and said mockingly to ayah: "What if the lions come now!"

George, however, is a wizard at getting cars out of mud, and soon we were climbing thankfully into the car once more. We reached home without further mishap, and Paddy and his family, Fanny and Rosie, rushed out and gave us a frantic welcome. The lamps had been lit, hot baths and long drinks were waiting and it felt lovely to be back.

The children are asleep and George and I have dined. He is sitting opposite me in the lamplight, looking through his mail. How different things seem from last night! The veranda looks cozy and homelike and, instead of feeling unsettled, I feel secure and infinitely content. From far away comes a low roar. "Lion," says George, and smiles at me.

In this section of next Sunday's Chicago Tribune a second article by Mrs. Rushby will be published. In it she will tell the story of Johnny-Jo, the infant son, born in Tanganyika and thriving under adverse conditions.

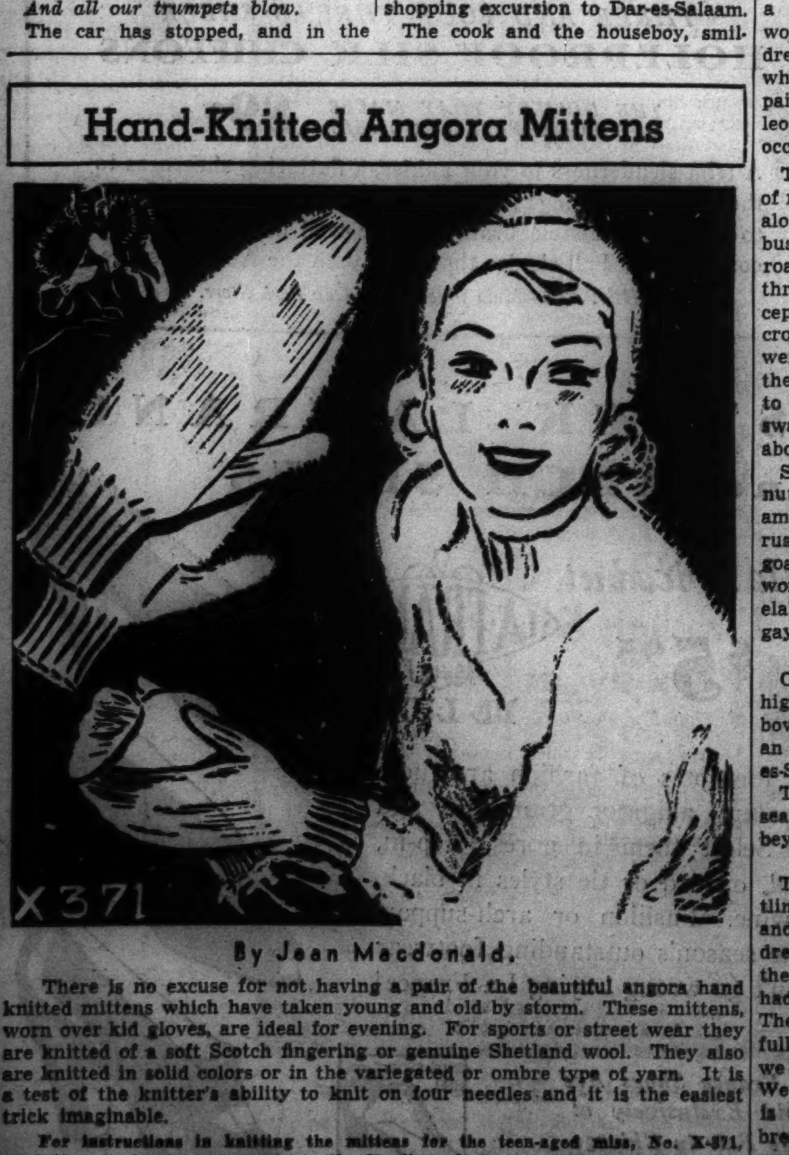
Kitchenette Tip.

As soon as you have finished using metal trays for crackers see that they are well washed and wiped to remove any traces of salt. Salt will cause those little black spots so often found on silver. Inspect the "good silver" before it is put away after a party.

Hand-Knitted Angora Mittens

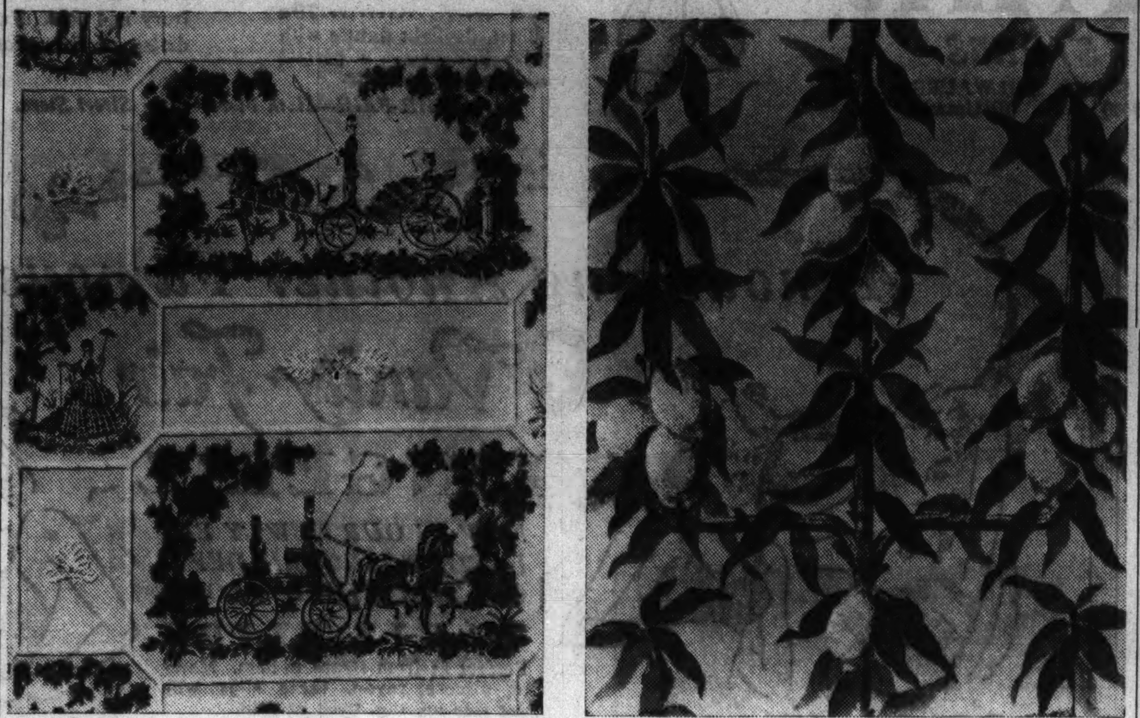


By Jean Macdonald.

There is no excuse for not having a pair of the beautiful angora hand knitted mittens which have taken young and old by storm. These mittens, worn over kid gloves, are ideal for evening. For sports or street wear they are knitted of a soft Scotch fingering or genuine Shetland wool. They also are knitted in solid colors or in the variegated or ombre type of yarn. It is a test of the knitter's ability to knit on four needles and it is the easiest trick imaginable.

For instructions in knitting the mittens for the teen-aged miss, No. X-371, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 E. 42d avenue, New York City.

New Papers Are Carried Out in Delicate Hues



[TRIBUNE Studio Photos.]

These delightful designs are from two of the 1940 wall papers. The rows of fruit were inspired by the French method of training fruit trees to grow flat against a wall. The colors are pale gray, green, and yellow for the lemons. The other pattern is called "Au Bois," and is charming in a Regency or colonial room.

"Clever Tricks in Decoration," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, explains methods of making a large, high-ceilinged room seem smaller, and a small, difficult-to-decorate one appear larger and more attractive. Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

The story of wall papers this season is a charming one told in powdery, pastel colors so usable with prevailing decorations. The newest numbers from leading manufacturers show a definite trend away from any tones suggestive of harshness. The fine feature about the light papers is that most of them are fadeproof and washable.

Hues, too, have undergone a subtle change. Spokesman for one of the most important eastern wall paper firms says: "Peach tones, long in favor, have given way to clear pinks and pinks having a slightly mauve caste. Instead of powder blues the new blues are tinged with lavender. Soft, pale yellow is claiming more attention this year, probably because it combines readily with any tone you might mention. Terra cotta has taken on an old rose look which makes it agreeable with the purplish blues."

The statement continues: "Even definite dark browns have become lightened in a new color best described as cocoa-au-lait. Rich turquoise and ciel blue remain favorite high style colors. All of these fit into the so-called Edwardian palette we have been hearing so much about.

"A soft mulberry tone appears as new accent color in wallpapers and is a splendid foil for the new blues and pinks. Another accent tone which puts in an appearance is chartreuse, which is played up with pink and blue effectively."

There are whole books of papers designed especially for the colonial room, for the early American room, for the Swedish modern, the French Provincial and the Regency interior. For this last, so smart in decorating circles this season, there are documentary patterns or fine adaptations of old wall paper designs.

"French Bandbox" is the name of a delightful new paper made for the French Provincial room done in beechwood furniture. As its name implies, it is actually a copy of an old French hat box decoration and is simply full of atmosphere and quaint beauty. It is made in ashes of roses and turquoise on an eggshell colored ground.

The French, with their love of neatness and order, train fruit trees to grow flat against walls, like plants. This espalier method inspired a beautiful pale gray wall paper on which is a stunning design of lemon trees, the yellow fruit and green foliage making a lovely contrast in tone. The name of this number is "Lemon Espalier Tree." And a picture of it is shown today.

● ● ●

The other photograph shows an amusing design, "Au Bois," for Regency or colonial rooms. The little pictures in dull browns and greens stand out against a background of delicate putty gray. The blocks are framed in white. We saw this paper used most effectively in a mahogany bedroom where the windows were hung in draperies of stick candy peppermint stripes.

Very lovely for a colonial interior is "Hampshire," an exquisite adaptation of an old floral print in block formation. On a white ground its flowers are in rose, blue and green, setting the key for a most artistic color scheme.

"Connecticut" is recommended for a colonial breakfast room or dinette. It has garlands of field flowers in rose, blue and emerald green enclosing motifs of tiny houses reminiscent of Connecticut's salt box type of dwelling. Or use it in a girl's bedroom with maple furniture, or in a Swedish modern room, for the garlands have a Swedish feeling.

The papers I've described are available in wall paper shops all over the country.

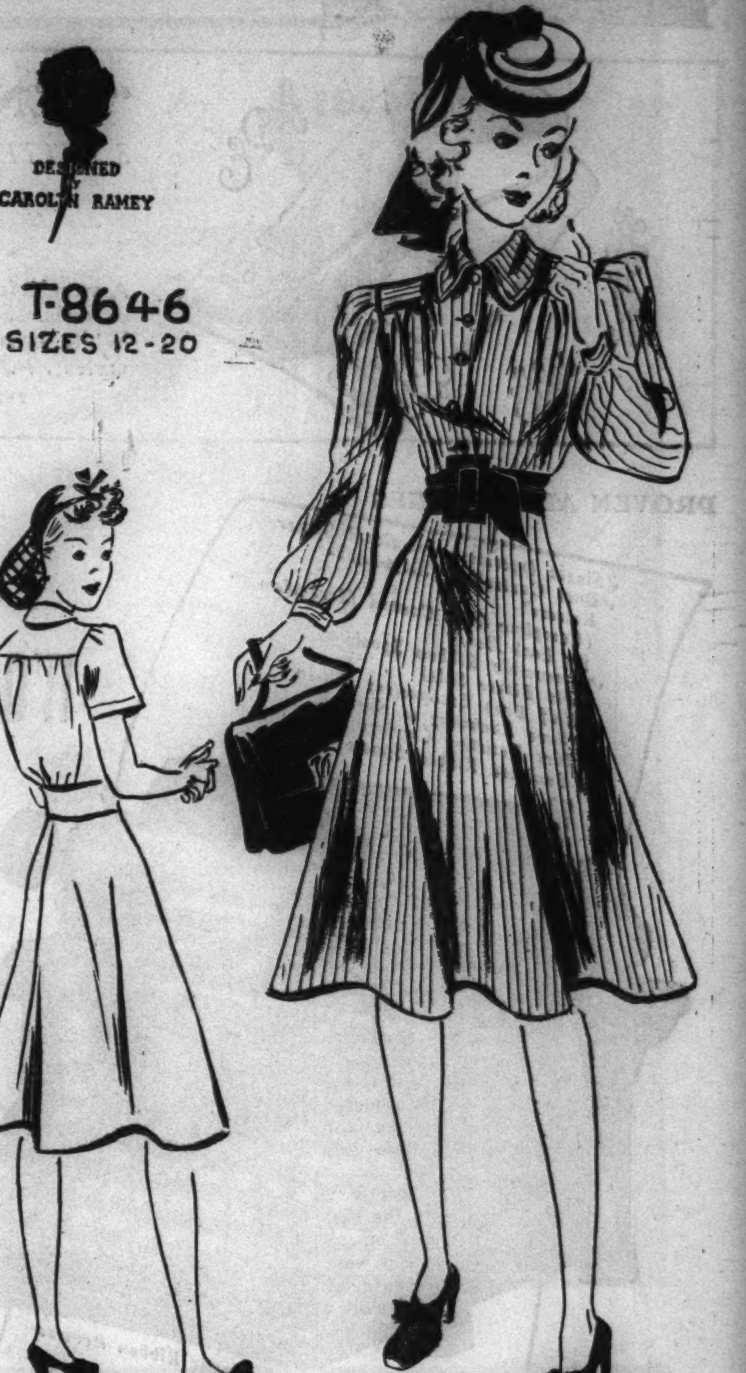
Campus Modes by a Co-ed



By Carolyn Ramey.

This woolen dress is so practical it's almost a uniform, and I've worn it so much since I made it that I seem to have stitched it to me! I wore it the first time to a football game and a tea afterward. Since then it's been to open houses, informal dances, classes, and "dates." And everywhere it's been a social success. I've resisted the pleas of dormitory mates to have it copied for them because I wanted you readers to have first chance at a style that is informal, casual, and thoroughly wearable.

The original I made for myself is pin striped, soft woolen. The background is heather with the stripe in dubonnet. There are innumerable fashionable color mixtures you could employ.

Of course stripes are not essential for the smartness of this dress. Plain colors, particularly the "live" ones and the misty ones, are perfect mediums.

Style No. T-8646 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Etiquet Gives Carving Task to the Host

Who invites the family's friends and relatives to a wedding? Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor, gives the answer to this and many other questions about wedding customs in her booklet, "The Home Wedding." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents; by postpaid mail, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

The first of the fall holidays is Thanksgiving. This year it falls on the 23d of November in the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois, altho among the different states there seems to be a difference of opinion. But whatever the Thursday, all the gracious hosts of the country will take a firm hold on their implements and, under the eager and admiring glances of kith and kin, will skillfully and artfully carve the national holiday bird.

Carving, of course, is not just a holiday function. To wield the knife properly on any bird or roast is an art, and one that requires a great deal of skill at any season. But dissecting THE bird, finding all the joints and maintaining one's poise while every one watches for the slightest slip is a superior accomplishment.

In thousands of average American homes the carving is done at the table. Personally, I like to see it so if it is well done. It can be quite a charming gesture, altho if the carver lacks all grace and butchers the job, it can be as painful as murder.

Naturally, the skill of the carver depends upon his knowledge of the anatomy of the bird, if it is a fowl he is carving, and also on his knowledge of the correct procedure, such as severing the drumsticks first, then the second joint, next the wing, and finally, slices of the white meat. Roast beef is sliced across [thin slices rather than thick]; leg of lamb is cut vertically down toward, and at right angles to the bone, commencing right in the center of the roast rather than at either extremity. There is also a good deal to know about the carving and serving of meats and fish of all kinds, all of which should be learned before assuming the carving task if it is to be done without bungling. A little experience will do much to further the skill. Learn to do it properly.

One thing to remember in carving is that all the meat that is to be served in the first portions should be cut off before any is placed on the plates. The complete job of carving should be accomplished first so that the food will be kept as warm as is reasonably possible, and also so that all diners will be served at approximately the same time.

When all the turkey necessary to provide the diners with their first serving has been removed from the carcass, the plates are served. If there is a maid to help with the serving, she places one hot dinner plate at a time in front of the host. When that is ready, she removes it and replaces it immediately with another hot plate from her serving table. As she is placing the full plate in front of the diner, the host proceeds with serving the second plate. When there is no maid, the full stack of hot plates is placed in front of the host. As he completes serving each, it is passed along to the right to the person for whom it is intended.

Another of the rules of carving is that the host should remain seated. It is an indication of much greater skill if the job can be done without having to stand, remove the coat and roll up the sleeves. However, the point of remaining seated should not be insisted upon if the small stature of the man, the tremendous size of the bird, or the lack of skill of the carver would seem to endanger the roast or its security on the platter.

Eddie will present his own stage show, which features some of the principals on his radio programs. One of them is the "Mad Russian," shown above with the comedian.

Eddie Cantor, the energetic comedian of stage, screen and radio, will make a personal appearance at the Chicago theater for a week, starting Friday.

Discussion Heralds Approach of Evans' Uncut 'Hamlet'

Shakespeare's Play to Open Here on Nov. 6

By Cecil Smith.

Now that only eight days remain before Maurice Evans' arrival at the Grand Opera house in "Hamlet" on Nov. 6, discussion of this and other "uncut" versions of the great Shakespeare tragedy is rapidly approaching the boiling point. Mr. Evans asserts that his performance is the first full length, unabridged "Hamlet" ever given on the American stage. Yet the archives of the department of English at the University of Chicago, maintained under the eagle-eyed guardianship of Prof. Napier Wilt, indicate that the Ben Greet players gave two performances of the complete "Hamlet" in the Studebaker theater away back in 1905. How can these opposing claims be harmonized?

The fact is, of course, that several "complete" versions of "Hamlet" are possible, because there are several different textual sources. The so-called First Quarto, which, as Charles Collins pointed out not long ago in "A Line o' Type or Two," was evidently an unauthorized, pirated edition, is a somewhat skimpy text from which many important and familiar passages are missing. The Second Quarto, published with Shakespeare's authority, is much fuller and often differs considerably from the earlier edition. Then, to make matters still more complicated, there exists also the First Folio, printed after the author's death, in which still further new passages are to be found.

A Harvard university scholar, in whom Mr. Evans places his trust, has indicated that the Ben Greet "full length" version was purely and simply a performance of the Second Quarto in its entirety. The Maurice Evans "Hamlet," on the other hand, makes use of every word and line of text to be found in all three sources, and is thus a composite of all the material available. Since Hamlet's last soliloquy appears for the first time in the First Folio, and since the First Quarto contains some material omitted from the Second Quarto, the importance of gathering all available portions of the text together is evident.

I am sure it is not necessary to encourage playgoers to attend Mr. Evans' production of "Hamlet." A four hour play is no novelty, now that we have had "Strange Interlude" and "Mourning Becomes Electra." On every side I have heard only expressions of the most vivid interest in this opportunity to become acquainted with all the paths and bypaths of a great classic which we have heretofore known only in part. The Edwin Booth acting version, which we saw last spring in Ian Keith's Federal theater production, commits particular mayhem in its eagerness to trim away all portions of the script which detract from the centrality of Hamlet as the undebated star of the drama.

This definitive "Hamlet," which will visit us for a single fortnight, is a handsomely dressed and strongly cast production. Margaret Webster, who has enhanced her reputation enormously by her work with all three of Maurice Evans' American productions of Shakespeare, was the director. David Ffolkes, with whose gifts Chicago became acquainted in "King Richard II.," designed the decors and costumes.

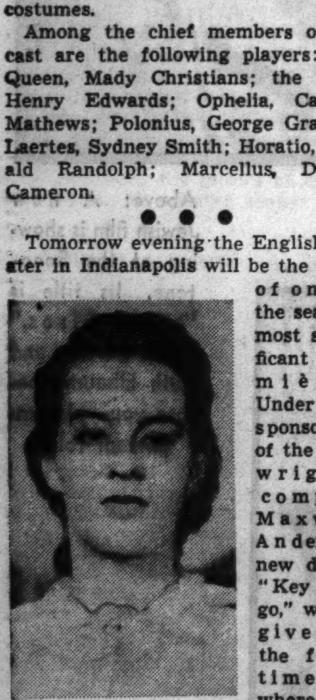
Tomorrow evening the English theater in Indianapolis will be the scene of one of the season's most significant premières. Under the sponsorship of the Playwrights' company, Maxwell Anderson's new drama, "Key Largo," will be given for the first time anywhere. The occasion also marks the return of Paul Muni from Hollywood to the legitimate stage. Uta Hagen, the memorable ingénue of "The Sea Gull," plays the leading feminine rôle. Other prominent members of the cast are Jose Ferrer, Charles Waldron, Frederic Tozere and Ralph Theodore. Guthrie McClintic is the director, and Jo Mielziner the scenic designer.



Uta Hagen.

Exactly seven months ago tomorrow an earlier Playwrights' company production, also directed by Mr. McClintic and designed by Mr. Mielziner, made its first public bow in the same theater. This was S. N. Behrman's comedy, ironically titled, "No Time for Comedy." Mrs. Guthrie McClintic, also known as Katharine Cornell, was the star. Now, after a half year in New York, "No Time for Comedy" is about to spend three weeks in Chicago at the Harris theater, beginning Nov. 6. Except for two cast changes, the more important of which is the substitution of Francis Lederer for Laurence Olivier, the performance is unchanged. Since I devoted a column to an estimate of the play last summer, I am deferring further remarks until later.

● ● ●

Several persons have inquired whether Fredi Washington, who plays Lissa, Ethel Waters' daughter in "Mamba's Daughters" at the Grand Opera house, has ever played in motion pictures. She has, notably with Claudette Colbert in "Imitation of Life." The talented young actress, who accomplishes each night the difficult task of weeping audibly and uninterruptedly for ten minutes, got her start in a chorus line in New York. She had come there from her native Savannah, Ga., at 16, and had worked as a typist until the dancing opportunity came along. Her first featured part was in "Black Boy."

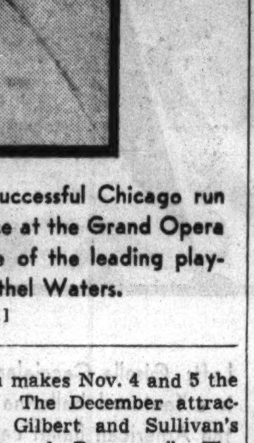
● ● ●

The impending departure of Ruth Chatterton, Barry Thomson and "Tonight We Dance" from the Harris theater Saturday night points up the theater shortage in Chicago, which one of these days may be a calamity. The box office indicates no reason to end the engagement now, or for several weeks to come. But the theater is under contract to Miss Cornell, and no other house is at hand. Except for the Auditorium, which is too large, and the Civic, which is too small, no theater with the necessary qualifications for commercial production is now available. Any one of at least five idle theaters might be refurbished, but not unless a continued rather than intermittent need for additional houses arises.

"Springtime for Henry," the Benn W. Levy comedy starring Edward Everett Horton, of which mention was made last week, has now committed itself to the Erlanger theater beginning Nov. 12—the night after "The White Steed" closes. Apart from this and "Leave It to Me," coming to the Auditorium Nov. 20, no future bookings have been made public. But, says the Shubert office cryptically, "there will be plays."

The Jack and Jill Players Juvenile Theater guild begins its second season at the Civic theater next weekend. "Ali Baba," a dramatization by Marie Agnes Foley, director of the guild, and Jane Malkemus, will be the opening production. Performances will be given the first Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon of each month, which makes Nov. 4 and 5 the initial dates. The December attraction will be Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance." The players are drawn from among the many youngsters active on radio and the stage.

Pleasant incidental memories of "the White Steed," now beginning the second of three weeks at the Erlanger theater: Gertrude Flynn and William Cragin dashing to the floor all the cups in the house, in a magnificent mutual temper tantrum; Whitford Kane in his wheel chair propelling himself into the room like a bolt of lightning; the rich, bouncing brogue of old Erin as Ralph Cullinan rolls it forth; Tom Bate's vertical looking, one dimensional, clerical frock coat; Mr. Kane wolfing a strawberry cake and attempting to hide his overindulgence from the maid Rosieanne. All in all, a human and heart-warming comedy in the best Abbey theater vein.



William Cragin.

Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," the second of the season's student plays at the Goodman theater, opens tomorrow night. Performances will be given nightly for two weeks, with a single matinée on Thursday of this week. A children's play, "Daniel Boone," will be given every Saturday afternoon for a few weeks.

For their 30th anniversary season the Institute players of the Jewish People's institute have appointed Sam Wanamaker as their new director. Mr. Wanamaker was last seen on the Chicago stage in the Civic theater repertory sessions early last summer. He formerly belonged to the Goodman theater faculty, and acted with the Globe theater group of Shakespeare players. The Institute players' season opens Nov. 11, 12 and 13 with "Room Service."

Victor Sutherland, former director on the Federal Theater project and dialog director of the swing, "Mikado," has joined the staff of the Chicago Mummers Theater Workshop. Others on the staff are Francis X. Bushman, John Goldsworthy and Ruthelma Stevens.

IN "MAMBA'S DAUGHTERS"

"Mamba's Daughters" will close its successful Chicago run after next Saturday night's performance at the Grand Opera house. This is Fredi Washington, one of the leading players in the cast headed by Ethel Waters.

Maurice Evans Tells Plans for Uncut 'Hamlet'

By Maurice Evans.

"Hamlet" in its entirety is going on tour. The "Eternity" text [as some suffering actors sacrilegiously refer to it] has been played before, I believe, in some of the places we are visiting, but only for a solitary performance here and there. The late Sir Philip Ben Greet occasionally presented a version which he called the "In Toto" for the benefit of college audiences. One of his supporting actors besought him to drop "Hamlet" from his repertory as he was convinced the students preferred to see Sir Philip in comic vein. "That's all right," said Sir Philip, "they've never seen my 'Hamlet'—they don't know how comic it is!"

My agent assures me that my "Hamlet" is bound to become veritably idiotic if I insist on going through with this tour, which calls for eight performances a week as compared with the seven required in New York. Gloomily he reminds me that during the first few weeks of the run at the St. James theater I would struggle through the double performance on Saturdays and finish up completely voiceless; over the week-end a strictly Trappist silence had to be observed and conversation limited to the pencil-paper method.

"Why in Heaven's name," sighs my patient agent, "don't you do a new show in New York or come to Hollywood and make your fortune?"

At the beginning of each season this question has to be answered, and when the proposed alternative is a grueling tour, excuses are more difficult than usual to find. He laughs at me if I say I think touring is good business and reminds me of the bad conditions one encounters on the road. "Why slave for the benefit of the railroad companies when you can be sent much farther afield for nothing in a Hollywood tin can?" Finally, I have to give the real reason—namely, that I go on tour because I like it. At this point he is ready to have me certified insane, but I shall go all the same.

Yes, I like touring. I like it mainly because it has excitement and variety and keeps a performance fresh. There is nothing more stultifying to the actor than the long-run system—particularly in Shakespeare. The great tragic rôles were not designed for our modern theater requirements of eight performances a week, and the actor finds the demand upon his vocal equipment so terrific that he is bound to seek some mechanical technique to help him through. This is a fatal snare, because directly an actor starts listening to his voice, he just stops acting.

In this respect, I have often envied a prima donna friend of mine, who, when she has to sing with a cold, makes a pact with the orchestra and upon reaching the top B flat opens her mouth and lets the flute do the rest. No such aids are available to a croaking actor; he must emit the correct sounds somehow or other, whatever the state of his glottis. Curiously enough, the additional hardships of touring seem to reduce rather than increase vocal fatigue. Every Monday night constitutes a fresh challenge from a new audience—a different batch of press—a strange theater, and brings with it a thousand and one considerations which leave no time for pitying one's overworked cords.

Under touring conditions one lives a life of "shop" 24 hours every day and the absence of distraction is a marvelous stimulant for ideas theatrical. It was during the long "Richard II." tour that I worked out the details of the Hamlet interpretation. Occasionally the results were disastrous. There was one regrettable night in Chicago when, in the middle of Richard's biggest soliloquy I got the flash of an idea for Hamlet's "Nunnery" scene; the texts of the two plays got inextricably mixed in my mind and after delivering a passage which sounded like sheer drivel I dried up cold.

Somewhere during this forthcoming tour—either in Philadelphia, Baltimore or Pittsburgh; in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago or St. Louis—I hope to knock into shape an idea I have been discussing this Summer with "Victoria Regina's" author, Laurence Housman. If all goes well this is the play I shall bring to New York early in the new year.

Among many other duties which will fill up my time will be the eternal search for new plays. Having presented three Shakespearean productions in a row I'm afraid the impression has been created that I am only interested in poetic drama—an impression which could not be more erroneous. I want desperately to cast off the classical shackles and to turn my back, anyway for the time being, upon biographical subjects, but the right manuscripts do not seem to come along. It's a tall order, perhaps, to expect to find a play which is not only worthy to follow Shakespeare, but one which will suit the dimensions of my present company and enable me to keep them together as a unit—but I just keep on hoping.

Another problem to be tackled is to devise a method of taking a future tour all through the smaller towns of the United States—towns which often get no touring companies and even lack a suitable theater. I am convinced this can be done, but only the blessed balm of a succession of nights on a lurching Pullman car can supply the means and the way.

Belgian Music Foundation Aids Schools

The Foundation Musicale Reine Elizabeth of Belgium has added a new project to those it has previously engaged in. In the past this musical institution has granted support to native composers, musicologists, and performers to work both at home and abroad. Above all, it has established the internationally famous Ysaye contest, with its large monetary awards for winning musical performers.

The latest beneficiary of the foundation is called the Chapelle Musicale de la Reine Elizabeth. It is the outcome of one aspect of the Ysaye contests—the noticeably poor showing the Belgian entrants made. So apparent was this that patrons decided to set up a small school for the intensive training of the best musicians in the country—the Chapelle.

Ensconced in an unusually attractive, modern building at Argenteuil, the school will be limited to eight pupils—three pianists, three violinists, one viola player and one cellist. They will be selected through competitions in the field of performance, music theory and history. They will remain in the school for three years, undergoing an examination at the end of each year. Failure of any sort means immediate expulsion. Those who may enter the entrance competitions are young Belgians between the ages of 18 and 25. Each must have obtained a premier prix from the Royal Conservatory in the field of harmony, chamber music, and history of music.

The intensive training involved is aimed at cultivating and developing to the fullest extent the students' artistic personalities. In the instrumental field the widest possible variety of literature is studied. Violinists, for example, work on the compositions of Tartini and Nardini down through those of Bartok, Milhaud, and Stravinsky. In the regions of theory, history, and esthetics a similar eclecticism is maintained. Besides a complete musical training the students are subjected to series of lectures on the history of art, literature, and philosophy. Available in the Chapelle for the theoretical studies are an outstanding library and an equally distinguished record collection.

French Diva Gives Recital at Chicago U.

Mme. Marcelle Denya, who has sung leading rôles at both the Opéra and the Opéra-Comique in Paris and appeared with the Mozarteum orchestra in Salzburg, will give two song recitals in the Reynolds club lounge at the University of Chicago Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons at 4:30. The recitals, given under the sponsorship of the university's department of music, will be devoted entirely to French song literature, ranging from Lully and Rameau to Fauré, Debussy, Ravel, Roussel and Poulenc. There will be no admission charge, and the general public is invited.

Due to conditions in Europe—a familiar phrase these days—Myra Hess has been forced to cancel her Chicago recital, scheduled for Nov. 19. The English pianist has been doing her bit to keep Londoners entertained, having organized noonday concerts in the evacuated National gallery. She played the first one herself, drawing a capacity audience. She hopes to be able to perform here sometime in March.

The chromatic stroboscope, a new invention for determining visually the frequency of any tone within the range of the piano keyboard, is now on display at the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park. It is finding many uses in teaching ear training, harmony and theory, and in making investigations in psychology and physics research laboratories.

Now that the San Carlo Opera company has packed its baggage and is on its way this disillusioning fact can be told: The duke of Mantua's throne in "Rigoletto," is by no means authentic, having seen the light of day in a Broadway musical, "Virginia," for which purpose it was decorated with the Virginia coat of arms. Originally built at a cost of $300, it was bought by the astute Fortune Gallo for a mere $15.

A new conservatory, the Symphony School of Music, has been added to the large list of such institutions hereabouts. On the faculty are several members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra: Rudolph Reiners, Richard Beidel, Rudolph Fahsbender, Clarke Kessler, Florian Mueller, Ralph Johnson, Robert M. Mayer, Jerome Stowell, Philip Farkas, and Reynold Schilke. The school is located in the Kimball building.

The Bali and Java Dancers, featuring Devi Dja, and accompanied by a native gamelan orchestra, has added another appearance to the two already scheduled for this city. Earlier this season Harry Zelzer, the concert manager, announced that he would present them in three concerts at the Civic theater on Nov. 18 and 19. The Arts club has now secured them for the previous day, the 17th, and will present them at their hall in the Wrigley building.

Boston Symphony

Novelties and unusual features to grace the programs of the Boston Symphony orchestra during the 1939-'40 season are slowly but surely being announced. These items will be Debussy's "Martyrdom of St. Sebastian," Mahler's "Das Lied von der Erde," Stravinsky's new symphony in C major and the same composer's "Œdipus Rex," a concert version of Tschaikowsky's opera "Pique Dame" [honoring the centenary of his birth], and Bach's B minor mass. Attention will be given to new works by American composers. As to standard music, the compositions of Mozart and Bach will be featured more extensively than usual.

Grace Moore to Sing Saturday in Revival of 'Louise'

Paris Is Chief Character of Famous Opera

By Edward Barry.

One opera exists whose principal character is neither man, woman nor beast, but a city—the city of Paris. That opera is Gustave Charpentier's "Louise" which is to be revived at the Civic Opera house next Saturday afternoon with Grace Moore in the title rôle. This performance will be the high point of the first week of the Chicago City Opera company's 1939 season.

No dreaming grocery store clerk on any midwestern American Main street was ever more completely obsessed with Paris than this Frenchman, Charpentier. The grocery clerk, indeed, would normally decide to settle down sensibly in his home town and forget his City of Light, or he might manage to get two weeks in Paris by dint of hard saving. In either case other interests would supervene and the siren would leave him in peace. Not so Charpentier. Paris became his life, his work, his wife, his family.

They say that all enthusiastic New Yorkers are natives of Ohio or New Jersey. Charpentier was born in Dieuze, a tiny French town, and spent much of his boyhood in another small place, Turcoing. He came into Paris from the provinces in 1881, at the age of 21, and fell badly enough in love with the city to be able to make it a lifelong obsession.

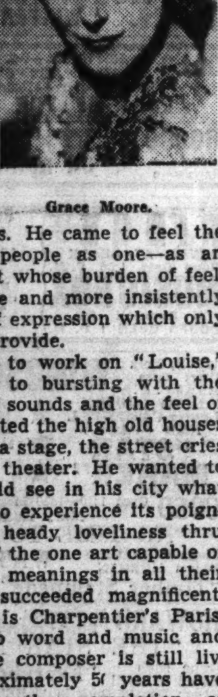
The very essence of Paris got into the young man's soul. He would lean over the parapets of the bridges in the long, blue twilights of spring and summer and note how the Seine reflected the gold of the lights along the quays. He would prowl thru the garden under the buttresses of the apse of Notre Dame or sit in the square before the church's west front, and watch the multitudinous life of the town flow around him.

He could become intoxicated without wine—merely at the fragrance of the city—that heady fragrance which is a blend of flowers and lettuce and river and a dozen other less easily identifiable objects. He became wildly excited at the gayety of Montmartre nights, at the mystery of high old houses on crooked streets. He came to feel the city and its people as one—as an integrated fact whose burden of feeling cried more and more insistently for the type of expression which only music could provide.



Grace Moore.

So he went to work on "Louise," an opera full to bursting with the sights and the sounds and the feel of Paris. He wanted the high old houses to stand upon a stage, the street cries to sound in a theater. He wanted to make the world see in his city what he saw in it, to experience its poignancy and its heady loveliness thru the medium of the one art capable of carrying such meanings in all their urgency. He succeeded magnificently. "Louise" is Charpentier's Paris, translated into word and music and spectacle. The composer is still living and approximately 50 years have elapsed since the completion of "Louise," yet he has never produced anything to compare even remotely with it. Said Kathleen O'Donnell Hoover, in a recent article on Charpentier in The Musical Quarterly: "'Louise' expressed his genius in its entirety; having exalted his humble romance and sung the glories of his beloved Butte, his afflatus ceased."

● ● ●

The "humble romance" in the above is a reference to an early liking for a seamstress of the Montmartre. It lasted only a short time, but Charpentier remained faithful, in a fashion, to the memory of it. He came to believe in the importance of the seamstress' needle in fashioning some aspects of his beautiful Paris, and he still maintains an interest in the profession. This interest has had concrete results in the generous amount of philanthropic work which his wealth has enabled him to do.

This wealth has been derived from the success of "Louise," which during the first season [it was not produced until 1900] had 100 performances. Mary Garden helped make the work popular in this country, appearing in the title rôle no fewer than 23 times, in Chicago alone, between 1910 and 1930. Helen Jepson did it twice here three years ago. Now Miss Moore, who played in the movie version of "Louise," in France, with the advice and assistance of the composer himself, is to make her first Chicago appearance in this opera.

The story of "Louise" is a simple one. The girl, a seamstress of Paris, is loved by Julien, a poet. Louise's parents, especially her mother, are hostile to him. Despite this, the girl goes to him, but returns when news comes that her father is sick with sorrow over the loss of his daughter. Later, a quarrel with the father leads to Louise's declaration that it is only her lover and the free life of Paris that she wants. She runs off, and the father apostrophizes the city in a grief stricken cry.

Thru the whole story runs Paris. It motivates action, becomes the source of both the happiness and the tragedy of the story, provides inexhaustibly colorful background.

In Saturday's performance the part of Julien will go to Charles Kullman, an American tenor who has a large amount of experience in Germany and Austria to his credit. This is to be his first appearance in opera in Chicago. The mother and the father will be sung by Maria Claessens and Leon Rothier, respectively, both of whom are familiar and thought of very favorably. Louis Hasselmans, a long time specialist in French opera, will conduct.

The major debuts of the week, beside Mr. Kullman's, are those of Kurt Baum, Viennese tenor, who is cast as Rhadames in the popular priced "Aida" on Thursday, and Carl Alwin, former conductor of the Vienna State opera, who will direct the same performance.

Operas and casts for the week follow:

Friday at 8—Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," with Tito Schipa, Hilde Reggiani, John Charles Thomas, Pompilio Malatesta, Virgilio Lazzari, and Ada Paggi. Conductor: Angelo Canarutto.

Saturday at 2—Charpentier's "Louise," with Leon Rothier, Maria Claessens, Grace Moore, Charles Kullman, and many, many others. Conductor: Louis Hasselmans.

IN TWO OPERAS THIS WEEK

During the first week of opera at the Civic Opera house, Rose Bampton will be heard in the leading soprano roles of two operas—Giordano's "Andrea Chenier" on Monday and Verdi's "Aida" on Thursday night.

Current Music News

Due to the late arrival of the music for the Busoni piano concerto and its exponent, Egon Petri, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has twice had to change its program for this week's Thursday-Friday concerts in Orchestra hall. A new one has been set up, and Petri will play the concerto on Nov. 16 and 17 instead. Two new compositions are featured on the new program. The first, "Appalachian Mountains," an American folk rhapsody, was written by Charles Miller in New York in 1930. It has been played by certain European orchestras under the composer's direction. The second Chicago première is Jaromir Weinberger's variations and fugue on "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree." This was played for the first time a couple of weeks ago on the opening program of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra under John Barbiolli, and it is dedicated to that organization and its conductor. The remaining compositions on the program, to be led by Frederick Stock, are Gardner Read's transcription of Bach's Prelude and Fugue in B minor and the Cécar Franck Symphony in D minor.

The ever popular Don Cossack male chorus will sing a return engagement in the Civic Opera house tonight under the direction of the diminutive Serge Jaroff. This appearance is under the sponsorship of the Advertising Men's post, No. 38, of the American Legion, and will benefit their welfare work among the underprivileged boys and girls of Chicago.

The Goodman theater will house two concerts of exceptional merit during the week. Tonight the Saidenberg Symphonietta will give the first of a series of four concerts, and on Wednesday the Manuel and Williamson harpsicord ensemble will present the third and last program on its Ancient Music festival.

Daniel Saidenberg.

Using the services of three guest artists the Symphonietta, directed by Daniel Saidenberg, will perform a half dozen items, three of which are Chicago premières. The program follows:

Concerto Grosso, No. 2, F major	Handel
Cantata for soprano, "In Praise of Harmony"	Handel
Ruth Bassett, soprano. [First time in Chicago.]
Concerto Grosso	Bloch
Franz Pfau, pianist.
Sacred and Profane dances	Debussy
Joseph Vito, harpist.
Orchestral legend, "Rakastava"	Sibelius
[First time in Chicago.]
Serenade, No. 6, D major	Mozart
[First time in Chicago.]

"Music of Old London" describes the content of the final Ancient Music festival concert. English, Irish, German, and Italian musicians who lived and flourished in the English capital from the beginning of the 17th to the middle of the 19th century are represented. Solos for virginal by the earliest of these composers, Orlando Gibbons, will be played. John Dowland, his contemporary, is represented by pavans, galiards, and almands, to be played by a string quintet. Henry Purcell, following next in chronological order, figures on the program with solos for harpsicord and the "Golden" sonata for two violins, cello and harpsicord. Handel, a German who was and still is an English favorite, has his Concerto, No. 6, in B-flat major listed.

Two German composers who played important rôles in London musical circles toward the end of the 18th century will have their works performed—Johann Christian Bach and Karl Friedrich Abel. The latter was a pupil of the former's father, the great Johann Sebastian Bach. During their long London sojourn the pair lived together and jointly conducted what were known as Mrs. Cornelys' subscription concerts over a period of 17 years. The Italian, Muzio Clementi, and his Irish pupil, John Field, both important in the development of piano music, complete the list of composers on the program. Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson head the performers on Wednesday's concert.

Verdi's "Rigoletto" will be presented by the American Opera company in the Woman's Club theater tonight. Teresa Romano appears as Gilda, Lillian Gregory as Maddalena, Irwin Burrichter as the duke, and Alexander Leors as Rigoletto. Leo Heim will conduct. On Friday night in the same hall the organization will offer an evening of "Opera Miniatures," featuring the singers already mentioned as well as Julia Skrzydel, Janita and Alma Bedrit, Thelma Megel, Nelson Lee Roy, Herman Struble, Irene Brill, Adelaide Bradley, Tina Goetz, Violet Mumsen, Walter Blickle, and Martin Boughan.

Iota Alpha chaper of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honorary music society, will hold a benefit luncheon and fashion forum tomorrow in the Hotel Sherman for the benefit of its music scholarship fund. The 1939-'40 scholarship was awarded to Violet Kamety, a violinist.

For a 16th year the Winnetka club will sponsor an artist-recital series in the Community house. Four distinguished soloists and a dance troupe will appear: Lotte Lehmann, soprano, on Nov. 6; Zino Francescatti, violinist, Nov. 27; Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, Jan. 29; Jooss European ballet, Feb. 12, and Robert Casadesus, pianist, March 18. This will be Miss Lehmann's sole appearance in or near Chicago this season.

On Thursday night the Columbia Broadcasting system will offer the world première of "Blennerhassett," a radio opera which it commissioned from the pen of Vittorio Giannini, American composer. Philip Ansel Roll has based the libretto on an episode in the revolt of Aaron Burr. [This same revolt figures in Walter Damrosch's opera, "The Man Without a Country," presented at the Civic Opera house two years ago.] Howard Barlow will direct the performance, to be sung by Frank Hornaday, Rosa Akersten, Hubert Hendrie, Rebekah Crawford, Ruth Carhart, and Claude Reese.

Philadelphia Orchestra to Play Tuesday

By Cecil Smith.

Visiting Chicago for the third consecutive year, the celebrated Philadelphia orchestra will set in motion Northwestern university's fifth series of "History and Enjoyment of Music" concerts when it plays in the Auditorium theater Tuesday evening. Eugene Ormandy, music director of the orchestra and co-conductor with Leopold Stokowski, will conduct.

Mr. Ormandy never was one to take any chances with his Chicago following. This time he follows the sedate course of devoting his program to three works, one by each of the three B's—Bach, Bethoven, and Brahms. Every one will undoubtedly enjoy the program to the hilt, and Mr. Ormandy will unquestionably make the music interesting, so who cares if the conductor has never, either with his own orchestra or at Ravinia, shown any inclination to stray from the safe and standard répertoire?

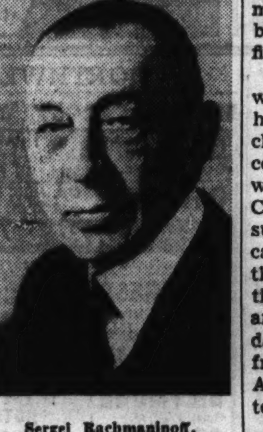
Bach's majestic Third suite, in D major, opens the program. Beethoven's Haydnesque First symphony brings it to the intermission. The lyric Second symphony of Brahams concludes it.

Only four changes have been made in the personnel of the orchestra since last year's Chicago concert. Benjamin Heifetz, one of the finest cellists ever to draw a bow in a chamber music group, has left the magnificent Kolisch String quartet to become Mr. Ormandy's principal cellist. Other new members are Frederick Vogelgesang, violinist; Theodore Seder, French horn player, and Gordon M. Pulis, trombonist.

● ● ●

After the opening program the other seven concerts in the History and Enjoyment of Music series will follow in regular sequence. On Nov. 19 Catherine Littlefield and her ballet will take enough time away from their regular duties with the Chicago City Opera company to present a ballet program in the Auditorium theater, where all the concerts of the series are given. Jascha Heifetz, perhaps the greatest of all present day violinists, will appear Dec. 3. Ten days later, on Dec. 13, the brilliant Boston Symphony orchestra, conducted by Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, will play its first Chicago concert in several seasons.

Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist, gives the first post-Christmas recital on Jan. 14. Marian Anderson, noted Negro contralto, fulfils a return engagement Jan. 28. The General Platoff Don Cossack choir, which is not the group singing in the Civic Opera house tonight, sings its second Chicago concert Feb. 4. The series ends Feb. 18 with a recital by Helen Jepson, lyric soprano of the Metropolitan and Chicago City Opera companies.



Sergei Rachmaninoff.

The History and Enjoyment of Music series began in 1935, when Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, dean of the University college of Northwestern university, arranged an interlocking series of concerts and supplementary academic lectures. Students wishing university credit enroled for both; the nonuniversity public was enabled to buy tickets for the concert series with the option of attending the lectures if they cared to. In recent seasons, however, the supplementary lectures have been abandoned, and replaced with a more satisfactory campus lecture course given by Dr. Felix Borowski.

Commenting upon the enterprise, which this year has reached a new high with 3,300 season subscribers, Dr. Stevens said, "This undertaking has been in conformity with the purposes of the University college of Northwestern university, which seeks to give to as many business and professional people as possible an educational program which, as this music course illustrates, is designed to bring opportunities for cultural and esthetic education within the reach of the average person."

Another adventurous enterprise, the American Ballet Caravan, stops off in the Civic theater this afternoon, in the midst of a transcontinental tour. The troupe of 21 American dancers, organized and managed by Lincoln Kirstein, one of America's most belligerent and best informed balletomanes, danced here for the first time last year.

Mr. Kirstein is no wild-eyed flagwaver, but he does believe wholeheartedly that American dancers, choreographers, and composers have come out the little end of the horn with the foreign ballets. The Ballet Caravan bases its program on the assumption that American audiences can be won away from what he calls the "Russian tearoomish interpretations" of visiting dance companies, and persuaded to prefer the athletic dancing of American artists and the friendly, familiar subject matter of American history, legend, and contemporary comment.

Unlike Mr. Kirstein, I do not think it necessary to sling mud at the Ballet Russe, which has both its good and its bad aspects, in order to espouse the cause of the American Ballet Caravan and of American dancing in general. Most dance enthusiasts want to see American dancing improve, and most of them will not want to miss today's performance.

● ● ●

All three dances in today's concert are new to Chicago. "Air and Variations" is a classical ballet, the choreography by William Dollar, danced to Bach's "Goldberg" variations. "City Portrait," originally known by the more provocative title, "Under the El," is a ballet-pantomime of city life. Eugene Loring, who has left the Ballet Caravan for the new Ballet theater, an outgrowth of the Mordkin ballet which, ironically, Mr. Kirstein has always disliked, created the choreography. Henry Brandt, the arranger of Benny Goodman's orchestrations, is the composer. The costumes are by Forrest Thayer Jr.

The third of the new dances is "Charade," which was first tried out a fortnight ago in Lancaster, Pa. Lew Christensen, ballet master and principal male dancer of the Caravan, devised the plot and choreography, which concern the social life of a 1910 debutante. The music has been drawn from authentic popular songs of the period by Trude Rittman, and the dance forms are derived from the dances of the time—the cotillon and ragtime dances. Alvin Colt designed the costumes in "a palette of ice cream colors."

Notes of Music and Musicians

One of the most promising Chicago debut recitals will be given this afternoon in Kimball hall by Maria Hussa, for this dramatic soprano comes to this city a fully matured artist. She has sung operatic and concert performances in almost all the capitals of Europe. Among the former are such achievements as the creation of leading rôles in Richard Strauss's "Intermezzo" and "The Egyptian Helen" for Berlin and Hamburg. On the concert platform she has had the services of both Strauss and Joseph Marx as her accompanist. an indication of the esteem in which she has been held. In today's recital she will have the collaboration of Carl Alwin at the piano. Her program is as follows:

Maria Hussa.

Verborgenheit	Wolf
Auf dem Wasser zu singen	Schubert
Gretchen am Spinnrade	Schubert
Meine Liebe ist grun	Brahms
Fils de la Vierge	Schmitt
Ninna nanna a Liana	Renato Bellini
Song of the Gypsy	Dvorak
Hope	Stepan
Die Nachtigall	Alban Berg
Allerseelen	Strauss
Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes	Arr. by Quilter
At the Well	Hageman
Final monologue, from "Salome"	Strauss

Mr. Stock will also conduct the second "pop" concert, scheduled for next Saturday night in Orchestra hall. On the program are the following items:

Overture to "Der Freischütz"	Weber
Symphony No. 3, E flat [Eroica]	Beethoven
Norwegian Rhapsody	Lalo
"Danse Macabre"	Saint-Saëns
"Midsummer Wake"	Alfven

At Orchestra hall this morning the anthems to be sung by Central Church chorus will include Shelley's "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," Tchaikowsky's "Legend," and the Gloria from what is known as Mozart's Twelfth Mass. William Hughes will direct, and Archer Lambuth will supply the organ solos.

This Is a Story About Pabulum and Appetites

How can you tell which schools have strong faculties? Information which can help you select the right school for your son or daughter is given in the helpful book, "Higher Education," by Dr. John Evans of the Tribune staff. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. Price, 10 cents. By postpaid mail, 13 cents.

By the Rev. John Evans.

This is not a story about higher education. That is, not exclusively! Strictly speaking, it is a story about pabulum but not mental pabulum. Pabulum has gone high toned as have many Latin words when they find their way in the speech of the precieux or precieuses.

Pabulum, the Latinists will tell you, was just fodder to the old Romans; cow fodder! When the Latin language died, pabulum became food for human beings. When the American educational orator took the word up, pabulum became the student's brain fodder to be rationed out by his professors.

When American colleges and universities began, the educator gave a lot of thought to mental pabulum, but little attention to fodder either for beast or student. But of late years this has all changed. A college without a dietitian nowadays almost isn't a college. Take the University of Notre Dame as an example. It is said to be the largest boarding school in the world, requiring 10,000 frankfurters at a single meal for the 3,300 students, altho sirloin steak with green peas and baked potatoes is preferred over hot dogs.

The prodigious pabulum problem at Notre Dame requires not only a dietetic staff but also a managing director of the university dining hall. This is Eugene F. Connolly, formerly of New York's McAlpin hotel, where he was catering manager. His job now is to whip up two and a half million meals during the school year to satisfy the tastes and health of students from Latin America to Alaska and from Maine to China.

Meals must be served on the dot, with food hot and ice cream still erect. This is taken care of at meal time by 45 chefs and a kitchen crew of 150. In addition, there are about 400 other kitchen employés, including complete crews of butchers and bakers. These handle two tons of food daily. Except for a few students living in South Bend, the 3,300 all eat in the refectory, which cost $1,000,000 to build. In addition to kitchens, cold storage warehouses and bakery, the refectory houses two great dining halls, seating 1,500 students each. A cafeteria for day students, graduates, and guests is maintained.

Meals are served promptly at 7 in the morning, noon and 6 o'clock for dinner. Trained student waiters, 175 of them, serve. Precision of the train dispatcher is required. Tables most remote from the kitchen get their pabulum at the same instant as those nearest. A meal is served and over in 25 minutes. It is done by electric flash signals to waiters. That leaves time for second or third helpings of anything the students want.

In fact, Mr. Connolly reports 17 helpings of frankfurters to one student at a single meal last spring. He was racing with a table mate who stalled on number nine. And there is a tradition about one student and seven filets mignons. He survived.

But Notre Dame eats 35 bushels of spinach in one meal. And that is real pabulum.

College freshmen are given a poor rating in English by Prof. W. L. Garnett of Kent State university, Ohio. She made a survey of three midwestern teachers' colleges and the students in English composition showed up as about fourth graders so far as capitalization, punctuation, and other mechanics of writing were concerned.

"The status in English composition of sophomores, juniors and seniors," the survey states, "was similar to that of freshmen. A large percentage of the students missed on tests and composition points which should have been taught in the elementary schools."

FRENCH MOVIE COMEDIAN

You are gazing at Lucien Baroux, French comedian. M. Baroux makes his bow on our screen in a French prize winner titled "40 Girls and a Baby." (This photograph inspires the query—but WHERE are the girls? The baby, apparently, isn't far off.)

Good Morning!

"The Roaring Twenties" is a fitting title. "Racketeer Cavalcade" would also be appropriate. For the Chicago's new movie is vehemently concerned with those hideous years following the war that was to "end all wars," and the passing of the 18th amendment, when city streets became bloody trenches in which lawlessness battled with order and, for a time, laid it low. . . .

Most movies nowadays are introduced by the cautious announcement that story and characters are purely fictional. Not so with Mr. Hellinger's opus. He declares the incidents in his tale really occurred and that he was personally acquainted with folks such as are portrayed. . . . And then—BAM—you're overseas in a shell hole with:

Eddie Bartlett, tough, but on the level, who yearns for the war to end so that he can get back to his job as mechanic in a garage where he's worked for years. The boss has told him his place would be waiting for him.

Lloyd Hart, a sensitive young fellow who devoutly hopes he'll live to see himself a lawyer with his own office.

George Hally, a born killer, who shoots down his men with relish, and, when the Armistice is declared, fondles his gun tenderly and says: "I think I'll just take this back home with me. . . ."

Lloyd becomes a lawyer and—finally, mouthpiece for Eddie who learns how to make liquor "just off the boat," and sell it for fabulous prices.

A sad, grim, hectic picture this. The only sweetness and light it contains is provided in Priscilla Lane's almost TOO sweet portrayal of a young singer who becomes Eddie's protégée and heart's desire and who falls in love with Lloyd. Gladys George is effective—but tragical as Panama Smith a lady suggested, you're sure, by the late Texas Guinan. Frank McHugh is occasionally amusing as Eddie's loyal pal—but he comes to a sad end. . . .

This is an intelligent production and an interesting one. It is one more forceful reminder of what can happen in our fair land if we're dumb enough to stick our necks out. But it brings back too many disheartening memories to be, regarded I think, as out and out entertainment.

See you tomorrow.

London Theaters

When the recent European war began all the London theaters were closed. With the absence of any air raids thus far and a growing restlessness among the people, it has been found advisable to reopen some of the theatrical houses. All motion pictures are operating. The famous "west end" district, in the heart of London, has only two stage shows going, however, Herbert Farjeon's "Little Revue" at the Little, and a vaudeville bill at the Windmill theater. Performances are given only in the afternoons. Two other distinguished productions, Emlyn Williams' "The Corn Is Green" and John Gielgud's revival of "The Importance of Being Earnest," have been moved to suburban playhouses, the former from the Duchess to the Streatham, and the latter from the Globe to Golder's Green. As a more normal way of living is deemed sufficiently safe, more of the legitimate theaters will probably reopen.

Critic Analyzes Success of Four Broadway Productions

Box Office Men Toss Hats in Air Over Business

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—The new theater season has been successfully opened, however tardily, and the box office men, representing the heart of the business, are prepared to toss their hats in the air. You could, if you were a promoter in the show business, bring a dozen or two dozen fine plays to town, if you could find that many, and no one of them would count for anything much without a box office indorsement. We like to talk and write of art in the theater, but the longer I decorate the sidelines the more convinced am I that public response is the only factor that keeps it moving.

There have been four plays of major importance introduced to Broadway within the last ten days, and all four are financially successful. Yet two of them are confessedly pretty frail as works of dramaturgic art and the other two are more heavily dependent upon what the players give them than they are upon what their authors put into them.

As I previously have written, Gertrude Lawrence is an accepted hit in the Samson Raphaelson comedy, "Skylark," after that piece had been rewritten four or five times. Now you may add to this starter Helen Hayes' new play, "Ladies and Gentlemen," which also has been accepted by both the Hayes following and the critics, despite the admission that it is a fairly artificial affair that probably would fail a less popular star.

Also the biting comedy that Moss Hart and George Kaufman wrote for Alexander Woollcott, called "The Man Who Came to Dinner," is "standing 'em up," in the Broadway phrase, at the Music Box. And the new Rodgers-Hart musical comedy, "Too Many Girls," of which I wrote you from New Haven, is an overnight hit at the Imperial.

But you are likely to want to know what it is that sells these particular plays if they are, as intimated, basically poor stuff. "How now, Mr. Mantle," you could reasonably say, "would you have playgoers deny themselves an entertainment that gives them joy merely because its theme is trivial or its structure shaky?" and you would be right in demanding an answer.

I should tell you then that Miss Lawrence's "Skylark," in my estimation, is successful because Miss Lawrence is a fascinating person, full of sweetness and tricks; that when she pretends to be a neglected wife thousands of other neglected wives sigh in sympathy and thousands of neglectful husbands, tho they may cringe a little before the implied criticism, find justification in telling themselves that if their wives were as artful and fascinating as Miss Lawrence they, too, would spend at least five nights a week at home and probably six. As a matter of fact, Gertrude, being persistently sweet and tricky in any man's home, would drive him to suicide within a month.

I should tell you, too, that Helen Hayes, who is also an appealing somebody on the stage, and Philip Merivale, who is every middle-aged woman's idea of a perfect martyr in the home, are able to take the artificial romance of "Ladies and Gentlemen" and give it certain qualities of reality that satisfy the playgoers' imagination, tho they may not fire it.

• • •

Miss Hayes, you will remember, is a rebellious member of a jury in this play. She does not believe the man on trial, a brilliant Hollywood writer, would be capable of pushing his wife off a cliff on Mount Wilson because he wanted to marry another girl. She holds out for an acquittal and gets it by convincing this one, cajoling another, exposing a third, and falling in love with the foreman.

Helen Hayes.

Not every two players you might name could make this belated romance seem real. Mr. Merivale and Miss Hayes have their hands full doing it. But some way, maybe because Miss Hayes has been so darned royal and so necessarily upstage the last several seasons, playing the queens of Europe, that they like to see her come down and live again with the rest of us commoners, people do believe it and rather revel in it. There are many curtain calls after every performance. Not a few of them, I have an idea, are stirred by the new conclusion the authors, Charles MacArthur, who is Miss Hayes' husband, and Ben Hecht, have written.

In the first version of this jury play that I saw in Philadelphia, Mr. Merivale, after declaring his suddenly acquired love for the rebellious but lovely Miss Hayes, was brought back to reason by the sudden appearance of his grown son. In the new version Mr. Merivale's wife sends a birthday cake to the jury room because she doesn't want her husband to go without some celebration of an anniversary that is very dear to the family. The sight of the cake brings such a light of tenderness to Mr. Merivale's misty eyes that Miss Hayes then and there determines not to let him get the divorce he was going to get in order to marry her.

The success of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" can be traced, I think, not to the interest in or curiosity concerning Mr. Woollcott himself, but to its basic appeal as sound comedy. Take the situation of a gifted but irascible celebrity who is forced by accident to spend several weeks in the home of a social headhunter and you are certain to discover many comic possibilities.

The lecturer and radio commentator, who is the hero of the Hart-Kaufman comedy, slips on a bit of ice on the doorstep when he goes to dinner at the home of a small town Ohio matron and fractures his hip. He is carried into the guest room and there he stays for six weeks. When he is able to get about in a wheel chair [which is the point at which the play opens] he begins running things with a high hand and a caustic tongue. He banishes the family to the second floor, invites his own company to dinner, threatens to sue his unwilling host for large damages because of the icy step and finally discovers evidence that his host's sister is really an eccentric who had inadvertently, as it were, murdered her mother.

One of the hearty laughs of the evening comes at the end of the comedy. With everything fixed up and the family sighing relief, the terrible guest is about to depart when he slips on the same step a second time and is brought screaming back into the house, maybe for another six weeks.

So, whether "The Man Who Came to Dinner" is unjust to Mr. Woollcott or not, and I'm sure it is, there are good comedy bases for all the laughs it piles up. With Monty Woolley playing the lead as well, I think, as it could be played, there is splendid reason for the furor those old associates, press and public, are making over this one.

So much is also true of the new Rodgers-Hart musical comedy, "Too Many Girls," which George Abbott has staged beautifully and cast expertly at the Imperial. Here are freshness and youth in great abundance, and these are unbeatable factors in popular entertainment. Here are lyrics that are bold as brass, skirting the sharp edge of drawing room taste without giving offense, and set to tunes that are sure to be popular.

Here, too, is a young and good looking chorus, marvellously costumed by Raoul Pene Du Bois, and here is such scenery as you might expect a Jo Mielziner to produce with southwestern America as his back drop. These are virtues that are pretty sure to guarantee success in any Broadway theater.

Marcy Wescott, a personable blonde, is the heroine who goes to Pottawatomie university in Stop Gap, N. M., accompanied by a bodyguard of four all-American football players, and Richard Kollmar is the particular bodyguard with whom she falls in love. She was last season the prima donna of "Boys from Syracuse" and he sang the juvenile lead in "Knickerbocker Holiday." Helping them are Eddie Bracken and Mary Jane Walsh, with Hal Leroy to do the loose-ankle dancing.

Seek New Opera

The Philadelphia Opera company has announced a contest for an opera by an American composer. The winning opera will be awarded a production by the company during the 1940-'41 season. Manuscripts must reach the office of the company, Bankers Securities building, Philadelphia, by Aug. 15, 1940. The judges will be Leopold Stokowski and Eugene Ormandy, the honorary directors of the opera company, and Sylvan Levin, its musical director.

This one year old organization will open its second season on Nov. 21 with a performance of Gounod's "Faust." The rest of the répertoire consists of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" [in English], "Madame Butterfly," "La Traviata," Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" [in English], and "Carmen."

'Chez' Unveils Hit Show with Lewis as Star

Against the richly costumed background of Fred Evans' dance ensembles, Chez Paree has unveiled its first solid hit show of the season. Largest lettering on the café's marquee goes to Joe E. Lewis, Tamara, Paul Haakon and Abe "Holdover" Lyman.

Starting with the capable tap routines of the Stapletons, the show soon becomes a parade of well balanced individual talents.

Haakon's robustly graceful ballet work has about it a joyful virility that penetrates the sophisticated hardpan of the modern night club crowd and discovers underneath a sincere admiration for sheer artistic talent. His interpretation of Enesco's "Roumanian Rhapsody" is a beautifully executed example of art for its own exciting sake.

As feminine in her approach as Haakon is masculine in his, Tamara uses all the artifices at the command of a beautiful woman. Demure, vivacious, or sad, singing the haunting "Bublichki" or the gay "Over the Rainbow," the little Slavic singer wins her audience by the technique of artful understatement.

Joe E. Lewis' chores as toastmaster, and his own starring turn demonstrate the individual talent that has kept him in the front rank of café comedians for so many years. It is a talent difficult of imitation because it is spontaneous, opportunist, and entirely divorced from mere ability to retell funny stories. His dissection of the odder modern songs is as hilariously devastating as a Benchley version of "The Treasurer's Report."

Abe Lyman's contribution is a handsomely played show, and a swingy little singer, Rose Blane. From the frosty little Eskimo number to the nostalgic and brilliantly costumed "Merry Widow" ensemble, the Evans production numbers are high tribute to the good taste of Evans and his assistants, Francis Pallister, Mary Gorgas, George Mandel, and Sam Savitt. And, of course, to the dancing talents of the Adorables.

• • •

A gray haired, stocky gentleman with an accent as broad as his patter is amusing, is stealing everything these nights in the Drake hotel's Gold Coast room, including the show. He is Giovanni, famous in Europe for years as a genial picker of pockets who doesn't play for keeps, but just for entertainment. The way in which he flicks watches off the wrists of his unsuspecting victims from the audience is the essence of amazing artistry.

Pierre and Renee, cameolike dance team, are holdover members of the cast, and Wayne King continues to make the Gold Coast room a friendly gathering place.

• • •

Tomorrow night is spooks' night out at the Blackhawk, and Johnny Davis, mop-thatched maestro of the restaurant's orchestra, is planning to teach scat dancing to goblins as part of the evening's program. In addition, Davis will demonstrate the Hollywood technique in ducking for apples. Best apple retrievers among the patrons will receive prizes, and every one will get favors and a slice of pumpkin pie.

Johnnie "Scat" Davis.

Betty and Lawrence Cook are the tapping stars of the floor show.

"Little brother" to the two big revues staged nightly in the Empire room of the Palmer House by Tommy Dorsey and his band, Nick Long Jr., Bob Neller, Lynn, Royce and Vanya, and the Abbott girls, the mid-evening "little show" holds its own as a compact, quiet bit of solid entertaining. Featuring for the most part the band's own entertainers, the show has a highlight in the dance cavalcade presented by Long and two of the Abbotteers, Beverly Allen and Margaret Van Sickle.

Bows and encores:

With Ralph Cook getting another 10 week stay of execution at Harry's New Yorker, the Wabash avenue fun spot is fast becoming known as the Cookie Jar. Ralph's "Mother India" skit and his lecture on surrealism continue popular. Jean Modé does the parade numbers, Landre and Verna offer some compact dance routines, the Three Musical Moods do a harmonious sister singing act, Louise Shannon is as svelte as ever in her tap interpretations, Mme. Marilyn Currie stages a style revue, and the Winnie Hoveler girls continue their routines. Mickey Cozzie is directing the band.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Paul Haakon, co-star of the current Chez Paree show, has acquired a son—Christopher—since his appearance here last season. . . . The Christmas show at the Chez, incidentally, will have more solid names than any in the club's history. . . . The suggested name for the Blackhawk Sunday matinée dances, with a bow to Johnny Scat Davis and his horn, is "Tea and Trumpets." . . . The Julie Sherwin who sings with Scat is the Julie Pritchford who, as a Northwestern university co-ed, won a cup in a Blackhawk amateur contest several years ago. . . . René, of popular memory as the Buttery's maitre, has transferred his allegiance, gracious bow and all, to Col. Yaschenko's Yar restaurant. . . . Harry James has introduced an illuminated baton to Panther room dancing. Now if Gene Krupa will just bring out his illuminated drumsticks. . . . Dave Branower, remembered for his connection with the old Vanity Fair, has joined Charlie Hepp in operating Harry's New Yorker. . . . Henry Brandt, who arranged the swing versions of Bach and Mozart that Benny Goodman made famous, produced the musical score for the "City Portrait" pantomime that is to be part of the American Ballet Caravan's program this afternoon.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

There are many ways to play bridge. "Social players," particularly of the feminine gender, like to combine a certain amount of chatter and gossip with their finesses and coups. "Club players" usually bar conversation, but do not look too kindly on prolonged "huddles" from either their opponents or their partners—here, speed is the essence. Finally, there is the "student," who brings what amounts to a fond fanaticism to the bridge table. He is the blood brother of the chess master, whose greatest delight springs from the solution of a particularly knotty problem, and who doesn't care whether said solution takes him five minutes or five times five. Such a one is Bruno Grünewald, late of Germany, now of Brussels, Belgium, who presents the following example of profound ratiocination in the current issue of the Bridge World Magazine:

East, dealer.

NORTH
♠ K 9 5 4
♥ A Q J 9
♦ 5
♣ J 9 6 3

WEST
♠ Q 8
♥ 7 6 3
♦ J 9 7 3
♣ Q 10 4 2

EAST
♠ J 7 6
♥ K 8 2
♦ 10 8 6 4
♣ 8 7 5

SOUTH
♦ A K Q 2
♣ A K

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 spade	Pass	3 spades
Pass	4 no trump	Pass	5 no trump
Pass	6 spades	Pass	Pass
Pass

"I was South," Mr. Grünewald writes. "There is nothing to say about the bidding. But a careful analysis reveals the strange fact that the hands contain a better contract: Six hearts can be made without difficulty.

"West led the three of diamonds; East's ten was taken by my queen. Holding the deuce, I reasoned that each opponent had four diamonds. Now please examine both hands. Obviously, the minor suits have no loser. The danger lies in the major suits. Not only is the king of hearts missing, the trump suit is not solid.

"Surely a trump trick must be lost, if you exclude the possible but rare situation of finding queen-jack unguarded in one hand. Five missing cards are usually distributed 3-2, but what about a safety play against four trumps, including queen-jack in one hand? There is no efficient safety play, as you must divine whether you should play the king of spades first, followed by finessing the ten, or the ace of spades first, followed by finessing dummy's nine. And the immediate finesse of the nine or the ten, without playing a top honor, clears the situation just as little. Nevertheless, one can say that it is indicated to play a top honor first [one has to decide on one of them], followed by a finesse. In this manner the trumps must be drawn. But after having lost a trump trick, the contract depends squarely on the heart finesse, which may or may not succeed—who knows that in advance?

"Always, when I have to deal with such a finesse, I am annoyed. Can't I avoid it if East must take the inevitable trump loser and then is forced to lead a heart? Perhaps, but diamonds and clubs must be eliminated beforehand and there are two ways to do so. Firstly: On the king and ace of diamonds dummy discards two hearts. After having played the ace and king of clubs the two of diamonds is ruffed, followed by a ruff of a club. Dummy is put in with the king of spades and the last club is ruffed. But now you can see that dummy lacks the needed third reentry for the throw-in via a trump.

"Secondly: If I cannot ruff dummy's two club losers, I must discard one of them on my king of diamonds. On my ace of diamonds a heart [the jack!] must be discarded. Then dummy's last club is ruffed as a protection against three clubs in East's hand. After having ruffed my two of diamonds I can draw three rounds of trumps, hoping that East will win the trick and will have to lead a heart. But alas! This plan must fail, too. The contract still depends on a heart finesse, as I have three in my hand.

"At the second and third tricks I played the ace and king of clubs. Maybe the queen of clubs would fall; then I could discard one of my hearts. As the queen didn't fall I played the two of diamonds, ruffed it, played dummy's nine of clubs, ruffed it too—but alas! the queen of clubs was not to be seen.

"Tremblingly I played the next card, the four of hearts. [Not the ten.] I finessed dummy's jack. [Not the nine.] I shut my eyes. . . . Yes, East had the king and back came a heart which I won with my ten, and that was very important as you will see later. Perhaps you think that it was risky to finesse hearts first before drawing two rounds of trumps, as East could have the 13th club, the long searched for queen? No. If I lose a trump trick, I cannot afford to lose a heart, therefore the position of the king of hearts must be cleared at once. If the finesse fails, I have carefully kept the last chance of not losing a trump trick. That seems unbelievable!

"Remember that I won the last trick with my ten of hearts. I played the king of diamonds and discarded dummy's queen of hearts. Now look at the end position:

"I played the ace of diamonds and discarded dummy's ace of hearts! It is the first stage of the coup. By no means must the jack of clubs be discarded; a little later it will play an important part. There was another way, too: Ruffing the ace of diamonds with dummy's five of spades, followed by a round of hearts. The result would be the same.

"I chose the first way, discarding the ace of hearts. Then I played my five of hearts and ruffed it. The next card, the second stage of the coup, was this diabolic jack of clubs. If East plays a small spade I make a trick with my ten. If East plays the jack I over-ruff with the ace. West's queen will then be captured by a simple finesse. The opponents are helpless. Sweet, isn't it?"

Bridge Problem

This is one of the most famous double dummy problems in existence. It was invented by the old master, Sidney Lenz, to whom grateful acknowledgment is hereby given.

The contract is seven hearts by South. West opens the diamond queen. Can you, as South, take 13 tricks against the best defense?

Answer: Yes. The queen of diamonds is opened, taken by the ace, and South discards a club. Second lead, king of diamonds. There are now three variations, depending on East's defense.

Variation A: If East ruffs diamond king, South over-ruffs, and the rest is easy. One of dummy's trumps is used to establish the spade suit, and the other trump is used to pick up East's heart queen on a finesse.

Variation B: If East discards a spade on the diamond king, South must ruff. The ace of spades is cashed, then the queen is led through West and the king is ruffed out. Dummy's last trump is led, and South wins the finesse. The remaining spades are cashed. Then South leads a club to North, and North returns diamond for South to ruff. This shortens South's trump holding to East's length. East can discard a club on this third round of diamonds, but still has to follow suit when South puts dummy in with another club. There are now only three trumps left in East and South's hand, and, North being in the lead, South can pick up East's queen.

Variation C: If East anticipates this line of play by discarding a club on the diamond king, South discards the nine of spades. North now leads a trump and South wins the finesse. A club puts North back on lead to lead the second trump, and East's trumps are picked up. South cashes all his trumps, North saving two clubs, one diamond and one spade. At this point South holds the A Q J of spades and one club. Since the only stoppers in all of these suits are held by West, West must try to hold two spades, one diamond, and two clubs, but as he can hold only four cards, is squeezed out of one stopper. If he discards a spade, South at once cashes the A-Q-J of spades. If West lets go a club or a diamond, South leads a club to put North on lead, then cashes whichever of dummy's minor suit cards is good. South discards the jack of spades, and West is squeezed the second time.

Simon to Stage

The item that appeared on these pages to the effect that Lee Shubert wanted to present Simone Simon in a Broadway musical seems to have had more substance than rumor. The new musical will be known as "The Gibson Girls" and has been adapted by Guy Bolton from a London success of a year or so ago known as "Three Blind Mice." There the authorship was credited to one Stephen Powys, who, it turns out, is Mr. Bolton himself. Edward Clarke Lilley will stage the musical, and Mlle. Simon will have songs by Johnny Mercer and Hoagy Carmichael to sing.

Fullerton Hall Recital.

Maria Parissi, soprano, and Andrea de Parry, baritone, will give their annual recital of songs and arias in Fullerton hall this evening. George Rott, pianist, will be the assisting artist, and Robert MacDonald will supply the accompaniments.

Vaudeville

At the Chicago theater the stage show features the popular piano and vocal team of Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey. Other acts include Bobby May; Kay, Katya and Kay; the Lassiter brothers, and the Hild ballet girls. James Cagney and Priscilla Lane are starred in the film, "The Roaring Twenties." Beginning Friday Eddie Cantor will make a one week personal appearance with his own revue at this theater.

The Palace theater's excellent stage and screen bills are being held over for a second week. On the former are Joe Cook, the amiable comedian and his gang of fun makers. On the screen is "Fifth Avenue Girl," with Ginger Rogers.

On the stage of the Oriental theater can be seen this week Eddie White, Herman Hyde, Gardner and Kane, Park and Clifford, Verne Buck, the Dancing Sweethearts, and Jack Thorn. The double film feature includes "When Tomorrow Comes" and "The Under-Pup."

Marx Mark

In a day when three uninterrupted months at one stand is considered practically a permanent job by an act or orchestra, and in a day when circuses are more nostalgic memories than active entertainment units, the three year tenure of Carl Marx as the free lance clown of Hotel Sherman's College Inn is regarded as something of a show business phenomenon. Three-fourths of Carl's 49 years have been spent in show rings, from the tanbark of small circus arenas in his native Denmark, to circus, stage and club spots in Europe and America. Acrobat, clown, tumbler, Carl now has a fund of showmanship that enables him to dispense with wisecracks and with all but one gadget—the flashlight nose which is a trademark of the College Inn [Panther Room]. Marx was given an anniversary party last week in which entertainers of a more effete younger generation joined with steady patrons of the inn in a sock and buskin tribute to one of the town's favorite troupers.

Gen. Evangeline Booth to Retire on Tuesday from Salvation Army Command

By Betty Browning

EVANGELINE BOOTH will retire Tuesday from the world command of the Salvation Army. Working day and night up to the last at the Army's headquarters in London, the small general of this international army of 3,000,000 will terminate in characteristic fashion a career of unfaltering service that began almost with the founding of the Salvation Army by her father seventy-four years ago.

At General Booth's wish the great civic meeting that was to have been England's farewell to her has been canceled, and she has plunged into the task of organizing her followers for war relief. Already thousands of Salvationists are just behind the fighting lines with their canteens and ambulances.

Shortly after her retirement General Booth plans to return to America, her adopted country, where most of her work was done. She will live in her house at Hartsdale, N. Y.

"A man may be down, but he's never out," the famous Army slogan, is only one of the many picturesque and pithy sayings attributed to General Booth. Even as a tiny child her eloquence made her outstanding among the eight children of the Salvation Army's founder. She was born on Christmas day of 1865, the year her father, a Methodist minister of the New Connection, founded his first mission in the London slums.

As a baby she walked with him on his rounds. At the age of 5 she preached her first sermon to a row of dolls and broomsticks. Soon afterward she was addressing audiences of children.

She was not yet 14 when she decided to "lead the life" and was appointed a sergeant in the Salvation Army. Sent to one of London's toughest districts, she made her first speech on a platform from which older Salvationists had just been driven with rocks, bottles, and fruits. She managed to win that audience's applause.

When she was still a girl Evangeline Booth mastered the technique of dramatizing good that her father had perfected, using it, in William Booth's own words, "for the salvation of the most despised, most dangerous, most hopeless, and most burdensome classes of society."

She led her singing and praying followers into pubs, dives, police courts. Often hoodlums stoned and booed her. She opened her headquarters in a street where every other house had an evil reputation, and at first her neighbors rioted against her. For a time she even dressed in rags and (Continued on Page 3.)

Society Prepares for Church Bazaar

By Cousin Eve

THE signs and omens are set for a delightful winter in Chicago. We are at peace with the wide world, the times are better, and my calendar is absolutely popping with charming things to do. My word! but the dates run away into the holidays.

One of the social spots of November is St. Chrysostom's Christmas bazaar. Mrs. George Ranney and Mrs. Rensselaer Cox are co-chairmen of the event, which includes a turkey dinner on the night of Nov. 16, followed by cinema.

The second session on Nov. 17 finishes with a buffet supper arranged by Mrs. Alden Swift which will interest those churchgoers who prefer cold turkey and turkey hash to the original roast. Mrs. Swift's supper will be followed by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.'s lecture, "Again War," which is a sort of prelude, a potpourri of personages seen and interviewed in the summer by him. This should be an attraction to the entire congregation, for the rich look upon Mr. Vanderbilt as a Socialist and the poor look upon him as a Vanderbilt. I. Newton Perry usually carves the turkeys and acts as maitre d'hotel. Mrs. Charles Dewey attends to contacts with the world at large. And Mrs. Richard T. Crane conducts the tea room both afternoons.

Coming to Chicago at that time, Ruth Hanna Simms on national politics bent. One of the most charming women I know and the ablest speaker of them all, Mrs. Simms has taken a house in New York for the winter and will pick up the threads of her old busy life after four or five years of residence in New Mexico.

Joiners are active this season, it seems, and the ticket sale for grand opera, which opened last night at the Civic Opera house, is twice as large as last year.

October has been beautiful and bland, with hot sun and Mediterranean skies. On Monday there was an English-speaking union luncheon, the first of the season, with Rufus Dawes presiding.

The speaker was Dr. James R. Angell, who has been president of Yale since his professorship on the Midway years ago. He is now president of the union in this country, without salary, "or even salary expenses," he said. Dr. Angell has a twinkle in his eye, a sparkle in his speech, and a large and highly fashionable audience came expecting great things. His subect was "The Challenge of the Rresent Crisis." One doesn't quite know what one did expect of Dr. Angell's talk, probably some new angle to the crisis in England which hadn't been heard before. The speaker's table was lined with men of large affairs. There were Samuel Rinaker, ex-president of the union; Brig. Gen. Charles Dawes, Robert M. Hutchins, Edward L. Ryerson, Lewis Barnays, and a dozen others high in the councils of the society.

the neutrality of the English Speaking union and affirmed that the society would keep its petticoats absolutely clean. He said that it was the duty of every patriotic American to uphold the highest ideals of democracy and liberty and stick to it. So undoubtedly we won't be having British warmongers this year at the luncheons. This should make for a quiet season, perhaps!

Dr. Angell began by being amusing with a new light on Mrs. O'Leary's cow and a line on the holdups on the Midway in the old days. He said that bandits finally abandoned the idea of holding up professors of the University of Chicago [there wasn't anything in it]. But now, he said, bowing to Bob Hutchins, things were very different.

On the serious side, Dr. Angell was so neutral he said practically nothing. Except that one could have one's own secret thoughts, and that was that. And also the unneutral idea that it would be nice for Americans to take British children, to keep and educate for the period of the war.

To be really neutral one should advocate taking French, German, and Polish children, said the speaker, but perhaps that was asking too much of English Speaking union members.

On the whole it was the speech of a good Angell, but somehow highly disappointing to the luncheon guests. They seemed to feel let down a little, at least so said various of my cheres amies present.

Among the noted persons, Boris Bathmetieff, one time ambassador of Russia at Washington, with Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Harris and Mrs. Samuel Rinaker. Mrs. Robert McGann with her daughter, Mrs. James Douglas, and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis in deep mourning came for a few minutes to hear the debate. But there wasn't any debate.

● ● ●

A Russian tea party one bright afternoon after the symphony, with Mme. Marie Kurenko, an opera diva, receiving, was held in the Tretyakov gallery, and Pierre Morel as co-host. The guests of honor were Alexander Gretchaninoff, the noted Russian composer, and his wife, a small, vivacious couple with agreeable ways, much interested in their surroundings. The composer of the soviet hymn has a white pointed beard and the blue eyes of Russia, a bit vague. The Gretchaninoffs were smartly turned out. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Mullaney were there, among other war refugees who escaped from France just under the wire. "Sunny Top," their extensive estate at Chantilly, is now definitely closed and they have taken a house at Arlington, Vt., for the winter. It seems that old houses in New Hampshire and Vermont are at a premium, there being an enormous rush to buy and lease property in those two old fashioned Republican states.

The Mullaneys escaped into Portugal after the crisis of last year and they had Zuzu, their well known Siamese cat, transported over the Pyrenees by plane. Zuzu was strong for air travel and one asked after his health only to hear that he had gone to cat heaven. The third crisis and mobilization No. 3 in France were too much for him and he was left in the garden at Chantilly. Chartering a plane for a pussy cat one loves reminds me of Dick Crane, one of the kindest hearts and friendliest souls who ever lived in Chicago. He traveled back and forth from Ipswich spring and fall in a private car. In the car were quarters for an old red chow and a charming goose which was his own particular pet.

After meeting the Gretchaninoffs there was a dash for the Casino and the Gray Lady tea. Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Joseph Coleman, and the woman's board of Passavant were receiving in honor of the ladies of the boards of Grant hospital and St. Luke's in the Fountain room. When I arrived Roger Holden of the Red Cross was outlining the forthcoming most important drive for membership, beginning Nov. 11. He was followed by Irene Sidley, tall and picturesque, full of her subject, which was the Gray Lady and recreation service courses about to start at Red Cross.

SEPTEMBER BRIDE

Mrs. Herbert Porter Carrow Jr., the former Virginia Mary Mangold, and her bridegroom of last Sept. 30 are at home in Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Carrow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roy Mangold of Evanston. Mr. Carrow's parents are the senior Mr. and Mrs. Carrow, also of Detroit.

[Koehne Photo.]

It was such a good talk that 18 of the smart gathering signed up for the training. After graduation the women get a crisp gray uniform and a neat cap and veil which makes them look angelic. A large tea table was set out with the usual "5 o'clock" for which the Casino is famous. Among the guests were Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Bartholmay Osborne, Mrs. W. B. Greenlee, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. E. R. Fifield, Mrs. James Offield, Mrs. Allyn Warren, Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, Mrs. Gardner van Ness, and Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital.

● ● ●

It's a longish drive to Evanston, but so lovely when one arrives. Dr. and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott were having a wedding reception Sunday afternoon for the Sumner W. D. Scotts, married in September. The bride is an attractive, vivacious girl; in fact, they are a very handsome couple and will live in Chicago. Many ladies rotated at the tea table, which was banked with white bridal flowers: Mrs. George Mason, Mrs. Walter Cummings, Mrs. Mark Cresap, Mrs. E. R. Hurlbut, and Mrs. Hal C. Bangs.

Among the guests were Dr. Franklin Snyder, the new president of Northwestern, and his wife; Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes, Mrs. Charles Bosworth and her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Padley, who is here from England for the winter. Gordon Padley is in the navy and Dr. Trevor Stamp, Mrs. Bosworth's second son-in-law, is at a base hospital "somewhere in England." It seems that British hospitals keep very busy these days, what with seamen and travelers rescued from sinking ships and the perils of black nights in cities. Mrs. Trevor Stamp and her young child are also in Evanston for the winter.

Who should appear at the concert the other day but the charming "Tish" or, in other language, Mrs. Charles Bromwell. The last time I had seen her was at Claridge's in London in July, looking very fit. Her son-in-law, Sir Sidney Bailey, later sent her home because he opined that in wartime, for American women, there's no place like home. Mrs. Bromwell's son, Scott Bromwell, and his family live in Lake Forest; her daughter, Lady Bailey, is at present in London, with week-ends at a charming place they have at Hove on the English channel. The Baileys write that life goes on in England as per usual. The children are at school and everybody has his duties and does them, with a few social pleasures.

I think Vincent Sheean called his talk at the Woman's Athletic club "Opinions." Anyway, it attracted the multitude, with standing room only, the corridors being packed and 500 staying on for luncheon. What one might call almost too much success.

Vincent Sheean is primarily an author and his "Personal History" I found to be a fascinating book of his wanderings in China and soviet Russia. And a book which puts one en courant with who's a communist and who isn't in the Chinese scene and colorfully gives one plenty to think about. As a speaker one found Mr. Sheean not so impressive. An entire period devoted to the belaboring of Neville Chamberlain did seem too much even from an Irishman. The one laugh was a quotation from Winston Churchill, who said apropos of the fightless war which is scheduled to go on all winter that "Hitler would find it very dull." Mr. Sheean's opinions on Spain seemed to me a bit fantastic, even archaic. I wasn't sorry, however, to have spent a precious hour of life listening, for then one knows what kind of fellow one's author is.

Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Mrs. Silas Strawn and her friend, Miss Strew of Paris; Mrs. W. N. Pelouze, Mrs. Edmund Russell, Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. James Offield, Mrs. Hubert Perkins, Mrs. Lewis Bernays were among the many attending.

One hundred hard working girls lunched at the Casino Wednesday and took orders from Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, chairman of the woman's division of the Community Fund drive. There were eight tables and a speaker's table which included a few men. Edward L. Ryerson Jr. sat at Mrs. Lawrence's right. Beyond him was Robert Gardner, and on the other side was Mark Brown, who is the banking consultant of the women's team.

Among the women seated at the high table were Mrs. George Ranney, Mrs. E. L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. Frank Hixon, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Joseph Ryerson, Mrs. James Forgan, Mrs. Dallas Phemister, and Mrs. Charles Foster.

Edward Ryerson addressed the women's team on the psychology of the Community Fund and its application to local charities. These Chicago charities in their grand total spend 18 millions a year. The women's objective is $365,000, which seemed a fairly large sum. But after Mark Brown had read a list of statistics proving that women owned nearly everything in the United States, it began to look like a mere bagatel. The sartorial sensation of the luncheon was Mrs. Barney Goodspeed, who came in late in demure black, with a hat perched above an ample snood, that everybody admitted was "some snood," held on in front with a red gadget or other. The next meeting of the woman's team for reports is set for Nov. 8 at the Fortnightly at 12:30.

Alumnae Begin Drives to Aid Two Colleges

Alumnae of Goucher and Vassar are starting nation-wide campaigns to raise money for these leading women's colleges. Vassar's drive for $2,000,000 was announced at dinners held by alumnae thruout the country on Oct. 21 to celebrate the college's 75th anniversary. The money is to be used for education and scholarship endowment.

With one-fourth of Vassar's student body receiving scholarship aid in the last year, Vassar alumnae hope to increase the endowment for this purpose by more than $1,000,000. President Henry Noble MacCracken has announced 56 gifts, totaling $494,000, already received, including an anonymous gift of $5,000 from the Chicago area.

Goucher, long the owner of a campus without a building, will seek thru alumnae to raise $360,000 toward a building fund for the new college. The drive begins this week, to continue thru Dec. 2. Present Goucher buildings are situated in a central section of Baltimore increasingly encroached upon by business. The college for 18 years has owned a 421 acre campus, six miles from Baltimore. Three residence halls, each made up of four houses, with 30 to 50 girls in a house, are the first buildings contemplated for the campus, on which a solitary shack now stands. The alumnae quota of $360,000 will be sufficient to build one hall.

Mrs. William Herbert Bahlke, 5712 Kenwood avenue, has been appointed chairman of the Goucher drive in the Chicago area.

Thru this benefit and one tag day the club each year raises sufficient money to support in private homes 25 dependent children ranging from 1½ to 16 years of age. Mrs. M. N. Billings heads this organization of 115 women. Mrs. Norman Holdsworth, ways and means chairman, is general chairman of the party, and Mrs. E. H. S. Martin of the bazaar.

The Friendly Aid society will sponsor a benefit series of four book reviews by Florence Bourke Ellis, beginning Tuesday at 11 o'clock, at the Drake hotel. Others are scheduled for Nov. 21, Dec. 20, and Jan. 17, at the same place and hour. Among the philanthropies of this organization, active since 1892, are the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children, the Chicago Home for Girls, the Chicago Home for the Friendless, Fellowship House, the House of Happiness, the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, La Rabida Jackson Park sanitarium, the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial.

Polish civilian war victims will be aided thru the proceeds of a card party to be given by the Friends of Poland Wednesday evening at Modena hall, 1710 West 51st street. This organization of young women has been formed expressly to help Poland's women and children. Mrs. Zaleski Hinkle is president, and Miss Helen Sadowski is in charge of the party.

The annual Christmas basket fund card party and dance of the Milwaukee Road Woman's club, Union station chapter, will be held Saturday evening at the Hotel Sherman.

The women's auxiliary No. 17, Hotel Greeters of America, will raise funds for its women's home at a Halloween party Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. Costumes will be in order and there will be prizes, dancing, and refreshments. Miss Nola B. Usher is chairman, with Miss Octavie Valiquet, Miss Daisy M. Holden, and Mrs. J. R. Hubbart heading committees on arrangements.

"Up Pops the Devil," fourth annual production of the Chicago Philanthropic Club Juniors, will be presented at 8:15 o'clock next Sunday evening at the Chicago Woman's club theater. C. Henry Nathan is the director, and Miss Shirley Foster and William Ruden have starring rôles. Proceeds will be used to aid philanthropies associated with the Jewish children's bureau.

A Refrigerator Hint.

It is not a good plan to put foods in the refrigerator wrapped in paper, except occasionally a layer of waxed paper. Paper is a poor conductor of heat and so prevents refrigeration. Bulky objects, such as meat roasts may be covered with a single layer of waxed paper.

The Salvation Army Leader Is to Retire

sold matches and flowers with the girls in Piccadilly circus in order to win their confidence. Years later she appeared to audiences in Chicago and elsewhere in this costume.

So successful was she in winning followers among the underfed and the unwashed that at 23 she was placed in command of the army in London.

Next she overcame the opposition of the authorities. Certain English communities passed regulations prohibiting Salvationists from singing and praying in the streets, and when they persisted, threw them into jail. Evangeline Booth pleaded her followers' cause in local courts, to no avail. Then she appealed to the house of lords, and finally won for the army the right to preach salvation in its own way.

• • •

Her fearless leadership in the face of rioters and hostile authorities was coupled with such executive ability that, at 26, she became principal of the army's international training college and head of field operations in England.

Four years later her father transferred her to Canada as territorial commissioner. In 23 days, while the temperature hovered around 100, the new commissioner traveled 6,000 miles, speaking wherever she went. Her "salary" was 7 dollars a week.

When the gold rush brought the toughest and most adventurous elements from all over the world to the Klondike, Evangeline Booth, true to her fighting instinct, organized a nursing and mission corps, and personally led it to Dawson City. There she organized evangelical camps and libraries.

Schools for families of fishermen in Newfoundland, havens for Armenian refugees from Turkish massacres, and a bureau to help relatives abroad find immigrants to Canada were other projects initiated during her régime.

• • •

"The story of the Salvation Army is like the wildest of dreams come true," Miss Booth once told a Chicago audience with the graphic imagery she always has employed. "The beggar has been raised from the dust and set among princes. Is that not romance?"

This is the best possible description of Commander Eva's own career. In 1904 she was appointed commander of the United States, a post she was to retain even after her appointment as world commander in 1934.

To San Francisco after the earthquake, to wide open mining towns and lumber camps, wherever the need was greatest, Evangeline Booth led the Army. She also invaded conservative communities, transported prosperous audiences with a few dramatic words into the filthy slums and dens that were the scenes of her labors, and won their support. She kept it by her sound business methods of administering aid to the unfortunate. The ultimate sanction came in 1911, when President and Mrs. Taft attended one of her meetings and received her in the White House.

• • •

The greatest challenge to her powers came with the world war. She placed the entire Salvation Army at the disposal of the government. Thousands of Salvationists went to the front to hold meetings for the soldiers, to provide rest huts, drive ambulances, and dispense coffee and doughnuts, while others in the rear cared for the soldiers' families.

In recognition of these services Evangeline Booth received the Distinguished Service medal. In the victory parade in Paris she marched with Marshal Foch, Gen. Pershing, and Earl Haig. Friends whom the Salvation Army had won subscribed $13,000,000 in the United States alone to be used to enlarge the army's activities.

Twice in the early 1920's Evangeline Booth's brother, Bramwell Booth, then world commander of the Salvation Army, tried to transfer her from America. Miss Booth, now an American citizen, defied him, and each time the army rallied to her support. Always the army's operations continued to expand under her dynamic leadership.

Her election as world commander came inevitably in 1934. Automatically she became ruler over the army's 3,000,000 soldiers of every race, its 17,000 corps stations in 91 countries and colonies, its 1,500 institutions, and its 80 periodicals. In the last five years she has made several world tours of inspection, she has been received by the mikado in Japan—the first woman to have that experience—she has marshaled the army to meet the emergency of the Spanish war and now of this war.

Originally, she was to have retired following her 73d birthday last Christmas day—the retirement age is 73—but the supreme council of the army asked her to remain on for a few more months. Never very strong physically, she suffered a severe heart attack shortly after her election as world commander, but this and other illnesses never have been permitted to be more than interludes.

She is energy personified. She always has found time to ride horseback, to write the words and music of hymns which are among the army's best, to sing and to play the piano, harp, and accordion.

She never goes to bed without a Bible and a pencil and paper at hand so that she may jot down ideas in the middle of the night as they occur to her. She has written several books on religious subjects. Since childhood she has loved animals and always has had several dogs.

Commander Eva has been called "the white angel" and an "angel of help and comfort." Her reaction to such titles, as she once expressed it, is: "Angels are very beautiful in their own land, but they are too good for earth. I try to keep my feet on the ground."

Autumn Takes Lake Geneva to Real Art Show

By Rose Cour.

LAKE GENEVA, WIS.

Many of the country estates at Lake Geneva are already closed for the winter and deserted, but there are still a few faithful admirers left along the lake shore. Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter linger on in their enchanted woodland enjoying the splendor that surrounds them. At All View, Mrs. Armin Brand and her sister, Mrs. Clara Grommes Rehm, are still in residence and nowhere on the lake can be seen more gaily colored trees and shrubbery.

The hundreds of evergreen trees for which Black Point is famous, have never seemed as richly darkly green as now in contrast with the fiery maples and wine colored oaks. While tree worship is a rather general state around the lake, the trees at Black Point are especially cherished. Mrs. O. L. Schmidt and her sister, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay have stayed until this week in the pleasant "winter house," as it is styled to distinguish it from the big summer mansion.

At both Black Point and All View "no hunting" signs are much in evidence and it is suspected by the natives that the pheasants here are literate and aware that they are protected, as handsome ring-necked males with long tail feathers held proudly aloft, accompanied by trim brown hens, strut unafraid just inside the fences in full sight of hunters passing on the highway.

• • •

The butternut trees at The Butternuts, summer home of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, are as yellow as their name implies, and so attractive has Mrs. Fairbank found the country this fall that she has remained longer than ever before. She is closing her home this week-end, however, and is leaving for Tucson, Ariz., to spend the winter.

It's chrysanthemum time at Wychwood, formerly the Charles L. Hutchinson estate and now owned by the University of Chicago. Dr. E. J. Kraus, head of the botany department, is director in charge of the 25,000 experimental mums, many of them rare seedlings, which have burst forth in all the hues of the rainbow, vying with the brilliance of the autumn foliage.

The woods in the vicinity of the residences of Dr. Ed W. White, Rawleigh Warner, and A. G. Cox, are like an enormous jewel casket with rubies and garnets heaped high. The sumach, in every shade of red from palest pink, to deepest maroon runs rife along the roadside past the Lake Geneva Yacht club and the poorest, shabbiest fence post wears a mantle of royal purple woodbine.

• • •

Along the north shore every lawn is covered with a golden carpet. The squirrels are busy here, for there are many oaks, hickories and black walnuts. Great flocks of birds congregate in this neighborhood, many of them remaining for the winter, sure of food and a haven, no matter how stormy the weather. Miss Edith Kohlsaat is hostess to the birds and except when she is traveling, makes her charming Lake Geneva home her year round residence.

Another bird sanctuary is the pond surrounded by a thicket of trees and shrubs at the Stenning, the Walden W. Shaw estate, and while Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have left for their home in Pasadena, a great number of uninvited guests are enjoying the hospitality of their grounds during their absence. Blue heron are a common sight at the upper Duck Hole near the Lake Geneva Country club and their beautiful cousins from the tropics, the handsome white egrets, have been noted with as many as 35 in a flock, in the fields of the S. B. Chapin and A. W. Harris farms.

The white oaks at Fair Lawn, the home of Mrs. Charles H. Wacker and Mr. and Mrs. Earle J. Zimmerman, look like the setting for a festival of Bacchus, with every leaf dipped in claret or burgundy. In pleasing contrast the great spreading elms have turned richly amber, especially the giant that adorns the lawn just east of the house. Several years ago when tree specialists were working on the estate they exclaimed over this tree and declared it to be the largest American elm west of Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, which is famous for its large elms.

Another giant specimen tree at the lake that is spectacular in its autumn robes of gold and flame, is the famous Harry Gordon Selfridge maple, the "wishing tree."

Club Leader Is to Address the Federation

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, Md., first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and one of its most dynamic leaders, will be the principal speaker at the annual northern regional institute of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs Thursday at the Hotel Sherman. Club members of the first 13 districts will attend the all day meeting.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst.

Mrs. Whitehurst will address the morning session of the institute on "Adjusting Democracy to Human Welfare," the theme of the General Federation's present administration. To her has been intrusted the direction of the federation's nation-wide golden jubilee celebration, to begin this year and continue thru 1941.

In addition to her club activities, Mrs. Whitehurst is the only clubwoman ever appointed to the board of regents of the University of Maryland. She is secretary of the state board of agriculture, and is a trustee of the University hospital and of the Presbyterian Home for the Aged.

• • •

Clifford W. Barnes, president of the Chicago Sunday Evening club, will open the morning session with an invocation at 10 o'clock. Mrs. William T. Bruckner, president of the Illinois federation, will preside.

Luncheon will be served in the College Inn, with Mrs. Whitehurst, Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, Illinois director of the General federation, and membership chairman; Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin, press and publicity chairman of the General federation; Mrs. William E. Lewis, Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, Mrs. Charles S. Clark, and Mrs. Jason F. Whitney, wife of the president of the Chicago City Opera company, as guests.

A musical program will be presented by Margery Mayer, contralto, and John MacDonald, baritone, both of the Chicago City Opera company.

• • •

Conferences of the federation's various departments will occupy the afternoon. Mrs. Fred M. Tuckerman, vice president of the northern region, has arranged the schedule for the day. Mrs. Whitehurst will address a joint conference for presidents and interested club leaders with Mrs. Bruckner and Mrs. Lehman in charge.

Mrs. Fred M. Tuckerman.

Armstrong, past department commander of the American Legion; the art department, George Buehr, painter, just back from abroad, who will speak on "Arts in Europe Today"; the American home department, Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, president of the Chicago Housewives league, whose subject will be "What the Consumer Should Know."

Kendall Lingle, managing director of the Citizens' Civil Service Association of Illinois, will talk on "Temporary Appointments in Our Local Civil Service" for the civil service department; Arlie W. Toole, forest supervisor, and Mrs. Alice Hills, landscape designer of the Chicago park district, for the conservation department; Albin Gries of Springfield, Ill., chief landscape engineer of the state division of highways; Mrs. R. D. Short of Watseka and Mrs. E. G. C. Williams of Danville, for the garden meeting, with roadside beautification among their topics.

Dr. Alvin B. Roberts, superintendent of schools of Gilman, Ill., will address a joint session of the education and motion picture departments on "Visual Education." Ataloa, Chickasaw student of Indian art, will address the Indian welfare group; Assistant State's Attorney Thomas G. Bergen, the law observance department, with "Jury Service in Criminal Cases" his topic; Judge B. Harry Reck of Mendota, Ill., the public welfare group, on "Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency."

Dr. John Wolfer, associate professor of surgery at Northwestern university, will speak for the public health and child hygiene department; Lavinia S. Schwartz, education director of WBBM, for the radio department; Mrs. Berenice Morrison, case worker of the Park Ridge School for Girls, for that committee.

• • •

Miss Ruth B. Cowan of the Associated Press, will address the press and publicity department. Mrs. Lufkin and Mrs. Whitehurst will speak briefly on golden jubilee publicity. Three model institutes will be presented by Mrs. Wade W. Reece, state chairman of institutes, for her group.

The Federation News staff, the music and membership departments also will have meetings. Elsie Fein Clamage will give a dramatic interpretation of Vardis Fisher's novel, "Children of God," for the literature department.

A junior seminar will be presented in the evening, with Mrs. Whitehurst as speaker. Junior clubwomen, one from each of the first 11 districts, will take part in a forum, "Aims of the District Junior Clubwoman."

The radio department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will sponsor a luncheon Saturday at the Palmer House, with Edward M. Kirby, director of public relations of the National Association of Broadcasters, as principal speaker. Leading personalities in the radio and club worlds will be special guests. Mrs. Roy A. Winser, radio chairman, will be in charge.

OCTOBER BRIDE

Mrs. William Charles Griffin was Miss Ruth Esther Boynton until her marriage on Oct. 21 in the First Unitarian church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Austin Boynton of 6911 Paxton avenue. Mr. Griffin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil M. Griffin. He and his bride will be at home after Nov. 15 on Ingleside avenue.

Miss Anne Phelps and Otho Sprague to Be Married

An announcement of great interest is that being made today in Minneapolis, Minn., by Mr. and Mrs. Richardson Phelps. It is of the engagement of their daughter, Anne Foley, to Otho Sylvester Arnold Sprague, son of Col. and Mrs. Albert Arnold Sprague of Chicago.

Young Mr. Sprague will bring Miss Phelps to Chicago as his bride the latter part of December. She was graduated at Smith college last June and he is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1936. He prepared for college at St. Paul's.

Otho Sprague is the younger son of Col. and Mrs. Sprague, who have one daughter, Miss Laura. Their elder son is Albert A. Jr., who is married and lives in Chicago. Mrs. Sprague was Miss Frances Dibblee before her marriage in 1901. Col. and Mrs. Sprague live quietly and conservatively, but take an active part in the civic and cultural developments of the city. He is a trustee of the Field museum, the John Crerar library, the Children's Memorial hospital, Rush Medical college, the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the Shedd aquarium, the Museum of Science and Industry, and the Sprague Memorial institute. He is a member of the board of overseers of Harvard and a trustee of St. Paul's. He is a former commissioner of public works in Chicago and now is chairman of the Chicago Plan commission.

The Phelpses have two sons, Richardson Jr. and Craig. The family is well known in Minneapolis, where Mr. Phelps is a director of the Minneapolis Orchestral association and a trustee of the Minneapolis Society of Fine Arts. He served as a lieutenant in the air forces during the world war, in which Col. Sprague served with the infantry. Both saw overseas service.

Gelatin Molds.

In making a jellied fish, meat or chicken mold put a half inch layer of plain gelatin in the bottom of the mold first and let it chill until stiff before adding the mixture. This will give the finished dish a smooth surface that can be garnished quickly with sliced hard cooked eggs, thin rings of pimiento stuffed olives and bits of cress.

Reviews Books; Art Critic Reads About Herself

By Eleanor Jewett.

Last Sunday was a literary Sunday and this might be another, for during the week several more art books have come in for review. One, "A Stepladder to Painting," by Jan Gordon [Greenberg], is so technical that its best audience will be the artists themselves. Mr. Gordon sums up the essence of his book thus: "What I am aiming at in this book is to make the student aware of the principal problems in this art of making pictures, leaving the final practice and development to his own artistic ingenuity. Suggestions in art are valuable, dictation is intolerable." So Mr. Gordon suggests in a practical and interesting manner the difficulties and obstacles which lie in the path of the would-be painter. His advice is sincere and honest. It should be of great help to many of those who today seem a bit bewildered as to what and how to paint.

For the first time in a great many years of reviewing art books, I find myself in one of them, and in rather a conspicuous fashion — marking an epoch. "Modern American Painting," by Peyton Boswell Jr. [Dodd, Mead & Company], carries on page 66 the story of the famous "Armory Show" which, with the "Nude Descending the Stairs," by Marcel Duchamp, and its other at that time unfamiliar moderns, created an enormous stir among artists, press, and public. According to Mr. Boswell [and he repeats what is a fact], Matisse and Brancusi were ridiculed in effigy by the students of the Art institute of Chicago. He continues: "Students of the same institution have just now rendered a similar honor to the conservative critic of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Eleanor Jewett, who dared to criticize their lack of academic craftsmanship."

Perhaps the repetition of this act on the part of the Art institute students is as important in its significance today as was the gesture in 1912. The students of those days had to swallow their feelings, and, later, as Brancusi and Matisse grew in favor, these same students added their shouts to the public applause. We have had 25 years of the moderns; perhaps the tide is changing. The students today obviously take criticism to heart; they cannot stand up under it, nor can they meet its challenge. A new epoch in painting, one that will demand more than lip service, more than slapstick comedy in the arts, is, perhaps, at hand. June, 1939, may be a date as well remembered as September, 1912.

"Modern American Painting" is written around a series of splendid reproductions in color of various American pictures that have been published month by month in one of our periodicals. The modern school alone is represented, tho one of the best moderns, Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, is overlooked. Most of the consistent museum prize winners, and those men and women who have figured largely in the art columns of the New York papers, are found safely niched here. It seems a shame that neither Thomas Craven nor Peyton Boswell has seen fit to broaden the scope of contemporary American art to include the west, southwest, south, and middle west. There are exceptions, of course, and a number of the artists were born west of New York state, but aside from that fact, for which they can scarcely be held responsible, they bear the New York seal.

The book is well made and solid; fearfully one sided, of course. It is not as entertaining as the Thomas Craven "A Treasury of Art Masterpieces" [it would be hard to duplicate Mr. Craven's delightfully facile pen], nor does it cover nearly as much ground. As an addition to the modern library, however, "Modern American Painting" is nearly a "must" book.

The third book this morning is "The Life of Rembrandt" by Hendrik Willem Van Loon [The Heritage Press]. This book is fascinating reading. The story of Rembrandt is told in such a way as to make his tragic figure come to life before you. Ostensibly the book is the product of a Dr. Van Loon, a great-great-grandfather, nine times removed, of the author, who knew Rembrandt intimately and was his physician and friend. The picture of that period is superbly portrayed and we find that men and events in the 17th century were not so much unlike the men and events of today.

It is a magnificent romance, the story of Rembrandt and his day. It reminds one of Dumas with its chain of adventures. Those who read Van Loon's "Life of Rembrandt" will find themselves immersed in a thrilling tale and after the adventure has worn off there is left the great spectacle of one of the great men of all times as simple, as human, as helpless as any one of us caught in the circumstances of our day.

R. A. Wilber has written to THE TRIBUNE that there has been no notice in this column of the Federal Art gallery, 211 North Michigan avenue. Mr. Wilber deceives himself or [could it be?] he does not follow the column faithfully. At the opening of the gallery last June we described it with gusto. It is one of the most attractive galleries in town and excellently situated. What it hangs is, naturally, WPA art. It has already had two shows, both of which were reviewed here, and it has recently opened a third show. The third show is pretty well obscured by the menacing looking creatures in the window; some sort of abstract dragon, but if you can pass that you will find yourself in a fairly familiar situation, face to face with the feelings that the Federal artists find it so impossible to refrain from expressing. It is a show filled with crude colors and ferocious designs. Mr. Wilber and you may love every inch of them. I think I really prefer to look over a nice assortment of Christmas cards. They are infinitely easier on the intellect. It takes brains to keep up with the rare effusions that modern artists gone abstract evoke from their subconscious; we pretend to none.

An exhibition of paintings and sculpture by Chicago Negro artists is current to Nov. 15 at the Benedict Art gallery, Hull house, 800 South Halsted street.

The autumn exhibition of paintings by members of the South Side Art association may be seen in the South Town gallery, Sherry hotel, 53d street and the lake.

The Northwest Art league is opening today, at the Edgewater Beach hotel, its annual fall exhibit. The exhibition is attractive, filled, as is usual, with pleasant, unpretentious paintings done by artists who are not entirely professional nor entirely amateur, but eager to paint for the joy of it and thrill of putting something of beauty or interest on canvas. It is a friendly show. The exhibit will continue to Nov. 10.

The third annual miniature etching exhibit will open on Wednesday, Nov. 1, at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers'. Underline it with a heavy pencil and mark the date with an X — this is one of the "must" shows of each fall.

Another "must" exhibit for November opens on Wednesday—the annual exhibition of small pictures at the Palette and Chisel Academy of the Fine Arts, 1012 North Dearborn street. J. Jeffery Grant, Othmar Hoffler, Holger W. Jensen, James Topping, Curry Bohm, and Oskar Gross are among the painters who invariably make this show worth while. It will continue to Dec. 1; do not miss it.

Gallery house, 17 East Elm street, has opened its first exhibit of the season with a showing of lithographs and drawings by Kuniyoshi. The gallery has added a charming tiny room of antiques where you will find several stunning pieces of blue glass, early American, and various other items of interest, distinction, and beauty.

Paintings by Frances Badger are at the Paul Theobald gallery, 104 South Michigan avenue. The exhibit is decorative in quality and placid in mood. The pictures are quaint, prim, formal. The colors are flat, rather lifeless, but with a charm. Mrs. Badger is interested in painting murals and the flat tones needed there make one a bit dissatisfied when applied to easel pictures in too rapid succession. A sparkle or ripple of color, a suggestion of animation would do wonders in bringing the show to life.

The Ridge Art association will hold its first exhibition starting next Sunday. Paintings by Florence White Williams and Alice Ross Brening will hang until December in the library of Ridge Park fieldhouse, Longwood drive and 96th street.

Alexander Brook, New York, was awarded the first prize of $1,000 this year at the Carnegie International. Five of the eight awards went to American artists.

Latin American Women Will Visit Chicago

The first delegation of distinguished Latin American women ever to make a good will tour of the United States is expected to arrive in Chicago Nov. 8, to remain until the following Sunday.

Señora Angela Acuña de Chacón.

In the delegation are Señorita Susana Pérez Irigoyen, prominent young journalist on the staff of La Nación of Buenos Aires; Señora Lucia de Paula Fonseca, daughter of the ambassador of Brazil; Señora Angela Acuña de Chacón, Costa Rican lawyer and writer, who helped to organize her country's school system; Señorita Mercedes Guerra of Havana, Cuba, who is secretary to her distinguished scholar father; and Señorita Yvonne Gonzáles Rincones, daughter of the former minister of education of Venezuela.

Accompanying them is Miss Mabel Vernon, director of the Committee for the People's Mandate to End War, which is sponsoring the tour. Since the People's Mandate was launched with Jane Addams' approval on her 75th birthday, Sept. 6, 1935, more than 3,000,000 persons have signed the mandate. This tour is part of the committee's campaign to make the mandate known to the peoples of the 21 North, Central, and South American republics. In the last four years three delegations have been sent to South America. Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president emerita of Mount Holyoke college, is chairman of the mandate committee for the western hemisphere, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, honorary chairman.

This visit will be of particular interest to members of the American Association of University Women, the Associated Press Women of the World, the National Association of Women Lawyers, the National Council of Catholic Women, Quota Club International, Zonta International, and the American Federation of Soroptimist clubs, for these organizations also are sponsoring the tour.

Mrs. Quincy Wright, foreign policy chairman for the National League of Women Voters, is handling arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors in Chicago.

Elliott Roosevelt's growing popularity as a radio commentator will bring many to Temple Sholom Wednesday evening, Nov. 8, to hear him speak on "America Looks Ahead." Temple Sholom Sisterhood is sponsoring the lecture for the benefit of its educational and philanthropic activities. Mrs. Bernard J. Ecker is chairman.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. will discuss "The Twelve Most Interesting People I've Ever Interviewed" Tuesday evening in a lecture inaugurating a series sponsored by the Railway Business Woman's Association of Chicago. Mr. Vanderbilt recently returned from Europe, where he was roving correspondent for an American magazine. Miss Mattie Taberner, educational chairman of the association, has arranged the course of four lectures, all to be given in Kimball hall.

• • •

Miss Ethel Waters, the singer who became famous as an actress in "Mamba's Daughters," current at the Grand Opera house, will be a special guest this afternoon at a tea and musical at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

The interracial committee of the Woman's City club, the Celia Parker Woolley committee on race relations of the Chicago Woman's club, the race relations committee of the Chicago Woman's aid, and the woman's division of the Chicago Urban league are sponsoring the event.

Mrs. Emile Levy, who is active in all these organizations, is general chairman, with Mrs. Wendell E. Green, Mrs. M. L. Loewenberg, and Miss Juliette Boykin assisting. Miss Boykin, who directs the Urban league's two community centers, is Miss Waters' hostess during her Chicago stay. Miss Waters spends much of her time visiting the community centers.

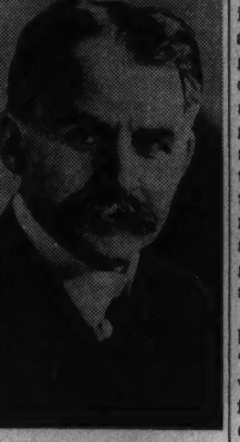
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyde of New York.

Chicago, July 2, 1891.

Dear Julia: We are spending the summer here in Chicago, and finding the city not too warm for comfort. I was glad to be here for the wedding of Lillian Gold Hibbard who married Dr. William E. Casselberry, a promising young doctor of Chicago. It was one of the last June weddings celebrated in Grace Episcopal church, with Dr. Clinton Locke officiating.



Hamlin Garland.

One of the prettiest sights I've seen lately was the group of little nieces of the bride, dressed in Kate Greenaway gowns and wearing gold slippers. They all carried St. Joseph's lilies, and looked ever so picturesque. You see the wedding was a lily and gold affair, taking its theme from the bride's baptismal names.

The maid of honor was Frances Van Schaick, one of my favorites among the young people. Frances carried out the lily and gold idea in her gown by having the yoke embroidered in gold lilies. The church was crowded, for the young couple have hosts of friends, and the reception at the handsome Hibbard house, 1701 Prairie avenue, was a perfect crush. The rooms looked lovely, decorated in white and yellow lilies.

I think England must be a bit worried about the impending visit of young Kaiser Wilhelm. Don't you? He is an erratic person and seems to be rather difficult about the ceremonies being planned for him. The papers say that he has been shown the schedule of functions and has curtly announced that he will not review England's volunteers at Wilverton. This being the greatest popular function in his honor, it is pretty embarrassing for the British officials who thought it up! Report has it that he said he didn't care to look at tradesmen dressed up as soldiers. I suppose his great and perfectly trained army is so much finer than England's . . . a peace loving country . . . that his grandmother's volunteers are just despicable to him. Will thinks that a great military machine is not a good thing for any country, but he says, too, we can hardly understand the feeling of European nations in this regard, since we are so fortunately situated that we need no large standing army. England's fleet is her guard, so she doesn't feel the necessity of an army such as Germany's.

I have just been reading a new book, which I think you'd enjoy, "Main Traveled Roads," by a young writer whom I haven't heard of before . . . Hamlin Garland. It consists of short stories of the middle west . . . Wisconsin and Iowa, I should say. One or two of these tales seem almost unfinished, in the way they end, but they are certainly graphic pictures of farm life in the west. I think I will send the book to you. William Dean Howells thinks highly of his style . . . thinks he has fine courage to leave a fact with the reader, "ungarnished and unvarnished."

Now I'll close for this time. Your loving, MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Hamlin Garland, in his first book "Main Traveled Roads," has given a vivid picture of life in the midwest. Read "Among the Corn Rows" in this volume and feel the thrill of the Norwegian farm girl rescued from virtual slavery by a young farmer who needs a wife.

Frances Van Schaick, maid of honor at the Hibbard-Casselberry wedding in 1891, is now Mrs. George O. Clinch, 5200 Hyde Park boulevard. Mrs. Casselberry, the bride of that day, lives in Lake Forest.

A Chance for Immortality.

In the national archives at Washington there are, according to one of our faithful readers, about two thousand papers [official documents and letters] relating to the first and second forts [Dearborn], the United States Indian Agency and the United States Factory at Chicago covering the period from July 5, 1803, to July 14, 1839. They could be copied by photostat at an outlay of from $400 to $500, says our informant. These papers are much needed in Chicago for the study of our early history. Perhaps some day a public spirited citizen will provide the relatively small sum to bring them either to the Chicago public library, the Chicago Historical society or the Newberry library, where they would be available to serious students. Solvent citizen, here is your chance for immortality.

Andreas Zirngibl.

["At 93d street, east of Ewing avenue, in the Calumet district, Andreas Zirngibl, fisherman, who died in 1855, lies buried. By a decision of the Illinois Supreme court this grave may not be disturbed and so is as permanent as the loop cowpath."]

Only a fisherman buried here.
Envied by men more favored than he.
Tho his surroundings are factories drear,
Peaceful he rests for eternity.
None to this ground has any more right;
His mortal shell neath this marker lies.
The steel mills glow for his altar light,
While man made din drowns the seagulls' cries.
Perhaps he laughs, from some twinkling star,
Knowing mere money his grave can't buy;
But seeing how smoke and soot may mar
The spot once loved, he heaves a sigh,
Thinking how molehills ar mountains now;
Tombs for the dead; a path for a cow.

Doris E. Hitchcock to Be Bride Nov. 10 of Maurice C. Boyer

Miss Doris Elizabeth Hitchcock will become the bride of Maurice Claiborne Boyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Boyer of Kansas City, Mo., on Nov. 10. The ceremony will be performed at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Ernest Fremont Tittle in the First Methodist church of Evanston, and will be followed by a reception in the church parlors.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence William Hitchcock of Evanston, will have her twin sister, Mrs. William Beekman Near, as matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Maurine Boyer and Miss Helen B. Hitchcock. Dr. John Rumsey of Cleveland, O., will be best man and ushering will be William B. Near and Lawrence W. Hitchcock Jr. After a motor trip west, Mr. Boyer and his bride will be at home at Lincoln, Neb. Miss Hitchcock is a graduate of Northwestern university. Mr. Boyer was graduated from the University of Oklahoma.

To Clean Drapes.

This is the way to clean drapes: Hang them carefully over a line in the air—not in the sun for fear of fading. With a stiff brush, begin at the top and brush down with long, even strokes. Then shake lightly. Brush the backs of the drapes as thoroughly as the front. If you prefer to use the vacuum cleaner, lay the drapes on a flat surface indoors and go over them carefully, taking care not to tear or pull the fabric.

Armless Since Birth, She Wants to Be a Lawyer

Miss Grace Hoppers, 17, of Piney Creek, N. C., who wants to be a lawyer, overcame real obstacles to get her high school diploma. Armless since birth, she writes well with her feet, embroiders, makes her clothes, milks cows, and combs and sets her hair.

Milk Quotas.

Milk is considered the most important food for growing children. It has no equal as a source of calcium. See that children have their quota every day—a quart apiece. Adults should drink a pint. The milk can be drunk as a beverage or mixed into cream soups, stews or puddings.

Betrothal Is Excitement in Pasadena Set

By Ruth Billheimer.

Ripples of excitement spread thru the social set yesterday with the announcement that Miss Georgiana Williams, member of Spinsters and the Junior league, PASADENA, CAL. is to become the bride of Richard Wilson Burnham in the spring. The news came as a climax to a week of social flurry over the wedding Wednesday of Miss Jane Elizabeth Pond to Edward H. Groenendyke, and the wave of entertaining that honored them up to the last moment.

The Williams-Burnham troth was announced by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Benjamin Oliver Williams of West California street, at a luncheon given for 24 at the Valley Hunt by her twin daughters, Georgiana and Julienne. Mr. Burnham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph French Burnham [Ruth L. Wilson of Chicago], whose home is in Linda Vista avenue.

Miss Pond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eager Pond [Lucille Dolman] and granddaughter of Mrs. William Leonard Dolman of Pasadena and the late Mr. Dolman of Chicago, chose the gardens of the Pond home in Bradford street for the late afternoon ceremony. Two hundred friends gathered in the lovely fall setting of more than 3,000 blooming chrysanthemum plants which Mrs. Pond herself had supervised from their planting last summer.

The bride wore the wedding gown of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. E. H. Groenendyke. To old time Pasadenans present, its heavy, ivory satin folds trimmed with duchess and rose point lace, and the lace edged veil which sheathed it, recalled the fashionable wedding of the former Miss Vera Morehaus 35 years ago in one of Orange Grove avenue's show places across Arbor street from the present William Wrigley Jr. mansion. Last week's bride carried a small, old-fashioned arrangement of valley lilies, and holding her veil was a chaplet of orange blossoms. She was given in marriage by her father.

Among her bridesmaids was Miss Helen La Chance, formerly of Chicago. Mr. Groenendyke, whose aunt, Mrs. James B. Arnold of Chicago, was present for the occasion, was attended by Tod Ford as best man. Among those who passed down the receiving line was another Chicagoan, Mrs. Robert Ripley, who occupied the Groenendyke home on South Grand a season or two ago. From the line, the guests drifted onto the tennis courts where buffet supper and dancing were in progress.

Dine on Famous Prints.

The idea of using famous prints on luncheon mats is new and unusual, but the prints selected to adorn modern luncheon tables are old favorites from Currier & Ives. The place mats are made of cork—a nice protection for a shining table top. The prints are securely mounted on the cork mats, then covered with a layer of cellophane, all laminated together by a process which makes the mats both durable and easy to clean.

Zonta to Mark 20th Year of Club Service

Elizabeth Krouse.

Zonta clubs thruout the United States, Canada, Hawaii, and the Scandinavian countries will observe the 20th anniversary of this international service organization for women executives during the first week of November. "Women's Contribution to Social and Economic Change" is the theme for the celebration.

"If we women are to assume our place in the future of the world, we must be informed, we must study public questions," Dr. Helen Pearce of Willamette university, Salem, Ore., asserted in her anniversary message as international president. "We must seek new ways to improve social and economic conditions for all."

● ● ●

Ten clubs of region B, representing Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, will come to Chicago Saturday to celebrate the anniversary as guests of the South Side Zonta club that evening at the Windermere East hotel. Dr. Melchior Palyi, internationally known economist, who recently returned from Europe, will be the principal speaker, with "International Relations" as his topic.

Hazel Hurst, blind president of the Hazel Hurst Foundation for the Blind, which trains guide dogs to lead the blind, will be a special guest. Miss Hurst, a member of the Pasadena, Cal., Zonta club, now is on a lecture tour. Last week she opened the community chest drive in Minneapolis, Minn. It was Miss Hurst whose guide dog was refused entrance to England, forcing the cancellation of her European lecture trip.

Miss Ethel Castle, chairman of the south side club's intercity committee, is in charge of arrangements for the meeting. Miss Elizabeth Krouse heads the hostess club.

Since Zonta International was organized Nov. 8, 1919, at Buffalo, N. Y., it has grown from a membership of nine clubs having 600 members to 142 clubs with more than 4,200 members. From the beginning Zonta has sponsored educational projects involving young girls. Many clubs maintain loan funds to help girls fit themselves for business and the professions; others provide vocational guidance; still others help retrain older women who are unemployed. A recent project, dedicated to the memory of the late Amelia Earhart, a member of Zonta, is a fellowship in aeronautical engineering, to be awarded women students of engineering.

The 22d anniversary of the founding of the Women's Advertising club will occasion a birthday dinner and program Friday evening at Kungsholm restaurant, 631 Rush street. A Swedish crafts exhibit will be arranged by Anne Swainson, and Miss Bernice Mohlman will give a talk and demonstration on "When and How to Wear Flowers." Miss Mae McCain, social chairman, is in charge of arrangements.

Miss Helen Vance heads the club, which was organized in 1917 by a few women pioneers in the advertising field. In its first three years the group three times won the Los Angeles cup awarded to a woman's advertising club for doing outstanding constructive and educational work to enhance the status of advertising women. Thus having gained permanent possession of the Los Angeles trophy, the club, as a result, received the Crawford advertising cup, given by a Londoner.

The annual Josephine Snapp award was founded by the club in 1936 in memory of a deceased president. Each year this award is made to an American advertising woman for an outstanding piece of work. Miss Virginia Porter, a member, won the award in 1938.

In 1921 the club began to provide scholarships to students entering the professional field. When the need to help unemployed advertising women grew this scholarship fund was converted into a members' loan fund. Thru a speakers' bureau the club supplies speakers to other women's organizations.

Books, magazine articles, radio scripts, and newspaper stories written by Illinois women will be on exhibition Thursday evening when the Illinois Woman's Press association meets at the Woman's City club, 410 South Michigan avenue. This oldest existing organization of women writers, active in Chicago since 1885, is headed by Mrs. Douglas Malloch, who founded the National Federation of Press Women two years ago.

Quota club will sponsor a luncheon and fashion forum Saturday afternoon at the Hotel Sherman. Miss Mari Floto, stylist, will comment on styles as models demonstrate them. Proceeds will be used in this service organization's work to help older women find employment and to train younger women for business or professional careers. Miss Emma Menke is president.

Iota chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon will have the same program at a luncheon tomorrow at the Hotel Sherman.

AT HOME IN BRONXVILLE

Mrs. Charles Myers Pond is the former Mary Elizabeth Thayer, daughter of the Nathaniel Clinton Thayers of Bronxville, N. Y., formerly of Chicago. She attended Northwestern university and the Art institute here. Mr. Pond was graduated from Yale in 1930 and from the Harvard Business school two years later. He and his bride are at home in Bronxville.

Isabella Councils to Attend Mass for Late Cardinal

The 31 councils of the Ladies of Isabella will attend a memorial mass for the late Cardinal George Mundelein at 9 o'clock this morning at Holy Name cathedral. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph P Morrison, rector of the cathedral, will be the celebrant. As archbishop of Chicago, Cardinal Mundelein was interested in the philanthropic activities of the Ladies of Isabella. Mrs. Emma Huising Wall, supreme grand lady, has invited every member to be present at the mass.

A Halloween Request

By Eleanor Jewett

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

What do you see by the moon's cold light?

Shadows, Mother; they dance in the night.

What do you hear where the starlight falls?

Eery songs and pixie calls.

What is it shines by north and south?

The yellow flame from a pumpkin's mouth.

Tell me, Daughter, do you not fear

To be out of doors with such dangers near?

No, Mother, I fear neither street nor green—

These dangers are stuff of Halloween.

This the night when witches ride,

Jack o' lanterns by their side;

This the night when sheeted ghosts
To many sleepy-heads play hosts;
Goblins, spirits, mischief-elf!
Daughter, please, be good yourself!

Opera Season Furnishing Key to Club Events

With the opening of the opera season comes a number of delightful parties involving the world famous singers who are to be in Chicago.

Tito Schipa, tenor, will be a guest of the Fine Arts Forum at a reception, musical, and tea next Sunday at the Palette and Chisel club. Mrs. Marco Adrogna, president, will receive with Schipa, Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball, Mrs. Jason F. Whitney [wife of the president of the Chicago City Opera company], Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, and Mrs. Albion L. Headburg. Margaret Milos, soprano, and Frederick Farrell, pianist, will present a program.

Mrs. Adrogna will discuss Vardis Fisher's Harper prize novel, "Children of God," at another reception and tea of the forum Thursday at the Chicago Galleries. Alice Baenziger Adams, contralto, will sing, and Harry Thornton Moore, author, will be a guest.

● ● ●

Rose Bampton, Helen Jepson, Ezio Pinza, Eleanor La Mance, and Catherine Littlefield will be guests at a buffet supper to be given by Mr. and Mrs. James G. McMillan this evening at their home, 445 Sheridan road, Winnetka.

Edna Kellogg will present a dramatization of the opera, "Louise," with musical accompaniment. Mrs. McMillan heads the Illinois Opera guild, which has raised sufficient money to purchase most of the Thursday evening boxes for the use of music students.

Women executives belonging to Altrusa clubs in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and other nearby states will come to Chicago to hear Helen Jepson sing in "Faust" next Saturday evening at the Civic Opera house.

Mrs. Edith Jarvis Alden.

A tea will be given for the out of town guests Saturday afternoon at headquarters of Altrusa International, 540 North Michigan avenue, with Miss Mabel F. Meek, executive secretary of this service organization, as hostess. The Chicago Altrusa club, headed by Mrs. Edith Jarvis Alden, has planned a supper after the performance and a breakfast Sunday morning. Miss Millie Kalsem is handling these arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason F. Whitney will be guests of the Cameo salon at its opening reception, program, and supper Saturday evening in the ballroom of the former Cyrus McCormick mansion, 50 East Huron street. Louis Rousseau, formerly of the Opéra Comique, now program chairman of the salon, has arranged "Scenes from the Operas" in costume.

For the twenty-first year Mrs. H. McClellan Hess has been reelected president of the salon, which she founded. Vera Mirova, dancer and choreographer, and Michael Wilkomirsky, violinist and concert master of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, have been made honorary members.

Another interesting musical event of the week will be the opening party of the Mothers' Aid of the Chicago Lying-In hospital Wednesday afternoon at International house, 1414 East 59th street. Evi Wachter, 15 year old Viennese pianist, will play. Miss Wachter made an outstanding appearance with Henry Weber's orchestra last summer in Grant park.

The Mother's Aid has just presented the hospital with $3,000 to be used to furnish a new formula room. The money was raised thru the gift shop run by members at the hospital; thru the organization's baby book, "Our Baby's First Seven Years," recently issued in a new edition; thru dues of the 1,000 members, and thru donations.

Amy Neill, violinist, and Christine Redfield, flutist, will present a program at a party to be given by Omicron Gamma alumnæ chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota national music fraternity Tuesday evening at the Woman's University club, 410 South Michigan avenue. Active chapters in Chicago, their rushees, and honorary members will be guests.

ENGAGED TO MARRY

Miss Natalie Stern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stern of the Chicago Beach hotel, is engaged to be married to Dr. Sol T. DeLee, nephew of Dr. Joseph B. DeLee. The younger Dr. DeLee, who is on the staff of the Chicago Lying-In hospital, is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

Illinois Mental Hygiene Society Planning Luncheon

"Advantages of a State Department of Mental Hygiene" is the theme announced for a luncheon to be sponsored by the board of directors of the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene on Thursday at 185 North Wabash avenue. Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of the St. Elizabeth hospital in Washington, D. C., who formerly headed the Massachusetts department of mental diseases, will speak.

Dr. Overholser will address a public meeting of the Chicago Medical society on "Great Madcaps in History" Wednesday evening at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

Reservations for the luncheon may be had thru the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene at 203 North Wabash avenue.

Swedish Rigsdag Legalizes New Privileges for Women

It now is illegal to discharge a woman employé in Sweden because of betrothal, marriage, or maternity. This latest in a long series of privileges won by women was granted in an act of the rigsdag, the Swedish parliament.

MARRIED

Mrs. James S. Penhallegon is the former Miss Virginia Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Day of Evanston. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Penhallegon of Chicago took place on Oct. 14 in the chapel of the Covenant Methodist church. Mr. Penhallegon and his bride will be at home in Rogers Park after Nov. 1.

TO SOUTH AMERICA

Mrs. William La Coste Neilson Jr. was Miss Caroline Roberts until her marriage on Oct. 14 in the Kenilworth Union church. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall Roberts of Kenilworth. Mr. Neilson and his bride will live in Worcester, Mass., after spending six months in South America.

Several Women's Clubs Planning Homemaking Show

Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall.

A homemaking meeting will be held next Friday at the Stevens hotel under the combined auspices of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, the Illinois Farmers' institute, and the Hyde Park Household Science club.

Each of the 1,000 women expected to attend the all day meeting has been invited to bring something made with her own hands. Blue, red, and yellow ribbons will be awarded for quilts, knitted, crocheted, and embroidered articles, needle point, clothing, and hooked rugs.

Noble J. Puffer, Cook county superintendent of schools, will speak on "The Importance of High School Training in Home Economics and Agriculture" at the morning session. A food demonstration by Mrs. Grace V. Gray and a talk on "Putting Color Into Cloth" by Mrs. H. L. Murray of Bloomington, Ill., will follow.

"Trade Barriers to Farm Products" will be the subject of a symposium to be presented in the afternoon. Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, president of the Chicago Housewives' league; Mrs. Hildegarde Sime, American home chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Frank B. Staely, American home chairman of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, will be among those participating. Mrs. W. J. Fulton, director of the Waukegan, Ill., Farmers' institute, also will speak.

Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall, state board member of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers and president of the Hyde Park Household Science club, will preside. Mrs. H. M. Mulberry, president of the Illinois Congress; Mrs. J. Sharpless Fox, president of the Woman's City club, and Mrs. Frank Campbell, president of the Cook County Federation, will bring greetings to the meeting.

Woman's Division Planned by City Manager Plan

An invitation to join a woman's division of the Chicago city manager committee was extended to some 80 women at a meeting Wednesday at the Stevens hotel. The woman's division is to be formed at a second meeting within a fortnight. Mrs. Mark Feder, former chairman of the woman's division of Cincinnati's city charter committee, described how women workers canvassed Cincinnati from door to door before the city charter was obtained in 1924, and how they since have helped to preserve proportional representation. Mrs. W. W. Ramsey and Mrs. Milton Yondorf also spoke.

Seeing Eye Plans the Enrollment of 1,250 New Members

The Seeing Eye, thru its Chicago executive committee, will take steps to enroll 1,250 new Chicago members this autumn. With Mrs. Frederick A. Preston of Lake Forest as chairman, more than 200 volunteers will direct the enrollment in the city and its suburbs.

For more than a decade the famous New Jersey school for the training of guide dogs has helped hundreds of blind persons to achieve independence. Some 450 dogs have been trained so far, each at a cost of more than $900. Each blind recipient of a dog is charged $150, if and when he can pay. The balance of the expense is borne by members and contributors.

Part of the Chicago enrollment fund will be used to train dogs; part will be used to build a new wing at the Morristown school. This wing, to be completed in 1941, is to make possible the training of 200 additional dogs each year. Ninety dogs at present are trained annually at the school. Samuel S. Holmes heads the Chicago executive committee.

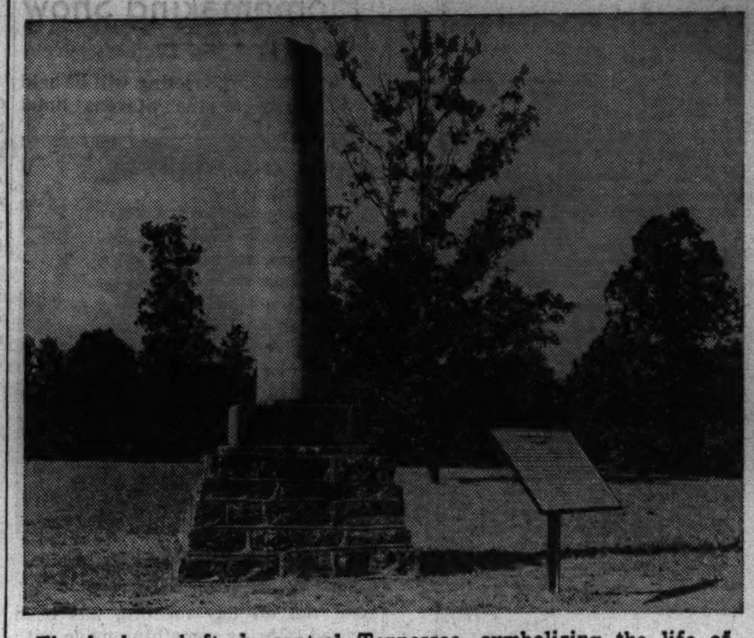
Broken Shaft Typifies Life of a Pioneer

By Frederic Babcock.



The broken shaft, in central Tennessee, symbolizing the life of Meriwether Lewis, co-leader of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Six miles from Hohenwald, in the wooded and hilly country of middle Tennessee, stands a broken shaft. It symbolizes the broken life of a soldier and scientist—Capt. Meriwether Lewis—and it marks the scene of his mysterious murder.

The man thus honored was co-leader of the Lewis and Clark expedition that made its way to the Pacific and claimed the northwest for the United States more than a hundred years ago. He was one of this country's notable pioneers. His killing was one of the few unsolved crimes in the history of American assassinations.

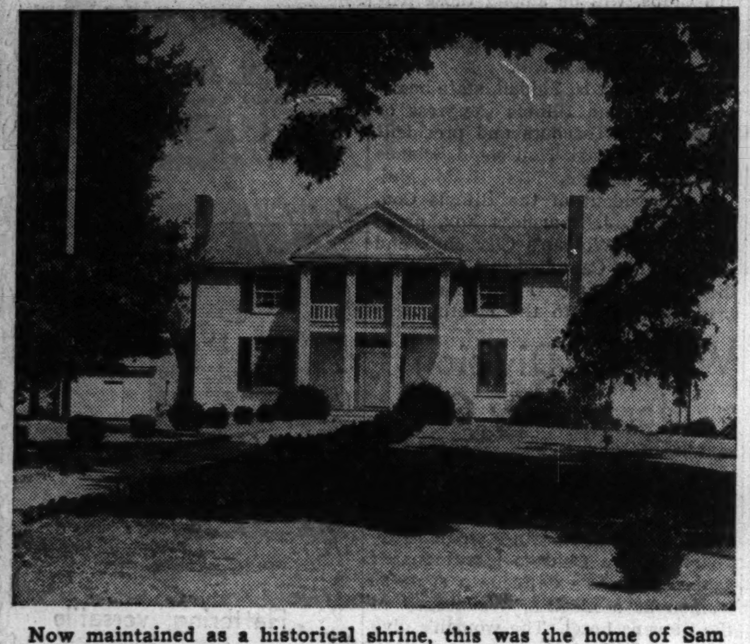
Following his return from the northwest, Capt. Lewis was named governor of Louisiana territory by President Thomas Jefferson. He was summoned to Washington for a conference in the fall of 1809. He started by boat from New Orleans for St. Louis, where he expected to catch a stagecoach. But upon reaching Memphis he learned that Mississippi river pirates were up to their old tricks further north. So he left the boat and started over the Natchez trace for Nashville.

He arrived at Grinder's inn on Oct. 11 and arranged to spend the night there. In those days the taverns in that part of the country were lonely places, and often controled by men who today would be called gangsters. That may have been true of Grinder's inn. At any rate, Lewis' body was found the following morning. He had been shot to death. He was buried near by. To this day no one knows whether he was murdered by bandits or by traitors in his own party.



Now maintained as a historical shrine, this was the home of Sam Davis, executed when he refused to betray his friends.

Some forty years later the state of Tennessee built a monument of Tennessee marble, 20 feet high and broken off at the top, in recognition of the captain's achievements. Fourteen years ago an area of 300 acres around the shaft was made a national monument. Later the inn was rebuilt from rustic logs; it is still there as a replica of the "stands" of pioneer times.

Today the area is a splendid stopover for southbound tourists from Chicagoland. Picnic grounds have been set aside, and there are good roads and markers. Remnants of the old Natchez trace are still to be seen. The trace itself is being reconstructed into a modern highway.

Another Tennessee shrine worth the attention of the passer-by is the house and burial place of Sam Davis, confederate scout hanged by the federals because he refused to betray his informant.

This ante-bellum home is situated about 18 miles southeast of Nashville. The state has preserved it, besides building monuments to Davis near the capitol in Nashville and at Pulaski, where he was executed. Maj. Gen. Grenville M. Dodge, whose duty compelled him to order the execution, contributed liberally to the fund for the memorial at Pulaski.

• • •

Several times after the young southerner had been captured, tried, and sentenced to death he was offered his life and freedom if he would tell the name of the federal officer who had given him information. The offer was repeated as he was standing on the gallows with the rope around his neck. His reply has become a matter of history:

"If I had a thousand lives I would give them all before I would betray a friend or the confidence of an informer."

Orchid Garden to Be Opened Next January

Orlando, Fla., Oct. 28.—A garden of orchids will be opened to the public for the first time Jan. 1, 1940, when the Theodore L. Mead association formally dedicates a 55 acre memorial park between this city and Winter Park.

For three years the tract has been undergoing landscaping as a setting for the collection of orchids of the late Dr. Mead. John H. Connery is the director.

Dr. Mead won a reputation for his cultivation and hybridization of orchids, amaryllis, gladiolas, crinums, caladiums, and other plants of this class.

For 55 years he worked on a plantation near here and on his death in 1936 willed his plant collection to the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs. At one time he had 250 different orchids in cultivation.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We wish to take our car along when we go to Havana this winter. What can you tell us about the touring possibilities out of that city?

The favorite drive into the Cuban inland is along the Central highway. It is 710 miles long, extends clear across the island, from Pinar del Rio to Santiago del Cuba, and passes through Havana.

On his arrival in the capital the visiting motorist is met by a delegate of the Cuban tourist commission, who handles all details regarding clearance of his machine. No charge is made for this service. Permits are exempt from custom charges for a period of 180 days.

Along the Central highway, dotted with picturesque villages, the motorist sees vast pineapple plantations, sugar cane fields, smoke stacks of the sugar mills that have made Cuba the sugar bowl of the world, the plains of Camaguey, where cattle are raised, and the valleys and mountains of Oriente province.

Branch roads lead to beaches and land locked bays. One of these goes to Varadero beach, another to Vinales valley, in Pinar del Rio province.

Customary rules and signals used in the United States—including the right hand drive—prevail in Cuba. The widespread knowledge of English by trafic police and operators of gas stations makes it easy for the American. The speed limit is 43 miles an hour.

Michigan Starts Angling for Smelt

Charlevoix, Mich., Oct. 28.—Smelt fishing with hook and line has started in Round lake here, and each night the crowds that line the docks under the flood lights go home with good catches.

Reports come of similar catches at Boyne City and East Jordan, at the other end of Lake Charlevoix, and at Petoskey, where the visiting anglers fish in Little Traverse bay from the docks.

Hook and line fishing for smelt is usually done at night when autumn arrives. A minnow is used for bait. Catches of as many as 50 to 75 in an hour are frequently made.

Drivers Sit on Motor Horns in Porto Rico

By Anson Brown.

SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO. If two lines were drawn on a world map, one running straight east of Mexico City and the other approximately straight south of Halifax, N. S., they would intersect in Porto Rico, one of the noisiest places on earth for its size. The island is roughly 95 miles long and 35 miles wide—not quite the size of Connecticut, and with a climate rivaling that of Florida.

Its history is intertwined with that of the other Caribbean Isles as well as the United States, for Christopher Columbus landed here in 1493. At that time this mountainous place was known to the Indian inhabitants as Boriquen. The discoverer changed the name to San Juan Bautista de Puerto Rico.

In 1508 Juan Ponce de Leon founded a small town on the natural harbor near the site of the present San Juan. In 1512 he set out to discover the fountain of youth. History tells us that he searched in and around Florida. He was unsuccessful. On his third trip he was wounded by the Seminole Indians, and he died here a short time later. Today his remains lie in the San Juan Dominican convent. His name is greatly revered by the modern Porto Ricans, for his ideals embodied all the adventure and recklessness any youth could crave.

Soon after the death of Ponce de Leon, Porto Rico became a hotbed of activity. Freebooters and roving bands of pirates, as well as enemies of Spain, attacked the island on numerous occasions. In 1528 French privateers made an assault, but they, too, were repulsed. Porto Rico had not been idle. Massive fortifications were gaining in strength every day as residents and soldiers worked together to build them. The Dutch were driven away in 1625.

When not building and fighting, the settlers were planting, for in this ideal tropical location almost anything—tobacco, coffee, sugar cane, figs, dates, vegetables, and fruits—will grow. By trading with friendly visitors and the ships from the mother country Porto Rico gained wealth. But the island fought for everything it received. In 1797 Harvey and Abercrombie, English privateers with 8,000 men, attempted to surround the fortified city of San Juan. It was a bitter battle, ending when the British fled, leaving many dead and hundreds of prisoners behind. So the history of Porto Rico has been written on bloody pages.

It is not hard to reconstruct the scenes of these battles as you stand today on the battlements of the old El Morro fort. It is a tired looking fort, battle scarred and rumpled, like an old fighting dog. The American soldiers encamped there are helping to rebuild some of the falling walls. And they have uncovered some hidden rooms, the use of which is still a mystery.

Uncle Sam in the last two months has been pouring more American soldiers into the island, for its position in relation to the Panama canal is a strategic one. Porto Rico has taken on a bustle and importance slightly nostalgic of fiesta days.

You will like it down here if you can become impervious to noise. If only they had an edict like the old one in Bermuda—forbidding automobiles—it would be just this side of paradise. As it is, the din of horns in San Juan never ceases. High buildings crowded in alongside narrow streets produce blind corners. A car approaching an intersection will start tooting a quarter of a block away, and the blurting honk never has a chance to fade away in the distance. There is always at least one more vehicle to carry on with the tune.

Give a native a car without a horn and you might as well give him a hole without a doughnut. It's the same in Mexico and Cuba. They sit on their horns, they run their radios full blast, their newsboys yell a little louder. After a couple of days your nerves have settled again and you come to the conclusion you can tolerate it.

So take it all in your stride. Spend the week-end in a mountain cabin at El Yunke, with a crystal stream rushing past your window. Or how about some deep sea diving, or a ride in the glass bottom boat at the Submarine gardens, where hundreds of colored fish will stare right back at you? There's so much to do that we guess we'll have to come back later and start in where we are leaving off.

The Voice of the Traveler

GOOD-BY TO SUMMER.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—To the Travel Editor: "Kentucky, Tennessee, and North Carolina!" Here is the Lonesome Pine and Great Smokies country. Just looking at the map excites your imagination. We were fascinated by such names as "Troublesome creek, Hurricane fork, Defeated, Clover Bottom, Green Up, Sassafras, and Piney flats.

If you plan this trip, don't be afraid to let go and be yourself. Sophisticated persons never have much fun. Read again "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" by John Fox Jr.

"John Fox Jr."—that name always sounds a heart warming chord in my memory. Ever since girlhood, when my heart beat in sympathy with the characters in his books, I have wanted to see "their" country. I can remember running home from school and, after giving my mother a peck on the cheek, grabbing a handful of gingersnaps and my book and rushing to an old, scrubby apple tree. Looking carefully around to make sure that no one would discover my hideout, I would climb quickly to the hardest, knobbiest, and most tortuous seat, to read until dinner time. Street cars banged in and out of the car barn less than a block away, peddler's wagons screeched along the car tracks, and beneath me the neighborhood youngsters roared past on their roller skates, but I read and dreamed in happy unconcern. I read and dreamed of mountains covered with blue mist, of rhododendron and mountain laurel, of wind and rain and bluegrass.

But growing up disenchants so many dreams, and I resolved to regard calmly our vacation in that country. I held firmly to this resolution until we stopped at a dime store in Asheville, N. C. Here I found two post cards. I read and reread the captions: "Mountain Laurel in Bloom," and "Purple Rhododendron in Bloom, Great Craggy Mountains."

My mind raced back 15 years, remembering the many hours I had spent in the friendly apple tree . . . and that corneous old seat, . . . I could almost feel the crick in my back. I stood bemused until the salesgirl's loud sighs of martyred patience penetrated my absorption. I confusedly fished deep in the pocket of my mackinaw for two pennies, paid her, and rushed out. Holding the cards under the skipper's nose, I begged him to drive up to Craggy mountains.

It had been raining fitfully all day, but now, in the late afternoon, the skies were clearing. We hurried along the winding mountain road in a race with the sunset. The higher we climbed the heavier we found the mist, and when the road ended abruptly we were still a long way from the top. We parked the car and courageously started the long trek to the pinnacle.

We climbed past trees whose trunks were covered with moist, velvety moss, past cobwebs heavy with mist and looking like snips of silver lace. It was light, but it was dark. We could have read a newspaper comfortably, but with just a few yards between us we were out of one another's sight. We were dripping wet, but it wasn't raining. It was like taking a shower with our clothes on, and I loved it in spite of the fact that this thick blue mist had reduced my respectable curls to mere corkscrews! Beneath our feet the earth was covered with pale forget-me-nots, and with every step we crushed dozens of them. In the intense quiet my ears felt strangely empty. I thought of Crad and his dog, of Melissa, of June, and of Jack Hale. Their mountains, a little to the north of us, had been exactly like this for them, too.

I sat down on a huge rock. I could hardly breathe, but I gasped: "My dream is safe." The skipper looked at me. I could tell he thought the time had come when he must pretend a little masculine intolerance of this situation. After all, a man must maintain a stern attitude against sentimentalism. He was badly winded, too, but made a special effort. "Sometimes," he puffed ungallantly, "I wonder about you." I let it pass. I was too tired and too happy.

So, if you are bored, if you have a suspicion you are in danger of becoming cynical, take a holiday and drive south to say good-by to summer in the hills.

HELEN ANNE EVANS.

Storm Uncovers an Ancient Ship; May Be Gunboat

Manteo, N. C., Oct. 28.—The hulk of an ancient wreck, uncovered by a stormtide on the beach near here last spring, is believed to be the remains of a United States gunboat built around 1805. This tentative identification was announced by Thor Borresen, of the national park service, who made an exhaustive study of the old hulk.

Structural features of the wreck were called "strikingly similar" to the designs of 176 gunboats ordered from 1805 to 1807. One of the gunboats, No. 140, exploded near Ocracoke inlet in 1814, and it is believed that the wreck found near Bodie light may be the corpse of the 140, though Ocracoke inlet is 80 miles away.

Following the discovery, curiosity was aroused because oldest records and oldest memories could not explain the vessel's presence. Peculiarities of construction led some to believe the ship might have dated from the 17th century.

Subsequent seas sanded it up again, but it may be dug out and hauled off to the museum at Fort Raleigh.

Mexico's Trafic Courts to Give Tourists a Break

MONTERREY, Mexico.—The Mexican tourist department has started a campaign urging mayors and law officers to extend special courtesy and leniency in dealing with American tourists who may unwittingly break Mexican trafic rules.

Officials of the department, contending that American motorists violate rules chiefly because they cannot read signs in Spanish, hold that many minor infringements should be quietly overlooked. Impressed by this argument, Monterrey has promised to instruct its police to give American tourists a break.

However, the Mexican authorities are making it clear that Mexico wishes to maintain its safety record and that drunken or reckless drivers, regardless of nationality, will be dealt with severely.

New Chicago Office.

The Knott hotel system has opened a Chicago office at 333 North Michigan avenue, with Lawrence D. Sultzer in charge. The system operates 26 hotels, including the Vanderbilt and the McAlpin, in New York City and 10 others in the east and southeast.

Travelogues

"Land of the Sky Blue Water" is the title of the travelogue to be given on the seventh floor of the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. This is a natural color movie showing the north woods and lakes region and including wild bird and animal life. The lecture will be given by W. A. Stickler.

Mme. de Luca will talk on "Our South American Neighbors" at 2:30 p. m. Friday in Mandel Brothers' tea room. There are to be colored motion pictures of Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Trinidad, and Barbados, with South American musical accompaniment.

Mae Blacker Freeman will give a lecture and show colored slides on Labrador following a luncheon of the Lena Barr Morse Travel club at the Hotel Graymont, 1032 East 46th street, at 1 p. m. Saturday.

The three meetings listed above are open to the public.

Hawaii Treats You as If You Were Famous

By Rosalie Heller.

The most seasoned world traveler gets thrilled to his marrow when he visits Hawaii. It is he whom the inhabitans are welcoming as if he were a world celebrity, he whom they are garlanding with leis heavy with gorgeous petals, he whom they like as they have liked no one else ever before! To put it tersely: He is it for the time being, no matter what he has been anywhere else or at any other time.

The ceremony attending each boat arrival in the harbor of Honolulu is as elaborate as that accorded ships carrying royalty to the American mainland. In no other place is the traveler so much made over as in Hawaii; in no other place is the newcomer, the stranger, no matter what his creed or color, received so hospitably. It happens to every one, and yet to each one it seems like a glamorous, individual experience.

It has been that way ever since Capt. Cook landed there in the late 1700's. He and his men were welcomed with wreaths of flowers and lavish gifts. They were laden with quantities of the best provisions of the islands, and were not expected to pay for them.

The fact is that they were taken for divine creatures by the Hawaiians, who had been looking for the god Lono. It seems the natives are always looking for persons of good account and receiving them as if they were. They are a kindly, optimistic people. Moreover, their spirit of brotherly love, or aloha, is catching; it has spread to the other inhabitants of the island, until it has become the general atmosphere of the whole territory. Wherever the traveler goes, from Moku Papapa to the south point of the island of Hawaii, he is treated courteously.

By way of proof I cite my own experience, which represents that of the average globetrotter, with no friends on the islands prior to his arrival.

Friendless though I was, I went tripping ashore beneath the Aloha touer, with luxurious leis about my shoulders. They had been sent by persons tipped off by mainland friends. They were spicily fragrant and heavenly in color, and they lifted me into an exciting paradise, the joys of which were heightened to top pitch when the "Aloha" of the four native songsters and the Hawaiian band on the dock swelled across to the ship, as if calculated to reach me and only me!

One lei was from a Chicago friend's sister, who teaches school in Honolulu. I wasn't even aware that she knew I was coming. She had me cancel my room reservation at a downtown hotel and whisked me out to Waikiki, to the comfortable home of a former Missouri woman. There I was somebody, occupying the room kept for a sister and sharing all the privileges of the house.

When the tropic sun proved too much for me those first few days, I was coaxed back to normalcy with tea and marmalade and toast. When I lacked something to do, I was driven in the family car up Nuuanu avenue to the tombs of the kings or up the heights to the supreme view at the Kamehameha school. When I couldn't find the Bishop museum, I was driven straightway thither without ado.

Now and again in that household I was given island recipes to take home, together with ingredients such as tamarinds and canned lichee nuts. Oriental looking packages and tins of jasmine and lichee tea were secretly slipped into my luggage. Fresh lichee nuts, apple bananas, and mangoes were procured and put into my room for me to taste for the first time. Sun-ripened pineapple was brought from the plantations and prepared in dainty finger tip strips.

Soon attention began being paid to me from the house next door, belonging to the sister-in-law of my hostess-landlady. This woman gave me the best books on the islands and a book of verse by Don Blanding, island poet. She fitted me out with a Japanese kimono and a pair of straw sandals. She invited me to dinner at an exclusive beach club—a sukiyaki affair with a Japanese cooking mushrooms, steak, onions, and bamboo sprouts in a brazier in our presence.

When favors from this family grew too many, I threw a party for the various branches of it, in a chop suey house. They came with leis for me, matching my outfit, and with an abundance of Chinese candy for the table. They had already repaid me for anything the party might mean to them—before the party had started!

When that family wasn't doing things for me the school teacher was. You would have thought me a queen, from the grand manner in which she toted me around evenings and week-ends, treating me to Hawaiian thrills by way of food and scenery. There were dinners with sweet-sour spare-ribs at Lau Yee Chai's Chinese restaurant, with chicken and diced almonds and fried rice with lobster at Wo Fat's Chop Suey house, with curry of shrimp in coconut milk and baked bananas at M's Coffee tavern. There was dinner at Haleiwa, after we had seen the rainbow-hued fish in the bay through a glass-bottomed boat, and there was dinner at Cooper's inn, after we had seen the thousands of varieties of hibiscus.

When it finally came to the matter of my sailing back to the mainland, after I had had my fill of surfing, bathing, outrigger canoeing, seeing hulas, and eating delicacies, I was motored to the dock by a whole carload of new friends. I had always supposed that I would have to buy my own leis when I boarded the ship. Instead, I went with wreaths stacked upon my shoulders to my eartips—maunaloa, carnation, plumeria, hibiscus, and ginger leis; leis made of playing cards, of farewell notes from my new friends, of candy, and of tissue paper. My traveling bags were bulging with gifts from white people and yellow people—gifts of wooden roses, bottled macadamia nuts, diminutive shell leis, pikaki perfume, carved koa, embroidered Chinese and raw silks, and tapa.

At that I didn't have more presents than the majority of my shipmates, nor more than one-quarter as many leis as the army officers and their wives. Nor had I been fêted as much as my cabin mate, in whose honor eighty-three teas and dinners had been given. Half of Honolulu was on the dock to see us off, and half a hundred airplanes were soaring in serenade in the turquoise sky above.

There are no words in the English language to describe the thrill. And I can't say it in Hawaiian.

On the ship the spirit of aloha, which has been so catching and so all-pervading on the islands, went with us still. Persons of every nationality and belief had a grand time together: Mormons, Japanese, Koreans, Hawaiians, American Negroes, American Indians, Swedes, and mainland whites. A Mormon conducted the ship's entertainment and even read the church service on Sunday.

I arrived in San Francisco a happy individual. I said to myself that a trip to Hawaii would do something for every one in the United States in these harsh, inhuman times—something for every one in the world, for that matter. He would learn again the lesson of the brotherhood of man—a lesson he seems to have long since forgotten.

Water's Nearly Always Fine on Florida Beaches

By Laura Emerson Gradick.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

"Come on in; the water's fine!" That invitation is so old that it has become a classic—or would you say a cliche?

Anyway, it isn't needed at the beaches on Florida's east coast, for the water is almost always fine down here. Of course, there are occasionally times when Father Neptune gets out of sorts and sloshes the waves around rather roughly. Then it is better for most of us to stay on shore and wait until he calms down, which will probably not be very long.

Picture, if you can, 400 miles of beaches reaching from the St. Mary's river and Fernandina to Miami and beyond, with swimming, boating and fishing the year round.

And such beaches! Few others can compare with those of Jacksonville and Daytona. They are 400 feet or more wide at low tide, and as hard and smooth as a concrete highway. It is a real experience to drive for miles between the palm crowned sand dunes on one hand and the blue Atlantic on the other.

• • •

Each year the beaches become more popular. People come from distant states to spend their vacations and regain their health. Many own their homes down here; others rent cottages or apartments or live in hotels.

Not so long ago everything at Jacksonville Beach closed up right after Labor day. The season was over. Now, with fine roads and excellent transportation, it has become a year round city.

Surf bathing is, of course, a major attraction. Others are surf fishing and deep sea fishing.

The immense granite rocks that form the jetties at the mouth of the St. Johns river always have anglers perched all over them. Here are caught the red or channel bass, croakers, yellow tails, spots, sheepshead, sailors' choice, flounder, drum, and many other varieties.

Deep sea fishing is the most exciting and the catches the most spectacular. Tarpon are frequently hooked. Others caught by trolling a few miles off shore are amberjack, crevalle, dolphin, bonito, mackerel, and blue fish. Swordfish, sailfish, and others of the big game species are often seen in these waters.

Other sports are not neglected. There are many fine golf courses all along the east coast.

To those who like to look back to the past as well as toward the future, the coast abounds in historical interest. Ever since Ponce de Leon dropped anchor off St. Augustine, one spring morning in 1513, on his search for the Fountain of Youth, Florida has been more or less in the headlines.

Jean Ribault sailed into the St. Johns river in May, 1562, and planted a monument on the south bank, taking possession of the land in the name of France. An exact replica of this monument may be seen near the fishing village of Mayport. It was made from a drawing by Le Moyne, who accompanied the expedition as a map maker. Ribault wrote of Florida: "This is the fairest, fruitfullest, pleasantest land of all the world."

Two years later Laudonniere established the ill-fated Fort Caroline on the St. Johns. This was 56 years before the Pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth. The fort and its inhabitants were destroyed by the Spaniard, Menendez, who started a settlement at St. Augustine in 1565.

• • •

This is the oldest city in the United States. Although it has been burned three times, it has been continuously occupied.

The French under De Gourges retaliated by taking Fort Caroline and killing all the Spaniards there in 1568. Menendez, on a second journey from Spain, brought 10 priests with him and established missions along the coast for the conversion of the Indians.

In 1763 Spain ceded Florida to England, and in 1784 England receded it to Spain.

During these years settlers were pouring into Florida, and many plantations were set out. At the close of the revolution, numerous English sympathizers moved to Florida. Great was their consternation when it was returned to Spain. It was not until 1821 that Florida was bought from Spain by the United States. It was admitted to statehood in 1845.

• • •

Fort Matanzas, on Rattlesnake Island at the south entrance to Matanzas inlet, was erected by the Spaniards to protect St. Augustine from a surprise attack from the south. It was built of coquina. The design is unusual—there is no outside entrance to the ground floor. The only way to get in was by a ladder to the flat top of the one story section. Pulling up the ladder was an easy way to guard against surprise.

This fort had been in such bad condition that it was considered too dangerous for visitors. Recently the government has restored it and has cut a door into the lower part, so that it can be opened to inspection.

At New Smyrna there may still be seen the ruins of the Spanish missions and of the sugar mills. There are many shell mounds, made supposedly by some race which lived here before any of the Indians we know about.

The lower east coast, with its keys and inlets, is rich in stories of pirates and buried treasure, many of which have at least a grain of truth.

Resort Secretaries Form Organization

Secretaries of the chambers of commerce in the tourist centers of America formed a permanent organization in the course of a conference at the Edgewater Beach hotel last week. Don Weeks of Traverse City, Mich., was elected president, and Mrs. Agnes Purnell of Miami Beach, Fla., was the choice for secretary. Directors are Miss Margaret Kay Stewart of Excelsior Springs, Mo.; Russell E. Pettit of San José, Cal.; S. Valentine Saxby of Duluth, Minn.; Lucien J. Warren of Jamestown, N. Y., and C. J. Van Auken of San Antonio, Tex.

Death Valley to Open Its Season on Wednesday

The winter season in Death Valley National monument will begin with the opening of one hotel Nov. 1 and another Nov. 20.

There were more than 61,000 visitors last winter.

The 2,500 square miles included in the monument embrace the valley itself and parts of the rough hewn mountains that rise on all sides. Approximately 400 square miles of the floor lies below sea level; Badwater, 280 feet below mean tide, is the lowest point on the North American continent.

Death valley holds the record for high temperature in the summer, but the winter temperature is regarded as ideal. The record for one year showed 351 days out of 365 as clear.

Torchlight Parade at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., Oct. 28 [Special].—Early arrivals among the winter visitors will open the social season here Tuesday night with a series of Halloween costume parties at the hotels, night clubs, and shore resorts. The traditional torchlight procession, with fantastically garbed crowds surging thru the downtown streets, is to be followed by street dancing.

INJUN SUMMER

Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?

Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here — thousands — millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wuz all around here—right here where you're standin'.

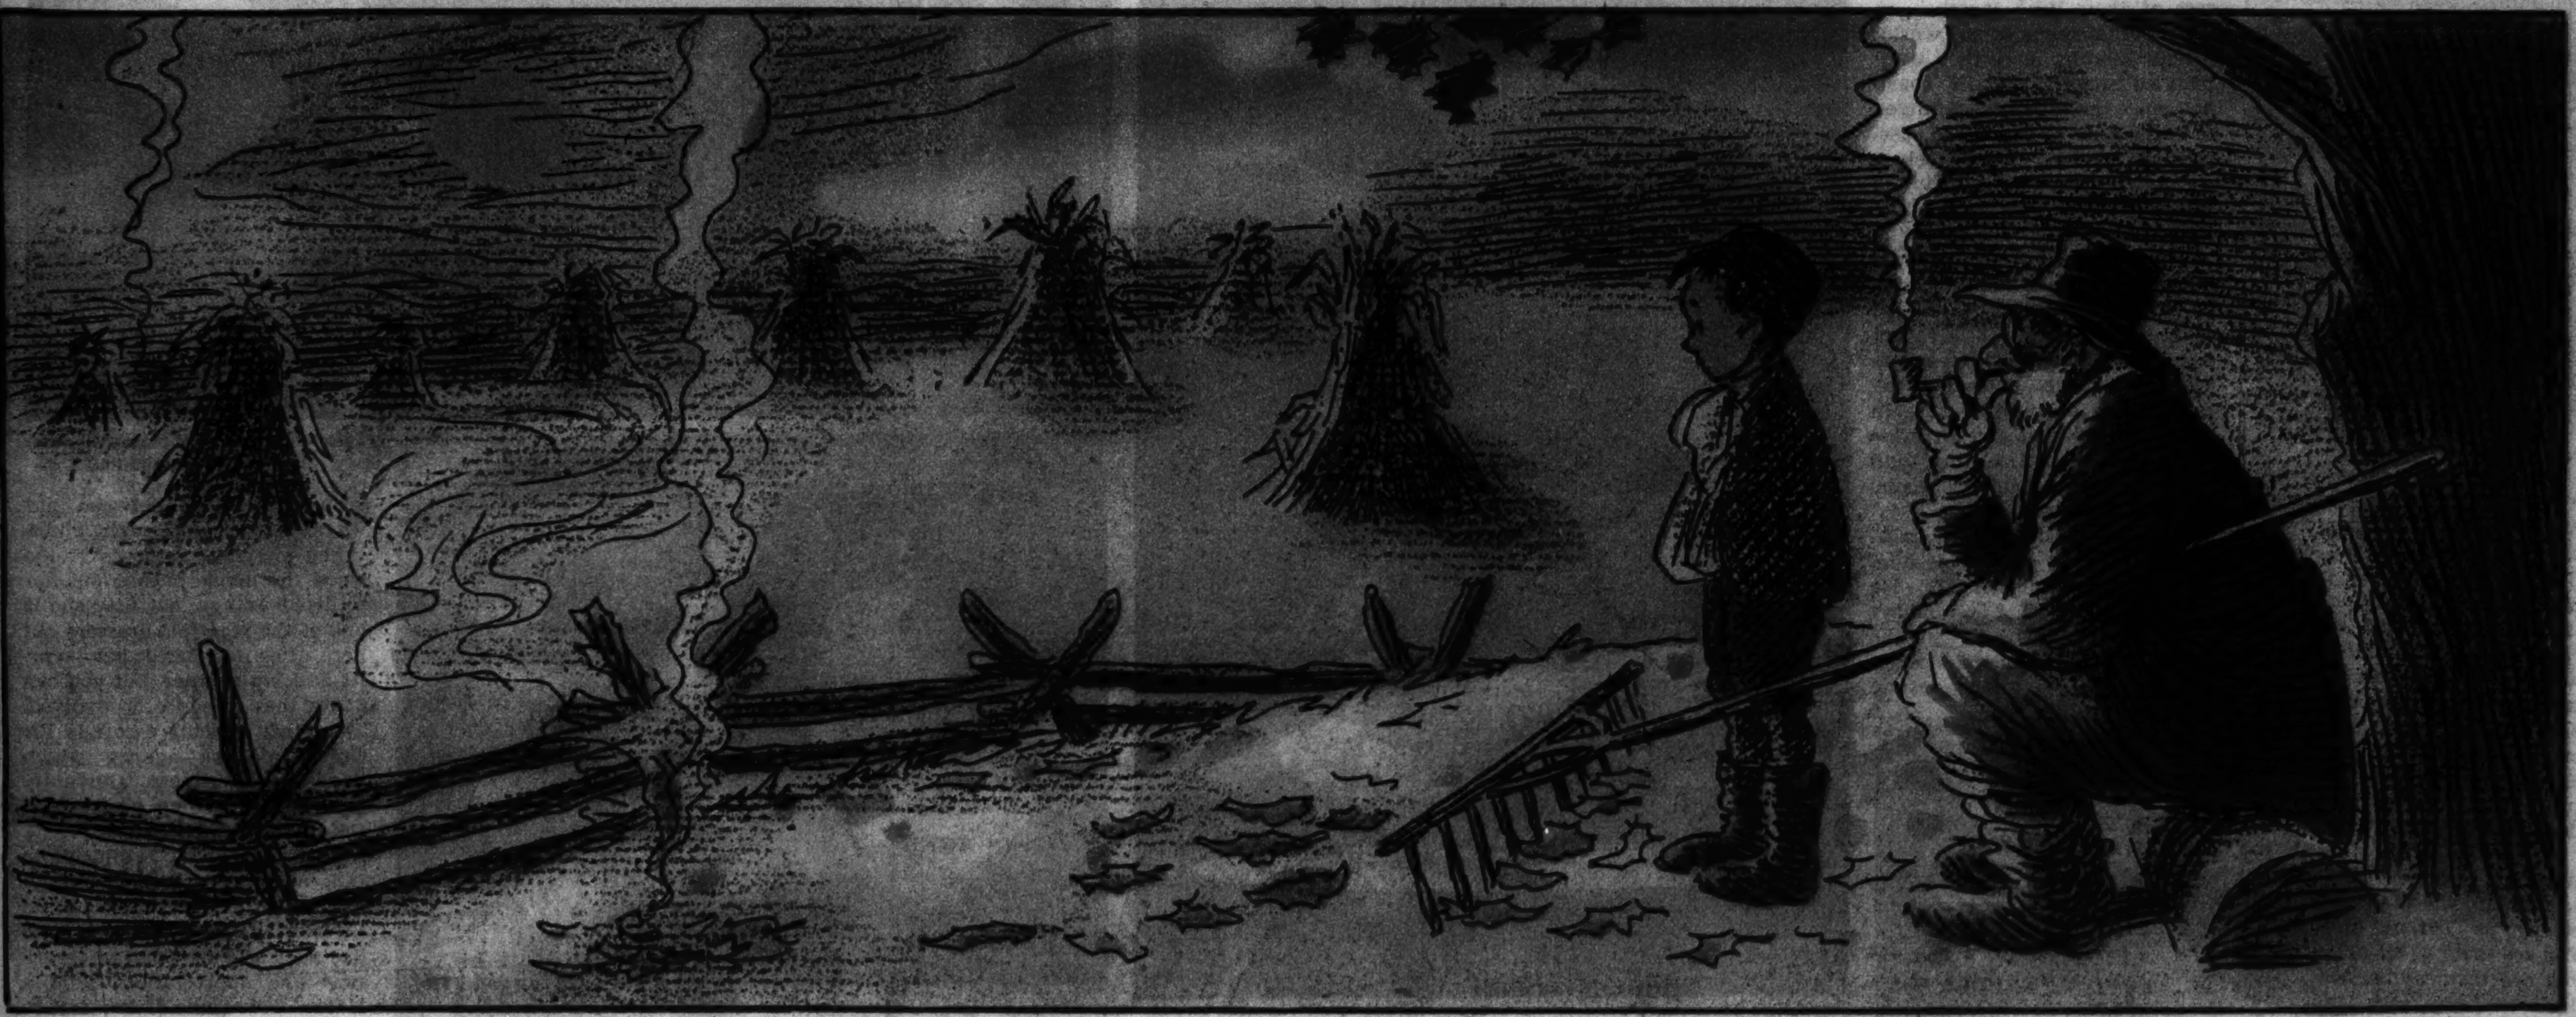
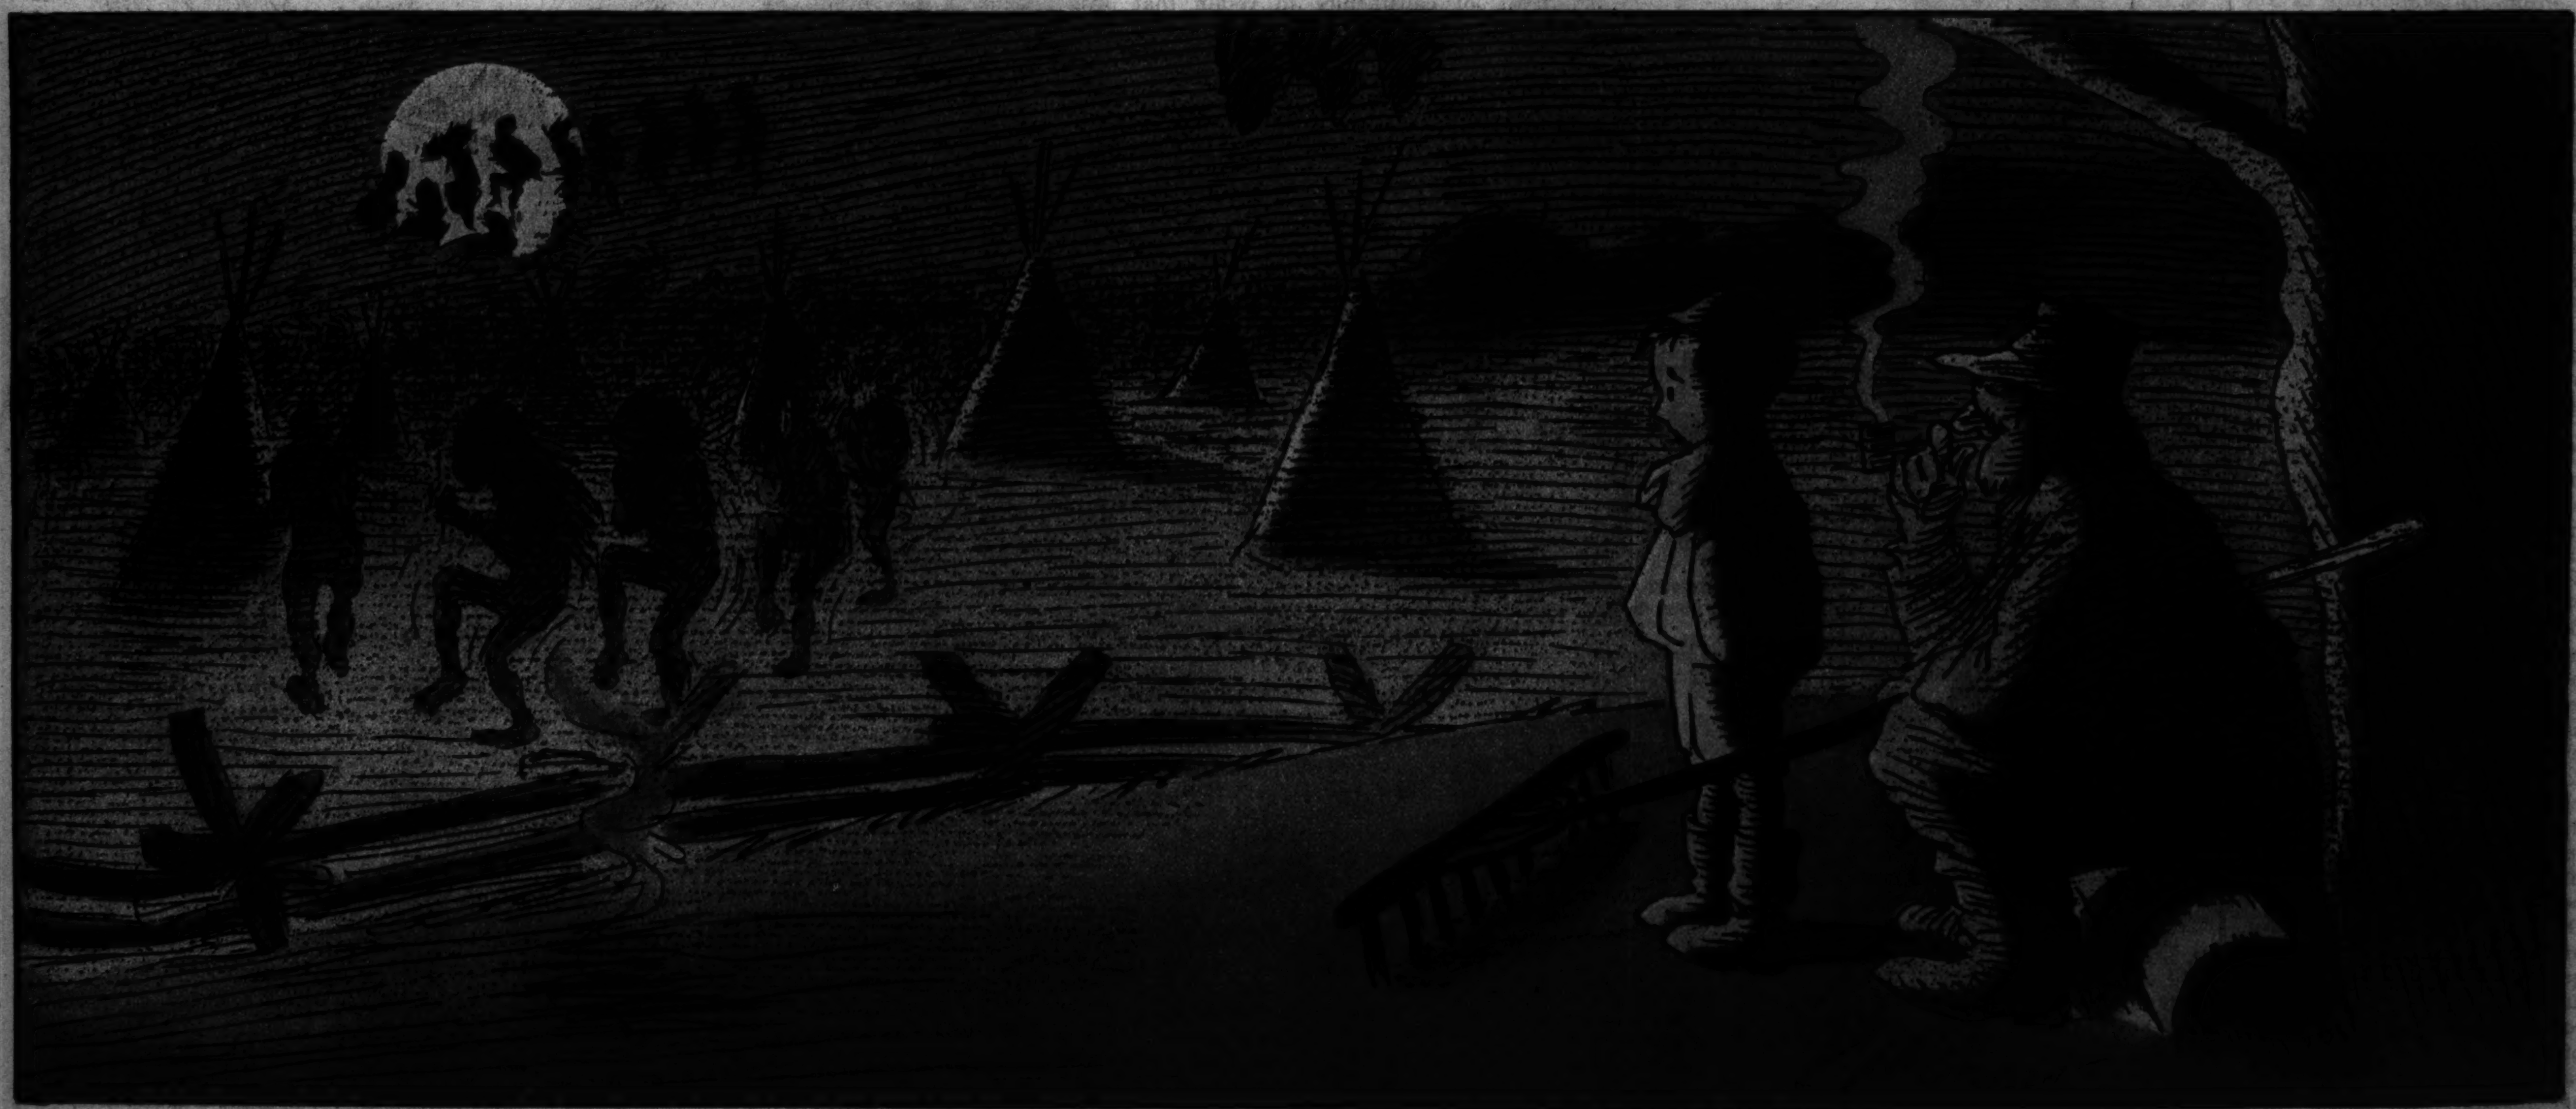
They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.



But every year, 'long about now, they all come back, leastways their sperrits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' hazy, misty look out yonder? Well, them's Injuns—Injun sperrits marchin' along an' dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's jest the sperrits of the Injuns all come back. They're all around us now.

See off yonder; see them tepees? They kind o' look like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as you're a foot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you could. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'.

Lots o' people say it's just leaves burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' th' Injuns are hoppin' 'round 'em t' beat the old Harry.



You jest come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' the harvest fields is all swimmin' in th' moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns and the tepees jest as plain as kin be. You can, eh? I knowed you would after a little while.

Jever notice how the leaves turn red 'bout this time o' year? That's jest another sign o' redskins. That's when an old Injun sperrit gits tired dancin' an' goes up an' squats on a leaf t' rest. Why, I kin hear 'em rustlin' an' whisperin' an' creepin' 'round among the leaves all the time; an' ever' once'n a while a leaf gives way under some fat old Injun ghost and comes floatin' down to the ground. See—here's one now. See how red it is? That's the war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.

Purty soon all the Injuns'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky jest hazy with 'em and their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now.

Private Lives of Hollywood

Tyrone Power and Sonja Henie Survive a "Prop" Romance

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

● This is another of Ed Sullivan's revealing stories on the private lives of Hollywood. Next Sunday the ace reporter on the film front will present Joe Bloke and Sally Smirk.

THE "publicity" romances of Hollywood have been many and varied. A studio has a bright young femme star and a personable young male star. At the suggestion of the publicity department of the studio the young stars make it a point to be seen in all of the Hollywood spots where press photographers are most apt to be found. The studio publicity department pays for the flowers, the dinners, the taxicabs, and all other expenses incurred in such a "romance," and charges it up against the acres of publicity that are thus prodded from the fan magazines and press of the world.

Tyrone Power and Sonja Henie were one of these planted romances, and they got enormous publicity from it. In fact, they also got the plot of "Second Fiddle," in which Tyrone, playing the part of the studio publicity man, insisted on Sonja doing all of the spurious things which the two of them did in real life.

It is very rare indeed that a "publicity" romance finds a happy ending. Tyrone, for instance, wooed Sonja for the publicity department, but privately married Annabella. Sonja Henie is still single and now has reached that box office security which permits her to choose her own Hollywood escorts. When she marries you can make a small bet that she won't wed any of the chaps who were picked for her by the publicity department.

Of all the young stars of the industry few have contributed so much to the night life of the colony as Tyrone and Sonja. You see them at all of the clubs, you see them at parties. They dash to New York, they tour Europe, they go to South America. Tyrone and Sonja are the kind of movie stars that their fans can enjoy. Others may withdraw to their estates and brood, between pictures, on the banks of their swimming pools. Tyrone and Sonja go places, see things. And Miss Henie is one of the best dancers out here.

• • •

From the standpoint of the fitness of things, consider Tyrone Power's marriage to Annabella on April 23. It had sparkle and spirit to it. They met, these two, for the first time quite by accident. Tyrone had gone over to the "Baroness and Butler" set to see Walter Lang. Quite casually he was introduced to Annabella. Neither he nor the French girl sensed that little Dan Cupid had pinked 'em.

They met the next time on a phony desert in a phony sandstorm on the back lot of Twentieth Century-Fox while Allan Dwan was directing them in "Suez." It being a physical impossibility to haul his troupe of actors to the Suez canal, Dwan had directed the technicians to build him a desert behind the studio. Sand was hauled up by the carload from the Pacific beaches, and it was on this phony desert that Tyrone and Annabella met and fell in love. The wind machines, simulating a sandstorm, blew the fine particles of sand into Annabella's face and hair and ruined her nails, but nothing could ruin her disposition. Tyrone started paying some attention to the fine little trouper who was taking a beating on the phony desert. Other girls would have cursed and raged at the director, or gone temperamental. Not Annabella. She reveled in the rough going. "By the time the picture ended I was in love," says Ty. "I don't know about her feelings, but she had me talking to myself."

Thus their romance started in picturesque fashion, and it has continued just as colorfully. The next time they met was in South America, at Rio de Janeiro. She had gone there on an English mail packet. Tyrone had flown down via Pan American Airways. She was on her way to Buenos Aires to visit some relatives, but she stayed long enough at Rio to go night-clubbing with him, and they traveled together to the mountains rimming the city to gaze at the magnificent harbor and city spread out below them. Cincinnati's Mr. Power, with the Rio moon in his corner, persuaded the girl from Paris that they ought to spend the rest of their lives together on the mountain tops of the world.

Four months later they were married quietly on the coast, and since then they've continued to cover a lot of ground in spectacular fashion. They took a belated honeymoon trip to Europe by boat, and returned on a trans-Atlantic Clipper ship. As if that were not colorful enough, no sooner had they landed than Annabella, fearful of war, flew back to Paris to get her young daughter by a previous marriage, and then recrossed the Atlantic by air. In six months Tyrone and his bride have done more traveling than most married couples accomplish in a lifetime.

"After six months of marriage, Tyrone," I asked him, "what do you think of it?" He smiled broadly. "I wouldn't trade it for anything in the world, Ed. It's wonderful. She's wonderful. You know, despite what others have said on the subject, it seems to me that an actor should marry an actress. There is a sympathy of interests that is not to be discounted. When I come home from the studio I'm often down in the dumps. A certain scene has gone poorly, or I've played a scene badly. Annabella, from her own experience, knows just how I feel. Or if I come home feeling that I'm on top of the world she understands that, too. If she weren't a professional I doubt that she'd have that understanding.

"She has a broad understanding, a grand sense of humor, and we like the same things. You know a fellow is attracted to a lot of girls when he's a bachelor. One attracts him because she's beautiful, another because she's witty, another one because she's poised, another because she plays a good game of tennis. Annabella is all of these things put together."

SONJA HENIE

I asked him if he would insist that his actress wife give up her career on the screen. "Good Lord, no!" he exploded. "I want her to make pictures. In fact, we're looking now for a story that the two of us can do on the screen together. After working with her in 'Suez' I'd like nothing better than another chance to be in a picture with her. She's got plenty on the ball. Her performance in 'Wings of the Morning' was as charming as anything I've ever seen on the screen; didn't you think so?" I assured him that it was.

ANNABELLA

They live, these two ideally happy youngsters, in a home on Saltair road in Brentwood which formerly was occupied by Grace Moore. It is convenient to the bridle paths, and both of them like to go horseback riding. Her favorite sport is swimming, and she plays a fair game of tennis and is an expert at backgammon, at which she beats him consistently.

Blonde and slender, the Parisian girl who stole Tyrone away from a covey of Hollywood beauties who would have loved to marry him does not intend to rest on her laurels. Every day she goes thru a rigorous course of calisthenics to retain that slenderness. In the movies and away from the screen her husband meets a lot of stunners. Annabella intends to be just as stunning as they. Her calisthenics are an insurance policy on happiness.

While Tyrone and his French bride are living out their first year of marriage in Brentwood, Sonja Henie is concentrating on the furtherance of her astonishingly successful career as a movie star. The former Olympic figure skating champion, signed by Darryl Zanuck when every other studio in town ridiculed the gamble involved in signing a girl without acting experience, has made five pictures, each of the last four more successful than the one that preceded it. In between she has toured the country with her own ice revue and cracked all box office records. It is difficult to associate this smiling, friendly girl with business acumen, but there is no doubt that she is one of the shrewdest business women that ever hit this town, and her showmanship is superb.

Sonja lives quietly with her mother and brother in Jean Harlow's former home, but she is seen frequently (between pictures) in the local night clubs. When she first came to Hollywood the movie queens put her to disadvantage, but now she is one of the smartest dressers out here. Lee Bowman is her favorite dancing partner, but you can doubt that romance is involved.

Another dancing escort is Vic Orsatti of the agency which handles her business. Currently she has been going places with Chicagoan Alan Curtis.

They say that it is difficult to talk business with her, but let this be pointed out: I know of no performer in the business who has such a deep sense of gratitude and appreciation as Miss Henie. I was one of the first to get on the Henie band wagon when she arrived, and her gratitude for that early championing of her cause is remarkable. All of her friends will attest to that quality in her, a sense of appreciation that is remarkably intense.

• • •

The public, which is very shrewd in choosing its stars, had no hesitation in selecting her from the time she made her first picture. The affection of that public has never wavered. They recognize in the smiling, friendly Norwegian miss not only a great champion but also a great person. In five pictures she has grossed $10,000,000 for her studio, and she is now making her sixth, which will gross at least $1,000,000 in the domestic market.

Take the Stand, Miss Henie—and You, Too, Mr. Power

Seven Island Prisons Hold Il Duce's Foes

They Are Italy's Political Concentration Camps

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Paris, France.

AT THE TIME that Hitler signed his compact of alliance with communist Russia, Germany's ally to the south, Italy, was believed to be holding hundreds of communists as political prisoners in seven island concentration camps. Of the 4,000 to 7,000 political prisoners in these camps a sizable proportion were believed then to be bolshevists or of bolshevistic leanings.

In the last four years, as a result of Nazi German influence on Fascism, the technique of handling prisoners on the islands has undergone a distinct change from Latin leniency to Prussian severity.

The seven islands for confino di politisia (political internment) have the advantage to Italy of being worth nothing as real estate. Dust is abundant and foliage scarce. There is no rainfall on the majority of the islands between the months of March and October, so water must be shipped in. The islands are grouped in a semicircle around the lower portion of Italy. Ponza and Ventotene are near Naples; Lipari, Lampedusa, Ustica, and Favignana, near Sicily; Tremiti is in the lower Adriatic.

For surveillance of deportees—as political prisoners are known—the Fascist technique employs a guard on the islands which equals or more than equals the number of political exiles. The guard is composed of three armed groups—the Fascisti, or black-shirt militia; the carabinieri, or members of the king's guard; and the police. Fascisti and carabinieri are equiped with both rifle and revolver.

Lipari, off the toe of the Italian peninsula, is the best known of the islands, because the largest, and because eight years ago the guard proved insufficient, allowing three young liberals to effect an escape. After the three had plotted secretly with the outside world for two years, in a way not to be divulged, they swam out to sea by night, connected on their second attempt with friends in a speed boat capable of twenty-eight knots and purchased from an Egyptian prince at Nice, evaded the machine-gun-equipped Italian craft which circle the island, and successfully made their way across the open sea to Tunis on the African coast.

Ponza, tactically easier to guard, is island No. 1 and houses the most dangerous of the political suspects. According to a man who finished a term of five years on Ponza, there were at last reports 500 deportees on the island, of whom "well over half" were communists, for the most part peasants and workers. "On the other islands," he said,, "the percentage of communists is not so high."

The 500 prisoners on Ponza are watched over by 600 guards, of whom 400 are Fascisti, 100 carabinieri, and 100 police.

During daylight hours deportees are given their freedom within a confined zone, usually about half a mile square. The outer rim of the zone is patroled by black shirts, spaced thirty feet apart, while carabinieri are detailed to pace back and forth within the area. During the day there are two roll calls. At the first, deportees are given a massetta or allowance. Some years ago this amounted to 10 lire. It has since been reduced to 5.50 lire—and with it exiles feed and clothe themselves.

In former years deportees were permitted to form coöperative stores and mess halls, with the result that they lived fairly comfortably on their allowance. Coöperatives have been forbidden, however, since 1935. Local villagers, seeing their advantage, have raised the prices of commodities. Included in the recent policy toward deportees has been the abolition of libraries, mutual education, and plays. Card playing is forbidden. Chess is allowed.

An event to which exiles look forward is the arrival of the boat from the mainland. It calls three times a week, bringing with it newspapers and letters. Also water. Water is precious on all the islands. The small island of Ustica sustains a single tree, a palm, attributed to former King Humbert, who, it is said, chanced one day to be sailing by in his yacht and was disturbed to find an island of his realm absolutely treeless. Consequently he commanded twenty palms to be planted. One of the twenty has lived. The aridity on this island affects the lives of the exiles in that they are not permitted a bath.

Lampedusa, midway between Malta and the coast of Tunis, is a terrace of chalk and stone scorched by a blazing sun. It is described by a man who was exiled there as "a torrid, rockbound hell where heat, thirst, hunger, and sickness reign supreme."

Within the patroled zones which constitute the island concentration camps men live together in large dormitories or barracks called cameroni, equipped with cots and the portrait of Il Duce. The women, for a reason not clear but said to be "political," must live in separate rooms, must not visit each other in their rooms, and must chat together only in the street or in the dining room. (Besides the seven usual islands for deportees, women are sent to Sardinia.)

In the matter of housing the new policy for political exiles is especially apparent. Until 1935 exiles were permitted, if they had the funds, to rent houses within their zone and to live in these instead of in the cameroni. Many men as a result had their wives and children join them in exile.

Signora Carlo Rosselli (formerly Miss Marion Cave, English) tells of joining her husband on Lipari in 1927, and refers to this, with a touch of humor, as her second honeymoon. The Rossellis had been married four months when Carlo was arrested and deported for having assisted in the escape from Italy to Corsica of the Socialist leader Turati. This Rosselli was one of the three who later escaped from Lipari. He subsequently came to Paris and, with his brother, in June of last year was assassinated.

Signora Rosselli brought to the "second honeymoon" their seven-month-old baby, whom Rosselli had not previously seen. At that time, as deportees were permitted to live in dwellings other than the cameroni, the Rossellis rented a house. It included the one piano on the island. The piano is remembered not so much for its music as for a clandestine purpose which it served. In it Carlo used to hide a book on which he was at work, "Socialisme Liberale," and which was later published. "When the piano seemed no longer safe," Signora Rosselli said with a smile, "we moved the book to a tin in the garden."

"It was a honeymoon in the midst of dust and flies, in one of the most backward places in Italy," Signora Rosselli said. "Meat and water we got from the mainland. The butter was always rancid. The villagers on the island were amazed at people who ate meat once a day, and a festival day for them was signalized by buying a cauliflower. From March until October it never rained, and in the months when it did the water was caught in big cisterns, in which the natives kept eels, 'in order to keep the water pure.'"

Boredom and the constant fear of arrest are said to be the two major problems confronting all deportees. Arrest can result from failure to make the saluto Romano to a Fascist officer. Its terror springs from the fact that arrest generally means prison on the mainland for a period of months. The quarters and sanitary conditions of Italian prisons have not changed appreciably in 200 years.

Agents provocateurs, or police spies, are employed extensively in the concentration camps to investigate discontent and plans for escape, to cause trouble between deportees, and to promote attempts at escape. A Red who had been on the islands showed me a deep gash beside his right eye, narrowly missing the eyeball, which he said a Trotzkyite had given him with a broken wine bottle. His animosity was not so much against the Trotzkyite as against the agent provocateur who had stirred up the trouble.

Fascism is thoro in combing its domain for nonsympathizers. The cases of F. F. Nitti and Signora Antonietta Marturano indicate the efficiency with which it discovers material for the islands.

Francesco Fausto Nitti, nephew of ex-Premier Nitti of Italy, was a reader of liberal newspapers and guilty of placing flowers on the spot where Giacomo Matteotti, famous Italian liberal, was assassinated by Fascisti in June, 1924. Without counsel, judicial trial, or knowing the charges against him, Nitti was arrested, imprisoned, and a month later deported to the island of Lampedusa. Subsequently he was moved to Lipari and became another of the three who escaped.

• • •

A more recent case was that of Signora Antonietta Marturano, the wife of a high functionary in the Italian customs. She lived for her four children and was especially proud of her eldest son, Carlo, who at one time had had a bright future ahead of him in law. He then joined an active anti-Fascist organization. His subsequent story was one of repeated prison terms, including a year of solitary confinement.

The combination affected his health and mind. About the middle of 1935, after returning to his home for a brief period, young Marturano escaped from Italy and, with dogged will and no money, finally arrived in Paris, where he was found on a bank of the Seine terribly injured and near death after a fall from a twenty-four-foot parapet. From the Beaujon hospital he telegraphed his mother. She came to Paris, stayed in Paris about a year, and left when she saw her son practically cured and in good hands.

A few months after returning to her city, Milan, she was arrested in the street and condemned to five years' deportation on the island of Ventotene. The charge was "too frequent visits to foreign countries."

A particular group which the Fascists watch closely is the Jugo-Slav minority situated in the neighborhood of Trieste on the north shore of the Adriatic. In 1936 there were said to be eighty Jugo-Slav deportees on the two islands of Ponza and Ventotene. Ante Gerbec, a Jugo-Slav, was moved about the Fascist checkerboard for three years, from Ponza to Lipari, from Lipari to the mainland at Matera, then to Potenza. He contracted malaria. When his time was up he was moved homeward by the Fascist hand. At Rome there was an interruption when both Gerbec and the carabinieri who were escorting him in plain clothes were arrested by Fascisti near the Palazzo Venezia. They were released. Gerbec was moved on home. When he arrived he found that his wife had been arrested a few days previously and deported for two years because her husband already was in exile and her brother had fled across the frontier to Jugo-Slavia without a passport. At home to greet Gerbec were his ailing daughter, aged 6, and his ailing father, aged 73, who died soon after his return.

SENSATIONAL LIQUID WAY TO BEAUTIFY TEETH THRILLS NATION

Cleans and thus beautifies teeth with unsurpassed safety to enamel and gums

FROM one end of the country to the other, people are astounded at the beautifying action of Teel—Procter & Gamble's liquid dentifrice for brushing teeth. We called on home after home, in a typical city, where Teel had been tried against popular dentifrices, and more of these people preferred this new-day marvel than all tooth pastes and powders they were using, combined.

Revolutionary in Action

Teel was developed after four years of research, and at a cost of countless thousands of dollars. It's entirely different from tooth pastes and powders in formula and action. For Teel is an amazing liquid with "Beauty in Every Drop".

Teel contains no pumice, no grit—no abrasives of any kind. It cannot scratch tooth enamel. Teel is also guaranteed to be free of harmful chemicals and bleach. It's safe as water on teeth.

Teel uses a sensational, patented, dental cleansing agent that's not soap—yet actually multiplies over 30 times in the mouth. Penetrates crevices between teeth. Acts to wash away decaying food particles. Leaves mouth feeling wonderfully refreshed. Helps sweeten the breath—as it cleans and thus beautifies teeth in a thrilling new way.

Easy to Use—Economical

Teel has been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. It's surprisingly economical, for only a few drops are required for each brushing. Easy to use—and these drops will not roll off brush.

Get Teel Today. On display at drug, department, 10¢ stores. Brush your teeth morning and night with this liquid dentifrice wonder. See if you don't thrill at the "clean feel" of your teeth and mouth. And don't forget to visit your dentist regularly for check-up, and his professional advice. With this proper care, see how much more beautiful your teeth look.

New Wonder-Liquid Takes Place Of TOOTH PASTE and POWDER

Contains no pumice, grit or abrasives of any kind.

Cannot scratch tooth enamel.

There's Beauty in Every Drop

Proper dental care can make a lot of difference in the beauty and "clean feel" of your teeth. See for yourself!

Hair Today, Gone Tomorrow

What Habits Affect the Health of Our Scalps?

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

THE following "posers" were put to us recently about hair and hair growth, and baldness and its cause:

Suppose a boy of 6 or 7 and a girl of the same age never had their hair cut. Would the boy's hair grow as long as the girl's?

Why are men more inclined toward baldness than are women?

Why is it that a man may be bald of head and still have a flourishing beard or mustache, a heavy growth on his chest, arms, and legs?

Well, we have done a lot of research on this subject of hair as suggested by the above questions. We dug deeply into medical literature covering the theme. We interviewed recognized medical authorities on skin and hair. We made many inquiries among those persons in the nonmedical world who are known in the cosmetic field as scalp and hair specialists and who have behind them years of study and treatment of scalp disorders.

We find ourselves, after all the research, just about as confused by the several theories advanced for baldness as is the victim himself who sees inroads being made on his former hirsute abundance. There is a school of thought which puts the responsibility up to heredity. There is another school which attributes it all to glandular disturbance. There also is a belief that lays all the blame on man's tight hatbands; on his too frequent hair-wetting under showers; on man's lack of scrupulousness in barber shop selection, public brush and comb use; on lack of shampoo cleanliness as compared with a woman's greater meticulousness in these matters.

Too frequent cutting of the hair depletes scalp strength, it is argued by some. If the organic functions are relieved of the work nature intended them to do (meaning developing the hair root and the strength of surrounding tissue) they suffer as a consequence. It is interesting to record reports from reliable sources that since women have gone in for frequent hair cutting their hair is not of the same good quality as years ago, nor can its former long growth be reinstated. One authority revives that question of whether our sex won't be the bald-headed front row ornaments a few generations hence.

Mothers' attitude toward their sons' hair as opposed to coddling of daughters' locks is advanced as another reason why women are less likely to be bald. Mamma's combing and brushing and curl raising for the girl's hair is all good scalp stimulation, along with the girl's own prideful efforts later. The best a son's hair usually gets is a plastering with water, no brushing to speak of, and a combing when he can't escape it.

Frequent brushing and combing is good for the hair and scalp.

Heredity frequently is advanced as the answer to man's baldness. Choose parents with flourishing hair crops and you escape the ungarnished scalp, claim the heredity theorists. But if hereditary hair weakness is passed on from generation to generation, argues an opposing school, why wouldn't daughters inherit it, since daughters are supposed to receive more of their fathers' characteristics than are sons?

Out of the welter of conflicting opinion there is one fact you may accept unquestioningly: That vanishing hair is a penalty of civilization; that down thru the ages man's hair-growing area has consistently decreased; and that with social progress the problem will be more and more acute. Workmen and peasants, we are told, become bald less often and less rapidly than do members of the leisure class.

Hair nutrition is received from the blood. If hairs no longer sprout it's because they all are ill nourished and too much compressed. Or, as one authority voices it: "It is physiological poverty of the scalp that causes baldness, just as inferior vegetation will appear in exhausted land."

Diseases, of course, produce some baldness, principally diseases of the fever variety and of the nervous system.

But to go back to our question: Would a boy's hair, left uncut until he is adult, grow as long as a girl's? The consensus is that it would. One medical authority grants that it would grow an even length with a girl's until the age of puberty. At this age, he claims, the ovarian hormones favor hair growth on a woman's head.

To prove that men's hair may grow to great length, the Chinese queue was cited at evidence; also the long braids of the early American Indians, the House of David heavy hair.

• • •

Why are men more inclined toward baldness than women? We already have mentioned lack of scrupulousness as suggested by certain well known authorities, explained by the fact that to a man his hair is a nuisance as opposed to woman's acceptance of it as her "crowning glory." Beauty salons on the whole have a higher hygienic rating, we're told, than have barber shops. In a public washroom a man may use a public comb and brush. He may "shower" his hair daily, and this wetting, all agree, is a malicious habit, since the scalp is not thoroly shampooed at the time, and because showers often are taken while the head is overheated from exercise or other activity. A woman protects her hair while she bathes.

The hair cutting process which begins early with the boy seems to be considered a sinister process. "If his hair must be cut," one authority states, "it should be left as long as parental pride will permit. In any case there should be sparing use of the scissors on the hair on top of the scalp. In addition, during younger years the hatless head is more exposed to tissue-forming sun rays."

There's no doubt about the close connection between capillary production and circulation. When, from pressure of hat or for other reasons, the blood vessels lose their elasticity and diminish in caliber, that part of the scalp which is not irrigated deteriorates.

Too frequent cutting of hair, it is said by some authorities, may deplete the strength of the scalp.

"Hair migration" is the term used to describe a situation in which one may have little or no hair on the head and still have a fulsome mustache, a beard, or a display on chest and other parts of the body. This is explained as follows:

The normal scalp can secrete no more hair substance than that which goes to produce five and one-third ounces of hair annually. And as the system produces such hair substance in excess of this amount, the surplus manifests itself as body hair on thorax and limbs. When for any reason the scalp follicles fail to function this surplus is increased and the scalp hair substance is forced to "migrate" and find an exit elsewhere.

Hair migration is considered an abnormality, since it implies that scalp exercise, such as long hair provides, is not needed, and that hair root treatment is entirely unrequired, for hair migration is essentially linked with the person who grows up with short-cut hair.

"Premature baldness did not afflict the otherwise healthy long-haired American Indian, nor did that prevalent modern feminine affliction known as superfluous hair growth diminish the charms of the Indian squaw," concludes a noted authority.

William Powell is one of the vast legion of men whose hairline in front has "slipped up."

STORY OF AN AMAZING ARMY FLIGHT

By WAYNE THOMIS

ABOUT SEPT. 1 a group of P-36 army fighters left San Antonio, Tex., to make the first flight by single-seat pursuit planes from United States territory to the Panama Canal Zone. The country over which they flew is extremely rugged jungle and barren and desolate mountains, without the radio range and light beacons and without the emergency landing fields that are found on all this nation's airways.

So rugged is this territory and so uncertain the tropical weather along the Central American coasts that the army never before had dispatched squadrons of the fast, tricky little pursuit airplanes, that land at speeds up to eighty miles an hour and are dependent upon one engine for flight, over this route. Always hitherto these ships have been crated and shipped down aboard army freighters.

The journey proved dangerous. The treacherous weather struck unexpectedly at the four squadrons that made up the flight, and on Sept. 5 newspapers of the United States carried dispatches announcing that three of the planes and their pilots were missing after flying into a storm over Dulce gulf, near the extreme tip of the Osa peninsula, Costa Rica. Two of the pilots later were found safe, but one, Lieut. Harry A. Jenkins of Montalba, Tex., never has been found.

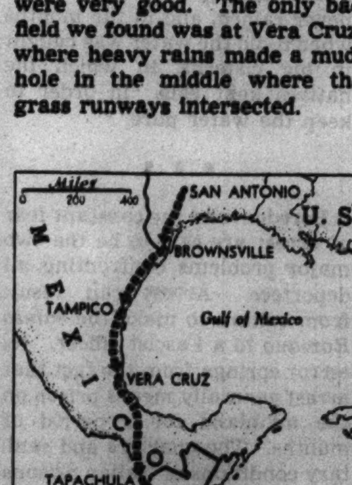
This department now takes its readers on this thrilling delivery flight across Central America. We will go in the cockpit of the little Curtiss fighter flown by Lieut. Burton Schwind, whose home is at 10346 South Bell avenue, Chicago. He is a recent graduate of the army training center at Randolph and Kelly fields, Texas, and specialized in pursuit aviation. He was stationed at Selfridge field just before being transferred to the 16th pursuit group at Albrook field, Canal Zone.

We take up the story in Lieutenant Schwind's words, written to his father, Albert E. Schwind, electrical expert for the city fire department:

"It surely was some trip down here, and I mean a hard one. But I wouldn't trade the experience I got for anything. We spent the first night in San Antonio, and also the second, due to last-minute work on the ships and because of a couple of delays.

"We reported to the field ready to take off Friday morning—Duncan field at San Antonio—at 5:30. And that is plenty early. Our first stop was Brownsville, only 260 miles. We spent a couple of hours there getting gas and getting cleared thru Mexico. Our flight was the last of the five flights to take off, and we all had to return because one of the fellows' props gave trouble. He and another officer stayed behind then and we went to Tampico, only about 235 miles.

"Leaving Brownsville, we left behind the last fields with paved runways. Everything from Tampico on was sod. Most of them were very good. The only bad field we found was at Vera Cruz, where heavy rains made a mudhole in the middle where the grass runways intersected.



Map of the army flyers' route.

"The other five flights took off for Vera Cruz that same day, but we remained at Tampico, as it was late when we landed and it took so long to gas up. The next day we went to Vera Cruz, and two flights took off for Tapachula, Mexico, but the gassing facilities were so slow that the rest of us couldn't get off before the weather became too bad. We finished gassing up by evening, and the two pilots left behind at Brownsville caught up with us there."

(Note.—The flight began on the Atlantic side of Mexico and continued straight south to Vera Cruz. From there the planes went high and crossed the mountains to the Pacific side, landing at Tapachula, at the southernmost point of Mexico. Vera Cruz is 245 miles almost due south of Tampico. It is another 400 miles from Vera Cruz to Tapachula. Lieutenant Schwind's flight of six planes cruised at 190 to 210 miles an hour.)

"The next day, Sunday, we went on to Tapachula and cleared for leaving Mexico. The other two flights had stayed over at Tapachula and gone on into Guatemala City, Guatemala, where they spent the night, because of weather. Tapachula is where we started pushing gasoline drums around and pumping gas by hand to get finished quicker.

"Our three flights took off for Managua, Nicaragua (450 miles farther south). We hit some very bad weather and all just barely managed to get in. It was a thrilling experience, as we were flying low over the coast line and in tight formation. Your feelings and thoughts? [In reply to his father's question about what he felt during the tight moments.] When I think back on it it seems more or less vague.

Lieut. Schwind

"We saw the storm, and we approached with due care. Not being familiar with the type of weather down here, we pulled in our necks a little way. We flew extremely close and in echelon away from the coast and toward the ocean. We all figured on landing on the coast or just off it in case of a forced landing.

"As we went along it closed down on us, but, having the coast line for reference, we couldn't get lost in direction and expected to come out, which we eventually did. But when those clouds, or rather the entire sky, came down, it just blotted out everything.

"That, my little chickadee, was when little Burton was one very worried person. If for any reason I lost that formation I think I'd have been sunk. And all I did was sit there in my little ship, and when the one ahead of me made any slight move I made one just like it. I mean to say I manhandled that airplane.

"Whenever I made a movement it was definite and direct. We flew a few feet off the ocean along the shore for about twenty minutes at about 180 or 200. I had eyes and mind only for the ships directly ahead of me and couldn't tell you anything else. I don't know whether we were on instruments or not—I couldn't say whether Jimmy Guthrie [the formation leader] went on instruments, but I hardly think so.

"The ceiling cleared to about 200 to 400 feet [Note: This indicates that the formation was down to fifteen to twenty feet off the water just previously, because ordinarily 200-400-foot ceilings are considered extremely low, hardly flyable. When a man says the ceiling cleared to 200-400 feet he can only have been comparing that condition with a true zero-zero — no visibility, no ceiling condition.] at Managua and we came in on a railroad till we hit the lake [Lake Managua] and going between the hills to the airport.

"That was one of the most beautiful sights I have ever seen —the Managua airport. When

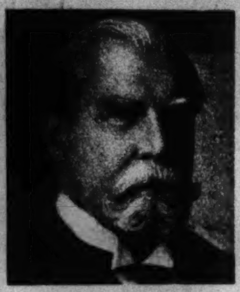
Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Men and boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the twenty-first of the series.



C. E. HUGHES

AN ORATOR with a remarkable background of statesmanship and law is Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States Supreme court since 1930. Born in Glens Falls, N. Y., April 11, 1862, he was educated at Colgate, Brown, and Columbia universities. From 1907 to 1910 he was governor of the state of New York. In 1916 he resigned from the federal Supreme court, to which he had been appointed an associate justice in 1910, to run for President on the Republican ticket. He was secretary of state from 1921 to 1925, and it was during this period that he on Sept. 4, 1923, delivered his stirring address, "The Pathway of Peace," before the Canadian Bar association at Montreal. An excerpt from the address follows:

"'War,' said Sir Henry Maine, 'appears to be as old as mankind, but peace is a modern invention.' It is hardly that; it would seem to be an occasional experience rather than an achievement. To one who reviews the history of strife from 'the universal belligerency of primitive mankind' peace appears merely as the lull between the inevitable storms always gathering in some quarter with the fateful recurrence of the operations of nature. Nineteen centuries of Christian faith, with its evangel of peace on earth and good will to men, with its sweet reasonableness and constant appeals thru myriad activities to man's highest hopes, have erected no effective barrier to war. It maintains hospitals, it cares for the wounded, and soothes the dying; it shines resplendent in countless lives of supreme self-sacrifice; but it leaves untouched the fields of carnage and unimpaired the justification of noble and generous spirits in the use of the most ruthless instrumentalities of destruction. The economic satisfactions proffered by an advancing civilization and dependent on peace, the enticements of soft living, the hopes of families, the tenderest attachments are all futile to oppose the summons to arms. The resources of science, all inventive skill, the long discipline of the organization of trade and industry, everything that can be commanded in thought and action, in accumulated stores and capacity of production, are under pledge to the god of war.

"We may gain something in our quest for peace if we recognize at once that war is not an abnormality. In the truest sense it is not the mere play of brute force. It is the expression of the insistent human will, inflexible in its purpose. The culture of civilization has strengthened, not enfeebled it. It is the old human spirit with the latest equipment. As Winston Churchill has said of the 'valiant spirit of man in the late war': 'Son of the stone age, vanquisher of nature with all her trials and monsters, he met the awful and self-inflicted agony with new reserves of fortitude. . . . His nervous system was found in the twentieth century capable of enduring physical and moral stresses before which the simpler natures of primeval times would have collapsed. Again and again to the hideous bombardment, again and again from the hospital to the front, again and again to the hungry submarines, he strode unflinching. And withal as an individual preserved thru these torments the glories of a reasonable and compassionate mind.' It was with this equipment, spiritual as well as material, at a time when peace was lavishly bestowing the choicest rewards of human effort, that the nations that had most to lose plunged into the most ruinous and horrible conflict known to history.

"When we consider that the inability to maintain a just peace attests the failure of civilization itself we may be less confident of the success of any artificial contrivances to prevent war. We must recognize that we are dealing with the very woof and warp of human nature. The war to end war has left its curse of hate, its lasting injuries, its breeding grounds of strife, and to secure an abiding peace appears to be more difficult than ever. There is no advantage in shutting our eyes to the facts; nor should we turn in disgust of panaceas to the counsel of despair. The pathway of peace is the longest and most beset with obstacles the human race has to tread; the goal may be distant, but we must press on."

This is the product of an orderly mind, seriously intent upon a subject that might lead a less disciplined person into flights of the worst sort of oratory. It is a careful, logical study of conditions and a magnificently simple statement of the case for, or perhaps against, civilization. There is an intensity of feeling embodied in this speech that is the more impressive because of the restraint with which it is expressed. Left unchecked, it might easily destroy its own effectiveness. Optimism of the quiet, determined sort fills this speech, but it is only recognizable in the frank way in which difficulties are considered.

"Ham and" for Halloween

But "and" Is Pineapple Served in a Cake

By MARY MEADE

DON'T MOPE if nobody's invited you out to a Halloween supper. Get up one of your own for the family. Start by baking a pineapple layer cake, decorating it with orange frosting pumpkins.

Follow that lead by buying a thick ham slice, a can of peas, sweet potatoes, and apples, if these last aren't already on hand.

Macaroons chilled in port or sherry and topped with whipped cream are a simple dessert, but a luscious one.

Make it a broiler meal by cooking everything but the salad and dessert in the broiling oven. Arrange the peas in the center of a serving dish, with cooked, sliced sweet potatoes around them, topped with thin slices of apple. Brush potatoes and apples with maple sirup and butter. Sprinkle peas with melted butter and heat this dish thoroly in the broiler before starting the ham slice to cook. Now slip the peas, potatoes, and apples to a lower position in the oven and place the meat on an open rack just above them, so that drippings from the ham may help to season the vegetables and apples. Turn the ham slice when it has cooked on one side and expose the other side to broiler heat. By the time the ham has cooked the other dish will be sizzling hot and deliciously flavored.

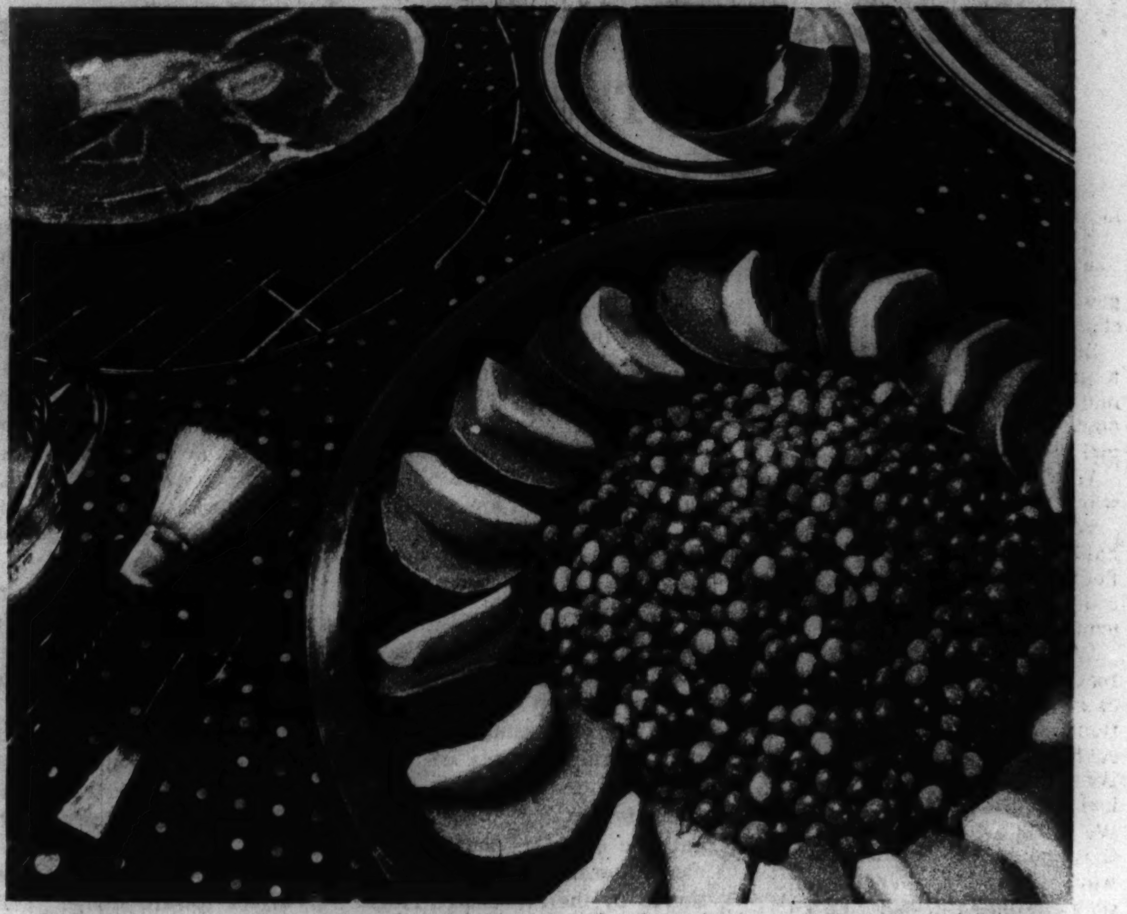
The pineapple cake has a custard filling and pineapple flavored confectioners' sugar icing. Use any plain butter frosting recipe, substituting pineapple juice for the liquid used. For cake decoration spot the frosted cake's edge at intervals with candy pumpkins or pumpkins made from orange-tinted icing piped thru a pastry tube.

PINEAPPLE LAYER CAKE

(Three layers)

- ½ cup butter
- 1½ cups sugar
- 3 eggs, separated
- 2½ cups sifted cake flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup canned unsweetened pineapple juice
- ½ teaspoon almond extract

Cream butter and 1 cup sugar thoroly until the mixture is very light and fluffy. Add beaten egg yolks. Sift dry ingredients together three times and add alternately with pineapple juice and almond extract to creamed mixture, beating thoroly after each addition. Beat egg whites until stiff and add remaining ½ cup sugar gradually, beating continuously until thoroly dissolved. Fold egg whites into cake batter. Bake in three greased nine-inch layer pans at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Let cakes cool on racks for 5 minutes, turn out, and completely cool. Put together with custard filling and frost with pineapple confectioners' sugar icing.



Broil peas, sweet potatoes, and apples under a rack with a ham slice upon it for a dinner delicious.

PINEAPPLE CUSTARD FILLING

- ¼ cup cake flour
- ¾ cup sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons pineapple juice
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 beaten egg
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Combine flour, sugar, and salt in the top of a double boiler. Add pineapple and lemon juice. Cook over rapidly boiling water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add egg and cook two or three minutes longer. Add butter and lemon rind and cool.

A simpler dessert than the cake consists of macaroons, broken into coarse pieces, chilled overnight with enough California port or sherry wine to moisten (¾ cup for six to eight servings), and served with chilly custard sauce or whipped cream as topping. Plain cake could be served in the same way.

This cake, three pineapple layers put together with pineapple custard, makes an appropriate Halloween dessert.

"SURE-MIX" CRISCO makes Cakes Better-Eating —in 3 ways!

JURY OF 1,100 HOUSEWIVES FROM COAST TO COAST made "Blind" Test of "Sure-Mix" Crisco. Each was asked to use her own recipe and bake two cakes—one with an unlabeled shortening (it was "Sure-Mix" Crisco) and one with another shortening. Here's what the majority preference vote showed: The cakes made with "Sure-Mix" Crisco turned out 1. Higher 2. Lighter 3. Tenderer 4. Better-eating!

1 . . HIGHER! Let your own cake recipe show you. "Sure-Mix" Crisco cakes are higher!—up to 15% higher than cakes made with any other household shortening we know of.

2 . . LIGHTER! Let your own oven show you. Cakes made with "Sure-Mix" Crisco have a new lightness and feathery grain.

3 . . TENDERER! Let the first taste tell you! "Sure-Mix" Crisco cakes are tenderer, too, more delicious, better-eating!

Your very next cakes can be the best you've ever baked. They can be grander-eating in 3 delicious ways—higher, lighter, tenderer! Just one ingredient will make all the difference. This is the New "Sure-Mix" Crisco.

Acts differently—gives new type batter

Here's why. An important scientific discovery has brought a vital improvement to pure all-vegetable Crisco. It now acts differently from any other household shortening we know of—mixes better—more completely. With "Sure-Mix" Crisco, all the ingredients in your cake batter get together and stay together. It's a new type of batter that guarantees finer-eating cakes!

Higher, lighter, tenderer cakes

Before introducing this New "Sure-Mix" Crisco, hundreds of cakes were made with it. Our baking tests showed cakes baked up higher! Up to 15% higher—depending on the type of cake. And these cakes had a lighter, finer texture and a new tenderness—a "melts-in-your-mouth" deliciousness.

Let your very next cake show you! Use any favorite recipe—make only one change—just use Crisco. Expect a better cake—higher, lighter, tenderer—with a new deliciousness!

FAVORITE! . . . CHOCOLATE-FROSTED CAKE

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk

Cream together Crisco, sugar, eggs, salt and vanilla. Sift flour with baking powder twice. Add flour mixture alternately with milk (about ⅓ of each at a time). Pour into two "Criscoed" and floured layer pans (8-inch size). Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 35 minutes.

CHOCOLATE CREAM FROSTING—Cut 4 sqs. chocolate in small pieces. Mix with 1½ cups brown sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup water, ¼ cup Crisco. Bring to a boil; boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat; cool to lukewarm. Add enough sifted confectioners sugar to spread. Beat in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Spread between layers and over cake.

All Measurements Level

IMPORTANT! Just ask for "Crisco" at your store—as usual. All Crisco is now "Sure-Mix." No change in hinge-top can or label—but oh, the difference in Crisco itself!

Swift Tragedy Strikes in 'The Guilty Bystanders'

INTO the midst of a gay party at the Lakemeadow Country club stalks tragedy. Hatred flames into a mania to kill . . . shots are fired . . . a car screeches down the drive . . . and the lives of a normal group of young persons have been entangled in a web of tragic circumstance.

Central figure in the drama is Hugo Ryder, big, drink-loving husband of Edith and father of an adorable daughter, fondly called "the Kitten." Hugo's excesses drive Edith to the arms of another man, Martin Yorke. Martin, her former fiancé, is the "understanding sort" who does not let his own marriage interfere with his ministrations to the emotional needs of other women.

In Martin Edith finds a sympathetic confidant, but unfortunately the harmless tryst is observed by the intoxicated Hugo. There is a scene, during which Hugo threatens Yorke, demanding that he stay away from Edith. The difficulty is smoothed over, at least for the moment, when Yorke leaves.

• • •

In another part of town a familiar scene is being enacted. Murray Bentle, quick-witted, highly successful young criminal lawyer, has just won another case from his friend and rival in love, Kirke McKeel, district attorney. Bentle's ability to utilize even the tiniest of loopholes has set free a murderess and has chalked up another defeat against the record of McKeel.

Seeking relaxation from the strain of the courtroom, the two friendly rivals join Phoebe Lockwood, whose favor they both seek, at a party in the swank Lakemeadow Country club. Every one is there, including Hugo Ryder, still sulking over his wife's action, and drinking more than his mood makes safe.

Brushing aside the friendly suggestions of Bentle and McKeel that he call a halt, Hugo starts on a hunt for Edith and Martin Yorke. As he walks his inflamed mind builds up a growing hatred for the two he thinks have wronged him. By the time he finds his wife with Yorke on the club grounds Hugo Ryder is bent on murder. Martin Yorke's struggle is in vain and he is shot. Edith, too, falls before the blazing gun. Eyewitness to the crime, Phoebe Lockwood stands in Hugo's path, frozen with terror.

Rushing past her, the murderer drives toward home. Edith Ryder, only dazed by the bullet, knows his intentions—to kill "the Kitten" and himself! Hurriedly McKeel calls police while Bentle phones the Ryder nurse to warn her.

He does so barely in time, for Hugo enters the house just as the nurse and child escape. Defeated in his plan, Ryder rages around town, dazed by alcoholic and emotional intoxication. As soberness returns, remorse grows, until finally he gives up and signs a full confession.

Despite the swiftness and terror of the tragic events, there are two who learn no lesson. Dick Bentle, younger brother of Murray, and Mrs. Joe Cressy continue a flirtation that has created in Joe Cressy much the same sort of anger that spurred Hugo Ryder on to murder. Murray and Kirke plead with Phoebe to leave town in order to dodge the unpleasant necessity of being held as a material witness in the trial of Ryder.

'Too Proud to Fight' Turns to Preparedness

● This is the fourth instalment of the amazing story showing step by step how America was drawn into the World war. In early chapters was related the evolution of America's idealistic foreign policy, the difficulties in Mexico, the start of Europe's war, and the launching of propaganda designed to speed American intervention. Last week the author told of the sinking of the Lusitania.

I.

THE spontaneous blaze of passion that followed the sinking of the Lusitania by a German U-boat was at once fanned vigorously by every agency of Allied propaganda. Mr. Page hastened to pour out for the President his "interpretation" of "opinion here":

"The United States must declare war or forfeit European respect. So far as I know, this opinion is universal. If the United States come in, the moral and physical effect will be to bring peace quickly and to give the United States a great influence in . . . so reorganizing the world as to prevent (a) recurrence (of war). If the United States submit . . . (she) will have no voice or influence in settling the war or in what follows for a long time to come."

Again the ambassador was playing upon what he supposed to be the weakness of his chief. Perhaps it was. Mr. Wilson burned the almost insolent dispatch; but "after all," he, too, generously commented, "this does not express Page's own opinion, but what he takes to be public opinion at the moment in Great Britain." Such a reaction might, indeed, affect "our influence for good."

That Saturday morning President Wilson made a point of taking his usual round of golf—less for the exercise, it was thought, than as an example of calm in crisis—and thereafter retired to the White House to wrestle alone with his responsibility. What was he to do? The advice was conflicting. On Sunday, May 9, there arrived a long and bellicose cable from Colonel House. There should, he thought, be an immediate demand upon Germany for assurances against a repetition of the crime with a threat of war. "If war follows, it will not be a new war, but an endeavor to end more speedily an old one. Our intervention will save rather than increase the loss of life"—tho of whose lives he did not stop to ask. "America has come to the parting of the ways when she must determine whether she stands for civilized or uncivilized warfare."

Another letter on the same day urged a different course. Jacob Schiff—the great Jewish banker, who had one nephew in the British army and another in the German—did not see why America should stand for war of any sort; he begged the President to make an earnest effort, using "the singularly impressive language you are capable of," to bring both sides to make peace. Between these two extremes Mr. Bryan was taking a far more practical view. "Germany," he urged, "has a right to prevent contraband going to the Allies and a ship carrying contraband should not rely upon passengers to protect her from attack." This pointed toward a common-sense acceptance of the facts and the arrangement of the best practicable modus vivendi for safeguarding Americans who had real business in the war zone.

For three days the President saw no one except the rather belligerent Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, who dined at the White House on Sunday. He had been scheduled, however, to address a gathering of newly naturalized citizens at Philadelphia that Monday evening and the engagement was not canceled. The Convention hall was packed with fifteen thousand people when the President entered; a nation was hanging upon his words for the first indication of the policy to which he was about to dedicate it. The long jaw was set; the now familiar voice rolled on:

"America must have the consciousness that on all sides it touches elbows and touches heart with all the nations of mankind. The example of America must be a special example, and must be an example not merely of peace because it will not fight; but because peace is a healing and elevating influence of the world and strife is not. There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight. There is such a thing as a nation being so right that it does not need to convince others by force that it is right."

Admiral von Tirpitz

The crowd burst into tumultuous applause, and the thousands of little American flags with which the new citizens had been provided fluttered bravely as the famous phrase (universally misquoted ever since) was added to the language. It was the high moral concept which the President had proclaimed in the first bright days of his new diplomacy; it was simply a rewording of his appeal in the Mexican problem of nearly two years before.

President Wilson had attempted to bring his countrymen to their senses. Apparently he now had his answer. He did not want war. He never fully accepted House's naïve faith that an American intervention would guarantee a peace "for the lasting good of humanity"; on the contrary, he clung, with a much surer instinct, to the idea that once the United States were involved upon one side of the quarrel, the nation's influence toward creating a stable world system would be largely at an end. He believed he had no mandate to enter the war. But he did not want or did not dare to face the appalling difficulties of avoiding that eventuality.

It is an element of President Wilson's greatness that he realized instinctively the profound futility and irrelevance of force; it is an element of his weakness that he sought to find its substitute in the treacherous bogs of "morality" rather than in the firmer ground of practical psychology and statesmanship.

After that, it was all over. The cabinet was summoned on Tuesday morning; and the President began by reading them House's cable. The comment was favorable, and the President passed on to outline the note in which he proposed to follow this advice. They were all eager for the strong hand—except the secretary of state. Mr. Bryan was "appalled." He showed his agitation, and angrily suggested that there were some members of the cabinet who were less than neutral. At that lese majesty the President turned upon him "and said, with a steely glitter in his eyes, 'Mr. Bryan, you are not warranted in making such an assertion.'" It was outrageous to hint that Mr. Wilson could be biased, and the secretary apologized. Yet he insisted upon pointing out the noose in which they were placing themselves; he urged strenuously that something be done to prevent the nation being plunged automatically into the war in case the Germans should not yield. The President was at first inclined to accede; later on he rejected the idea. There was no way of softening the note without encouraging the Germans to resist. The cabinet approved; and Mr. Bryan, doubtful but uncertain of himself, signed. The die was cast; the first Lusitania note was dispatched on May 13, 1915.

It was impossible to use submarines against merchantmen, we declared, without an "inevitable violation of many sacred principles of justice and humanity"; the "indisputable" right of American citizens to travel where they would upon the high seas was reasserted, and the imperial German government was formally called upon to disavow the acts of its commanders, make reparation and "take immediate steps to prevent" their recurrence. "The imperial German government," the note concluded, "will not expect the government of the United States to omit any word or any act necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens."

What we demanded was total surrender under the threat of war. Yet the really extraordinary aspect of the matter is that no one thruout the whole time that the note was being prepared seems even to have thought of analyzing the chances of getting a surrender. No one called upon Mr. Gerard for an estimate of the real military, psychological, and political forces which they had to deal with. No one tried to calculate the real importance of the submarine to Germany. When they agreed upon their vigorous note to Berlin neither the President nor his emotional cabinet can have had any adequate idea as to whether they were in fact preparing a diplomatic victory or plunging the people of the United States into the bloodiest war that history had known.

London, like Colonel House, not unnaturally assumed that the United States was now practically one of the Allies. It was to learn with something of a shock that Washington did not share this opinion. To its astonishment, Mr. Wilson had barely exploded his bombshell in the Wilhelmstrasse before he began exploding lesser ones in Downing street. Mr. Page, to his rebellious disgust, was ordered to press the trade controversy, and on May 16 the President even tried to revive the submarine-blockade compromise. To imagine that the British, after the Lusitania note had brought us to the verge of war, would assist in removing the issue was the acme of futility; but there was another flutter of cables and the last fortnight of May was devoted to this quaint project. It came to nothing.

II.

On the 29th of May Ambassador Gerard put the German reply to the Lusitania note upon the cables. It was simply a rebuttal of our argument and a play for time. On the next day, Sunday, May 30, Colonel House noted in his diary: "I haye concluded that war with Germany is inevitable, and this afternoon at 6 o'clock I decided to go home on the S. S. St. Paul on Saturday." He was going, he told Plunkett, "to persuade the President not to conduct a milk-and-water war, but to put all the strength, all the virility, and all the energy of our nation into it." The colonel's sole justification for preparing such a bath of blood for his countrymen was his hope of establishing a new world order of peace and security as a result.

At a cabinet meeting on June 1 Mr. Wilson presented the draft of a second note—strenuous, but not too strenuous. The belligerent Garrison was frank enough to call for a flat yes or no demand upon Germany; Mr. Bryan, who seemed "under a great strain," pressed the opposite objection. Some one said that if there was to be a strong note to Germany there should be an equally powerful protest against the British trade restrictions; but several rose in outrage at this suggestion that a mere question of commerce should be "considered at the same moment when we were discussing a grave question of human lives."

At this folly Mr. Bryan not unreasonably "got excited" and bluntly told them that they were pro-Ally. Again he was sternly rebuked by the President.

After the meeting Mr. Bryan told Mr. Wilson that he could not sign this second note. Perhaps it checked the imperious President. "A confused and somewhat tiresome" cabinet discussion on June 4 got nowhere; it wearied the President "perceptibly" and "did not help him." And on Saturday, June 5, a fresh blow fell. Mr. McAdoo was at lunch when Secretary Bryan unexpectedly called upon him. Mr. Bryan's "face was haggard; he was visibly nervous and remarked that he had not slept well." He believed, he told McAdoo, that the second Lusitania note would "surely lead to war with Germany, and that as a profound believer in peace he could not conscientiously follow the President in the proposed course." He must resign.

It was a bombshell. The President realized at once that it would tend to undermine the whole theory that the administration's policy was a purely pacific one. It would create a "mistaken" impression that we were forcing the issue. What the President did not see was that Mr. Bryan was essentially right. A sudden check had come which might have led Mr. Wilson to reexamine more carefully the precise bases of his own action. Instead he merely overrode it; his advisers told him that the public would probably side against Mr. Bryan, and the President let him go.

Yet it did not come to war—not then. What really saved Mr. Wilson (and destroyed Mr. Bryan) in the summer of 1915 was neither the strength nor the astuteness of our diplomacy. It was the limited capacity of the German shipyards—a factor which our diplomatists had scarcely even considered.

When the submarine campaign was launched in February the Germans had but sixteen completed U-boats and only eleven more under construction. With so small a force success had to depend not upon actual sinkings but upon their effect in terrorizing merchant shipping from the seas, and in this respect the campaign was a flat failure. The destruction achieved, on the other hand, was remarkable.

III.

Preparedness was making noble headway. General Wood had conceived the idea of extending his voluntary training camps to include not merely immature undergraduates but influential younger leaders of the community. The war department cruelly denied him funds for this inspired engine of publicity, but the manna suddenly fell from Bernard Baruch, of all people in the world, who sent a check for $10,000 and levied upon his wealthy friends for more. From the middle of June onward the recruiting for the "business men's Plattsburg" was rapid and spectacular.

No one could accuse Mr. Wilson or his administration of a vulgar interest in the profits of munitions manufacturers; but they were not blind to the fact that patriotism might have advantages of a different sort. Preparedness was becoming a political issue. As early as July 1 an observant Washington newspaper man was warning Theodore Roosevelt that "it is the intention of the President to recommend an increase in the army and the navy for the purpose of 'drawing your tooth,'" and a day or two later General Wood heard that the conversion of Colonel House was complete. House, he was told, had decided that the President "was lost unless he got on the band wagon of preparedness."

To get preparedness one must, of course, build up a menace against which to prepare; the German menace was developing rapidly under all this bellicose enthusiasm, and it scarcely smoothed the way of the Lusitania note writing which had been going on in the meantime. Our note of June 9 had convinced Grand Admiral von Tirpitz that "America is so shamelessly, so barefacedly pro-British that it is hard to credit that we shall eat humble pie." The German reply of July 8 left Secretary Lane indignant at the idea of having "a damned army officer, filled with strutitudinousness, spit upon the American flag—a damned goose-stepping army officer!" It was indeed unpleasant; but it was also war.

The result was another note on July 21, stiffer than the earlier ones. Then on Aug. 19 there came disaster. The White Star liner Arabic was torpedoed and sunk without warning in the Irish channel, with the loss of forty-four lives, two of them American citizens.

Ironically enough, the Arabic case actually precipitated a kind of settlement. Ambassador Gerard in Berlin called upon Von Jagow; he was told that the sinking of the Arabic had been contrary to instructions. "What instructions?" the ambassador quickly asked, and the cat was out of the bag. Jagow confessed to the orders not to sink large passenger steamers. On Sept. 1 Count Bernstorff [German ambassador in Washington], stretching his actual instructions to the limit, gave Mr. Lansing his government's formal assurance that passenger liners would not thereafter be torpedoed except with due warning and provision for the safety of noncombatants.

Berlin's partial yielding on the submarine issue exposed the Allies (just as Bernstorff had intended) to the undivided force of our righteous insistence upon principle. And the British were excessively irritating. To our appeals to international law and justice they replied by gently pointing to the fact that we were making more money out of the war than we had ever made before. In August, as the new cotton crop approached the market, Sir Edward Grey quietly announced that they would probably have to make cotton absolute contraband—a step which they had bound themselves not to take. However, the British also agreed to buy the surplus themselves. The 1915 crop was actually disposed of at a good price; the result was the final confirmation of American business recovery and linked the last important branch of our economy to the military success of the Entente.

Meanwhile sensational cables had been filtering back into the White House recording the secret progress of an extraordinary negotiation. Colonel House in London had made the happy discovery that the minds of both Grey and Balfour (then first lord of the admiralty) were running "parallel with ours." The whole position seemed unexpectedly bright. "Grey is now in favor of the freedom of the seas provided it includes the elimination of militarism, and further provided we will join in a general covenant to sustain it"; and this appeared so promising that the colonel hoped immediately to formulate with Grey and Balfour "some plan which I can submit to you and which they can recommend to their colleagues."

To this glowing report Mr. Wilson at once cabled back that he would be glad to coöperate in a policy of permanent peace. "This cable," says Professor Seymour, "may well be regarded as historic," for it marked President Wilson's first definite commitment (on the urging of Sir Edward Grey!) to a future league of nations.

How Tribune Gets Its Pictures

PARIS STILL dictates the modes in women's dress. But Parisian mannequins and foreign photography do not meet the most exacting American standards. This explains why those authentic, magnificently suave color pictures of winter fashions from the style capital presented in this and three earlier issues of The Tribune were taken in the United States.

No slur on the French models is intended. They have chic, but it is a chic subtly different and distinguishable from that of America. The American woman can best tell how a gown will look on her if it is modeled by an American.

Color photographs can, of course, be made abroad, but not so well and certainly not so swiftly as The Tribune's own technicians, after years of experience, can make them. This is the story of how these men accomplished their task.

The dresses, hats, and accessories were completed in the famous Paris shops in late summer. Already arrangements had been made for transportation of a representative group of modes, chosen by Mrs. Parker Pickering, a former Chicagoan and one of New York's foremost style experts. The shipment arrived on the liner Normandie on Aug. 28.

While the ship was still in mid-ocean E. H. Johnson and George Greb of the Tribune color studio left for New York. With them they took their color camera and a formidable array of lighting equipment, which they set up in a hotel suite.

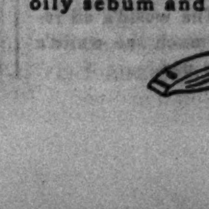
That done, they called in a noted artist, Michael Orenbach, who was commissioned to build suitable backgrounds for the photographs. In advance the photographers knew sketchily the shades in the dresses and millinery. Orenbach built his scenery in contrasting or subtly blending color combinations.

Next the photographers sought models. A large agency sent fifteen, from which five were chosen—Muriel Maxwell, Blanche Grady, Betty Hapworth, Len Dun, and Wynette Price. Two of these had been actresses in the movies. All are recognized as artists and command $10 or more an hour.

They were waiting when the dresses and other articles had cleared the customs. Last-minute changes in coiffure and in makeup were carried out. Orenbach added the last touches to his backgrounds.

Then the photographers began to work. From late afternoon until midnight they took pictures. In the morning they began again and worked all day. From the dozens of negatives they brought back to Chicago the best were chosen for reproduction in the Picture Section.

IMPORTANT for men who shave with ELECTRIC RAZORS



IF YOU'RE ONE of the two million moderns who use an electric razor, these facts will interest you and help you get a perfect electric shave every time. No experimenting. No white scuff.

The problem with an electric razor is to dry the oily film off whiskers so your shaver can clip them off crisply and closely. That's why many men need this kind of preparation for a proper electric shave.

A dash of Aqua Velva before electric shaves dries off oily sebum and sweat. Whiskers are left in position for your shaver to "mow 'em down." Try a cool dash of Aqua Velva before your next electric shave. Thousands agree there's nothing like it to remove gritty oils from your face... bring each bristle smartly to attention. A second dash of Aqua Velva after shaving leaves your face smoother, cooler, more refreshed—and free from all white scuff.

We'll set you up to a FREE bottle Find out for yourself (at our expense) how Aqua Velva simplifies shaving with any electric razor. Just send your name and address to: The J. B. Williams Co., Dept. CG-2, Glastonbury, Conn., and we'll send you postpaid a generous free bottle of Aqua Velva.

German Oil Supply Is Surveyed

● This is the first of two articles on the supply and demand for oil of nations at war.

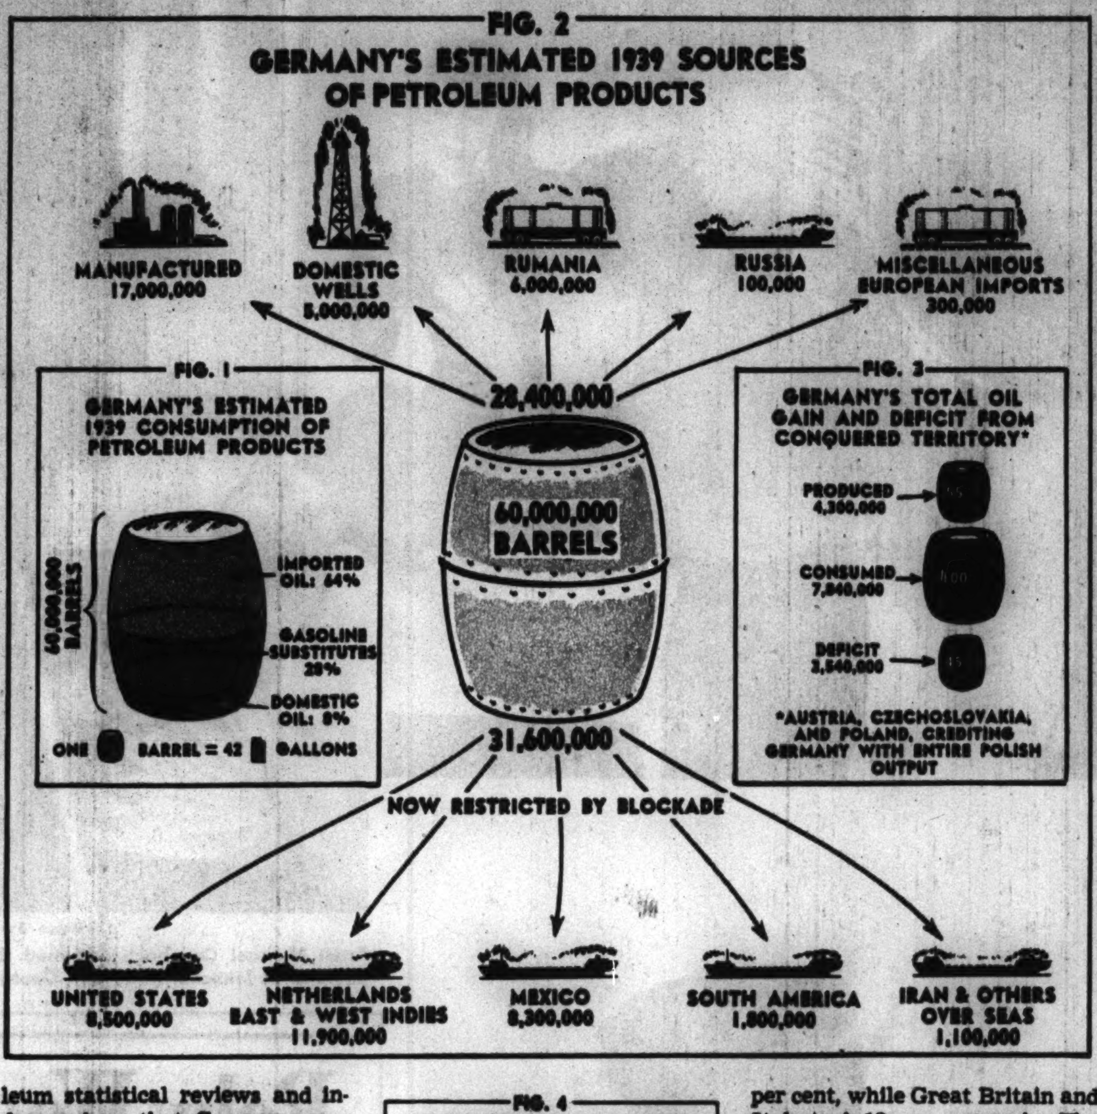
By GREER WILLIAMS



"WHO HAS oil has empire," said Henry Berenguer, senator of France, to his premier, Georges Clemenceau, after the World war. By this criterion Nazi Germany has no empire to support it in the present European war. Of all the natural resources Germany needs in making war there is no more critical shortage than in oil — meaning gasoline, Diesel oil, kerosene, motor oil, lubricating oil, and fuel oil.

The Tribune has made a survey of available statistics and expert opinion on Germany's petroleum problem in an effort to indicate the true situation. The statistics support the nearly unanimous expert opinion that Germany cannot obtain enough oil to carry on a long war of action.

The importance of oil cannot be underestimated, for the movement of the modern mechanized war machine depends upon it.

An example of the great quantities needed was given in a recent French military maneuver, where one motorized division used more than 79,000 gallons of gasoline every twenty-four hours.

Such findings, as well as experience in the World war, have led army engineers to estimate that a nation must consume anywhere from two and a half to six times as much petroleum and its products in war as in peace time. General Serrigny, both an oil industry and army official in France, says Europe will need two and a half times as much in war. A. de Boulard, prominent French petroleum engineer, sets it as three to one. Ferdinand Freidensburg, a German authority, agrees that his country will need three times as much. Other Germans prefer a six to one ration of increase.

What are the facts of Germany's production and consumption of petroleum products which are the basis of these peace-war calculations? Petroleum statistical reviews and indexes show that Germany consumed 53,000,000 barrels of petroleum products in 1938 and, at its rate of increase for the first six months of 1939, will consume at least 60,000,000 barrels this year.

Figure 1 shows the general sources of Germany's 1939 petroleum. Approximately 38,000,000 barrels is being imported from foreign countries. Germany has exerted great effort to expand its home oil wells, production rising from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 barrels from 1937 to 1938. It should reach 5,000,000 this year.

The remaining 17,000,000 barrels results from Germany's effort to pull herself up by the bootstraps. This is "ersatz," or substitute motor fuel, made chiefly from coal by a process known as hydrogenation. It does include, however, 3,400,000 barrels of benzol and toluol, high-octane fuels made from the carbonization of coal, and about 1,700,000 barrels of alcohol made from potatoes and grains.

During war time benzol and toluol will be almost totally diverted to munitions making, and alcohol will be needed for both explosives and medicines, according to Dr. Gustav Egloff, research director of the Universal Oil Products company of Chicago and authority on petroleum.

Dr. Egloff says, however, that when Germany's synthetic gasoline industry is in full production its output will be 17,000,000 barrels alone from the hydrogenation of tar and carbon monoxide from coal. This will offset diversions into munitions.

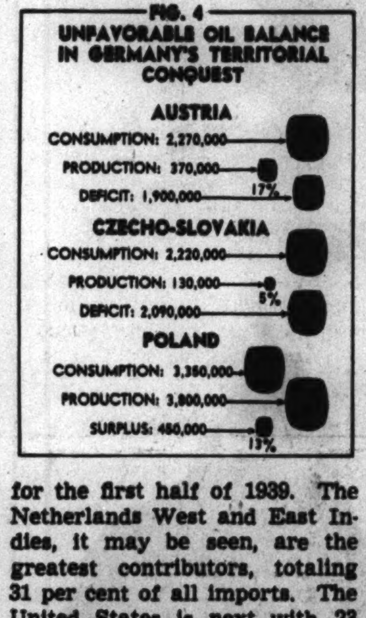
"Theoretically," he explains, "Germany can build enough plants to produce all the petroleum products needed — at a price and on a long-time basis. But she is handicapped by a lack of skilled and technical men to construct and operate these units, as well as a lack of metals and alloys to fabricate them."

The synthetic gasoline, he says, has a 75-octane rating, suitable for motor vehicles but not for airplanes, which need 100-octane. During peace time benzol, alcohol, or toluol is added to raise the explosive quality, but Germany will have to rely on mixing imported petroleum gasoline and lead with the synthetic fuel during war, Dr. Egloff believes.

"It is possible that Germany will be whipped in the air by a shortage of high-grade gasoline," he asserts. "Low-octane gasolines cut down a plane's speed and maneuverability."

He says "ersatz" gasoline costs about 18 cents a gallon to produce, as compared to the 5½-cent wholesale price of equivalent gasoline in America.

Figure 2 charts not only the domestic supplies but the foreign sources of German petroleum on the basis of import figures for the first half of 1939. The Netherlands West and East Indies, it may be seen, are the greatest contributors, totaling 31 per cent of all imports. The United States is next with 23 per cent, a 5 per cent decline from 1938. Mexico follows with 22 per cent. Mexico's share is a 700 per cent increase over 1938.



Obviously if Great Britain's navy is able to establish an effective blockade virtually all of these supplies will be cut off.

Germany's trade alliance with Russia has presented the possibility that the soviet will furnish the Nazis much of the oil they need. Dr. Egloff; L. David Wosk, California oil geologist, who surveyed European oil supplies last summer, and others are unanimous in believing that Russian oil exports to Germany will be relatively small.

The soviet produced 202,000,000 barrels of oil in 1938 and consumed 164,000,000, leaving an apparent exportable surplus of 38,000,000. The fact was, however, that in 1938 Russia exported only 6,900,000 to all countries, a decline of 4,400,000 from 1937. In the first half of 1939 Russia sent only 30,000 to Germany.

The soviet's attempted expansion of its oil production has scarcely kept pace with expanding consumption, and the figures indicate that great stores are being kept in reserve for military or other emergency uses. An obstacle to great oil exports to Germany is inadequacy in transportation facilties.

Rumania's 1938 production was 48,000,000 and its consumption 14,000,000, leaving an exportable surplus of 34,000,000. Germany was the largest customer in 1938, getting about 15 per cent, while Great Britain and Italy took 12 per cent each. The 1939 exports to Germany run about the same as last year.

It is possible that Germany, either by threat or invasion, might obtain Rumania's total surplus. The Rumanian output has declined 25 per cent, however, in the last three years, apparently thru exhaustion of the Dambovitza field.

Not merely a decline but a deficit has been the petroleum reward of Germany's conquests to date. Figure 3 shows that the conquest of Austria and Czecho-Slovakia actually increased Germany's total needs. Figure 4 shows why. Austria consumed six times more than it produced, and Czecho-Slovakia twenty times more. The petroleum needs of these countries do not end thru annexation.

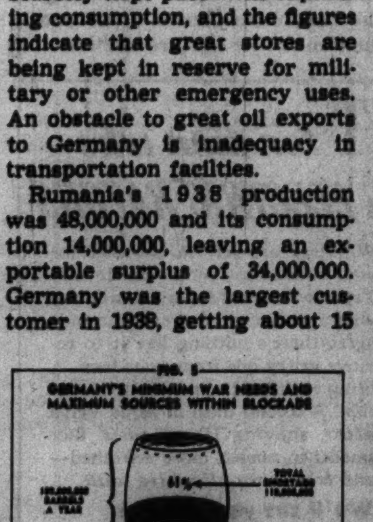
Poland is an exception — on paper. While its Galician fields are shared with Russia thru partition, its surplus of 450,000 barrels is credited to Germany in Figures 3 and 4 on the assumption Germany will acquire Russia's share thru importation.

Germany occupied the part of Poland which consumes the most oil, since it is industrial. A natural decline in Polish wells has been reported. Hence Poland may also prove a deficit.

Figure 5 indicates the probable extent of Germany's wartime petroleum shortage. The peace-time need of 60,000,000 barrels has been multiplied by three, which Dr. Egloff considers a most conservative prediction. It is assumed that the blockade will wipe out Germany's overseas supply. To allow for unpredictable alternatives and to obtain the greatest offset of supply against demand Germany has been credited with some improbabilities: 1. That she gets all of Rumania's surplus. 2. That all of Poland's production can be converted to German use. 3. That Russia can export to Germany nearly as much as it did to all countries in 1937.

With all this, Germany's 180,000,000 barrels of minimum war need will be more than half empty. The domestic supply will make up, according to this estimate, only 12 per cent of total needs. One factor unaccounted for, of course, is to what extent Germany can use coal, of which it has an abundant supply, for steam or gas power in motor vehicles now using petroleum.

Another is the amount of petroleum Germany has stored. Military observers have guessed that the reserve is insufficient for more than six to twelve months, meanwhile pointing out that the Nazis must have dipped deeply into this for the motorized march thru Poland.



NEXT SUNDAY—The world's oil resources and how much the world's armies use.

THOUGHTS HAVE WINGS

You can influence others with your thinking

TRY IT SOME TIME. Concentrate intently upon another person seated in a room with you, without his noticing it. Observe him gradually become restless and finally turn and look in your direction. Simple—yet it is a positive demonstration that thought generates a mental energy which can be projected from your mind to the consciousness of another. Do you realize how much of your success and happiness in life depend upon your influencing others? Is it not important to you to have others understand your point of view—to be receptive to your proposals?

How many times have you wished there were some way you could impress another favorably—get across to him or her your ideas? That thoughts can be transmitted, received, and understood by others is now scientifically demonstrable.

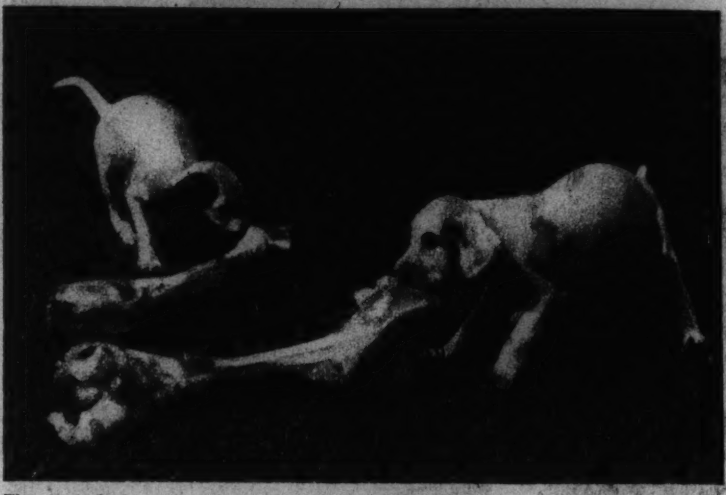
Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Hunting Dog Again Has Its Day



These ambitious four-week-old pointers from Indiana may not know how to point, but they're eating heartily so they will grow up strong and ready to hunt in 1940. (Wight photo.)

A COMPANION dog has his place in the family circle every day of the year. A show dog may step into the show ring almost any time. But the hunting breeds really have just one big season when they move into the spotlight and show the results of their careful breeding and training—autumn, with its open seasons on game birds.

Besides actual hunting, the fall program calls for scores of field trials. All kinds of sporting breeds from basset hounds to stylish pointing dogs and retrievers now demonstrate their ability in these trials, which are becoming more popular every season. In some parts of the country the first fall trials already have been held for retrievers and other breeds which can be of great help to the hunter. The opening of the Hungarian partridge, pheasant, ruffed grouse, duck, and other game bird seasons already has galvanized thousands of hunting dogs into action.

The number of different breeds that have been developed to help sportsmen is not only large but distinctive in many ways. They vary in size from the little cocker and the lovable little beagle hound to powerful marsh and water dogs which have been bred to withstand cold and rough going. Many of the breeds which have been bred primarily for hunting make delightful companion dogs and also are popular with show fanciers because of their beauty and temperament. For example, the cocker spaniel, smallest of all the hunting spaniels, serves as a constant reminder of how America likes the dogs that have a hunting background.

Then we have the wire-haired pointing griffon, a breed that is not used much in America, altho it is capable of going afield and doing a satisfactory job. Then there are two kinds of pointers; five retrievers, including the popular Chesapeake Bay, Labrador, and golden, which are lusty workers either on land or in the water; the beautiful Irish, Gordon, and English setters; and eight different breeds of spaniels. The spaniel family is a large one, altho only the cocker and the springer are very widely known. Spaniels such as the big white clumber, the Welsh, and the pointing Brittany, which points its game much like the setter or pointer, aren't used very much by American sportsmen when they go into the hunting fields. Among the hounds the musical beagle is such an outstanding favorite and such a capable little hunter for rabbits that it has a high ranking among outdoor fans. Beagle clubs to promote the interests of the breed and to hold field trials may be counted by the score. The foxhound is another that has a big following of sportsmen. On our trips into the south for hunting we invariably find our southern hosts and hunting companions ardent admirers of setters, pointers, foxhounds, or coon hounds. The setter and pointer are indispensable in the southern quail hunting areas. And many a night after a quail shoot we've gone out with the foxhounds to listen to their melodious yodeling while they followed the scent of a running fox.

We have found that one doesn't need to worry about the question of whether the sporting breeds make good companions.

Army Flight

we landed there every one congratulated every one else on being there safe and sound and vowed that we'd used up all our luck. Joke.

"The next day was almost the same thing. The two flights from Guatemala City came in, and four flights took off for David, Panama (350 miles). We took off at about twenty to thirty minute intervals, and about half way to David hit some really bad weather. We were second off and got to David — pronounced Dah-vid—at the same time as the first group. The third group got in about an hour later.

"The fourth flight, however, is the one that really caught it. Evidently they hit the storm at its worst. They tried to go under and around, but couldn't make it. The flight leader was on instruments a lot of the time, and he didn't want to get over the mountains and he didn't want to get over the ocean.

"He finally turned around and came out and landed at an auxiliary field. The only trouble was that he had only two men on his wings, whereas he started out with six. The end man got snapped in a steep pull-up and lost the formation. After fooling around in the soup he cautiously came down and found the coast line and by good fortune and good headwork found David and landed.

"Of the other three that got lost, two of them landed. Ranney landed wheels up in the surf just offshore about 300 yards and dragged his chute with jungle kit attached to shore. Barnett made a swell landing on the beach wheels down, but about the middle of his roll hit a rock and nosed up. Neither of the two was in the least hurt.

"Harry [Harry Jenkins] just hasn't been found. Which I'm afraid deadens our spirits at times. He's the first one in our class since graduation and the second since we entered the school. Anyway, I'm afraid, altho we're still searching, we've just about given up hope. The odd thing is, he was with our flight from Selfridge to San Antonio.

"About the storm as I saw it. When we took off from Managua we expected the scattered clouds to stay scattered. They didn't. We ran into rain and no ceilings, the same as the previous day. As for weather reports, I don't know. They just didn't add up, or were vague and didn't properly give a picture, as the stations are so scattered.

"Anyway, suffice it to say when we hit this soup again we expected to break thru, because the other end was supposed to be open. Our flight missed the worst of the storm, but again we were hedge-hopping and flying just over the waves. In the same way, my one and only idea was not to lose the ships ahead of me.

"Worried? You know it. After all, your luck can't last forever, but then we were there, the coast line was there, and we just went ahead. It lifted after about twenty minutes or half an hour, and we had about 1,500 feet, but visibility about a mile.

"Again a beautiful sight—David.

"As you see, I have little or no imagination. Actually if one wanted to, and had been with me, I'll guarantee that he could write a book that would thrill you every minute, but you see I'm a little too practical-minded and all I can say is that it was a wonderful experience.

"If there are any more ferry trips I sure would like to be on them, but not to run the gantlet that we did.

"The next day our flight and two others went searching, along with commercial ships and bombers and amphibians from the Canal Zone. We spent two nights in David and then landed at Allbrook field Wednesday morning (David to Allbrook is 200 miles).

"We had all kinds of weather and fields. Also plenty of work, as we didn't have any mechanics, and we had to moor, cover, and service our own airplanes. Also going to town at night to sleep and see the different cities was really something."

"No talk during the storm. We all tucked our wings into each other's and glued our eyes on the ship or ships ahead. The leader was busy getting out of trouble and didn't have time to be talking to us. Besides, what could he say that we didn't already know?"

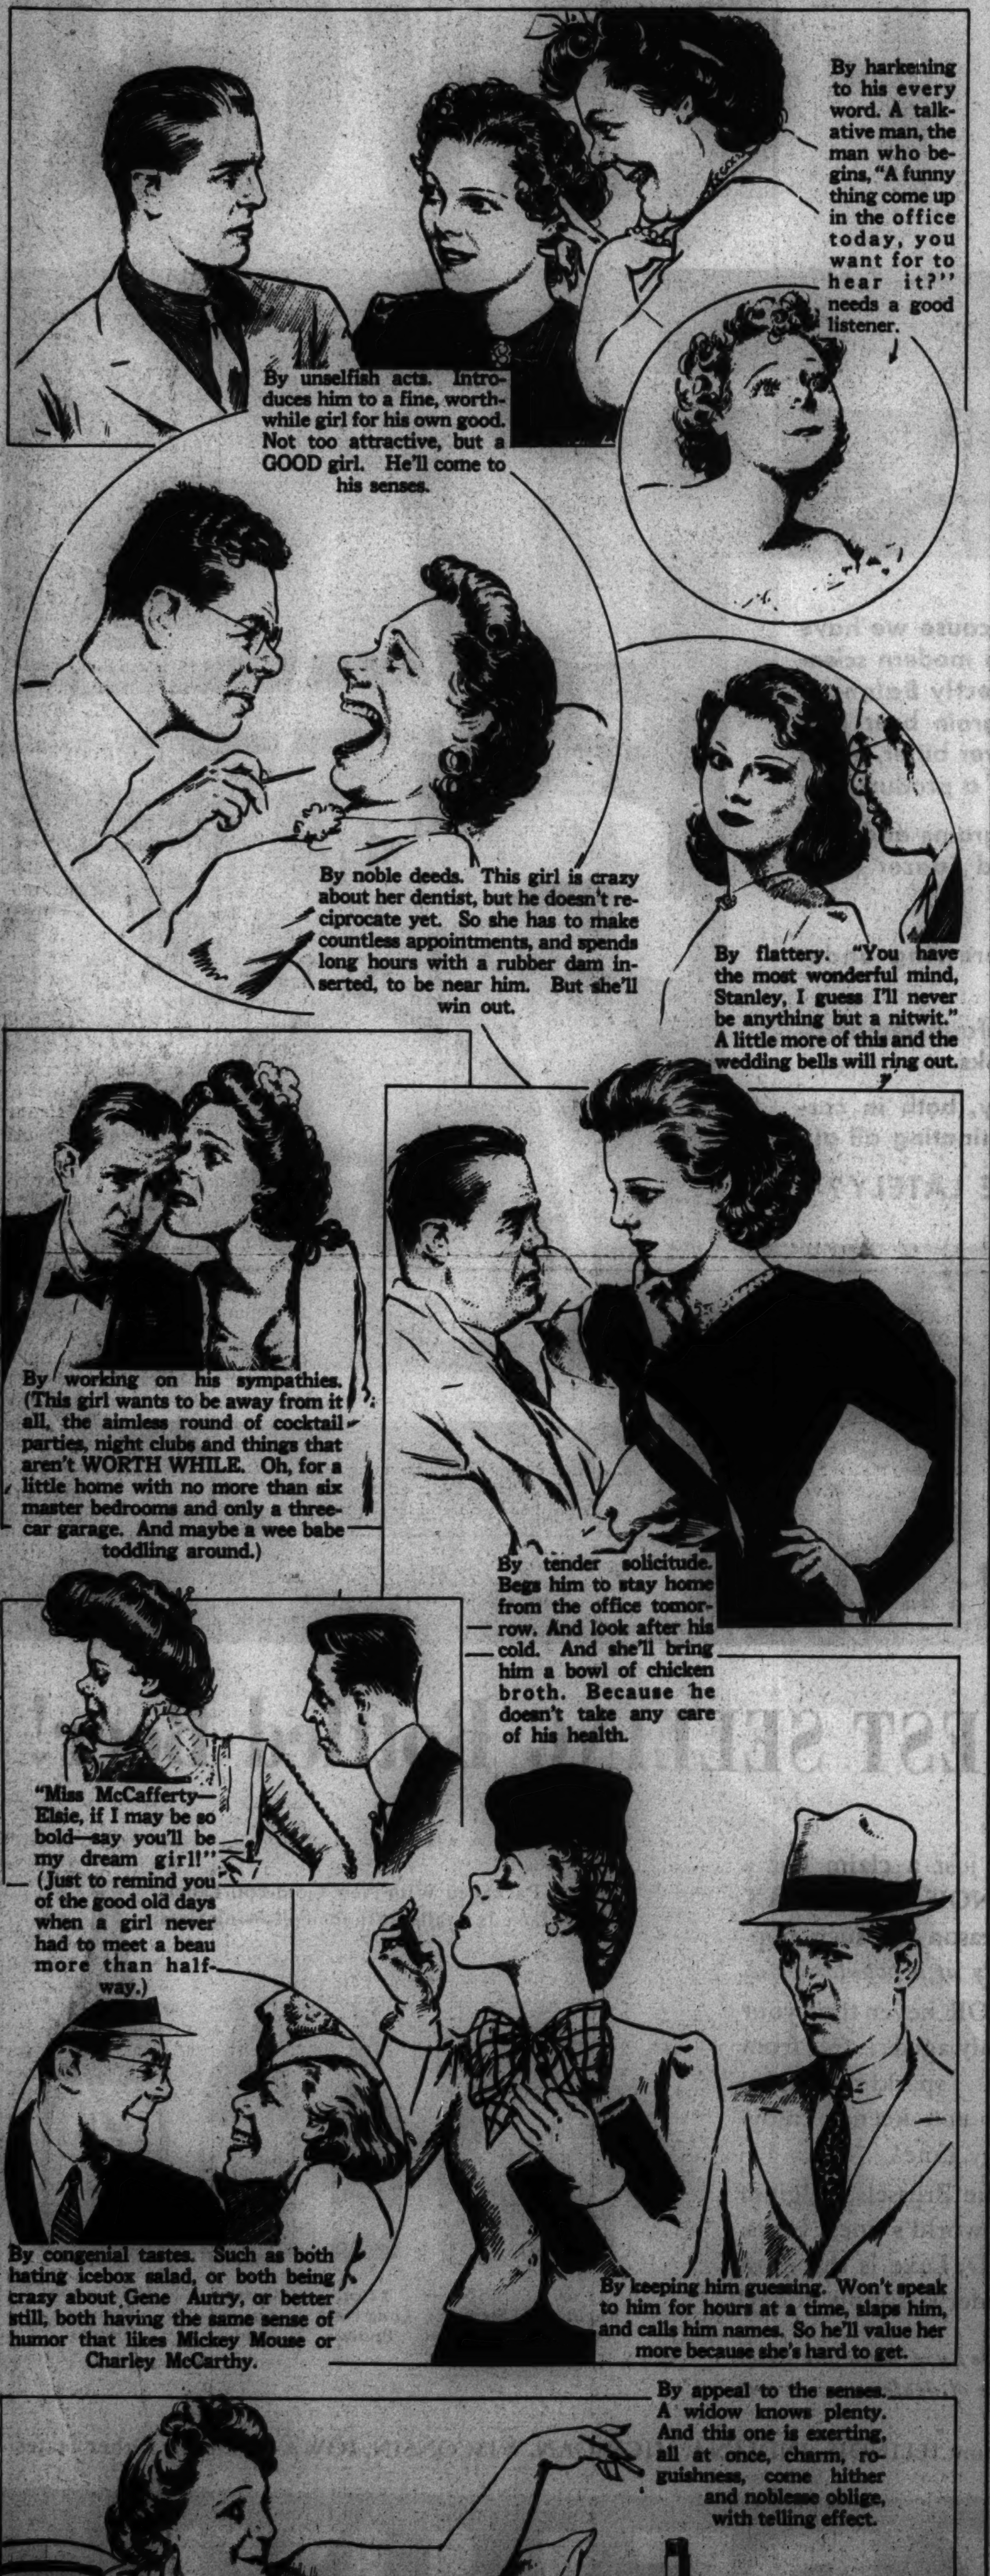
HOW THEY GET THEIR MEN

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1939, by News Co. Syndicate, Inc.



By harkening to his every word. A talkative man, the man who begins, "A funny thing come up in the office today, you want for to hear it?" needs a good listener.

By unselfish acts. Introduces him to a fine, worth-while girl for his own good. Not too attractive, but a GOOD girl. He'll come to his senses.

By noble deeds. This girl is crazy about her dentist, but he doesn't reciprocate yet. So she has to make countless appointments, and spends long hours with a rubber dam inserted, to be near him. But she'll win out.

By flattery. "You have the most wonderful mind, Stanley, I guess I'll never be anything but a nitwit." A little more of this and the wedding bells will ring out.

By working on his sympathies. (This girl wants to be away from it all, the aimless round of cocktail parties, night clubs and things that aren't WORTH WHILE. Oh, for a little home with no more than six master bedrooms and only a three-car garage. And maybe a wee babe toddling around.)

By tender solicitude. Begs him to stay home from the office tomorrow. And look after his cold. And she'll bring him a bowl of chicken broth. Because he doesn't take any care of his health.

"Miss McCafferty—Elsie, if I may be so bold—say you'll be my dream girl!" (Just to remind you of the good old days when a girl never had to meet a beau more than half-way.)

By congenial tastes. Such as both hating icebox salad, or both being crazy about Gene Autry, or better still, both having the same sense of humor that likes Mickey Mouse or Charley McCarthy.

By keeping him guessing. Won't speak to him for hours at a time, slaps him, and calls him names. So he'll value her more because she's hard to get.

By appeal to the senses. A widow knows plenty. And this one is exerting, all at once, charm, roguishness, come hither and noblesse oblige, with telling effect.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

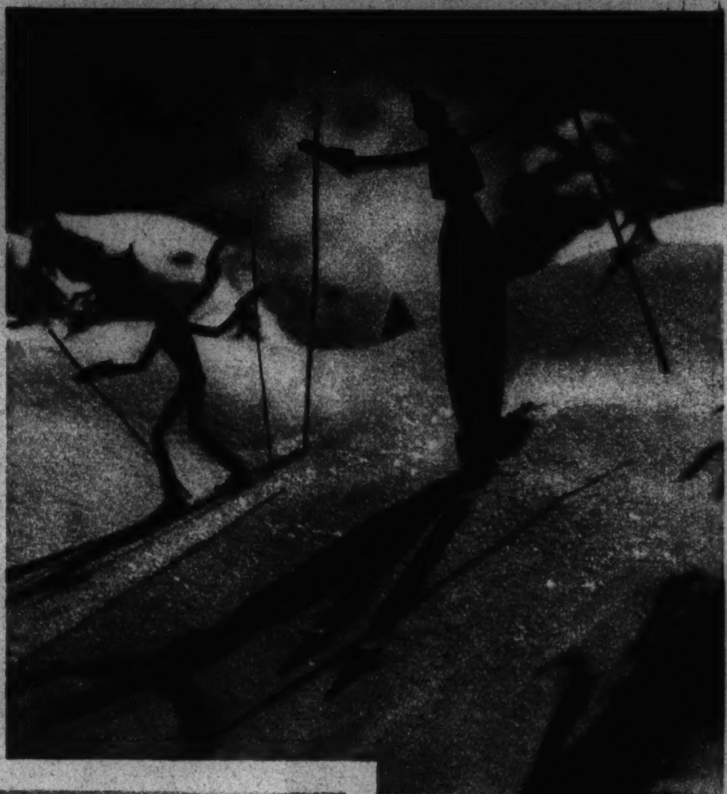
'Table-Top' Shots Fun, Helpful

TABLE-TOP photography—taking pictures of miniature sets made up from odds and ends found around the house—is a field of photographic activity which every amateur should investigate. Here you can produce with the simplest means an unlimited variety of striking pictures and learn a lot about photography in general while you are snapping mere table-tops.

As the name suggests, table-tops are made on a table, or any other flat surface, right in your home. It may be pitch dark and raining outdoors, yet your table-top sets will give you brilliant pictures of desert scenes, tropical forests, and bring exotic animals and odd "personalities" right into your home to pose patiently for your pictures.



Cutouts from black paper, placed on a snow substitute (sugar, salt, borax, flour, cotton, and any number of other substances can be used for snow) and back-lighted, give interesting table-top shots of skiers.

With a little ingenuity you can build practically any setting you want to photograph and your camera will transform it into a realistic picture. There is just one thing you must always remember—the realism of miniature sets is based on keeping the objects used in correct proportion to each other. If two dolls are to represent mother and child, one should not be ten times the size of the other.

A stroll through the toy department of any store will furnish you with a wealth of ideas for building table-top sets out of miniature objects. You can either buy your props for a few cents in the store or you can build them yourself, provided you have retained enough of your kindergarten training. Paper cutouts, figures shaped from pipe cleaners or from plasticine, and vegetables trimmed to the shape of human beings or animals are among the favorite props for this type of picture.

But the main figures alone don't make a complete set that would photograph realistically, and not even toy houses and doll furniture are sufficient in themselves to create the impression of an old-world street or a real interior. Many additional little objects are needed to complete a realistic scene, and you must have a background which blends into your picture. The best background is a sheet of cardboard placed directly behind the scene. It can be black, a neutral gray, or can be painted to fit into the scene by showing stars, clouds, or whatever else the occasion calls for.

To give you an idea of how simple it is to build table-tops, here are a few examples. Velvet or fur may be made to photograph like grass; twigs of different types, dressed up with foliage cut from crêpe paper, give excellent trees. Pebbles and pieces of coal can be made to appear like rocks or mountains. Sugar, salt, borax, white cotton, and many other objects can create the effect of snow. A mirror or a piece of glass appears in the picture as the surface of a lake, and if you want waves you can stretch a few strips of painted paper horizontally across the scene. Crumpled cellophane gives the effect of ripples on water.

You can make table-tops with any camera, even though you will get best effects with a camera which permits ground-glass focusing. Get as close to your miniature sets as your lens permits. If you use a portrait attachment on the lens of a folding camera, measure the distance from the set carefully to get sharp focus.

For lighting your set you will need at least two strong lamps in reflectors. By putting a mask with a small hole in front of the reflector you can transform it into a spotlight, giving concentrated light on sharp shadows. There is no better way of learning how to illuminate a set or to create an effective portrait lighting than by creating light effects in table-top photography.

Pipe cleaners are the favorite medium of table-top sculptors. This group, showing young George Washington chopping down the cherry tree, was modeled and photographed by Albert G. Johnson of Chicago.

QUESTIONS

Questions of general interest to camera fans will be answered here. No individual replies, other than those published, can be promised.

Is there anything wrong with using a portrait or close-up attachment over my enlarger lens in order to obtain bigger blow-ups without raising the enlarger head so far above the easel?—B. O'F.

ANSWER: This method has become fairly common and is of considerable help in making big prints. Of course, any change in the optical system of an enlarger (which is really a sort of camera) is apt to introduce some manner of imperfection in the image produced by the enlarger. By careful inspection of your enlarged image you can tell how well the method will work in your particular case.

In a recent column you suggested holding a filter in front of the cell of a photo-electric exposure meter as a means of determining the proper exposure with that filter. One or two authorities have advised me against this practice as not being accurate.—R. S.

ANSWER: This procedure is not claimed to be highly accurate, but in practice you can obtain a useful approximation of the proper exposure by so doing. The method is of special value when speed is essential.

How soon is it safe to remove my 35-mm. film from the hypo when processing is done in a "daylight" tank, with frequent agitation?—R. L. J.

ANSWER: Under such conditions it is generally safe to remove the film after eight minutes in the hypo. A period of ten minutes is certainly ample, assuming that you use a fresh fixing bath. One axiom is that you should fix the film for twice the length of time it takes to clear.

SMILE WITH "PRESTONE" ANTI-FREEZE

THERE'S NO OTHER product like "Prestone" anti-freeze. It contains NO alcohol . . . NO glycerine. It's made with highly refined and purified ethylene glycol. But it took far more than ethylene glycol to make "Prestone" anti-freeze the world's finest winter protection!

In "Prestone" anti-freeze, ethylene glycol is fortified with exclusive ingredients developed after years of research and millions of miles of the toughest road tests an anti-freeze can undergo. These ingredients curb leaking, rust-clogging, and foaming. That's why you should think twice before you buy a new and untried anti-freeze.

And before you spend even a dollar a gallon for an anti-freeze, remember this. Dollar-a-gallon anti-freezes are usually made with alcohol. Result? Boil-away...and replacement. But "Prestone" anti-freeze will not boil away. One filling lasts all winter long. Guaranteed in writing.

"ALKALIZE" UPSETTING STOMACH ACIDS THIS AMAZING PHILLIPS' WAY

"I'LL BE A WRECK—TOMORROW"
NO, DO THIS AS SOON AS YOU GET READY FOR BED—
1.

Take 2 tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water.

You'll feel wonderful in the morning and do a swell job.

Wake up clear-headed and peppy . . . no acid upsets or headache.

It's hard to avoid it if you're friendly and gay . . . AND IF you over-indulge—eat or drink too much . . . stay out all hours . . . you're due to "pay the piper" in the morning. You're in for a session of OVER-ACIDITY of the stomach that can get you really down and spoil the whole next day. There's no use to fool with slow, makeshift remedies or "potions". Only a thorough, FAST ALKALIZATION can combat excess stomach acidity.

The QUICK, EFFECTIVE way is to follow the routine in the pictures here . . . with, remember Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia . . . one of the most remarkable alkalizers known. Just two tablespoonfuls at bedtime and two in the morning with your orange juice . . . that's all.

But the results: You will literally be astonished. You'll be on top of the world when you wake up. For, while you sleep, that Phillips' goes to work to thoroughly neutralize the excess stomach acids over-indulgence brings on. No "morning-after" depression. No nausea. It's wonderful . . . you're alert . . . full of vitality . . . at your best.

But to get the results you want, be sure it's genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Get either liquid or tablet form at any drug store.

WAR WEDDING—Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, and his bride.

"HERE I AM TACKLING that All-American nuisance—a stopped-up drain! With all my hammers, wires and perspiration I was getting nowhere fast, when in walked Ted Garrett, and . . .

"HE CERTAINLY MADE A FISH out of me by showing how easy it is to lick clogged drains with Drāno! No work—no tools—no mess! Just pour Drāno down the drain and it digs out all the clogging grease and muck! And from now on, we're going to dodge drain trouble—by using a teaspoonful of Drāno every night when the last dish is done!"

AS MANY A DOCTOR SAYS . . . to help fortify the system against colds, take cod liver oil daily. For it is rich in Vitamin A, so helpful in building resistance to common colds. And now THERE IS A BETTER WAY TO TAKE COD LIVER OIL . . . SCOTT'S EMULSION!

1—Scott's Emulsion has all the values of cod liver oil and is four times more easily digested.

2—Easily digested—The exclusive method of emulsifying the oil permits digestion to start in the stomach, whereas digestion of plain cod liver oil does not begin until the oil passes into the intestines.

3—Easy to take—Scott's Emulsion has a pleasant taste. Easy to take and retain by children and adults.

4—Economical—Scott's Emulsion is an economical way to obtain the Vitamins A and D so necessary to strong bones and sound teeth.

NEW MERCURY 8

READY FOR MORE RECORDS

In less than three months, the brand-new Mercury 8 won itself a position among the ten established sales leaders!

The 1940 Mercury 8 is a brilliant successor to that record-breaking car. It offers many refinements that make it an even more desirable car to own. With every advantage that you'll find in any car of this big-car class — it has something more: Economy that would be good in any car!

Distinctive new streamlines and interior design again earn for the Mercury the title of "Style Leader" in its class. New Finger-Tip Gearshift is mounted on the steering column. New seat construction and softer front springs add to the unique comfort of the Mercury Ride. Nearly a score of other improvements enhance the Mercury's safety, comfort, quiet and performance.

We invite you to look at this greater Mercury 8 — critically. Feel the way it rides and drives under all conditions. Any Mercury dealer will give you full opportunity to drive and know the car.

MERCURY HIGHLIGHTS FOR 1940

Finger-Tip Gearshift — mounted on steering column.

New Controlled Ventilation — all-weather comfort.

95-hp V-type, 8-cylinder Engine — smooth, powerful, supremely efficient. (Owners report up to 20 miles per gallon of gasoline.)

SHOULDER FEEL STIFF AS A BRICK WALL after exercise?

It's too much FATIGUE ACID in your muscles

AN excess of waste products called fatigue acids form in your muscles when you overexercise. They make the muscle swell inside its sheath. Pains and stiffness result. For quick relief, rub on Absorbine Jr. three or four times a day. Accepted laboratory tests prove Absorbine Jr. speeds the flow of blood through the tissues, helping to carry those acids off. Pains ease. Stiffness reduces. Millions of people like Absorbine Jr. and use it regularly because it is

1. QUICK ACTING 3. PLEASANT
2. QUICK DRYING 4. ECONOMICAL TO USE

At all druggists, $1.25 a bottle

"UNCORK" YOUR CORN THIS EASY WAY!

● Don't suffer needlessly. Now it's easy to remove those painful corns and prevent their coming back—without dangerous home paring. Just do this:

1 Put scientific Blue-Jay pad (C) neatly over corn. It relieves pain by removing pressure. Special Blue-Jay medicated formula (D) acts on corn—gently loosens it so it can be lifted right out.

2 And that's not all! Now simply by avoiding the pressure and friction that caused your corns you can prevent their coming back.

Millions have gotten rid of corns this scientific way. Don't endure needless suffering. Get Blue-Jay Corn Plasters today—only 25¢ for 6.

BETTER WATCH OUT, MOTHER! Halloween's a risky time. If that knife slips, the goblins may not get you but germs might! After the hurt is properly treated, Band-Aid will help protect it . . . help keep dirt out. For Band-Aid is a neat, ready-made adhesive bandage. Just stick it on. And it stays on —even on hard-to-bandage surfaces. Be sure you get genuine Band-Aid. It's made only by Johnson & Johnson. Look for the red cross on the package.
